39 he that talketh with thee. And he said, Master, I believe: And he did obeisance to

39 him. Then Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they who see not may see: and that they who see may 40 be made blind. And some of the Pharisees who were with him heard these words, and said to him, Are we also blind?

41 Jesus said to them, If ye were blind, ye would not have sin: but now ye say, We see; your sin therefore remaineth.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 32. Christ the door and the good shepherd; various opinions respecting him; he proves by his works that he is the Messiah, &c.

1 VERILY, verily, I say to you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheep-fold, but climbeth up some other way, is a thief

2 and a robber; But the shepherd of the

3 sheep entereth in by the door. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hearken to his voice: and he calleth his own sheep

4 by name, and leadeth them out. And when he bringeth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow

5 him, because they know his voice. A stranger they will not follow, but will flee from him; for they know not the voice of 6 strangers. This parable Jesus spoke to them; but they understood not what things they were which he spoke to them.

7 Jesus therefore said to them again, Verily, verily, I say to you, I am the door of Pharisees. When unable to refute his simple reasoning, they persecute the man for speaking the truth.

35. Dost thou believe? How kind was Jesus to notice this injured man, to make himself known to him, and lead him to place his confidence in him!

39. For judgment I am On some for their wilful blindness and obduracy, and in mercy to others, to give them both the power of seeing naturally and spiritually.

41. If ye were blind If ye laboured under unavoidable ignorance, ye would have comparatively no sin; but since you pretend to know more than others, your sin of unbelief abides upon you with greater aggravation.

CHAP. X. 1. Verily, verily Jesus, in the former part of this chapter, addressed the Pharisees, who considered themselves as shepherds, and they admitted into the fold, or excluded from it, whom they would.—Sheep-fold These were made difficult of access, to prevent robbery.

2—5. But the shepherd This is his constant practice; and the porter, or person set to watch, openeth the gate to him.—Calleth by name This shows that shepherds were accustomed then, as they are even now, to give names to their sheep, and to go before them when they brought them out of the fold. Persons discharging the office of shepherds the sheep-fold. All that have come [before 8 me] are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door: 9 by me if any man enter in, he shall be safe, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh only to steal, and to kill, 10 and to destroy: I am come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly.

I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep. But the hireling, who is not the shepherd, 12 whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth; and the wolf seizeth them, and scattereth the sheep. The hireling fleeth because he 13 is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep. I am the good shepherd, and know my 14 sheep, and am known by mine; Even as 15 the Father knoweth me, and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep. And other sheep I have, which are 16 not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. For 17 this my Father loveth me, because I lay down my life, that I may take it again. None taketh it from me, but I lay it down 18 of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commission I have received from my Father.

There was a division therefore again 19 among the Jews because of these words. And many of them said, He hath a demon, 20 and is mad; why hear ye him? Others 21 said, These are not the words of him that hath a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?

Now the feast of the dedication was kept 22 at Jerusalem; and it was winter. And 23 Jesus walked in the temple, in Solomon's porch. Then came the Jews round about 24 him, and said to him, How long dost thou must be called to it, and properly qualified, and diligently employed, caring for the flock.

8—10. Have come before me Pretending to be the Christ, such as Theudas, Acts v. 36.—By me if any Either as a shepherd or teacher, or as a sheep or disciple, he shall be safe, and shall enjoy true spiritual food.—May have life And the means of supporting it in a much more abundant manner than they have had at any former period.

11—13. I am the good What follows justly entitles him to this character. When a person has no interest in the flock, and careth not for them, he will not expose himself to any danger; but he, whose the sheep are, will do anything to secure them.

16. Other sheep He refers to the Gentiles whom he designed should be called and brought to his fold.

18. None taketh it That is, none can without my own consent.—This commission To become the good shepherd, and to give his life for the sheep.

19—21. A division Some with malice and hatred said, 'he hath a demon, and is mad'; but others, appealing to his recent miracles, justified his discourse.

22. Feast of the dedication This feast was instituted to commemorate the cleansing of the temple by Judas Macca-

CHAPTER XI.

make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, 25 tell us plainly. Jesus answered them, I said to you, and ye believed not: the works which I do in my Father's name, testify of 26 me. But ye believe not, because ye are not 27 of my sheep; As I said to you, My sheep hear my voice; and I know them, and they 28 follow me: And I give unto them everlasting life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any one wrest them out of my 29 hand. My Father, who gave them to me, is greater than all; and none are able to 30 wrest them out of my Father's hand. I 31 and my Father are one. Then the Jews 32 again took up stones to stone him. Jesus said to them, Many good works I have shown you from my Father; for which of 33 those works do ye stone me? The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy, because that thou, being a man, makest thyself 34 God. Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? If 35 those be called gods, to whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be made 36 void; Say ye of him, whom the Father hath set apart, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest, because I said, I am 37 the Son of God? If I do not the works of 38 my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the 39 Father is in me, and I in him. Again therefore they sought to take him: but he 40 escaped out of their hand, And departed again beyond the Jordan into the place where John at first baptized; and there he 41 abode. And many resorted to him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spoke of this man were true. And many believed in him there.

beus, after it had been polluted by Antiochus Epiphanes. It was kept in the 9th month, our December.

24. Be the Christ] Whether this was said with a friendly design or not, Jesus thought proper to answer in a satisfactory manner.

25. The works which] He had often appealed to his works, in testimony of who he was, chap. v. 36, &c.

26, 27. As I said to you] With Beza, and many others, I join these words to what follows, because Jesus had said these words; see ver. 4, 15, 16.

30. I and my Father] Are one in counsel and power. Unless we admit this, the inference would not be just, that none can wrest them out of his hand, because none can wrest them out of his Father's hand. The union of believers is very different from this, chap. xvii. 21.

31—33. Then the Jews again] See chap. viii. 59. It is not said that they threw them at him; but it is rather probable that they were prevented from doing this, he being surrounded by many who were friendly to him.—For blasphemy] This is explained in the next words, calling God his Father, and claiming an equality in Divine power. See note, chap. v. 18, &c.

34, 38. In your law] Ps. lxxxii. 6. Thus the term law is applied to the whole scriptures. If the scriptures style magistrates gods, because appointed and established in that

A. D. 33. Christ raiseth Lazarus, and many Jews believe; the high priests and Pharisees conspire against him; opinion of Caiaphas; many inquire after him at the passover.

Now a certain man was sick, named 1 Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and of her sister Martha. (It was the same 2 Mary who afterwards anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.) Therefore his sisters sent to Jesus, saying, 3 Master, behold he whom thou lovest is sick. When Jesus heard this, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of 4 God, that the Son of God might be glorified by it. Now Jesus loved Martha, and her 5 sister, and Lazarus; When he had heard therefore that he was sick, he still abode 6 two days in the same place where he was. Then afterwards he saith to his disciples, 7 Let us go into Judea again. The disciples 8 said to him, Rabbi, the Jews of late sought to stone thee: and goest thou thither again? Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours 9 in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world. But if a man walk in 10 the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light to him. He spoke these things; 11 and afterwards he saith to them, Our friend Lazarus hath fallen asleep; but I go, that I may awake him. Then said his disciples, 12 Master, if he hath fallen asleep, he will recover. But Jesus spoke of his death: but 13 they thought that he spoke of rest in sleep. Then Jesus said to them plainly, Lazarus 14 is dead. And I am glad for your sakes 15 that I was not there, that ye may believe; but let us go unto him. Then Thomas, 16 who is called Didymus, said to his fellow-disciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him. When Jesus therefore came, 17

office; and if its language be correct, how can ye accuse me of blaspheming, because I call God my father?—The Father in me] Our Lord claims such a union with the Father as must imply a participation of the same nature, perfections, and attributes; and the Jews understood him to do so.

CHAP. XI. 2. Who afterwards] See chap. xii. 1, 3, &c. Matt. xxvi. 7, and see note, Luke vii. 37, &c. John omits what the other Evangelists had related; and gives us this interesting account of his raising Lazarus, not mentioned by the rest. Grotius supposes the other Evangelists, who wrote while Lazarus was alive, might omit the miracle, lest the Jews should kill him, as being a witness of the Divine power of Christ. We find they did form such a design, chap. xii. 10. But Lazarus being now dead, John records the miracle with all its wonderful circumstances.

4. Not unto death] From what follows, we must understand our Lord to mean, 'not at this time to a continuance in the state of death.'

16. Didymus] This has the same meaning in Greek that Thomas has in Hebrew, denoting a twin.—That we may die] Some expected that Jesus would be stoned, and Thomas supposed that they might be treated in the same manner. See verse 8.

he found that Lazarus had already lain in the grave four days.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, 19 about fifteen furlongs off: And many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother. 20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but 21 Mary sat in the house. Then said Martha to Jesus, Master, if thou hadst been here, 22 my brother had not died. But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou shalt ask 23 of God, God will give to thee. Jesus saith to her, Thy brother shall rise again. 24 Martha saith to him, I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last 25 day. Jesus said to her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he who believeth in me, though he die, yet shall he live: And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall 27 never die. Believest thou this? She saith to him. Yea, Master, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, who was to come into the world. And when she had said this, she went and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Teacher is come, 29 and calleth for thee. As soon as she heard this, she arose quickly, and came unto him, 30 (Now Jesus had not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met 31 him.) The Jews then who were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw that Mary rose up hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the sepulchre that she may weep there. 32 When Mary had come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying to him, Master, if thou hadst been 33 here, my brother had not died. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping who came with her, he 34 groaned in spirit, and was troubled, And said, Where have ye laid him? They said 35 to him, Master, come and see. Jesus wept.

21, 22. Master, if thou Martha owns our Lord's power to raise Lazarus, but knowing that, in many cases, he had not exerted it, she does not ask or expect such a miracle.

23—26. Thy brother shall Thus did Jesus, unsolicited, declare what he intended to do: but Martha misunderstood him, supposing that he referred to the general resurrection. —I am the resurrection That is, I am the author of the resurrection and the life; a very common trope, of the effect for the efficient cause.—Never die Shall not die again after being raised to life.

28. Secretly This was done by his command, though John does not relate it expressly; but it is implied in what Martha says, 'he calleth for thee.'

33—35. He groaned in spirit He showed his emotion by a suppressed inward groan; and his sympathy by his tears. Our Lord manifested the same feelings that we possess, and lamented the miseries of human life. 'In spirit,' means 'in himself;' πνευμα only signifying person, chap. xiii. 21.

The Jews therefore said, Behold how he 36 loved him! And some of them said, Could 37 not He, who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died? Jesus therefore again groaning 38 in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. Jesus said, 39 Take away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith to him, Master, by this time he is offensive: for he hath been four days buried. Jesus saith to her, 40 Said I not to thee, that, if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God? Then they took away the stone.^o And 41 Jesus raised his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And 42 I know that thou hearest me always: but because of the multitude who stand by I have said this, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. And when he had 43 thus spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that had 44 been dead came forth, having his hands and feet bound with grave clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith to them, Loose him, and let him go. Then many of the Jews who came to Mary, 45 and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed in him. But some of them went 46 away to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

The chief priests and Pharisees assem- 47 bled a council, and said, What shall we do? for this man doeth many miracles. If we 48 let him thus alone, all men will believe in him; and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation. And one 49 of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said to them, Ye know nothing, Nor consider that it is ex- 50 pedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation should not perish. Now he spoke not this 51 of himself: but, being high priest that

39. By this time In hot countries the putrefaction of dead bodies is rapid, and Mary concluded that this was the state of Lazarus.

40. Glory of God A display of his amazing power in raising up Lazarus, and which should tend to advance his glory among men.—(o) Where the dead was laid.—Griesb.

41. Father, I thank thee He had poured out his soul to the Father and he knew that he had heard him; for he heard him always.

44. Having his hands He might have been so loosely bound, as to have some little use of his hands and feet.—His face was bound If the Jews buried as the Egyptians did, the face was not covered; but only something wrapped round the forehead which came under the chin.

46. But some went While some were constrained to believe in him by the evidence of such a miracle, others were so hardened as to go and inform the Pharisees of it, to excite them to execute their well-known designs.

50. That one man It should seem that the council was divided, and that some contended that it was not lawful to kill an innocent man; but Caiaphas contended that expediency and reasons of state would justify it. This reasoning has been adopted by rulers too frequently.

year, he prophesied that Jesus should die 52 for that nation; And not for that nation only, but that he should gather together also in one the children of God, who were 53 scattered abroad. From that day therefore they took counsel how they might kill him.
54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence into a country near the desert, unto a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.
55 And the passover of the Jews was near:
and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify 56 themselves. Then sought they for Jesus, and spoke among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye? that he will 57 not come to the feast? Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a command, that if any man knew where he was, he should discover it, that they might apprehend him.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 33. Mary anointeth the feet of Jesus; many assemble to see Lazarus; Jesus rideth into Jerusalem; foretelleth his death, &c.

1 Six days before the passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was who had been dead, whom he had raised from the 2 dead. There they made for him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one 3 of those that were at table with him. Then took Mary a pound of ointment of liquid nard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair:
and the house was filled with the odour of 4 the ointment. Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, [Simon's son,] who 5 was about to deliver him up, Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred denarii, 6 and given to the poor? Now this he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the purse, and 7 carried that was put in it. Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of 8 my embalming she hath kept this. For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always. Now a great mul- 9 titude of the Jews knew that he was there:

and they came not because of Jesus only,
but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead. So 10
the chief priests determined to kill Lazarus also: Because that by reason of him many 11 of the Jews withdrew from them, and believed in Jesus.

On the next day a great multitude who 12 had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, Took 13 branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried out Hosanna; Blessed be the King of Israel, who cometh in the name of the Lord. Now when Jesus had 14 procured a young ass, he sat on it; as it is written, Fear not, daughter of Zion: be- 15 hold, thy King cometh, sitting on the colt of an ass.

Now these things understood not his dis- 16
ciples at first: but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him. The mul- 17 titude therefore who were with him, bore testimony that he had called Lazarus out of his sepulchre, and raised him from the dead. For this reason also the multitude 18 met him, because they heard that he had done this miracle. The Pharisees there- 19 fore said to one another, Perceive ye that ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.

Now certain Greeks were among those 20 who came up to worship at the feast.
These came to Philip, who was of Bethsaida 21 in Galilee, and besought him, saying, Sir, we desire to see Jesus. Philip cometh and 22 telleth Andrew: and again, Andrew and Philip tell Jesus. And Jesus answered 23 them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified. Verily, 24 verily, I say to you, Unless a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it remaineth

51—54. He prophesied] His words were so overruled, that they may be considered as containing a prophecy of the death of Jesus for the whole Jewish people and the Gentiles; yet this was not his intention — Walked no more] As his time was not yet come, he withdrew from the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, to a city or town called Ephraim, not far from Bethel, and near the desert Quarantina; and as Doddridge thought, he went thence to the Jordan and parts about, whence he had come to raise Lazarus.

55—57. The passover] This was the passover at which Jesus suffered.—To purify] From legal pollutions. The language of the people showed that Jesus and his miracles were the general topic of conversation; while the priests and Pharisees made no secret of their intention to kill him.

CHAP. XII. 1—3. Six days] Within these six days, now many discourses did our Lord deliver! Every portion of his time was well filled up.—Anointed the feet] See note, Luke vii. 38.

5. Three hundred] Near ten pounds of our money; so that it appears that Lazarus and his sisters were persons in easy, if not affluent circumstances.

6. This he said] The Evangelist makes this reflection on the spirit of the traitor, as appeared by his subsequent conduct.

7. Of my embalming] See note, Matt. xxvi. 12.—The poor always] These will continue to be objects on whom you may confer favour, and to whom you may show respect; but I shall soon be removed from you, and you will have no opportunity of showing any regard to me personally.

9—12. Multitude of the Jews] Curiosity brought many to Bethany to see Lazarus; and, satisfied of the truth of the miracle, believed in Jesus as Messiah.

16—19. Now these things] The Evangelist honestly confesses that when these things were done, they did not understand them.

21—26. Sir, we desire to see] These Greeks had wrong notions of our Lord's kingdom, conceiving it to be a temporal one. Hence he informs them of his death, and of the a single corn : but if it die, it bringeth 25 forth much produce. He that loveth his life, shall lose it ; and he that regardeth not his life in this world, shall keep it to 26 life everlasting. If any man serve me, let him follow me ; and where I am, there shall my servant also be : if any man serve 27 me, him will my Father honour. Now is my soul troubled ; and what shall I say ?

 Father, save me from this hour ? But for 28 this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name. Then a voice came from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and 29 will glorify it again. The multitude therefore, who stood by and heard it, said that it thundered : others said, An angel spoke 30 to him. Jesus answered and said, This voice came not for my sake, but for your 31 sakes. Now is the judgment of this world :
 now shall the prince of this world be cast 32 out. And when I shall be lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men unto me.
 33 (This he said, signifying what death he was 34 about to die.) The multitude answered him, We have heard out of the law that the Christ abideth for ever : and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up ?
 35 who is the Son of man ? Then Jesus said to them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you : for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither 36 he goeth. While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the sons of light. These things spoke Jesus, and departed, and privately withdrew from them.
 37 But though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not in 38 him : So that the words of Isaiah the prophet were fulfilled, which he spoke, saying, Lord, who hath believed our report ?
 and to whom hath the arm of the Lord 39 been manifested ? Therefore they could not believe, because Isaiah had said again, 40 He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart ; so that they see not with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and turn, that I should heal them. These 41 things said Isaiah, when he saw his glory, and spoke of him.

Nevertheless many among the rulers 42 believed in him ; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue : For 43 they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

Then Jesus cried and said, He who be- 44
 lieveth in me, believeth not only in me, but in him who sent me. And he who 45 seeth me seeth him who sent me. I am 46 come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth in me should not remain in darkness. And if any man hear my words, 47 and believe not, I condemn him not : for I came not to condemn the world, but to save the world. He that rejecteth me, and re- 48 ceiveth not my words, hath what will condemn him : the doctrine which I have spoken, that will condemn him in the last day. For I have not spoken of myself ; 49 but the Father, who sent me, hath given me a commandment, what I should enjoin, and what I should speak. And I know 50 that his commandment is everlasting life ; whatsoever therefore I speak, I so speak as the Father hath enjoined me.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 33. Jesus washeth the disciples' feet, as an example to teach humility ; he informs John who should betray him ; inculcates brotherly love, &c.

Now before the feast of the passover, 1 though Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, yet having loved his own who were in the world, he loved them unto the end. And supper being come, (the 2 devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, son of Simon, to deliver him up ;) Though Jesus knew that the Father 3 persecution of his disciples ; and promises to such as faithfully serve him, a place with him in heaven. See note, Luke xiv. 26.

27. Father, save me] This is a part of the question ; which he no sooner asks than he checks himself by the design of his coming among men ; and hence prays, ' Father, glorify thy name.'

28—33. Then a voice] Doubtless in a very audible manner, as we learn from the reflections of the people.—The judgment of] Now the time approaches, when the prince of darkness, who rules in the Gentile world, shall be cast out by the spread of my gospel, after my crucifixion.

34. Abideth for ever] Ps. cx. 4 ; Dan. vii. 14, 27. The Jews could not reconcile our Lord's being lifted up, or removed some way from them, with his claim of being the Christ.

37—41. So many miracles] This must refer to the chief priests and Pharisees ; for numbers did believe in him.—
Could not believe] Through the power of their prejudice, and hardened hearts, Matt. xiii. 14.—Saw his glory] See
 l. vi. 1, &c. The prophet saw the glory of Jehovah himself, and this direct reference at least proves that the Evangelist believed that the Saviour was also Jehovah.

42, 43. Many among] We know of two, Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea ; yet they were so timid as not to dare to confess their faith, loving the praise of men.

45. Seeth him who] He seeth the Divine perfections displayed ; and in my person he beholds the character of the Father.

47. Not to condemn the world] This was not his design on the present occasion. He pronounced no sentence of final misery.

48—50. Receive not] Our Lord testifies that the doctrine he taught in his Father's name, if rejected, would afford matter of condemnation at the last day ; but if received, it would conduct to everlasting life.

CHAP. XIII. 1. He loved them] He showed that he did so both by his kind instructions and the example which he set before them.

2. Supper being come] That it was not ended appears from verses 26—28 ; and the text will admit the version

had given all things into his hands, and that as he came from God, so he was about to return to God; He riseth from supper, and laid aside his mantle; and took a towel, and girded himself. He then poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel with which he was girded. So he cometh to Simon Peter; and Peter said to him, Master, wouldst thou wash my feet? Jesus answered and said to him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter. Peter saith to him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. Simon Peter saith to him, Master, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith to him, He that hath been washed needeth only to wash his feet; and he is altogether clean: and ye are clean, but not all. For he knew who was about to deliver him up; therefore he said, Ye are not all clean.

So after he had washed their feet, and put on his mantle and placed himself at table, he said to them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Teacher and Master: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Master and Teacher, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say to you, The servant is not greater than his master; nor is the messenger greater than he who sent him. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but so the scripture is fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me. Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he. Verily, verily, I say to you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. When Jesus had said thus, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say to you, that one of you will deliver me up. Then the disciples looked on one another, doubting of whom he spoke. Now one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved, was lying near his bosom. Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it might be of whom he spoke. He then, leaning nearer the bosom of Jesus, saith to him, Master, who is it? Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. And after the sop, Satan entered into him. Then Jesus said to him, What thou doest, do quickly. Now no man at the table knew why he spoke this unto him. For some thought, because Judas had the purse, that Jesus had said to him, Buy those things which we have need of for the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor. He then, having received the sop, went out immediately: and it was night.

When he had gone out, Jesus said, Now 31 is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified by him. If God be glorified by him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and will immediately glorify him. Little children, I have but a little time to be with you. Ye will seek me: and as I said to the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you. A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; that, as I have loved you, ye also love one another. By this all men will know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

Simon Peter said to him, Master, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me hereafter. Peter said to him, Master, why cannot I follow thee

3. Had given all things] Appointed him to rule over all things.

6-8. Peter said to him] This zealous disciple could not think of his Lord doing so mean an act. Jesus informs him that the reason of it he did not then know, but should know hereafter.—No part with me] Still Jesus bears with him and informs him, that he must wash him in one sense, or he could have no interest in him.

9. Not my feet only] Peter corrects himself when he perceives something of our Lord's design; and is willing that he should wash any part rather than not have an interest with him.

10. Needeth only to] It was customary with the Jews to wash their bodies before they went to a feast; and when they came there they only washed the feet, as these only were supposed to have contracted any filth. The passage has also a spiritual sense, intimating that they were cleansed from gross sins, except Judas.

12-17. Know ye what I] He designed to teach them kindness and condescension; and to be ever ready to do any humble service for one another.

18. He that eateth bread] Jesus knew the hearts of all his apostles; and that one of them would do to him as David's enemy had done, Psa. xli. 9.

22-26. Doubting of whom] They were confounded by such an assertion; and not knowing whom to suspect, Peter heckoned to John, who lay next to him, to inquire who it was; and there being no reason to keep it a total secret, he told him.

27. What thou doest] Had he possessed the least regard to Jesus, this would have stung him to the heart.

31, 32. Now is the Son] I shall be glorified by my conquest over the powers of darkness, sin, and death; and God the Father will be glorified by my work.—In himself] In his own person, as Newcome explains. See Phil. ii. 9.

33-35. Little children] This is the language of tender regard. Ch. vii. 36.—A new commandment] This is, to love one another as he had loved them. It was always a duty for men to love their neighbours, Levit. xix. 18; but now they were to do it from a new example, influenced by a new motive, and to a new extent.

36. Whither goest thou] He refers to verse 33, and did not understand that our Lord spoke of his death as the gate to heaven.

now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.

- 38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say to thee, the cock shall not crow, until thou hast denied me thrice.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 33. Christ comforteth his disciples: professeth himself the way, &c., promiset the Holy Spirit as the comforter, &c.

- 1 LET not your heart be troubled: believe 2 in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare
3 a place for you. And after I shall have prepared a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to myself; that where I
4 am, ye also may be. And whither I go ye 5 know, and the way ye know. Thomas saith to him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the 6 way? Jesus saith to him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh
7 unto the Father, but by me. If ye had known me, ye would have known my Father: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.
8 Philip saith to him, Master, show us the 9 Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith to him, Have I been so long time with you, and dost thou not yet know me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Show us the 10 Father? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words which I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father who dwelleth in 11 me, he doeth the works. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: but if not, believe me for the works them-12 selves. Verily, verily, I say to you, He that believeth in me, the works which I do shall he also do; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my Father; And whatsoever ye shall ask in 13 my name, I will do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any 14 thing in my name, I will do it.

If ye love me, keep my commandments. 15 And I will pray the Father, and he shall 16 give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; Even the Spirit of 17 truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye shall know him; for he shall abide with you, and shall be in you. I 18 will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you. Yet a little while, and the world 19 shall see me no more; but ye shall see me: because I live, ye also shall live. At that 20 day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. He that 21 hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved by my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

Judas saith to him, not Iscariot, Master. 22 "and" wherefore is it that thou wilt manifest thyself to us, and not to the world? Jesus 23 answered and said to him, If any man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. He that 24 loveth me not keepeth not my words: and yet the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's who sent me.

These things have I spoken to you, while 25 I remain with you. But the Comforter, 26 the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said to you. Peace I 27 leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, do I give unto

33. The cock shall] While Peter professed his readiness to die for him, our Lord foretells his weakness and fall.

CHAP. XIV. 1. Believe in God] The Syr., Greek commentators, and many moderns, render in this manner; and the exhortation means, place your confidence in God, and especially in those troubles which are coming upon you.

2. In my Father's house] In heaven, which he speaks of under the notion of a temple, in which are many mansions, where those are to abide who are made kings and priests unto God. Perhaps this intimates various degrees of glory. — I go to prepare] This was prepared in the purpose of God from the foundation of the world, Matt. xxv. 34; but as that was founded on the mediation of Christ, it may be strictly said, that when he entered there as our high-priest and forerunner, to present as it were his own blood, he prepared it for the admission of his people. See Heb. ix. 23, 24.

6. I am the way] To the Father, and every promise I make is truth, so that ye may joyfully expect life, eternal life, hereafter.

7. Ye know him] Ye know him in me, ye know his will, and ye see and have seen his power, wisdom, and love displayed.

9. He that hath seen] Our Lord is not speaking of the Divine Essence, but of seeing the Divine perfections and excellencies. He that had seen him work miracles, had seen the wisdom, power, and goodness of God.

12—14. Greater works] More in number and in kind; more illustrious and astonishing. The gifts of speaking various languages, prophesying, &c., may be meant, 1 Cor. xii. 1, &c.

16. Comforter] The word also signifies 'advocate and monitor,' the last of which Campbell has adopted. See his excellent note.

17, 18. Spirit of truth] So called, because the Spirit was to reveal and make known all evangelical truths to the apostles.—Comfortless] Or, orphans. They would be soon bereaved of him who had been as a father.

20. Know that I am in] When they received the Spirit of truth, they should know that Jesus was one with the Father, and they one with him by their faith and obedience.

22. Manifest thyself to us] This disciple thought that the kingdom of Christ would not be a spiritual, but a temporal one.—(a) And.—Griesb.

23. We will come unto him] This can only mean, we will give him such proofs of our love and presence as the world cannot understand.

26. The Comforter] What follows explains the office of the Spirit.

you. Let not your heart be troubled, nor 28 let it be dismayed. Ye have heard that I said to you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I go unto the Father: for my 29 Father is greater than I. And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when 30 it is come to pass, ye may believe. Hereafter I shall not talk much with you: for the prince of the world cometh, and hath 31 nothing in me. But I lay down my life that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father commanded me, so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 33. Love between Christ and his members under the parable of the vine and branches; comfort under the hatred and persecution of the world; the office of the Spirit.

1 I AM the true vine, and my Father is 2 the husbandman. Every branch in me which beareth not fruit, he taketh away; and every branch which beareth fruit, he pruneth, that it may bear more fruit.
 3 Now ye are clean through the word which 4 I have spoken to you. Abide in me, as I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it abide in the vine; no 5 more can ye, unless ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, he bringeth forth much fruit: for severed from me ye 6 can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he shall be cast out as a branch that is wi-thereth: men gather such, and cast them 7 into the fire, and they are burned. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit: so will ye 9 be my disciples. As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: abide ye in my 10 love. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken to 11 you, that my joy may abide in you, and that your joy may be full. This is my com- 12 mandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love than this 13 hath no man, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends, if 14 ye do whatsoever things I command you.

 Henceforth I call you not servants; for 15
 the servant knoweth not what his master doeth; but I call you friends; for all things which I have heard from my Father I have made known to you. Ye have not chosen 16 me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye may go and bear fruit, and that your fruit may remain: that whatever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you. These things I command 17 you, that ye may love one another. If the 18 world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you. If ye were of the 19 world, the world would love its own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. Remember the words 20 which I said to you, The servant is not greater than his master! If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also;
 if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also. But all these things they will 21 do unto you on account of my name, because they know not him who sent me.
 If I had not come and spoken to them, 22 they would not have had sin; but now they have no excuse for their sin. He that 23 hateth me, hateth my Father also. If I 24 had not done among them the works which no other hath done, they would not have had sin; but now they have both seen and have hated both me and my Father.
 But this cometh to pass, so that the words 25 are fulfilled which are written in their law, They hated me without a cause. But 26 when the Comforter is come, whom I will

28. Is greater than I] Than I am as Mediator, and as sent by him. In this respect, the Father is greater than the Son.

30. The prince of the] Satan cometh by Judas and the wicked priests and rulers, but he will find no sin to give him power over me.

31. But I lay down] See chap. x. 18. With Newcome the ellipsis is supplied, and his laying down his life, in obedience to the Father's will, was a proof of his love.—Arise] This may refer to rising from table, when the paschal supper was ended; and that the following discourse was delivered in the house, before he went to Gethsemane.

CHAP. XV. 2. 3. He pruneth] It has been observed that there is a verbal allusion, or paronomasia, in these verses To the barren branch, the word apui is applied; and to the fruitful one, kataipui. This is preserved in the second, that the reference in the third verse may be understood.

4—6. Abide in me] The figure is, pursued, and as the life and fruitfulness of the branch depend on its union with the stock; so their spiritual life, on their faith in their Lord and Saviour.

8. So will ye be my] So ye will be known and distinguished as my disciples; and the Father will be honoured and glorified.

9. Abide in my love] The next verse explains this to mean, 'so conduct yourselves that ye may continue the objects of my love.'

11. My joy in you] Or, that I may continue to have joy in you. That my joy in your faith, love, and steadfastness may abide; and your joy in me, &c.

13—16. Greater love] Human affection rarely leads men to this sacrifice which I am going to make for you.

17—20. These things] See chap. xiii. 14; xiv. 2, 12—15. —The world hate] As ye are not of it, nor can approve of its maxims and deeds, you may expect its hatred.

22. Not have had sin] Their sin would not have been so great. See chap. xvi. 9. They discover their sin as Sodom, and have no excuse for it.

24. Hated both me] See chap. xiv. 9. They had shown implacable hatred to him and to the Father as manifest by his works.

25. They hated me] See Ps. xxxv. 19. These words are clearly accommodated to illustrate the subject of which he was speaking.

send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me: And ye also shall testify because ye have been with me from the beginning.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 33. Christ comforteth his disciples by the promise of the Spirit, and by his resurrection and ascension; he assureth them that their prayers will be answered.

1 THESE things I have spoken to you, that
2 ye may not offend. They will put you out of the synagogues: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he offereth God service. And these things will they do, because they have not known the Father, nor me. But these things I have spoken to you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not to you at the beginning, because I was with you. But now I go to him who sent me; and none of you asketh me. Whither goest thou? But because I have said these things to you, sorrow hath filled your heart.
7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you. And when he is come, he will convince the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: Of sin, because they believe not in me; Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no longer; Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged. I have still many things to say to you, but ye are not able to bear them now. However, when he cometh, even the Spirit of truth, he will guide you into all the truth: for he will not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that will he speak: and he will show you things to come. He will glorify me: for he will receive of mine, and I will declare it unto you. All things which the Father hath are mine: therefore I have said, that he will receive of mine, and will declare it unto you. A little while, 16 and ye will not see me: and again, a little while, and ye will see me, because I go to the Father.

Then said some of his disciples among 17 themselves, What is this that he saith to us, A little while, and ye will not see me: and again, a little while, and ye will see me: and, Because I go to the Father? They said therefore, What is this that he 18 saith, A little while? We know not what he speaketh. Now Jesus knew that they 19 were desirous to ask him, and said to them, Do ye inquire among yourselves concerning what I said, A little while, and ye will not see me: and again, a little while, and ye will see me? Verily, verily, I say to you, 20 That ye will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice: and ye will be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy. A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come; but when she hath brought forth the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world. And 22 thus ye have sorrow now: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man shall take from you. And 23 in that day ye shall not inquire any thing of me. Verily, verily, I say to you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Hitherto ye 24 have asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. These things have I spoken to you in figurative terms: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak to you in figurative terms, but I will show you plainly of the Father. In that day ye shall ask in my 26 name: and I say not to you, that I will pray the Father for you: For the Father 27 himself loveth you, because ye love me, and believe that I came forth from God. I 28 came forth from the Father, and am come

27. Shall testify] Under the influence of the spirit of truth, ye who have been with me from the first shall holdly testify of me before men. So they did both in Jerusalem, and in distant countries.

CHAP. XVI. 2. Offereth God service] The sense is, that in killing them, they would foolishly think that they were performing a service as acceptable to God as offering sacrifice.

4. I was with you] While he was with them, he could occasionally teach, comfort, and support them.

5. Askeith me] See chap. xiii. 36; xiv. 5; xii. 28. They had not yet so asked as to receive an answer which they understood, until what he says, verse 28.

7—11. It is expedient] The spirit was not to be given in so abundant a measure until he was glorified.—Of sin] Of their sin in rejecting him, by enabling the apostles to work such miracles in his name as would be evidence, the most convincing, that he was the Messiah.—Of righteousness] Of the justice of his cause, and the perfection of his obedience to the Divine will. His going to the Father would be the proof of this.—Of judgment] Soon to be inflicted on an incredulous nation, and in defence of the gospel, casting down the strong holds of Satan, the prince of this world.

12. Able to bear them now] Such as the abolition of the law, the rejection of the Jews, the calling of the Gentiles, &c. Our Lord suited his instructions to their capacity.

14. Glorify me] This was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost.

16. I go to the Father] A little while he was to be laid in the grave, but on his resurrection they should see him; yea, they should see him go up to the Father.

17—22. Then said some] Our Lord's speech was not understood, and the apostles were anxious to receive plainer instruction. Jesus knew that events would soon arise which would explain what he had said.

23. Ye shall not inquire] You shall have no occasion 'to put questions,' in order to receive information, but shall understand the whole of what relates to me and the gospel.

24—28. Asked nothing] Nothing comparatively.—In figurative terms] Our Lord referred to many things which into the world: again, I leave the world, 29 and go to the Father. His disciples say to him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and 30 usest no figure. Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.

 31 Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe?
 32 Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye will be scattered every man to his own, and will leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with 33 me. These things I have spoken to you, that in me ye may have peace. In the world ye will have tribulation: but be of good courage; I have overcome the world.

CHAPTER XVII.

A. D. 33. Christ prayeth that the Father would glorify him; preserve his apostles in unity, and in the truth; and would glorify them and all believers.

1 WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, he raised his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy
 2 Son also may glorify thee: That, as thou hast given him power over all men, he may give everlasting life to all whom thou hast
 3 given him. And this is everlasting life, that they may know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.
 4 I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.
 6 I have manifested thy name to the men whom thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me;
 7 and they have kept thy word. Now they know that all things, whatsoever thou hast given me, are from thee. For I have given to them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have surely known that I came forth from thee, and have believed that thou didst send me.

he did not intend should be understood, until he had finished the suffering part of his work.

31. Do ye now believe] Admit the truth of what I have said; yet soon will your faith be shaken, and you will be scattered from me.

33. I have overcome] The conquest of Christ is the ground of his people's hope, comfort, and final triumph; yea, his victory is the cause of theirs.

CHAP. XVII. 2. 3. That as thou] He was invested with authority 'over all flesh or men'; for this end, that he might give, &c.

5. With thine] In thine own presence, as Campbell renders—Before the world was, or existed. On the ground of the Divine Personality this language is just and proper, but on no other. See notes, chap. i. l.

6. Thine they were] As creatures; and as chosen to the honourable office of preaching thy word, thou gavest them to me to instruct and save.

9. Not for the world] The wicked Jews who alike rejected him and the Father. He prayed for his murderers, and for all future believers, verse 20; and that the world may believe that the Father had sent him, ver. 21. Our

I pray for them; I pray not for the world, 9 but for those whom thou hast given me; for they are thine. And all mine are thine, 10 and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them. And now I shall be no longer in 11 the world; but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep those in thy name whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are. While I 12 was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those whom thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is destroyed, but the son of destruction; so that the scripture is fulfilled. And now I come to 13 thee; and I speak these things in the world, that they may have my joy fulfilled in them. I have given them thy words; and 14 the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, as I am not of the world. I pray not that thou wouldst take 15 them out of the world, but that thou wouldst keep them from evil. They are 16 not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through the truth: 17 thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me 18 into the world, I have sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify 19 myself, that they also may be sanctified through the truth.

Nor do I pray for these only, but for 20 those also who shall believe in me through their word; That they all may be one; 21 that as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have 22 given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, 23 that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me. Father, I desire that those also, 24 whom thou hast given me, may be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me, because

Lord knew that they were to be rejected for their hardness of heart, impenitency, and unbelief; and hence submitted to the will of the Father, in this as on all other occasions.

11. Keep those in thy] God's name signifies the discoveries which he had made by his Son; and the meaning is, to keep them in the belief and profession of the gospel.

12. Is destroyed] Or will be finally destroyed, but the son, &c. He refers to Judas. See chap. xiii. 18. The turn of the original is retained.

13. My joy fulfilled] The joy, whereof I am the object, the joy they will derive from me.

17. The truth] Griesbach inserts the pronoun, but with great hesitation. Mill rejects it, and many others.

19. I sanctify myself] Set myself apart as a sacrifice; devote myself to the work of expiating their sin and that of all my people.

21. They also may be one in us] One in affection, and united to the Father and Son by being partakers of the Holy Spirit.

22. The glory which] The glory which thou hast given to me of working miracles and revealing the truth to man, I have given to them.

thou lovedst me, before the foundation of 25 the world. O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee; but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast 26 sent me. And I have made known to them thy name, and will make it known: that the love with which thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A. D. 33. Judas betrayeth Christ; the officers fall to the ground; Peter smiteth the ear of Malchus; Jesus examined, and Peter's denial of him; tried before Pilate; his kingdom; the Jews prefer Barabbas to him.

- 1 WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, he went forth with his disciples over the brook Kidron, where was a garden, into
- 2 which he and his disciples entered. And Judas also, who delivered him up, knew the place: for Jesus often resorted thither
- 3 with his disciples. Judas then, having received a band of soldiers, and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches and weapons. Then Jesus, knowing all things which were to befall him, went forth, and
- 4 said to them, Whom seek ye? They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith to them, I am he. And Judas also, who delivered him up, stood with them.
- 6 As soon then as he had said to them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground. Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.
- 8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let these go away: (That the words might be fulfilled, which he spoke, Of them whom thou gavest me have I lost none.)
- 10 Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name
- 11 was Malchus. Then said Jesus to Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I
- 12 not drink it? Then the band and the captain and officers of the Jews took Jesus
- 13 and bound him, And led him away to Annas first; for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, who was high priest that year. Now Caiaphas was he, who had given 14 counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so 15 did another disciple: and that disciple was known to the high priest, and entered with Jesus into the palace of the high priest. But Peter stood at the door without. Then 16 that other disciple, who was known unto the high priest, went out, and spoke to her that kept the door, and brought in Peter. Then saith the damsel who kept the door 17 to Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He saith, I am not. And 18 the servants and officers stood there, who had made a fire of coals: for it was cold: and they warmed themselves: and Peter stood with them, and warmed himself.

Now the high priest asked Jesus con- 19 cerning his disciples, and his doctrine. Jesus answered him, I spoke openly to the 20 world; I have always taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither all the Jews resort; and in secret have I spoken nothing. Why askest thou me? ask those 21 that heard me, what I have spoken to them: behold, they know what I have said. And 22 when he had thus spoken, one of the officers who stood by struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest thus? Jesus answered 23 him, If I have spoken evil, bear testimony of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?

Now Annas had sent him bound unto 24 Caiaphas the high priest. And Simon 25 Peter stood and warmed himself. Then they said to him, Art not thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not. One of the servants of the high 26 priest, being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off, saith, Did not I see thee in the garden with him? Peter then denied again: 27 and immediately the cock crew.

Then led they Jesus from the house of 28 Caiaphas unto the hall of judgment: and CHAP. XVIII. 1. He went forth] From the guest-chamber, where he had kept the passover with his disciples.—Kidron] See 2 Sam. xv. 23, and 2 Kings xxiii. 6; Matt. xxvi. 36.

4-6. Knowing all things] The critics are in raptures at the gallantry of Achilles in going to the Trojan war, when he knew, according to Homer, that he should fall there. But who does not see infinitely more fortitude in our Lord's conduct on this great and trying occasion, though so modestly expressed by St. John, if properly attended to.—Dodridge ?—Went backward] By this he showed that he could have escaped had it been his intention to do so. Jesus voluntarily resigned himself to them.

8. If therefore ye seek] While he prepared to drink the cup presented to him, and to lay down his life for the sheep, he stipulates for the disciples then with him, as he had said, chap. xvii. 12.

13, 14. To Annas] See note, Luke iii. 2, &c.; and John xi. 49, 50.

15. Another disciple] Some have thought that John refers to himself; but Pearce observes, that this is not probable, as John was a Galilean fisherman; nor does he speak of himself here as he does chap. xiii. 23, xix. 26.

19-23. Asked Jesus] The design of his questions was to obtain from Jesus something for which he might be accused; but Jesus answered him with prudence; and when smitten unjustly, reproves him who did it with mildness.

24-27. Now Annas had] Peter, successively assailed as one of the disciples, denied it, and fulfilled what Jesus had said. His confidence and courage now utterly failed.

28. Hall of judgment] See Matt. xxvii. 1, 2.—And so could not] If they had eaten the paschal lamb on the preceding evening, this must refer to the sacrifices which were offered on that day, and during the whole feast.

it was early; and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; and so could not eat the passover. 29 Pilate, therefore, went out to them, and said, What accusation bring ye against 30 this man? They answered and said to him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not 31 have delivered him up unto thee. Then said Pilate to them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said to him, We are not allowed 32 to put any man to death: (So that the words of Jesus were fulfilled, which he spoke, signifying what death he was to die.) 33 Then Pilate entered again into the judgment hall, and called Jesus, and said to him, Art thou the King of the Jews? 34 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or have others told it thee of me? 35 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee up unto me: what hast thou done? 36 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants have fought, that I might not be delivered up to the Jews: 37 but now is my kingdom not hence. Pilate therefore said to him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear testimony to the truth. Every one that is of the truth hearkeneth to my 38 voice. Pilate saith to him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews, and saith to them, I 39 find no fault in him. But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release 40 unto you the King of the Jews? Then all cried out, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

31. To put any man] They might have judged him or any other man according to the law, but then they could only scourge or excommunicate, or vote him to have deserved death; but the Roman governor must inflict this last punishment.

33. Art thou the king?] The Jewish rulers had suggested this ensnaring question, as if Jesus was setting up a title to the throne of Israel, and opposing Cæsar.

36. My kingdom is not] I am no enemy to Cæsar, nor will my kingdom interfere with the kingdoms of the world, unless it be to enlighten and improve them.

37. Thou sayest] See note, Matt. xxvii. 11, and Luke i. 32. 33.

38. What is truth?] What is that truth of which thou speakest? Pilate was, however, persuaded that the answer would not concern him as a Roman governor, and he quitted the tribunal without waiting for a reply.

40. Not this man] Doubtless the Pharisees, priests, and their adherents, made this singular demand. They preferred a murderer to the Lord of life and glory.

CHAP. XIX. 1. Took Jesus] Not himself, but ordered it to be done, 1 Sam. xv. 33, and 2 Sam. xii. 9. What a judge orders to be done, he is said to do.

2. A crown of thorns] Hasselquist supposes that the plant called by the Arabians nabka, was used to make this

A. D. 33. Christ is scourged, crowned with thorns and beaten; Pilate at length gives him up to be crucified; they cast lots for his mantle; he commendeth his mother to John; his side is pierced; and he is buried by Joseph and Nicodemus.

THEN Pilate upon this took Jesus, and 1 scourged him. And the soldiers platted a 2 crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe, And 3 said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they struck him with their hands. Then Pilate 4 went out again, and saith to them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him. Then came 5 Jesus out, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate saith to them, See the man! When therefore the chief 6 priests and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith to them, Take ye him, and crucify him; for I find no fault in him. The 7 Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

When Pilate therefore heard that saying, 8 he was the more afraid; And went again 9 into the judgment hall, and saith to Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him no answer. Then saith Pilate to him, Speakest 10 thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee? Jesus answered, 11 Thou couldst have no power against me, unless it were given thee from above: therefore he, who delivered me up unto thee, hath the greater sin. And thence- 12 forth Pilate sought to release him; but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou release this man, thou art not Cæsar's friend: who-soever maketh himself a king, speaketh against Cæsar.

crown. It is very common in the east. It has many sharp spines, well adapted to give pain; and as its branches are soft and pliable, a crown might be easily made of them.—A purple robe] See Matt. xxvii. 28, and note.

5. See the man] As Pilate was satisfied that Jesus was innocent, he brought him forth scourged and wearing the crown of thorns, to excite the compassion of the Jews; but all in vain.

6. Take ye him] Pilate could not say this seriously, as crucifixion was not a Jewish punishment. He probably by this taunt aimed to throw the odium of this nefarious deed on them.

8. The more afraid] Either lest he should condemn some extraordinary person, or lest, on his releasing him, disturbance and tumult should arise.

11. Thou couldst have] Had Jesus replied to the question of Pilate, 'that he was from heaven,' he might have been induced to release him; but Jesus was determined to obey the will of the Father, who had now given him into the hand of Pilate.

12. Not Cæsar's friend] Never was rage more furious than what these sinners manifested against Jesus; and this charge might justly have been made against themselves.

he brought Jesus forth, and sat down on the judgment-seat, in a place which is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, 14 Gabbatha. Now it was the preparation-day of the passover, and about the sixth hour: and he saith to the Jews, See your king!
 15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him! Pilate saith to them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests answered, We have no King 16 but Cæsar. Then he delivered him up to them to be crucified.
 17 And they took Jesus, and led him away. And he carrying his cross went forth into a place called The skull-place, which is 18 called in the Hebrew, Golgotha: Where they crucified him, and two others with him, on each side one, and Jesus in the 19 midst. And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was,
 20 JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS. This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city: and it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and 21 Latin. Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the 22 Jews. Pilate answered, What I have written, I have written.
 23 Then the soldiers, when they had nailed Jesus to the cross, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his vesture: now the vesture was without seam, woven from the top through-
 24 out. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be. So that the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, They part my garments among them, and for my vesture they cast lots. These things the soldiers did.
 25 Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.
 26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he saith to his mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then saith he to the disciple, Behold 27 thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

After this, Jesus knowing that all things 28 were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. Now a 29 vessel was set full of vinegar: and some one filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and raised it to his mouth. When Jesus therefore had received the 30 vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and yielded up his spirit.

The Jews therefore, because it was the 31 preparation-day, that the bodies might not remain upon the cross on the sabbath, (for that sabbath was a great day,) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away. Then 32 came the soldiers, and broke the legs of the first, and of the other that was crucified with Jesus. But when they came to Jesus, 33 and saw that he was dead already, they broke not his legs: But one of the soldiers 34 pierced his side with a spear, and immediately there came out blood and water. And he that saw these things beareth testi- 35 mony, and his testimony is true: and he knoweth that he saith what is true, that ye may believe. For these things were done, 36 so that the scripture was fulfilled, A bone of him shall not be broken. And again 37 another scripture saith, They shall look on him whom they pierced.

Now after this Joseph of Arimathea 38 (being a disciple of Jesus, but a concealed one for fear of the Jews) besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him leave. He came, therefore, and took the body of Jesus. And Nicodemus also came, (who at first 39 came to Jesus by night,) and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about the weight of a hundred pound. Then they 40 took the body of Jesus, and wound it in

14. Preparation-day] The day before the paschal sabbath. Mark xv. 42.—About the sixth hour] It was between nine and twelve o'clock in the forenoon. Mark says it was the third hour, which seems to denote that this was past; and John about or after that, and before twelve. It is obvious that he speaks with latitude, not intending to give the precise hour.—See Campbell.

20. It was written in] As the title was in three different languages, some suppose that a slight difference might be made by the translator into these languages, which will account for the variations in the different evangelists. But these variations might arise from the evangelists themselves giving the substance of it as sufficient for their design.

23. Without seam] According to Josephus, this was similar to the vesture, or robe, which Aaron wore. Josephus describes the tunic of Aaron as woven in this manner, Antiq. iii. 7, 4; and it is a probable conjecture of Doddridge, that this might have been wrought and presented by some of the pious women who believed in him.

24. The scripture was] Ps. xxii. 18. See notes there.

25—27. His mother] Now a sword pierced her heart; but Jesus commended her to the care and affection of one who for his sake took care of her, and discharged the duty of a son.

28—30. Were now accomplished] All things foretold, except the circumstance of his thirst, Ps. lxi. 21.

32. And broke the legs] This was done at the instep with an iron mallet, according to Lactantius. It was designed to hasten their end, as is evident; but how it could do so I know not.

34—37. Blood and water] It is easy to account for the blood; but it is not probable that the small quantity of water in which the heart swims would have been so much observed. It has been said that the thorax of persons who die of torture is always full of water or serum. Even admitting this, there seems to be something unusual in the present instance, Ps. xxxiv. 20; Zech. xii. 10, &c.

38. Joseph of Arimathea] He had now the courage to go to Pilate, and request the body of Jesus, which was granted to him.

linen clothes with the spices, as the manner 41 of the Jews is to embalm. Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, 42 in which no man had ever been laid. There they laid Jesus because of the preparation-day of the Jews; for the sepulchre was near.

CHAPTER XX.

A. D. 33. Mary cometh to the sepulchre; so do Peter and John, ignorant of the resurrection; Jesus appeareth to Mary, and then to the disciples; the unbelief of Thomas, &c.

1 ON the first day of the week cometh
Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the 2 stone taken away from the sepulchre. She then runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith to them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.
3 Peter therefore went forth, and that other 4 disciple, and came to the sepulchre. So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to 5 the sepulchre. And he stooping down, to look in, saw the linen clothes lying; but 6 he went not in. Then cometh Simon Peter following him; and he went into the sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lying; 7 And the napkin, which had been about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but 8 wrapped up apart in another place. Then went in that other disciple also, who came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and be-9 lieved. For as yet they knew not the scripture, that Jesus must rise again from 10 the dead. Then the disciples went again unto their own home.
11 But Mary stood without at the sepulchre, weeping; and as she wept, she stooped 12 down, to look into the sepulchre; And seeth two angels in white, sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where 13 the body of Jesus had lain. And they say to her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith to them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. And when she had thus 14 said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, but knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus saith to her, Woman, why 15 weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith to him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. Jesus saith to her, Mary. 16

She turned, and saith to him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master. Jesus saith to 17 her, Embrace me not; for I do not yet ascend to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say to them, I shall ascend to my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God. Mary Magdalene 18 came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things to her.

Then in the evening of that day, being 19 the first day of the week, Jesus came where the disciples were assembled, the doors having been shut for fear of the Jews, and stood in the midst, and saith to them, Peace be unto you. And when he had so 20 said, he showed them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord. Then said Jesus to 21 them again, Peace be unto you. As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.
And when he had said this, he breathed on 22 them, and saith to them, Receive ye the Holy Spirit: Whose soever sins ye remit, 23 they are remitted to them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

But Thomas, one of the twelve, called 24
Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. Then the other disciples said to 25 him, We have seen the Lord. But he said to them, Unless I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe.

40. To embalm] Spices in great quantity were heaped on the body, when it was intended to do honour to a person, 2 Chron. xvi. 14.

CHAP. XX. 1—10. On the first day] See note, Matt. xxviii. 5, &c.—Knew not the scripture] With what artlessness do the evangelists speak of themselves! They neither hide nor palliate their own faults and mistakes. They state facts as they occurred.

14. But knew not] He might appear in a dress different from what he had usually worn; and she, neither knowing nor expecting to see him alive, would easily make such a mistake.

16. Mary] There must have been something in the tone and manner of our Lord's address, which at once satisfied her that it was he.

17. Embrace me not] Some of the women held him by the feet and worshipped him, Matt. xxviii. 9. Kypke has produced many instances of the term having the sense given. It is probable that Mary had cast herself at his feet, and was embracing them, when Jesus thus addressed her.

19. The doors having] The construction adopted is necessary to give the sense; for the Jews did not assemble, but shut the doors for fear, &c. It is not certain whether Jesus entered in a miraculous manner or not.

22. Breathed on them] This was only a symbolical intimation that they should be new men, as to knowledge, boldness, faith, and zeal, when they should receive the Holy Spirit.

25. Unless I shall see] The fact appeared to Thomas of so unusual a nature, that nothing but the most sensible proof would satisfy him. He was to blame in not receiving the testimony of those who had seen him. But this unbelief of the apostle tends to confirm the truth of the resurrection. The tomb was found empty according to the report of the women. His going with the two disciples to Emmaus proved at least that it was the spirit of Christ; and that to the eleven, Mark xvi. 14, showed that he had a body, and this proof to Thomas showed it was the same body that had been crucified.

26 And eight days after his disciples were again within, and Thomas with them : then came Jesus, the doors having been shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be 27 unto you. Then he saith to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands ; and reach hither thy hand, and put it into my side : and be not unbelieving, 28 but believing. And Thomas answered and said to him, My Lord and my God. Jesus 29 saith to him, Because thou hast seen me, Thomas, thou hast believed ; happy are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.
30 Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of his disciples, which are not 31 written in this book : But these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God ; and that believing ye may have life through his name.

CHAPTER XXI.

A. D. 33. Christ appeareth again to the disciples, when fishing ; he dineth with them ; commandeth Peter to feed his lambs ; and warneth him of his death, &c.

1 AFTER these things Jesus showed himself again to the disciples at the lake of Tiberias ; and in this manner he showed himself.
2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathaniel of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples. Simon Peter saith to them, I am going a fishing.
3 They say to him, We also will go with thee. They went forth, and entered immediately into the vessel ; and that night
4 they caught nothing. But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore : but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Then Jesus saith to them, My children, have ye any food ? They answered him, No. And he said to them, 5 Cast the net on the right side of the vessel, and ye will find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the 6 multitude of fishes. Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith to Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt on his upper garment, (for he was naked,) and cast himself into the sea. And the other disciples came 8 in a boat ; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes. As soon

9 then as they had come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread. Jesus saith to them, Bring of 10 the fish which ye have now caught. Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, a hundred and fifty-
11 three : and although there were so many, yet was not the net broken. Jesus saith 12 to them, Come and eat. And none of the disciples ventured to ask him, Who art thou ? knowing that it was the Lord. Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and 13 giveth them, and fish in like manner. This is the third time that Jesus showed 14 himself to his disciples, after that he had risen from the dead.

So when they had dined, Jesus saith to 15 Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these ? He saith to him, Yes, Lord ; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith to him, Feed my lambs.
16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me ? He saith to him, Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith to him, Feed my 17 sheep. He saith to him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me ? Peter was grieved because he said to him
18 the third time, Lovest thou me ? And he said to him, Lord, thou knowest all things ; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith 19 to him, Feed my sheep. Verily, verily, I say to thee, When thou wast young, thou didst gird thyself, and walk whither thou
20 wouldst : but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou
21 wouldst not. Now this he spoke, signifying by what death he would glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith to

23. My Lord and my God] Thomas was satisfied that it was Jesus ; and he broke out in this language of admiration, owning that he was his Lord and his God. These words are an exclamation ; but in the style of the Jews they amount to a confession of his faith, and are equivalent to a direct assertion of his Divinity.

CHAP. XXI. 1. The lake of] This was also called the lake of Galilee, chap. vi. 1. The disciples had quitted Jerusalem, and come here for the purpose mentioned, Matt. xxviii. 7, 16.

4. Jesus stood] They were at no great distance from the shore, and saw some one standing, but did not at first know who it was.

6. Cast the net] The familiar manner in which Jesus addressed them, and the direction which he gave, and their success, soon convinced them that it was their Lord. They must be sensible that this supply was miraculous.

7 Naked] So the Jews called those who had on only their under garment. Peter still showed his zeal by hastening to Jesus.

9—14. A fire of coals] This miracle was wrought to impress the disciples more deeply with the power of Jesus, now that he was risen from the dead.—This is the third] The appearance on the mountain in Galilee was posterior to this, Matt. xxviii. 16.

15—17. Lovest thou me] Our Lord refers indirectly to his former professions of zeal and affection. To this part of the question of loving him more than the other disciples Peter makes no reply, sensible of his past presumption, Matt. xxvi. 33.—Lord, thou knowest all things] Here Peter ascribes omniscience to Christ ; for the assertion is without any qualifying terms, and implies that he was God as well as man.

19. Now this he spoke] Jesus tells Peter what he had to suffer for his sake. They would gird or bind him to a cross ; and, raising him on it, bear him to a death at which nature

20 him, Follow me. Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; who also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, who is he that delivereth thee up? When Peter saw him he saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall become of this man? Jesus saith to him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me. This report therefore went abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not to him, He shall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? This is the disciple who testifieth 24 these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true. And there are many other things also 25 which Jesus did, which, should every one of them be written, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that would be written. Amen.

revolts.—Follow me] Our Lord now walked onward, and Peter followed, to intimate his readiness to die for his sake. 20. Seeth the disciple] John followed Jesus also, to show his readiness, zeal, and love; but, with great delicacy, makes no comment on his own action.

22. Till I come] Until the destruction of Jerusalem; and it is pretty certain that John lived to see that event. Peter and others seem to have thought that our Lord meant his final coming to judgment; and hence supposed that John should not die.

24. And we know] Some think that this clause, and the concluding verse, were added by those who had been eye-witnesses as a testimony to the truth of John's gospel.

25. The world itself] If this verse be genuine, we have a very strong hyperbole, intimating the number, variety and greatness of the miracles of Jesus. The Jews often made use of this figure, Numb. xiii. 33; Deut. i. 8. Wetstein has quoted a saying of the Jews concerning the lessons of one Jochanan, 'If all the seas were ink, and every reed a pen, and the whole heaven and earth parchment, and all the sons of men were writers, they would not be sufficient to write them all.'

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

INTRODUCTION.

THE ACTS of the Apostles may be considered as a continuation of the history contained in the gospels. Luke is generally acknowledged to be the author; and he addresses this book to Theophilus, the same excellent person to whom he had addressed his gospel. It contains the history of the church, within the Roman empire, for the period of near thirty years after the death of our Lord. We here see how the promises and predictions of Christ were fulfilled: Matt. x. 20; John xii. 14, and Mark iv. 30; compare Acts v. 14, &c. See Acts iii. 2—11, iv. 6—16. The miracles were performed publicly in large cities; and they were performed in the name of Christ. In consequence thereof thousands and tens of thousands believed, and churches were formed in Judea, Syria, Lesser Asia, and other countries. Comparing the Acts with the Epistles, we find so many undesigned coincidences as establish the truth of both.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 33. The time of our Lord's abode on earth after his resurrection; his promise to the apostles; his ascension, and Matthias chosen to be an apostle.

1 THE former relation I made, O Theophilus, concerning all which Jesus both did and taught, Until the day in which he was taken up, after having commanded, by the Holy Spirit, the apostles whom he had chosen: To whom he also showed himself alive, after his suffering, by many infallible proofs; being seen by them forty days, and speaking of the things concerning the kingdom of God. And then, assembling 4 them together, he commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, which, said he, ye have heard from me. For John indeed 5 baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence. When therefore they were come 6 together, they asked him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom again to Israel? And he said to them, It 7 is not for you to know the times or seasons, which the Father hath put in his own dis-

CHAP. I. 1. Both did and taught] See note, Luke iii. 23. The best writers admit that the verb εξηκουσας used with an infinitive of another verb only defines the time of the verb; and on this principle the version is formed.

3. Infallible proofs] By his many appearances and conversations with them. Pearce has collected these appearances. The first was to Mary Magdalene, &c., Matt. xxviii. 1, 9. The second to the two disciples going to Emmaus, Luke xxiv. 15. The third to Peter, Luke xxiv. 34. The fourth to ten of the apostles, Thomas being absent, Luke xxiv. 36; John xx. 19. These four appearances were on the day of his resurrection. The fifth was to eleven of the apostles, John xx. 26. The sixth to seven of them at the lake of Tiberias, John xx. 4. The seventh to James, 1 Cor.

xv. 7; and most probably when Jesus commanded them to assemble at Jerusalem. The eighth when he led them to Bethany, where he ascended, and, as Pearce thinks, was seen of more than 500 brethren.

4. Not to depart from] After their return from Galilee. Matt. xxviii. 16; Mark xvi. 7.

6. Come together] At Bethany, Luke xxiv. 50.—They asked him] They seem not to have understood what our Lord meant by 'the promise of the Father;' and yet, expecting that his kingdom was to be a temporal one, they desired that he would now inform them whether his time was come to transfer the dominion from the Romans to the Jews.

7, 8. It is not for you] He tells them that there are times

- 8 posal. But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses to me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked earnestly towards heaven, as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; Who said also, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This Jesus, who is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.
- 12 Then they returned unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath-day's journey. And when they had entered the city, they went into an upper room, where abode Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon Zebedee, and Judas the brother of James.
- 14 These all with one mind continued in prayer and supplication, with certain women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.
- 15 And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the persons together were about a hundred and twenty,) Brethren, it was necessary for that scripture to be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit by the mouth of David spoke before concerning Judas, who was guide to them that took Jesus. For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry. (Now this man caused a field to be purchased with the reward of his iniquity; and having fallen on his face, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out, And this was known to all who dwelt at Jerusalem; so that the field was called in their own language, Aceldama, that is, The field of blood.) For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein, and His office let another take. Wherefore, of these men who have been with us all the time that the Lord Jesus was conversant among us, Beginning from the baptism of John, to that day on which he was taken up from us, one must be appointed to be a witness with us of his resurrection. And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, show which of these two thou hast chosen, That he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, so that he went to his own place. And they gave forth their lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 33. The apostles, filled with the Holy Spirit, speak many languages; Peter addresses the people, assuring them that Jesus had shed forth the Spirit, having ascended to heaven; many are convinced and converted, and the church daily increaseth.

AND when the day of Pentecost was come, they were all with one consent in one place. And suddenly there came from heaven a sound as of a rushing mighty wind; and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared divided tongues as of fire; and a tongue sat on each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to and seasons for the fulfilment of God's purposes; and that they should soon receive power to bear testimony of him in every place.

9—11. While they beheld] See Luke xxiv. 50—53.—Two men] Two angels in the form of men. Their assurance that the ascended Saviour would in like manner return would greatly tend to support the mind of the apostles.

12. A sabbath-day's journey] See John xi. 8. The distance was about two miles; and the territory of Bethany must have reached to a part of Mount Olivet.

14. Mary the mother] She is never mentioned afterwards. His brethren must now have believed in him, as they are here with other believers.

15. Of the persons] Greek names, but this is used for persons, as is obvious. The converts then in Jerusalem, not the whole body of them, as appears from 1 Cor. xv. 6, are intended.

18, 19. These verses are the words of Luke.—Caused a field] An action is often said to be done by a person who was the occasion of doing it, Matt. xxvii. 26; John xix. 1, 15, and Acts ii. 23, 36.—Fallen on his face] According to Matt. xxvii. 7, Judas hanged himself; and we may suppose that either the rope broke, or that to which it was fastened, or that some persons cut him down, and that falling on his face upon something, what Luke says occurred.

20. Let his habitation] See Ps. lxxix. 25, and cix. 8, and notes there. These passages are quoted as illustrating the events which had occurred, and not as predictions.

21. Was conversant] This expresses the full force of the idiom of the text, Deut. xxxi. 2.

23. They appointed two] This was done by the whole body of the disciples; and the persons appointed must have been with the apostles when Jesus appeared after his resurrection, as they were to be witnesses of this fact.

24. Thou, Lord, who] That this prayer was addressed to their ascended Lord is most probable, as he was the person who chose the apostles, and appointed them to their office. See John xxi. 17.

25. Take part of this] The sense is, that he may receive the office of the apostleship.—So that he went] Both to the grave, and to the misery which his heinous crimes deserved. See John vi. 71; xvii. 12; and Matt. xxvi. 24.

26. Fell upon Matthias] Thus the Lord showed which he had chosen; and no doubt but he was fit to bear testimony to the risen Saviour.

CHAP. II. 1. The day of Pentecost] The fiftieth day after the passover. Lev. xxiii. 11—16.

2. It filled all the house] The sound filled it; for there can be no other nominative to the verb than sound. The tongues of fire rested on the disciples, and could not fill the house.

3. Divided tongues] Flames naturally shoot into forms like tongues; and a tongue sat on each, to intimate the gift

1 speak in other languages, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under 6 heaven. And when a report of this was spread abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language. And they were all amazed and wondered, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these who speak Galileans?
8 How then hear we every man speak in our own language, in which we were born?
9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judea,
10 and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers from Rome both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and also Arabians; we do hear them speak in our own languages the wonderful 12 works of God. And they were all amazed, and doubted, saying one to another, What 13 can this mean? But others scoffing said, These men are full of new wine.

14 Then Peter, standing up with the eleven, raised his voice, and said to them, Ye Jews, and all who now dwell in Jerusalem, be this known to you, and hearken to my 15 words. For these are not drunken as ye suppose; since it is but the third hour of 16 the day. But this is that which was spoken
17 by the prophet Joel; And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream
18 dreams: And on my men-servants and on my maid-servants I will pour out in those days my Spirit; and they shall prophesy:
19 And I will show wonders in heaven above, and signs on the earth beneath; blood, 20 and fire, and vapour of smoke: The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and signal day of the Lord come. And it shall be, that 21 whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved. Ye men of Israel, 22 hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man from God, manifested among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know: Him, being delivered

23 up to you by the determinate counsel and preordination of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: Whom God hath raised up, having loosed
24 the bands of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden by it. For David speaketh concerning him, I saw
25 the Lord always before me; because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved: Therefore my heart rejoiced, and my tongue 26 was glad; moreover my flesh also shall rest in hope; For thou wilt not leave my 27 soul in hades, nor wilt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt make 28 known to me the path of life; thou wilt fill me with joy by thy presence. Brethren, 29 let me speak freely to you of the patriarch David, that he both died and was buried, and his sepulchre is among us unto this day. Wherefore being a prophet, and 30 knowing that God had sworn to him with an oath, that of the fruit of his loins^o should one sit on his throne; He fore-
31 seeing this spoke of the resurrection of Christ, that^o he was not left in hades, nor did his flesh see corruption. This Jesus 32 God raised up, of which all we are witnesses. Having therefore been exalted to 33 the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear. For David is not 34 ascended into the heavens: but he himself saith, Jehovah said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, Until I make thine
35 enemies thy footstool. Wherefore let all 36

bestowed on him. As it was about the third hour, or nine in the morning, the hour of prayer in the temple, it is supposed that they had assembled in some one of the rooms belonging to the temple, many of which surrounded the courts.

6—13. Heard them speak] The Jews had wonderfully increased, and dwelt not only in every part of the Roman empire, but among other nations. The devout part were accustomed to visit the temple at the passover, and to remain there for some time. While some wondered at what they heard, those of Jerusalem thought the apostles drunk, as they spoke in tongues which they knew not.

14—21. Ye Jews] It was the custom of the Jews to attend the morning prayer fasting; so that Peter might justly say, these men are not drunken, &c. See notes, Joel ii. 28—32. This prophecy was this day wonderfully accomplished.

22. A man from God] Jesus was as truly a man as he was a divine person, and came from God the Father. See John x. 37, &c.

23. Being delivered up] Or, given up to you, conformably to God's counsel and decree, that he should be left in your power, 'by wicked hands,' &c. They are said to have done what the Romans did at their request.

24. Bands of death] It is well known that the Hebrew מָוֶת denotes band and pain. The former sense is most agreeable to what follows. Ps. xviii. 5.—Was not possible] As it had been promised that he should not see corruption, and as he himself had declared that he could lay down his life and take it again.

25—28. For David speaketh] See Ps. xvi. 7—10, and notes there.

29—32. Both died and was] Peter appeals to the fact of David's death; and consequently he could not have spoken these things concerning himself; but concerning Messiah, who was to spring from his loins. Hence he foretold the resurrection of the Saviour. Ps. cxxii. 11, and 1 Kings viii. 25. (o) According to the flesh he would raise up Christ^o and in the next verse (o) "His soul," is omitted. Griesb.

33—35. Having therefore been] Peter shows whence those gifts, which had excited their wonder, came; and assures them that David had spoken of Christ as his Lord, who should ascend and reign there. Ps. cx. 1, &c.

the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

- 37 Now when they heard this, they were pierced to the heart, and said to Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said to them, Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is unto you, and to your children; and to all that are afar off, as many as the Lord our God shall call. And with many other words he testified and exhorted, saying, Save yourselves from this perverse generation.
- 41 Then those who gladly received his word were baptized: and on that day about three thousand persons were added to them.
- 42 And they stedfastly continued in the doctrine of the apostles, and in fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. And fear came upon every one: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.
- 44 And all who believed were together, and had all things common; And sold their possessious and substance, and parted them 46 among all as every one had need. And, continuing daily with one consent in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, they partook of food with gladness 47 and singleness of heart, Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added daily to the church such as were saved.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 33. Peter and John restore a lame man; Peter ascribes the cure to the name of Jesus, and exhorts the people to repentance.

1 Now Peter and John went up together

36. Lord and Christ] Made him Lord, by exalting him as man to his own right hand, and giving him dominion; and proved him to be the Messiah, who was to sit and rule God's people for ever.

38. Repent, and let] This discourse produced powerful effects, and led to the anxious inquiry, what they must do? Peter preaches repentance to them, and assures them of the remission of sin, and the communication of the Spirit.

39. The promise is unto you] If we refer the promise to the passage from Joel, then it will include the miraculous agency of the Spirit, as what was to attend the new dispensation; but we should include in it 'the forgiveness of sins,' and regard it as affording encouragement to all converts to expect the blessings of the gospel.—And to your children] Compare Gen. xvii. 7.—To all afar off] It is most probable that Peter meant only such Jews as were afar off, or dwelt in distant countries.—As many as] To repentance and faith in Christ. The promise is to these and to their children. The form of the sentence implies this.

42. In fellowship] In close connexion with the apostles and each other, as being of the household of faith, and in joint partaking of food and religious exercises.

44. Were together] They frequented 'the same place,' as the words may be rendered.—All things common] What follows explains this to mean, that they divided or enjoyed their substance in common. This showed their mutual into the temple at the hour of prayer, which was the ninth hour. And a certain man, 2 lame from his mother's womb, was carried; who was laid daily at the gate of the temple, which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of those that entered into the temple; Who, 3 seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked for alms. And Peter with 4 John, earnestly beholding him, said, Look on us. And he gave heed to them, expecting to receive something from them. Then 5 Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have I give unto thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk. And he took him by the 7 right hand, and raised him up: and immediately his feet and ankle bones were strengthened. And leaping up, he stood 8 and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God. And all the people saw 9 him walking and praising God: And they 10 knew that it was he who sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and astonishment at that which had befallen him. And as 11 the lame man who had been cured held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch, which is called Solomon's, greatly astonished.

And when Peter saw this, he said to the 12 people, Ye men of Israel, why wonder ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or godliness we had made this man to walk? The God 13 of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our Fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to release him. But ye 14 denied the Holy and the just One, and confidence and affection; but was never designed to be a precedent for other times and circumstances.

47. Were saved] From their sins, by having obtained forgiveness, and were now living in the hope of eternal life. It is allowed that σωζουσιν signifies, 'were saved,' and not 'should be saved.' Compare 1 Cor. i. 18, and 2 Cor. ii. 15.

CHAP. III. 1. Together] Grotius would render, 'about that time.'

2. Called Beautiful] This gate was added by Herod to the court of the Gentiles, and was thirty cubits high, and fifteen broad, and made of Corinthian brass. It was considered as more splendid than any other. See Jos. Bell. l. J. 5. c. 5.

3—8. Asked for alms] This miracle was wrought in public, and intended to excite attention. The manner of performing it shows to whose honour it was done. Peter says, 'In the name of Jesus Christ,' &c.; thus acknowledging him the source of all honour, and the efficient cause by his spirit of the cure.—Leaping] Is. xxxv. 6.

11. Greatly astonished] Considering how Jesus had been treated, it required fortitude to speak, and even to work miracles in his name.

12. By our own power] Peter perceived by their looks that they were regarding them, instead of him whom they served in the gospel.

13. The God of Abraham] This introduction shows the

CHAPTER IV.

desired a murderer to be granted unto you ;
 15 And killed the Author of life, whom God hath raised from the dead ; of which we 16 are witnesses. And through faith in his name hath he made this man strong, whom ye see and know : yea, his name, and the faith which is in him, hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you 17 all. And now, brethren, I know that through ignorance ye did it, as did your 18 rulers also. But those things, which God foreshowed by the mouth of all his prophets, that the Christ would suffer, he hath 19 so fulfilled. Repent, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, so that times of refreshment may come 20 from the presence of the Lord ; And that he may send Jesus Christ, who was before 21 'appointed' for you : Whom heaven must receive until the times of the completion of all the things of which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since 22 the world began. For Moses truly said to the fathers, A prophet will Jehovah your God raise up unto you from among your brethren, like unto me ; to him shall ye hearken in all things whatsoever he shall 23 say to you. And it shall come to pass, that every one who will not hearken to that prophet shall be destroyed from among the 24 people. Yea, and all the prophets, from Samuel and those who follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise told of these 25 days. Ye are the sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying to Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be 26 blessed. God, having raised up his Son Jesus, hath sent him to you first, to bless you, on turning, every one of you, from your iniquities.

A. D. 33. Peter and John are imprisoned by the rulers of the Jews ; their noble defence ; they are threatened, but discharged.

AND as Peter and John were speaking to 1 the people, the priests, and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them, Being grieved that they taught the 2 people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead. And they laid 3 their hands on them, and put them in prison until the next day : for it was now evening. Nevertheless many of those who 4 had heard the word believed ; and the number of the men was about five thousand.

Now it came to pass on the morrow, that 5 their rulers, and elders, and scribes, And 6 Annas, the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the race of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem. And when 7 they had set the apostles in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this ? Then Peter, filled with 8 the Holy Spirit, said to them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel, If we be 9 examined this day concerning the good deed done to the infirm man, by what means he hath been restored ; Be it known 10 to you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, but whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you well. This 11 is the stone which was rejected by you builders, which is become the chief corner stone. Nor is there salvation by any other : 12 for there is none other name under heaven given among men, by which we must be saved.

Now when they observed the boldness of 13

prudence of Peter, and intimated that they worshipped the God of Israel, as having fulfilled his promise in sending his Son Jesus among them.

15. Killed the Author] The term αρχηγος, the Vulg. renders 'author.' It denotes, in profane authors, 'a military leader, a sign-bearer ;' one who is first in any thing. I prefer 'author' here, and Heb. ii. 10 ; xii. 2 ; and 'leader,' Acts v. 31. The contrast between killing such a person, and desiring a murderer, the destroyer of life, to be spared is peculiarly striking.

19. So that times of] Compare for this rendering, Matt. vi. 5 ; Luke ii. 35 ; Acts xv. 17, &c.

20. (v) Griesb.

21. Completion of all things] When moral disorders shall be removed, and when peace and righteousness shall prevail. See Is. xi. 1—9. For the sense given, see Hesychius and Lightfoot.

22. A prophet will] See Deuter. xviii. 15, and note.

24. Told of these days] Samuel has recorded many things respecting Messiah, and so have other prophets.

25. Ye are the sons of] Those whom the prophets have taught, and to whom their prophecies do more immediately belong.

26. On turning] The text will admit this version, and it is more agreeable to fact to make this the ground of his blessing them. In the other view of it, we are obliged to explain it to mean, his attempt to turn them.

CHAP. IV. 1—5. Were speaking] They both taught the people the things which respected the kingdom of God : and this enraged the Jewish rulers, who had hoped that, by crucifying Jesus, they would have suppressed his doctrine and followers.—Captain] The head of the temple watch.

6. John] Dr. Lightfoot supposes this was John the son of Zaccai, a disciple of Hillel, who was at this time famous among the Jews, and was president of the Sanhedrim after Simeon the son of Gamaliel.—Alexander] Is thought to be the governor of the Jews in Alexandria, brother of Philo Judæus, one of the noblest and richest of the Jews and a great favourite with Claudius Cæsar.

7. By what name] It seems that the miracle could not be denied, and they inquire by what power or name it had been wrought.

10, 11. By the name of Jesus] Peter answers with respect but with firmness, and assures them, that it was wrought by the name of that person whom they had so lately crucified, but whom God had raised from the dead. He charges upon them their sin and folly ; and reminds them that their designs were vain, as he was made the chief corner stone of the church ; nor is there salvation in any other.

Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and obscure men, they wondered; and they knew that these men 14 had been with Jesus. And beholding the man who had been cured standing with them, they could say nothing against them. 15 But when they had commanded them to withdraw from the council, they conferred among themselves, Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a signal miracle hath been wrought by them is manifest to all those who dwell in Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it. But, that it spread no further among the people, let us strictly threaten them, that henceforth 18 they speak to no man in this name. And they called the apostles, and commanded them not to speak at all, nor teach, in the name of Jesus. But Peter and John answered and said to them, Whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto 20 you more than unto God, judge ye. For we cannot but speak the things which we 21 have seen and heard. So when they had further threatened them, they released them, not finding how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God, because of that which had 22 been done. For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of curing had been wrought. 23 And they being released, went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them. 24 And when the company heard this, they raised their voice to God with one consent, and said, O sovereign Lord, thou art God, who madest heaven, and earth, and the sea, 25 and all things that are therein: Who by the mouth of thy servant David saidst, Why did the heathen rage, and the people 26 imagine vain things? The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his 27 Anointed. For in truth there have combined "in this city" against thy holy Son Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, For to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel had before determined to be done. And now, Lord, 29 behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word, By stretching forth 30 thy hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done through the name of thy holy Son Jesus.

And when they had thus prayed, the 31 place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and they spoke the word of God with boldness. And the multitude of those who believed were of one heart and of one soul: nor did any of them say that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common. And with great power 33 gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all. Nor was there any among 34 them who wanted: for as many as were possessors of lands, or houses, sold them, and brought the prices of the things which were sold, And laid them down at the 35 apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 33. Generosity of Barnabas; the sin and death of Ananias and Sapphira his wife; the apostles again imprisoned, but delivered by an angel; Gamaliel's advice.

Now Joses, who by the apostles was 36 surnamed Barnabas, (which signifies, the son of consolation,) a Levite, of the country of Cyprus, Having land, sold it, and 37 brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

But a certain man named Ananias, with 1 Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, And 2 kept to himself a part of the price, his wife also being privy to it; and brought the other part only, and laid it at the apostles' feet. But Peter said, Ananias, why hath 3 Satan filled thy heart to lie to the Holy Spirit, and to keep to thyself a part of the 13-22. Unlearned and] They had not the address or manners of men who had received a polite education; but from the spirit and knowledge which they displayed, they perceived that they had been taught by Jesus. Peter's reply confounded them, and the approbation of the multitude prevented any violent measures being adopted for the present.—20. We cannot but] From a sense of duty and the design of the gospel, 'we cannot but speak the things;' &c.

27. The Gentiles] The Roman soldiers and other Gentiles, who might be there, are intended. See Ps. ii. 1, &c.—(a) Griesh.

24. Had before determined] The many singular and circumstantial predilections respecting the person, sufferings, and death of our Lord, clearly show the truth of Peter's assertion; and from this we may infer that the purposes of God are perfectly consistent with the free agency of man, however impossible it may be for us to conceive of, or explain it. This must be admitted, if we regard the Holy Scriptures as a system of truth.

31. The place was shaken] Perhaps the Spirit again came as a mighty rushing wind, and produced this effect, Acts ii. 2, 44.

33. Great power] Both of argument and of miracles.—Great grace] These words refer to the Divine influence upon the minds of the apostles, and of the people who heard them. The phrase is different from that used, chap. ii. 47.

34, 35. Who wanted] The rich, by the distribution of what they possessed, supplied the necessities of the poor.

37. Having land] Barnabas, the son of consolation, some suppose was so called from the circumstance of his selling his land, and devoting the price of it to charity; but others that he was so named from his abilities, and those gifts of the Spirit whereby he was enabled both to exhort and to comfort.

CHAP. V. 1-4. A certain man] The sin of Ananias was pretending to give up the whole, like Barnabas, and yet to keep to himself a part,—Satan filled] He had yielded to the suggestions of the tempter; and by his conduct at-

- 4 price of the land? While it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thy heart? thou hast not only lied unto men, but unto
- 5 God. And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down, and expired: and great fear came on all those that heard these things.
- 6 And the younger brethren arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and his friends
- 7 buried him. And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what had been done, came in.
- 8 And Peter said to her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much. And she said,
- 9 Yea, for so much. Then Peter said to her, How is it that ye have agreed together to try the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of those who have carried out thy husband to bury are at the door, and shall carry
- 10 thee out. Then immediately she fell down at his feet, and expired: and the younger brethren came in, and found her dead; and, when they had carried her out, her friends
- 11 buried her by her husband. And great fear came upon the whole church, and upon all that heard these things.
- 12 And they were all with one consent in
- 13 Solomon's porch. And of the rest durst no one join himself to them; but the people
- 14 magnified them. And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women. 'And by the hands of the apostles many signs and wonders were
- 15 wrought among the people;' So that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that even the shadow of Peter passing by might over-
- 16 shadow some of them. A multitude also out of the cities round about came unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and those that were vexed by unclean spirits: and they were all cured.
- 17 Then the high priest rose up, and all tempted 'to impose on the Holy Spirit,' with which the apostles were filled, by this vain-glorious and lying deed.—Not only lied] It has often been urged, that these two verses prove that the Holy Spirit is God; and the argument stands firm and unshaken.

6. And buried him] We are not to suppose that Ananias was actually buried in the space of three hours from the time of his death; but that he was taken to some convenient place, and preparations were made for his burial by his friends.

8. Yea, for so much] This proved that they had agreed to tell this lie; and hence the same judgment befel them both.

12. And they were all] All the apostles and believers met together in the spacious building, called Solomon's porch, and conversed and taught. The first part of this verse is transposed after the 14th, to avoid the parenthesis.

13. Of the rest] Those unconverted did not venture to join them selves to the Christian converts, for any worldly purposes; but, on the contrary, held them in high honour, alarmed by the judgment on Ananias and Sapphira. The sense of τῶν λοιπῶν is explained by the last clause.

14. And believers] While the unconverted were re-those who were with him, (being of the sect of the Sadducees,) and were filled with indignation, And laid their hands on the 18 apostles, and put them in the common prison. But an angel of the Lord opened 19 the prison doors by night, and brought them out, and said, Go, stand and speak in the 20 temple to the people all the words of this life. And when they had heard this, they 21 entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. Then the high priest came, and those who were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison for the apostles to be brought. But when the officers came, they found 22 them not in the prison; and they returned, and told, Saying, The prison indeed we 23 found shut with all safety, and the keepers standing before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no one within. Now 24 when the high priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted concerning them, what this would become. Then came one 25 and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people. Then 26 went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned. And when they had brought 27 them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them, Saying, 28 Did not we strictly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us. Then Peter and the other apostles 29 answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers 30 raised up Jesus, whom ye slew, having hung him on a cross. Him hath God exalted to 31 his own right hand to be a prince and a strained, those called to believe were led to profess their faith in Jesus, and to join his people.

15, 16. The shadow of Peter] Luke only relates what the people thought and did; yet it is probable that they were cured.—The sick] These are distinguished from such as had unclean spirits, as they are Matt. iv. 24; x. 1; Mark i. 32, 34; xvi. 16, 18; Luke iv. 40, 41; vii. 21.

17—23. The high priest] The astonishing wonders wrought, and the increasing attention of the people to the gospel, aroused the fears of these leaders; and again they seized and put the apostles in prison.—20. The words of this life] The gospel, which contains the promise of life and happiness, and which announces the way to it, including the resurrection of the dead, all which the Sadducees denied.

21—24. All the senate of] This was an affair which required the attention of the whole government, in the opinion of the high priest; and the extraordinary circumstances told did not diminish his concern.

28. To bring this man's blood] The guilt of shedding it was upon them; but he seems to intend, that they were leading the people to avenge on them the death of Jesus.

29—32. We ought to obey God] This was an indisputable

CHAPTER VI.

Saviour, to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is the Holy Spirit also, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

Now when they heard this, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to kill them. Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, had in honour among all the people, and commanded to send the apostles out for a short time; And he said to them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye are about to do in respect to these men. For before these days Theudas rose up, boasting himself to be some great one; to whom a number of about four hundred men joined themselves: who was slain: and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought. After this man Judas of Galilee rose up in the days of the enrolment; and drew away many people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed. •And now I say to you, Refrain from these men, and let them go on: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will be overthrown; But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; beware lest ye be found even to fight against God. And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, they beat them, and commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and released them. So they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name. And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach the glad tidings that Jesus is the Christ.

truth, and the proofs of it follow, which could not fail to wound the pride of these men. Socrates expressed a similar sentiment, when he was condemned for teaching the people. He said, 'O Athenians! I embrace and love you; but I will obey God rather than you; and if you would dismiss me, and spare my life, on condition that I should cease to teach my fellow citizens, I had rather die a thousand deaths than accept the proposal.'

33. To kill them] Either under the pretence of blasphemy, as they had done Jesus, or for sedition and rebellion against their authority. Their fear only prevented the accomplishment of their counsel.

36. Theudas rose up] Bi-hop Usher supposed that the Theudas of Luke is the same as Judas, who raised an insurrection in Galilee, a little after the death of Herod, and who aimed at obtaining the sovereignty. See Bell. lib. ii. 4. li. Pearce has adopted this opinion; and as it was usual for the Jews to have two names, as we find from the apostles, this is the most probable opinion. The apostle Jude is called Thadeus, Matt. iii. 13.

37. Judas of Galilee] This is distinguished from the former by the time. He rose up in the days of the enrolment, not that made in the beginning of the reign of Archelaus, Luke ii. 1; Matt. ii. 22; but one about ten years after.

38, 39. If this counsel or] This is the reason of his advice. Lardner supposes that though these men were cut off and their followers, Gamaliel might think that they, as

A. D. 33. Seven men are chosen by the disciples and appointed to the office of deacons; Stephen, one of them, is falsely accused of blasphemy, &c.

AND in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Hellenists against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily distribution of alms. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reasonable that we should leave the word of God, and attend on tables. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out from among yourselves seven men of good report, full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give up ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

And these words pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas, a proselyte of Antioch: Whom they set before the apostles; and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them. And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples greatly multiplied in Jerusalem; and a great multitude of the priests were obedient to the faith.

And Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people. Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, and some of the Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of those from Cilicia and Asia, disputing with Stephen. And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spoke.

well as the apostles, were under a divine impulse, and that the doctrine might survive, if the teachers were destroyed.

40—42. And to him they] The conduct of these magistrates was a violation of every principle of justice; and that of the apostles was honourable to them as men, and as the ambassadors of Christ.

CHAP. VI. 1. Hellenists] These were Jewish proselytes who spoke the Greek language, and dwelt in various parts of the Greek empire. See Lardner.

2. Attend on tables] That food may be set on them; and the poor of the church supplied; or even providing for the observance of the Lord's supper.

3. Look ye out from] The apostles wisely left the choice of these officers to the people, whose contributions they were to distribute for the relief of the indigent.—Whom we may] Or, Whom we may set over, &c. The apostles acted in concert with the people; they chose out the men and the apostles, according to the Jewish rite, prayed for them with imposition of hands, thus commending them to God.

7. Of the priests] At the return from Babylon they were near five thousand, Ezra iii. 36—39; and were probably now ten times that number. Considering the loss they would sustain by embracing the gospel, having no part of the sacrifices, their conversion shows the power of divine grace.

8. Full of grace] Of the gracious influence of the Spirit, and of power to perform the most signal miracles.

9. Libertines] These are commonly supposed to be such

11 Then they suborned men, who said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words 12 against Moses, and against God. And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes; and they came upon him, and seized him, and brought him to the 13 council, And set up false witnesses, who said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, 14 and the laws. For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place, and will change the customs 15 which Moses delivered to us. And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 33. Stephen's answer, containing the call of Abraham, the birth of Moses, who foretold the coming of Christ; and he then reprehends them for their rebellion and their murdering of Christ; they stone him to death, while commending his spirit to Christ.

1 THEN said the high priest, Are these
 2 things so? And he said, Brethren, and fathers, hearken. The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in 3 Haran, And said to him, Depart from thy country, and from thy kindred, and go into the land which I will show to thee. Then he departed from the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Haran: and when his father was dead, God caused him to remove thence into this land, wherein ye now
 5 dwell; But he gave him no inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after 6 him, when as yet he had no child. And God spoke in this manner, That his seed should sojourn in a foreign land; and that they should be brought into bondage, and 7 afflicted, four hundred years. And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, saith God: and after that they shall come forth, and serve me in this place. And he gave him the covenant of 8 circumcision: and so Abraham begot Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; and Isaac begot Jacob; and Jacob begot the twelve patriarchs.

Now the patriarchs, moved with envy, 9 sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him, And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and over his whole palace. Now there came a famine over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no sustenance. But when Jacob 12 heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers the first time. And at the 13 second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred were made known unto Pharaoh. Then Joseph 14 sent, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, seventy-five persons. So Jacob went down into Egypt, and he 15 died, and our fathers, And were carried 16 over to Shechem, and laid in the sepulchre which Jacob bought for a sum of money of the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem.

But when the time of the promise drew 17 near, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, Till another king arose, who knew not Joseph. He dealt subtilly with our kindred, 19 and afflicted our fathers, making them cast out their young children, that they might not be preserved alive. At which time 20 Moses was born, and was very beautiful, and nourished up in his father's house three months: And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son. And Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds. And when he was forty years old, it came 23 into his mind to visit his brethren, the chil-

Jews as had been carried captives into Italy, and had been made free by the Romans, or the sons of such. See Lardner. Pearce contends that they were inhabitants of a city or district of Libya, called Libertina. This opinion seems most probable.

11.—14. Suborned men] Not being able to reply to the reasoning of Stephen, like all wicked and violent men, they resorted to persecution, as the shortest method of silencing him. Force has often been thus employed.

15. His face as it] It is very probable, that his countenance had a splendour resembling that of Moses when he came down from the mount; and that of Christ, when he was transfigured, Exod. xxxiv. 30; Matt. xvii. 2.

CHAP. VII. 2. The God of glory] Newcome thought that this discourse resembled those which the Jews were accustomed to hear in their synagogues. See chap. xiii. 17, &c.

5. No inheritance] The history of Abraham proves this; for he dwelt in the land as a sojourner, and obtained by purchase from the inhabitants a burying place.—Give to him] See Gen. xiii. 15; xvii. 8. He so far gave it to him that he lived in it undisturbed; and to his posterity he gave the possession of it afterwards.

6. Four hundred years] See note, Gen. xv. 13, and Ex. xii. 40, where it is said four hundred and thirty years, which include the period which Abraham lived before the birth of Isaac.

9. Moved with envy] From this it was obvious, that a person might be rejected, who was destined to high rank and honour, as Joseph was.

14. Seventy-five persons] See Gen. xlii. 27, and note. There is an error in the number either here, or in the account we have in Genesis. Indeed names have been omitted and added by scribes in many other instances; and perhaps seventy should be left out here. See Bowyer's Conjectures.

16. Which Jacob] Without the authority of one MS. or Version, critics are obliged here to correct the text, which has 'Abraham;' and which must have crept in early. The 15th verse shows that Jacob, and not Abraham, must be intended. See Gen. xxxiii. 19, and Josh. xxiv. 32.

22. Mighty in words] Though not eloquent, his words

24 dren of Israel. And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and slew the 25 Egyptian. Now he supposed that his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them; but 26 they understood not. And the next day he presented himself to some of them as they contended, and would have reconciled them, saying, Ye are brethren; why do ye wrong 27 one to another? But he that did wrong to his neighbour thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?
 28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou killedst the 29 Egyptian yesterday? Then fled Moses at these words, and was a sojourner in the land of Midian, where he begot two sons.
 30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the desert of mount Sinai, an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a 31 bush. And when Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to consider it attentively, the voice of the Lord
 32 came to him, Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not attentively 33 consider it. Then the Lord said to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place on which thou standest is holy ground.
 34 I have surely seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee
 35 into Egypt. This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? him did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer, by the hand of the angel who appeared 36 to him in the bush. He brought them out, after that he had shown wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the desert, forty years.
 37 This is that Moses, who said to the children of Israel, A prophet will Jehovah your God raise up unto you from among your brethren, like unto me; to him shall ye hearken. This is he that, in the congrega- 38 tion in the desert, was with the angel, who spoke to him on mount Sinai, and with our fathers: who received the life-giving oracles, to deliver them to us. To whom our fathers 39 would not be obedient, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back into Egypt, Saying to Aaron, Make us gods to 40 go before us: for as to this Moses, who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him. So they 41 made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands. Then God turned, 42 and gave them up to worship the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye house of Israel, did ye offer to me only slain beasts and sacrifices during forty years in the desert? Nay, but ye took 43 up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship: therefore I will carry you away beyond Babylon. Our fathers had the ta- 44 bernacle of testimony in the desert, as he had appointed, speaking to Moses, that he should make it according to the pattern which he had seen. Which also our fathers 45 received and brought in with Joshua, when they possessed the land of the nations, whom God drove out from before our fathers, unto the days of David; Who found favour be- 46 fore God, and desired to provide a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. But Solomon built 47 him a temple. However, the Most High 48 dwelleth not in temples made with hands, as the prophet saith, Heaven is my throne, 49 and the earth is my footstool: what temple will ye build for me? saith Jehovah: or what is the place of my rest? Hath not my 50 hand made all these things?

Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart 51 and ears, ye always resist the Holy Spirit; as your fathers did, so do ye. Which of the 52 prophets did not your fathers persecute? yea, were weighty and forcible; and the miracles he wrought were numerous and great, Exod. ii. 2, 10, and notes.

25. Now he supposed] Moses collected from the promise, Gen. xv. 13, 14, that the period of Egyptian servitude was expiring, and most probably from some impulse on his mind, concluded that God had raised him up to be their deliverer.

26. Ye are brethren] Stephen gives the sense of Moses, rather than his words. Compare Exod. ii. 13, &c.

30. 31. Forty years were] So long Moses lived a retired life in the bosom of his family, and in the care of his flocks; but at length he was called forth to be the deliverer and legislator of Israel.—Angel of the Lord] It is remarkable, that both in Exodus and here, he who is first called the 'angel of the Lord,' is afterwards spoken of as Jehovah, who addressed Moses, saying, 'Put off,' &c. See also verse 35.

35—37. This Moses whom] This is also a delicate hint of the spirit which prevailed among their ancestors, and how possible it is for men to be mistaken.—A prophet will] See Deuter. xviii. 15.

38. With the angel] The angel of the covenant, the repre-entative of Jehovah.—Life-giving oracles] They were intended to lead to life and happiness, Deuter. xxxii. 47; Levit. xviii. 5.

39—43. Would not be obedient] All their history proved this. See Exod. xxxii. 1, 4, &c.—Then God turned] He permitted them to follow their own inclinations. See Amos v. 25, and notes there.

44—50. Our fathers had] He was accused of speaking against the law, and he has hitherto spoken of it with the highest respect. He was also charged with speaking against the temple, and he now mentions it with reverence, but reminds them what God said to Solomon, 1 Kings viii. 27, &c. Is. lxvi. 1, 2.

51. Ye stiffnecked] It is probable that they heard until now with patience, but perceiving that he did not think of that holy place, the temple, as they did, they testified their disapprobation, either by their gestures or words. Stephen, unintimidated, warmly but justly reprehends them.—Resist the Holy] Speaking by the prophets, Nehem. ix. 30.

52. Yea, they slew] Isaiah particularly foretold the coming of the Just One, and him they slew; and they had now betrayed and slain the Just One himself.

they slew those who foretold the coming of the Just One ; of whom ye have now been 53 the betrayers and murderers : Ye, who received the law by the ministry of angels, but have not kept it.
 54 When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart ; and they gnashed on him
 55 with their teeth. But he, being full of the Holy Spirit, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus
 56 standing on the right hand of God, And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand
 57 of God. Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon 58 him with one consent, And cast him out of the city, and prepared to stone him ; and the witnesses laid down their mantles at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.
 59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon, and 60 saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep. And Saul gladly consented to his death.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 33. Being persecuted at Jerusalem, the disciples go in all directions preaching the gospel ; Philip preacheth to the Samaritans, who believe ; Peter and John go down there ; hypocrisy of Simon ; an angel sendeth Philip to teach the Ethiopian eunuch.

1 Now at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem ; and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea
 2 and Samaria, except the apostles. But some devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over 3 him. But Saul laid waste the church, entering into every house ; and, dragging forth men and women, committed them to prison. Those therefore that were scattered abroad, went every where preaching the glad tidings of the word.

Then Philip went down to a city of Samaria, and preached Christ to them. And the multitude attended with one consent to those things which Philip spoke, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did. For unclean spirits, crying with a loud voice, came out of many that had them : and many that were sick of the palsy, and that were lame, were healed. And there was great joy in that city.

But there had been before in that city a certain man, called Simon, using magic, and astonishing the people of Samaria, saying, that himself was some great one : To whom they all attended, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God. And to him they attended, because for a long time he had astonished them by magical arts. But when they believed Philip preaching the glad tidings concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. Then even Simon himself believed ; and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

Now when the apostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John : Who went down, and 15 prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Spirit : For as yet he had fallen on none of them : only they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. Then 17 they put their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. And when Simon 18 saw that by the putting on of the apostles'

53. By the ministry] Or 'through the ranks,' &c. They were present as the attendants and servants of the supreme lawgiver, Ps. lxxviii. 17 ; Gal. iii. 19 ; Heb. ii. 2.
 55. The glory of God] The symbol of the Divine presence, and Jesus himself standing ready to receive his spirit.

57, 58. They cried out] They could not restrain their rage any longer. That this was a tumultuous and irregular proceeding is manifest. See John xviii. 31.—Cast him out] Because it was not allowable to kill any within it.—Prepared] Stephen was not stoned until the witnesses had stripped, who cast the first stone.

59. Calling upon, and saying] Some have thought the text elliptical, and with our translators supply God or Lord ; but there is no need of this, as the object he invoked is afterwards specified, 1 Cor. i. 2 ; Acts ix. 14.

60. Lord, lay not this] He desires Jesus not to avenge his death upon them.—And Saul gladly] This young Pharisee joined in this outrage and murder.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Were all scattered] Doddridge thought it probable that Ananias now went to Damascus, chap. ix. 10 ; while others, after having preached the gospel in neighbouring parts, travelled on to Phœnicia, and Cyprus, and Antioch.

2. Devout men] Brother disciples. They boldly testified their respect for Stephen, and by this avowed their faith.

4. Preaching the] This persecution, by the providence of God, was overruled to spread abroad the gospel.

5. Then Philip] Not the apostle of that name, but the deacon, chap. vi. 5. The apostles abode at Jerusalem ; and if he had been an apostle, he would have had the power of imparting the Spirit as well as Peter and John.—A city of Samaria] Herod the Great had destroyed Samaria itself, but afterwards built another city, and called it Sebaste, that is Augusta, in honour of the emperor Augustus. The town to which Philip went might be Sychar, John iv. 5, &c.

8. Great joy in] On account of the wonderful cures wrought, and especially on account of the salvation procured among them.

9—11. Using magic] He most probably possessed a superior knowledge of the powers of nature and the efficacy of medicines. So the effects of electricity, chemical phenomena, &c., do even now astonish the ignorant.

13. Then even Simon] Simon saw that Philip possessed a knowledge and powers far superior to himself ; and by professing to believe and attending the ministry of Philip might hope to attain like knowledge and powers. He is thought to be the same person as is mentioned by Josephus, who persuaded Drusilla to leave her husband, and live with Felix.

14—19. The apostles heard] These verses clearly prove that the honour of conferring the Spirit, in his miraculous gifts, was peculiar to the apostles.

hands the Holy Spirit was given, he 19 offered them money, Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I put my 20 hands, he may receive the Holy Spirit. But Peter said to him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.
 21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight 22 of God. Repent, therefore, of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee.
 23 For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.
 24 Then Simon answered, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon 25 me. So they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel in many towns of the Samaritans.
 26 Now an angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying, Arise, and go towards the south, to the way which goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is in the 27 desert. And he arose and went; and, behold, there was an Ethiopian, an eunuch of great authority under Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and who had come to Jeru-28 salem to worship; And he was returning; and, sitting in his chariot, read Isaiah the 29 prophet. Then the Spirit said to Philip,
 Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.
 30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?
 31 And he said, How can I, unless some man should guide me? And he desired that 32 Philip would come up and sit with him.
 Now the place of the scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before its shearer, so opened he not his mouth: In his humiliation his judgment 33 was taken away: and the men of his generation who can describe? for his life is taken from the earth. And the eunuch 34 spoke to Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man? Then Philip 35 opened his mouth, and began from this scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

 And as they went on the way, they came 36 to some water; and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what hindereth my being baptized? And he commanded the cha- 38 riot to stand still; and they two went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they 39 had come out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, and the eunuch saw him no more; and he went on his way rejoicing. But Philip was found at Azotus; 40 and passing through, he preached glad tidings in all the cities, till he came to Cæsarea.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 34. Saul going to Damascus is called to the apos-tleship; and baptized by Ananias; he preacheth Christ boldly; the Jews and Hellenists lay wait for him; Eneas healed and Tabitha raised from the dead.

Now Saul, yet breathing out threats and 1 slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest. And desired of him 2 letters to the synagogues at Damascus, that if he found any of this religion, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem. And as 3 he journeyed he came near to Damascus:
 and suddenly a light from heaven shone round about him: And he fell to the earth, 4 and heard a voice saying to him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he 5

18—25. Offered them money] This proved alike his ignorance and impiety. Peter very properly concluded that he was in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity, and exhorted him to repent if the thoughts of his heart may be forgiven.

26. Which is in the desert] Gaza was the last town or city in the way to Egypt, and bordered on the desert.

27. An Ethiopian] Pearce supposes that he was a Jew, who enjoyed the rank of chamberlain under Candace.
 Candace was a name common to several queens, who reigned in More, to the south of Egypt, according to Pliny.
 Lib. vi. c. 29. He seems to have been a serious, devout man, not only from the journey which he had taken, but from the manner of employing his time.

30. Understandest thou] This question, asked by a stranger, would have offended many great men; but the eunuch readily confessed his ignorance and his need of a teacher; and was willing to admit Philip into his chariot for this purpose.

32, 33. He was led as a] See Is. liii. 7, 8, and notes; and Acts xiii. 36, where γῆνα is used for 'the men of this generation.'

35. Preached unto him Jesus] That he is the Messiah and Saviour; and that it was of him and his sufferings that the prophet spoke.

37. (o) Philip said, If thou behest with all thy heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. With Griesbach I omit this as a marginal gloss. It is wanting in the best MSS., and both Bengelius and Wetstein omit it.

38. Went down into the water] 'I do not see any proof,' says Lardner, 'that the eunuch was baptized by immersion.
 He and Philip stood in the water; and Philip poured some of it upon him. Nor do I see reason to think that John the baptist used immersion, but rather otherwise. It is contrary to decency, and the respect we owe to one another.'

39. Caught away Philip] This miraculous disappearance of Philip would tend to confirm the eunuch in the faith.—
For he went] The eunuch proceeded on his journey, rejoicing in the knowledge which he had acquired, and in the hope of salvation.

40. At Azotus] Called in the Old Testament Ashdod, on the coast of the sea, and north of Gaza. Philip thence proceeded along the coast, preaching in all the towns until he reached Cæsarea, a sea-port, between Dora and Joppa.

CHAP. IX. 2. At Damascus] From Josephus we learn that the number of Jews in this city amounted to ten thousand, and that almost all the women were of the Jewish

said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest. 6 But rise up and go into the city, and it 7 shall be told thee what thou must do. And the men who journeyed with him remained silent, hearing a sound, but seeing no man. 8 And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but some led him by the hand, and brought 9 him into Damascus. And he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank. 10 Now there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias; and the Lord said in a vision, Ananias. And he said, 11 Behold, I am here, Lord. And the Lord said to him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and inquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of 12 Tarsus: for, behold, he prayeth; And hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias, who came in, and put his hand on him, that 13 he might recover his sight. Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard from many of this man, how much evil he hath done 14 to thy saints at Jerusalem: And here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind 15 all that call on thy name. But the Lord said to him, Go; for he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel: 16 For I will show him how great things he 17 must suffer for my name's sake. Then Ananias departed, and entered into the house; and when he had put his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared unto thee on the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest recover thy sight, and be filled with the 18 Holy Spirit. And immediately there fell from his eyes as it were scales: and he recovered his sight forthwith and arose, and was baptized. And when he had received food, he was strengthened.

Then Saul continued some days with the 19 disciples who were at Damascus. And immediately he preached 'Jesus' in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God. But all 21 that heard him were amazed, and said, Is not this he who destroyed those who called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for this purpose, that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests? But Saul 22 increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews who dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is the Christ.

And after many days were fulfilled, the 23 Jews took counsel to kill him: (But their 24 lying in wait was known by Saul.) And they watched the gates by day and night that they might kill him. Then the disciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket. And when Saul 26 came to Jerusalem, he attempted to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple. Then Barnabas took him, and 27 brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord on the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus. And he 28 continued to associate with them at Jerusalem. And he spoke boldly in the name 29 of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the Hellenists; but they went about to kill him: Which when the brethren knew, they 30 brought him down to Cæsarea, and sent him away to Tarsus. Then had the 31 churches peace throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria, and were edified; and walking in the fear of the Lord, and the comfort of the Holy Spirit, were multiplied.

5, 6. I am Jesus] The voice from heaven arrested him, and led him to make the inquiry, 'Who art thou, Lord?' How must he have been confounded when he received the answer, and reflected on the object of his journey! In the common text additions have been made here from the parallel places, Ch. xxii. 8—10, and xxvii. 13—18.—(o) It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. And he, trembling and astonished, said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said to him, Arise. Griesb.

9. Three days] The glorious appearance of Jesus had produced blindness; and in this state he fasted one whole day, and part of two others. This was a fast of deep humiliation and repentance.

10—16. The Lord said in a vision] What Jesus said to Ananias surprised, and induced him very naturally to state what he had heard concerning him.

17. The Lord Jesus] That Jesus himself did appear on this occasion, in a form most glorious, is certain from what is here said, and from 1 Cor. xv. 8.—Filled with the Holy Spirit] To instruct him and enable him to preach the gospel.

18. As it were scales] Whether the eyes had been inflamed, and some scales were really formed, or whether it only denotes the sudden manner in which his sight was restored, it is not possible to determine.

20. Preached Jesus] The Jews admitted that the Christ or Messiah was to be the Son of God; and what Paul proved was that Jesus was so. That reading is necessary. Griesb.

21. Who called on this name] Some would render, 'who are called by thy name.' They surely have forgot that they were only called disciples, believers, saints, but not Christians, until after this period. See Acts xi. 26. When the verb is followed by the accusative, it is taken in the active sense, and strictly means to call on, to 'invoke, or pray to'; and to call on the name is a well known mode of speaking, to denote person. Comp. Rom. x. 12—14, and Mintert and Biel, in verb.

23. Many days] During this time it is probable that Paul went into Arabia, where he was taught the gospel more perfectly by revelation from Christ, Gal. i. 16, 17.

24—30. They might kill him] Paul soon began to experience the same treatment from his unbelieving brethren, which he had shown to the disciples.—26. Not believing] They had not been satisfied respecting his conversion; and could not receive him as a brother, until Barnabas avouched the truth before them.

31. Then had the churches] Lardner supposes that the Jews were occupied about their own affairs, when Petronius attempted to bring the statue of the emperor Caligula, and set it up in the holy of holies which threw the whole

32 And it came to pass, that as Peter passed throughout all parts, he came down to the 33 saints also who dwelt at Lydda. And there he met a certain man named Eneas, who had kept his bed eight years, and was sick 34 of the palsy. And Peter said to him, Eneas, Jesus the Christ maketh thee well: arise, and make thy bed. And he rose immediately. And all who dwelt at Lydda and Saron saw him, and turned to the Lord.
 36 Now there was at Joppa, a certain disciple named Tabitha, which in Greek signifieth Dorcas: this woman abounded in 37 good works and alms which she did. And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick, and died: and they washed her, and 38 laid her in an upper room. And as Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, who had heard that Peter was there, sent unto him two men, desiring that he would not delay
 39 to come to them. Then Peter arose and went with them. And when he had come, they brought him into the upper room: and all the widows stood by him weeping, and showing the coats and mantles which Dorcas made, while she was with them.
 40 But Peter, having put them all out, kneeled down, and prayed; and turning himself to the body said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes; and when she saw Peter,
 41 she sat up. And he gave her his hand, and raised her up, and when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive.
 42 And it was known throughout Joppa; and 43 many believed in the Lord. And it came to pass that he abode many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 38. Cornelius, commanded by an angel, sendeth for Peter, who by a vision is taught not to despise the Gentiles; as he preacheth, the Holy Spirit is given, &c.

1 Now there was a certain man in Cæsarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the band
 2 called the Italian band; A pious man, and one that feared God with all his household, who gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God continually. He saw in a vision evidently, about the ninth hour of the day, an angel of God, who came in unto him and said to him, Cornelius. And when he had earnestly looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said to him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God. And now send men to Joppa, and send for Simon, whose surname is Peter: He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea-side: he will tell thee what thou oughtest to do. And when the angel who spoke to Cornelius had departed, he called two of his household servants, and a pious soldier of those who attended on him; And when he had told them all these things, he sent them to Joppa.

Now on the morrow, as they journeyed, and drew near to the city, Peter went up on the house-roof to pray, about the sixth hour. And he became very hungry, and would have eaten; but while they were making ready, he fell into a trance; And seeth heaven opened, and something descending, as it had been a great sheet bound together at the four corners, and let down to the earth, In which were all kinds of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. And there came a voice to him, Arise, Peter; slay, and eat. But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing common or unclean. And the voice spoke to him again a second time, What God hath cleansed, regard thou not as common. And this was done three times: and the 16 sheet was taken up again into heaven.

Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men who were sent from Cornelius had inquired out Simon's house, and stood before the porch, And called, and asked whether Simon, who was surnamed Peter, country into the most dreadful state of alarm. By the churches are meant distinct Christian assemblies, formed and regulated much after the Jewish synagogues.

32—35. Dwelt at Lydda] This was a town of Samaria, on the border of Judea, and not far from Joppa.—Saron] Or Sharon. Jerom informs us that the country between Lydda and Joppa was so called. The miracle produced conviction, and numbers were added to the Lord.

36. Tabitha—Dorcas] The Antelope. See note, 2 Sam. i. 19. This name was expressive of beauty and elegance; and was probably given, because she was beautiful.

39, 40. Coats and mantles] She employed herself in making these for the poor; thus bringing a blessing upon herself. Peter suffered none to be witnesses of the method he adopted to restore life; but as they were all satisfied that she was dead, they must be sensible that she had been recalled from the dead. This great miracle tended both to strengthen the disciples, and to convert others.

CHAP. X. 1. A centurion] Commander of a hundred men, who were chiefly natives of Italy, and called the Italian band. Tacitus mentions it.

2. A pious man] A proselyte to the Jewish religion, who was very charitable, and maintained in his family order and devotion.

3—8. The ninth hour] Three in the afternoon, being the hour of prayer in the temple. The address of the angel, and probably his appearance, alarmed him; but he was soon comforted with the assurance, that his prayers and alms were accepted. He did not delay to follow the direction given.

10—16. He fell into a trance] Or ecstasy. Such a state as renders a man insensible to the external objects around him, while his imagination is agitated with some striking scenes which pass before it, and take up all the attention. The vision is formed on the Jewish custom of not eating of any reptile or animal forbidden in the law; but Peter was taught to regard this law as now to be no longer in force.

17—20. Now while Peter] As yet he could not comprehend the design of this vision; but the arrival of the messengers from Cornelius, together with the impulse of the Spirit on his mind, soon explained it.

19 lodged there. So while Peter was thinking on the vision, the Spirit said to him, Behold, 20 three men seek thee. Arise, therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting 21 nothing: for I have sent them. Then Peter went down to the men [who were sent unto him from Cornelius] and said, Behold,
I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause
22 for which ye are come? And they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by a holy angel, to send for thee to his 23 house, and to hear words from thee. Then he called them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter arose and went with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him. And on the morrow after, they entered into Cæsarea.
24 Now Cornelius was expecting them, and had called together his kinsmen and near 25 friends. And as Peter entered in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and did 26 obeisance. But Peter raised him up, saying, 27 Stand up; I myself also am a man. And as he talked with him, he went in, and found 28 many who had come together. And he said to them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a Jew to join himself, or come near one of another nation; but God hath showed me that I should not call any man common 29 or unclean. Wherefore I came unto you without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for: I ask therefore, on what account ye 30 have sent for me? Then Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour;
and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright 31 clothing, And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is beard, and thine alms are had in remem-32 brance in the sight of God. Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea-side: who, 33 when he cometh, will speak to thee. Immediately therefore I sent for thee; and thou hast done well that thou art come.
Now therefore we are all here present before God, to hear all things which God hath commanded thee.

21—23. What is the cause for] They inform him briefly; but Peter unquestionably supposed that he was sent for to make known Christ, and preached him accordingly.

24—29. Now Cornelius] He was very anxious to hear what Peter had to say in such circumstances, and showed the greatest humility and respect. Peter refused that homage which Jesus always accepted, and informs him, that though it was unlawful for him, as a Jew, to come to them, yet God having intimated to him his will, he had come: and properly asks for what cause he had sent for him.

30—33. Four days ago] Cornelius simply stated the fact of the angel's commission and what he said; and then waited for Peter's reply.

34, 35. In truth] Peter confesseth that God did not

Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, 34
In truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation, he who 35 feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted by him. Ye know the doctrine 36 which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching the glad tidings of peace by Jesus Christ: (he is Lord of all :) Ye know what 37 was done throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached; How God anointed Jesus of 38 Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power: who went about doing good, and curing all who were oppressed by the devil; for God was with him. And we are wit- 39 nesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem; whom they killed by hanging him on a cross. Him God raised up the third day, 40 and showed him openly; Not to all the 41 people, but to witnesses whom God had before chosen, even to us, who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. And 42 he commanded us to preach to the people and to testify that it is he whom God hath appointed to be the Judge of the living and of the dead. To him all the prophets bear 43 testimony, that, through his name, whosoever believeth in him, shall receive remission of sins.

While Peter was yet speaking these words, 44
the Holy Spirit fell on all those that heard the word. And the believers of the circum- 45 cision, as many as came with Peter, were amazed, that on the Gentiles also the gift of the Holy Spirit was poured out. For they 46 heard them speak in different languages and magnify God. Then Peter said, Can 47 any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, who have received the Holy Spirit as well as we? And he commanded 48 them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then they besought him to abide with them some days.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 41. Peter, being accused, defendeth himself; the Gospel having been preached in various countries Barnabas is sent to confirm the disciples.

Now the apostles and brethren who were 1 in Judea heard that the Gentiles also had confine his favours to the sons of Abraham, but was now bestowing them on men sprung from other ancestors.—Is accepted by him] So far as to have the gospel sent to them, and by faith in Christ, to be alike partakers of its blessings.

36. Ye know the doctrine] I follow the construction, which appears most natural; for τὸν λόγον must be governed by οὐδὲν understood, and resumed in the beginning of the next verse. They must have heard of Jesus and his doctrine; and though they had not a full knowledge of what he taught, yet they could not be wholly ignorant.

38. Oppressed by the devil] Every disease is the effect of sin, and Satan was the tempter who occasioned the sin of man. Hence he is regarded as oppressing men with the various afflictions which they here endure.

43. All the prophets] Most of them, in a very express

2 received the word of God. And when Peter had come up to Jerusalem, they who were of the circumcision contended with him, 3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them. Then Peter began and related the matter in order 5 to them, saying, I was praying in the city of Joppa; and in a trance I saw a vision, Something descending like a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and 6 it came near to me; Upon which when I had looked earnestly, I saw four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and 7 creeping things, and fowls of the air. And I heard a voice saying to me, Arise, Peter; 8 kill and eat. But I said, Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath ever entered into my mouth. But the voice answered 9 me a second time from heaven, What God hath cleansed, regard thou not as common. 10 And this was done three times: and every thing was drawn up again into heaven. 11 And, behold, immediately three men, sent to me from Cæsarea, stood at the house where 12 I was. And the Spirit bade me go with them, doubting nothing. Moreover these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered 13 into the man's house: And he showed us how he had seen an angel in his house, who stood and said to him, Send men to Joppa, and inquire for Simon, whose surname 14 is Peter; Who will speak to thee words, whereby thou and thy whole household 15 shall be saved. And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell on them, as on us 16 at the beginning. Then I remembered the word of the Lord, that he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized 17 with the Holy Spirit. If then God gave to them the like gift as he did to us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; who was I, that I should be able to withstand God? When they heard these things, 18 they were satisfied, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God granted to the Gentiles also repentance unto life.

Now those who were scattered abroad 19 upon the persecution which arose about Stephen, travelled as far as Phœnicia, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but to Jews only. And some of them 20 were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, who, when they had come to Antioch, spoke to the 'Hellenists,' preaching the glad tidings of the Lord Jesus. And the hand of the Lord 21 was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord. Then 22 the report of these things reached the church which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he might go as far as Antioch: Who, when he came, and had 23 seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, with purpose of heart to cleave unto the Lord: For he was a good 24 man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith: and a great multitude was added unto the Lord.

Then Barnabas departed to Tarsus, to 25 seek Saul: And when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. And it came to pass, that during a whole year, they assembled themselves with the church, and taught a great multitude: and the disciples were first called Christians at Antioch.

And in these days prophets came from 27 Jerusalem to Antioch. And one of them, 28 named Agabus, rose up and signified by the Spirit that there would be a great famine over the whole earth: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cæsar. Then the 29 disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief to the brethren manner, and others indirectly; for the spirit of prophecy is testimony to Jesus.

CHAP. XI. 3. Thou wentest in] See chap. x. 27. We do not read in the law that the Jews were forbidden to associate with, or to eat with Gentiles; but this had become a general opinion, and they strictly adhered to it. See Gal. ii. 12.

4—16. Then Peter began] A plain statement of what had occurred Peter thought would be his best defence. See notes on preceding chapter, and chap. i. 5.

17. Who was I, that] When God gave them the gifts of his Spirit, enabling them to speak different languages, could I restrain the Spirit of the Lord? Could I withstand the manifest will of God?

18. Were satisfied] Or 'ceased' to contend with him; but I prefer the term adopted, as they did not merely acquiesce, but approved of what he had done.—To the Gentiles] Has not only granted to them the gospel, which requires repentance, but has also produced it in the hearts of some of them, and which shall terminate in eternal life.

19. Phœnicia—Cyprus] This country included Tyre and Sidon; and is spoken of as a part of Syria. See chap. xxi. 2, 3. Mark vii. 26. Cyprus is an island of the Mediterranean sea, over against Syria. Antioch, a city of Syria, on the river Orontes.

20. Men of Cyprus and Cyrene] Those who went to the places before mentioned, confined their labours to Jews by birth, but these men, who spoke Greek, preached to Greek proselytes to Judaism.—(v) Greeks. Griesb.

21. Hand of the Lord] Either giving success to their testimony by his power on the minds of men, or enabling them to work miracles, so as to produce the same effect. See chap. vii. 25; xiv. 3.

22. Sent forth Barnabas] He was a native of Cyprus, chap. iv. 36; and from his zeal, wisdom, and faith, well qualified for this important mission.

23. Seen the grace] In its powerful and saving effects. See verse 21.—With purpose] That is, with a fixed and steady resolution. See Eph. iii. 11.

26. Had found him] Saul had been sent to his own city Tarsus, when the Jews of Jerusalem laid wait for him, chap. ix. 30. He had laboured there until now, when Barnabas brought him to Antioch.—Were called Christians] Michaelis contends that they did not call themselves so, but that this name was given them by others, as those who adhered to Luther were by others called Lutherans; but others think that they were thus named by 'divine appointment.' Yet as the word is also used in a general sense for 'to name, or to call by name,' nothing certain can be inferred.

27—30. Prophets] Pearce would render, 'teachers;' and observes that the prophecy here was an occasional thing.—A great famine] There were famines in various places during the reign of Claudius. Judea was greatly

30 who dwelt in Judea: Which also they did, and sent it to the elders, by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 44. Herod persecuteth the Christians, killeth James, and imprisoneth Peter; but prayer being made by the church for him, he was delivered by an angel; the pride of Herod, and his miserable death.

1 Now about that time Herod the king stretched forth his hands to afflict some of 2 the church. And he killed James, the 3 brother of John, with the sword. And because he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.) And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to sixteen soldiers to keep him; intending after the passover to bring him forth to the people. Peter therefore was kept in prison: but earnest prayer was made by the church unto God for him. And when Herod was about to bring him forth, on that night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and keepers before the door guarded the prison. And, behold, an angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shone in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and awoke him, saying, Rise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands. And the angel said to him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And he did so. And he saith to him, Cast thy 9 mantle about thee, and follow me. And he went out, and followed him; and knew not that what was done by the angel was real; but thought that he saw a vision. And when they had passed the first and second guard, they came to the iron gate that leadeth to the city: which opened to them of its own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and immediately the angel departed from him. And 11 when Peter came to himself, he said, Now I certainly know that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me from the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the Jewish people. And when he had considered the matter, he came to the house of Mary, the mother of John, whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together, and were praying. And as Peter 13 knocked at the door of the porch, a damsel came to attend, named Rhoda. And when 14 she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the porch-door for gladness, but ran in, and told that Peter stood before the porch. And 15 they said to her, Thou art mad. But she confidently affirmed that it was so. Then said they, It is his angel. But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and saw him, they were astonished. But he beckoned to them with 17 the hand to be silent, and related to them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison; And he said, Report these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went to another place. Now 18 when it was day, there was no small disturbance among the soldiers, respecting what was become of Peter. And when Herod 19 had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Cesarea, and abode there.

And Herod was highly displeased with 20 the people of Tyre and Sidon: but they came to him with one consent, and, having made Blastus the king's chamberlain their friend, desired peace; because their country was nourished by the king's country. And 21 afflicted by this calamity in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh years of his reign. Jos. Antiq. lib. xx. c. 2, 6. The affection and kindness of the disciples of Antioch deserve not only praise, but general imitation.—To the elders] More aged converts and overseers of the flock.

CHAP. XII. 1. Herod the king] This was Herod Agrippa, grandson of Herod the Great. Caligula had given him all the countries which his uncle Philip possessed; and to these Claudius added Samaria and Judea. See note, Matt. ii. 1.

2. Killed James] See Matt. x. 2. His death was a fulfilment of what our Lord had said of the sons of Zehedee, Matt. xx. 23; and the continued labours of the apostles afterwards showed their courage.

3. It pleased the Jews] Josephus informs us that he was a great zealot for the law of Moses; and as a proof of it he slew James, and intended to take off Peter.

4. The passover] Nothing could be more improper than to render Easter; and Bishop Newcome has justly adhered to the usual sense of the text.

6. Peter was sleeping] One soldier being on each side of him, to each of whom he was chained, while others guarded the prison. This precaution might be taken, to secure Peter, as he and John had been miraculously delivered from prison before. See chap. v. 19.

7—10. An angel of the Lord] This interposition of God is very remarkable, and shows that no power can contravene his will. He can do as he pleases among the inhabitants of the earth, and control all the laws of nature. The whole of these wonderful circumstances appeared to Peter as a vision; and the soldiers were either asleep, or their eyes and ears so closed by Divine power as to perceive nothing.

11. Came to himself] Recovered from his astonishment, and was sensible that the whole was not a vision, but a real transaction.

12. To the house of Mary] Pearce thinks it probable that she was the sister of Barnabas. See Coloss. iv. 10.

13—16. Peter knocked] The circumstances here related are very natural.—It is his angel] Some supernatural appearance, resembling him. Some think that this refers to the Jewish opinion about guardian angels, without establishing the truth of it.

17. Unto James] James, the brother of John, had been slain; so that this must be James, the brother or kinsman of our Lord, and the author of the epistle which bears his name. Peter withdrew from Jerusalem, and probably now went into Pontus, Galatia, Asia, and Bithynia, &c., 1 Pet. i. 1.

20—23. And Herod] This account of Herod is supported by what Josephus relates, Antiq. lib. xix. 8, 2. He ascribes his miserable end to his receiving the blasphemous language of his flatterers. See Lardner.

on a day appointed, Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat on his throne, and made an 22 oration unto them. And the people gave a shout, saying, It is the voice of a god, and 23 not of a man. And immediately an angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not glory to God: and he was eaten by worms and expired.
 24 But the word of God grew and multiplied. And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their office, and took with them John whose surname was Mark.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 45. Paul and Barnabas are chosen to go to the Gentiles; Sergius Paulus and Elymas the sorcerer; Paul preaches at Antioch in Pisidia; the Gentiles believe, &c.

1 Now in the church that was at Antioch there were certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, who had been brought up with Herod the 2 tetrarch, and Saul. And while they were ministering to the Lord, and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, Separate to me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have 3 called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and put their hands on them, they sent them away.
 4 So these, having been sent forth by the Holy Spirit, departed unto Seleucia; and 5 thence they sailed to Cyprus. And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had John also for their attendant.
 6 And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain magian, a Jewish false prophet, whose name was 7 Bar-jesus: Who was with the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a well informed man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God. But 8 Elymas the magian, (for so his name signifies,) withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith. Then Saul,

 9 (who also is called Paul,) filled with the Holy Spirit, set his eyes on him, And said,
 10 O full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord? And now, behold, 11 the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not henceforth seeing the sun. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand. Then the deputy, when he saw what 12 was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

Now when Paul and his company loosed
 13 from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departing from them returned to Jerusalem. And when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in 14 Pisidia, and went into the synagogue on the sabbath, and sat down. And after the reading of the law and the prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying,
 15 Brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, speak. Then Paul stood up,
 16 and, beckoning with his hand, said, Men of Israel, and ye Gentiles that fear God, hearken. The God of this people chose our fathers, 17 and, exalted the people when they sojourned in the land of Egypt, and with a high arm he brought them out of it. And about the 18 time of forty years he "nourished" them in the desert. And when he had destroyed seven 19 nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land for an inheritance. And after 20 these things, which include a period of about

25. Fulfilled their office] In bringing relief from Antioch. See chap. xi. 30.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Prophets and teachers] Or 'teachers and instructors.'—Manaen, who] Rich persons, and especially princes, had not only preceptors and attendants, but companions in their education. Manaen must have been a person of family, as he had been the companion of Herod Antipas.

3. And put their hands] This was only a token of their approbation, as it conferred no power or authority on Paul and Barnabas, see Gal. i. 1. and next verse; yet God required it, that they might have the approbation of the church. This is a warrant for ordination to the ministry by imposition of hands, when no extraordinary gifts are conferred.

4, 5. Seleucia] Sea-port of Syria, and a city of considerable trade. Salamis was the eastern port of the island of Cyprus.—John] Called John Mark, chap. xii. 12, 25.

6, 7. Unto Paphos] This lay on the western coast of Cyprus, so that they went through the midst of the country.—A false prophet] Or teacher. His Hebrew name was Bar-jesus, the son of one Jesus or Joshua. He professed to be a magian, a person of great acquirements in the knowledge of nature. See note chap. xi. 27.—Deputy] Or. proconsul. See Lardner, who has shown from Dion Cassius, that Luke has given Sergius Paulus his proper title.

8. Elymas] This name is an appellative, signifying 'a wise or learned man;' but that of magian, which has the same sense, the Jews and Greeks better understood.

9. Saul, called Paul] Pearce supposes that Paul was so called, in honour of the proconsul, who might be his first Gentile convert; but Doddridge and Beza are of opinion that, as he in a great measure henceforth conversed with and taught the Gentiles, the Greeks and Romans, they pronounced his name, not Saul, but Paul. Luke always calls him Paul after this. Others think that Paul was the name he bore as a Roman citizen.

10—12. O full of all] The wickedness of this magian justified this severe reprehension, and the judgment which fell upon him.—Not henceforth] For this rendering, see Titman.

13, 14. John departing] He seems to have declined the labour and danger of preaching the gospel to the Gentiles. Pamphylia was on the coast of the Mediterranean, in the lesser Asia, west of Cilicia; and Antioch in Pisidia was north-west of Pamphylia.

16. Ye that fear God] Such Gentiles as had embraced the religion of the Jews.

17—21. The God of this] We see in what manner the apostle preached and reasoned with the Jews, out of their own sacred books.—He nourished] This rearing is best supported and agrees with fact, as well as the conciliatory design of the speaker.—Griesb, four hundred and fifty years, he gave them 21 judges, until Samuel the prophet. And afterwards they desired a king: and God gave to them Saul, the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, during forty years.

 22 And when he had removed him, he raised up unto them David to be their king; to whom he gave testimony also, and said, I have found David the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, who will do all my 23 pleasure. Of this man's seed hath God, according to his promise, raised to Israel a 24 Saviour, Jesus: When John had first preached, before his appearance, the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.
 25 And as John was fulfilling his course, he said, Whom think ye that I am? I am not
 he. But, behold, one cometh after me, the shoes of whose feet I am not worthy to unloose.
 26 Brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the doctrine of this salvation sent.
 27 For those who dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, not knowing Christ, nor the words of the prophets which are read every sabbath, have fulfilled them by condemning him.
 28 And though they found no just cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate that 29 he might be put to death. And when they had fulfilled all which was written concerning him, they took him down from the cross, 30 and laid him in a sepulchre. But God 31 raised him from the dead; And he was seen many days by those who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem; who are his wit-32 nesses unto the people. And we declare unto you glad tidings, concerning the promise which was made unto the fathers; 33 That God hath fulfilled it to us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus; as it is also written in the second Psalm, Thou art my 34 Son, this day have I begotten thee. And that God raised him up from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he spoke thus,
 I will give you the sure mercies of David.
 35 Wherefore he saith in another Psalm also,

Thou wilt not suffer thy Holy One to see corruption. For after David had served his 36 own generation according to the counsel of God, he fell asleep, and was gathered to his fathers, and saw corruption: But he, whom 37 God raised again, saw no corruption.

Be it therefore known unto you, bre- 38 thren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: And by him 39
 all who believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses. Beware therefore, lest 40 that come upon you, which is spoken of in the prophets, Behold, ye despisers, and 41 wonder, and perish; for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you.

And as the apostles were going out, some 42 desired that these words might be spoken to them the next sabbath. And when the 43 congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who, speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God.

And on the next sabbath almost the 44 whole city came together to hear the word of God. But when the Jews saw the mul- 45 titudes, they were filled with envy, and contradicted those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and reviling. Then 46
 Paul and Barnabas became bold, and said,
 It was necessary that the word of God should have been spoken first to you: but since ye put it from you, and do not judge yourselves worthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. For so the Lord hath 47 commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.
 And when the Gentiles heard this, they 48 were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord; and as many as were determined for everlasting life believed. And the word 49 of the Lord was published throughout all the country. But the Jews stirred up some 50 worshipping and honourable women, and

22. I have found David] See Ps. lxxxix. 20, and 1 Sam. xiii. 14, and note there.

23—25. Of this man's seed] See Is. xi. 1, 2; Jerem. xxiii. 5, 6.—Whom think ye] See John i. 20.

26—37. Brethren] Paul, with great earnestness, presses upon them attention to the doctrine which he delivered, as announcing to them salvation. In Christ the promises and predictions of the prophets were fulfilled.—33. This day have] See note, Ps. ii. 7. The Hebrew יל signifies to bring up, or educate children; and is used for bringing up or raising to a throne, says Pearce. See also Is. lv. 3, and Psalm xvi. 10.

38—41. Be it therefore known] Through the sufferings and death of Jesus forgiveness was preached, and in a far more extensive manner than the law of Moses allowed. In the law no atonement was appointed for wilful and presumptuous sins.—In the prophets] In the book of the prophets. See Habak. i. 5, and note there.

42, 43. As the apostles] For the text, see Griesbach.—

To continue in the grace] In the belief of the gospel, which exhibits the grace of God towards men.

44—47. And on the next] Paul's discourse had awakened the curiosity of the whole place; and strange it is to see the narrow-mindedness of the Jews. The apostle warns them of the consequence of rejecting the gospel message; it was acting as if they judged themselves not worthy, or determined not to receive the blessing of eternal life, Is. xlix. 6.

48. Glorified] That is, spoke highly of it.—And as many] I have adopted the rendering of Doddridge for the reasons which he assigns. See his note. The version adopted includes both the divine purpose, the influence of grace on their hearts, and their own deep concern to enjoy everlasting life.

50. Honourable women] Most probably such as were converts to Judaism, and who excited their husbands to persecute Paul and Barnabas.

the chief men of the city, and raised a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and 51 expelled them out of their borders. But they shook off the dust of their feet against 52 them and came unto Iconium. And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Spirit.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 45. Paul and Barnabas are persecuted at Iconium; at Lystra, Paul healeth a cripple and they are accounted gods; Paul is then stoned; they pass through and confirm the churches, &c.

1 AND it came to pass in Iconium, that they went both together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spoke, that a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the Gentiles believed. (But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their 3 minds ill affected to the brethren.) They therefore abode a long time speaking boldly concerning the Lord, who gave testimony to the word of his grace, and granted that signs and wonders should be done by their 4 hands. But the multitude of the city was divided; and part held with the Jews and 5 part with the apostles. And when there was a design both of the Gentiles, and also of the Jews and their rulers, to insult
 6 them, and to stone them; They, having considered it, fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that 7 lieth round about. And there they preached the glad tidings.
 8 And a certain man sat at Lystra, infirm in his feet, being lame from his mother's 9 womb, and who never had walked: This man heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had 10 faith so as to be cured, Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he 11 leaped and walked. And when the multitudes saw what Paul had done, they raised their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men. And they called Barnabas 12 Jupiter; and Paul, Mercury, because he was the chief speaker. Then the priest of 13 Jupiter, whose temple was before their city, brought steers and garlands unto the gates, and together with the people would have offered sacrifice. But when the apostles, 14 Barnabas and Paul, heard of it, they rent their clothes, and rushed in among the multitudes, crying out, And saying, Sirs, why 15 do ye these things? We also are men of like infirmities with yourselves, and preach unto you glad tidings, that ye should turn from these vanities to the living God, who made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things in them: Who, in past genera- 16 tions, suffered all the Gentiles to walk in their own ways. Nevertheless, he left not 17 himself without witness, doing good, giving 'you' rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling 'your' hearts with food and gladness. And by speaking these words, 18 they could scarcely restrain the multitudes from offering sacrifice to them.

Then some Jews came hither from Antioch 19 and Iconium; who, having persuaded the multitudes, and, having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing that he had been dead. But, while the disciples were 20 standing around him, he rose up, and came into the city; and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe. And when they 21 had preached the glad tidings to that city, and had taught many, they returned to Lystra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch, Confirming the minds of the disciples, and 22 exhorting them to continue in the faith; and saying that through many afflictions we must enter into the kingdom of God. And when they had appointed to them 23 elders in every church, and had prayed and fasted, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they had believed. And after 24 they had passed through Pisidia, they came

51. Iconium] This was the chief city of Lycaonia, north of Pamphylia.

CHAP. XIV. 1. Jews and Gentiles] Or Greeks, believed; but those who continued in their unbelief, soon disturbed them.

3. Abode a long time] To confirm the great multitudes who had believed, and to overcome opposition raised against them; and God was pleased remarkably to own their labours.

4—7. Was divided] So the gospel makes a separation, in a less or greater degree, wherever it comes. They followed the direction of Christ. Matt. x. 23.

9. That he had faith] That he was disposed to believe the gospel, and was therefore a fit object for a miraculous cure. His serious and earnest attention to Paul might lead to this opinion.

10—16. The gods are come] Jupiter was the great father of other gods and men, according to their notions; and Mercury was the god of eloquence. Hence, as Paul was the chief speaker, they called him Mercury. What follows is natural; for supposing them gods, they thought it right to offer sacrifice. Paul and Barnabas exposed themselves to danger by correcting their mistake; but did not hesitate to do so, and to teach them the knowledge of the true God, the maker of all things, and whose providence extends to all.

17. (v) Griesb. ibid.

19. Stoned Paul] How inconstant is, at all times, the public mind! In so short a time did the multitude stone the man, whom they had thought a god; they were, no doubt, instigated by the slanders of the Jews.

20. He rose up] Paul's recovery, on this occasion, appears to have been miraculous; but Luke simply relates the fact, and leaves his reader to infer it.

21, 22. Returned to Lystra] This shows their fortitude and perseverance; and their second visit would contribute to support and comfort the believers.

23. Appointed to them elders] The Greek word properly signifies, to choose by stretching out the hand; and it is probable that though the apostles appointed certain individuals to teach and instruct the people, the people signified their consent. It is well known to have been the primitive practice for the people to choose their pastor or bishop. See Doddridge and Knatchbull.

24—28. Passed through] Having fulfilled in some degree the object of their mission, they returned to Antioch.

25 to Pamphylia. And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into 26 Attalia: And thence they sailed to Antioch, whence they had been recommended to the favour of God for the work which they had 27 fulfilled. And when they had come, and had gathered the church together, they related what things God had done by them, and how he had opened the door of faith 28 unto the Gentiles. And they continued there for a good while with the disciples.

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 51. Dissension about circumcision; the apostles consult respecting it, and send their determination by letters to the churches; Paul and Barnabas separate.

- 1 Now certain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, saying, Unless ye be circumcised according to the custom taught by Moses, ye cannot be saved.
- 2 When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and dispute with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and some others of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders, about 3 this question. And having been conducted on their way by the church, they passed through Phœnicia and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles, and they 4 caused great joy to all the brethren. And when they came to Jerusalem, they were received by the church, and by the apostles and elders, and they related what things 5 God had done by them; And how some of the sect of the Pharisees who believed had risen up, saying, That it was necessary to circumcise the Gentiles, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.
- 6 Then the apostles and elders came to- 7 gether, to consider of this matter. And when there had been much dispute, Peter rose up, and said to them, Brethren, ye know that a good while since God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe. And God, who knoweth the hearts, bore 8 testimony to them, giving them the Holy Spirit, even as unto us; And made no dif- 9 ference between us and them, having purified their hearts by faith. Now therefore 10 why do ye tempt God, to put a yoke on the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear? But 11 we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, in like manner as the Gentiles are.

Then all the multitude kept silence, and 12 hearkened to Barnabas and Paul, relating what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them. And after 13 these were silent, James spoke, saying, Brethren, hearken unto me; Simon Peter 14 hath declared how God first visited the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words 15 of the prophets; as it is written, After 16 these things I will return, and will build again the fallen tabernacle of David, and I will build up its ruins, and restore it: That 17 the residue of men may seek the Lord, and all the Gentiles, who are called by my name, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. Known unto God are all his works from 18 the beginning of the world. Wherefore my 19 judgment is, that we trouble not those, who from among the Gentiles turn to God; But 20 write to them, that they abstain from polluted offerings to idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. For from ancient generations Moses 21 in every city hath those that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day. Then it seemed good to the apostles 22 and the elders, with the whole church, to choose men from among themselves, and and related what had been their success, and especially among the Gentiles.

CHAP. XV. 1. Certain men—We learn from verse 5, that they were Pharisees; and from this it appears that the gospel method of acceptance was but imperfectly understood.

2—5. Paul and Barnabas] As they had been sent to the Gentiles, they rejected the opinion of these Pharisees; but to put an end to the question, they determined to consult the apostles at Jerusalem. We see how Christians, at this period, acted towards one another; and what pleasure they had in hearing of the success of the gospel.—Apostles and elders] Though apostles were elders, the ordinary pastors are here meant, many of whom there must have been to teach and inspect the many disciples in and near Jerusalem.

6—11. Then the apostles] The question interested highly the rising Gentile church; and Peter argues justly from what had occurred in reference to Cornelius, that circumcision was not necessary; and that even they, though circumcised, believed that they might be saved by the gospel, and not by the law. To put the yoke of the law on their necks was in fact to tempt or try God, by opposing his will.

12. What miracles] Every miracle wrought among them was a proof that God had now accepted them; and the narrative of Paul and Barnabas confirmed the reasoning and conclusion of Peter.

13—17. James spoke] See the version and notes, Amos ix. 11, 12. Many of the prophets had foretold that God would visit the Gentiles, and take out of them a people for his name, to profess his name and be his people.

18. All his works] The works of his providence and grace, not his works in the natural world; for this would be nothing to the purpose which James had in view. This text is then one among many others, which proves that God knows all future contingent events.

20. From polluted offerings] He calls the sacrifices and other things offered to idols, polluted, because generally accompanied with many abominable crimes.—From fornication] All fornication, no doubt, is included, but it is certain, that as this was practised in the heathen temples, to that they had a special reference.—Things strangled; and blood] The Jews were not allowed to eat the former; and the latter was sacred to the altar. These precepts were intended to conciliate, and the observance of them by the Gentile converts would induce those of the circumcision to a more friendly and unreserved intercourse.

22. The whole church] The decree of the apostles and elders had the sanction of the whole body of believers; and send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, leading men among the brethren: 23 by whom they sent this letter. The apostles and the elders, and the brethren, send greeting to the brethren who are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia. 24 Whereas we have heard, that some who went out from us have troubled you with words, unsettling your minds, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law: to 25 whom we gave no such commandment: It hath seemed good to us, being assembled with one mind, to choose men and send them unto you, together with our beloved 26 Barnabas and Paul, Men who have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus 27 Christ. We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who will tell you the same things in 28 words also. For it hath seemed good to the Holy Spirit, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye will do well. Fare ye well. 30 So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the 31 epistle: Which when they had read, they 32 rejoiced in this consolation. And Judas and Silas, being themselves also teachers, exhorted the brethren with many words, and 33 confirmed them. And after they had abode there for some time, they were dismissed in peace from the brethren to "those who sent 34 them." Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to 35 abide there still. And Paul and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others. 36 And after some days Paul said to Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they are. 37 And Barnabas desired to take with them 38 John, whose surname was Mark. But Paul thought it not proper to take with them him, who had departed from them in Pamphylia, and had not gone with them to the work. And the contention was so sharp, that they 39 separated from each other: and Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus; But 40 Paul chose Silas, and departed, having been commended by the brethren to the favour of God. And he went through Syria and Ci- 41 licia, confirming the churches.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 45. Paul circumciseth Timothy; at Philippi converteth Lydia; casteth out a spirit of divination, for which he and Silas are imprisoned; the jailer converted, &c.

Now, when Paul came to Derbe and 1 Lystra, behold, he found there a certain disciple, named Timothy, (son of a certain Jewess, who believed, but his father was a 2 Gentile:) Who was well reported of by the 3 brethren at Lystra and Iconium. Paul desired this man to go forth with him; and he took and circumcised him because of the Jews who were in those parts: for they all knew that his father was a Gentile. And 4 as they went through the cities, they delivered to them for their observance the decrees which had been made by the apostles and elders at Jerusalem. And the 5 churches were confirmed in the faith, and increased in number daily.

Now when they had gone through Phrygia 6 and the country of Galatia, and were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in Asia; After they came to Mysia, 7 they attempted to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit "of Jesus" suffered them not. And 8 they passing by Mysia came down to Troas. And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; 9 a man of Macedonia stood and besought him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us. And after he had seen the 10 vision, we immediately endeavoured to go into Macedonia; assuredly inferring that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel unto them.

they jointly selected and sent with Paul and Barnabas, the messengers and following letter, which is written as the act of the whole church.

24. To whom we gave] If those Pharisees had used the names of the apostles and brethren at Jerusalem as maintaining their opinion, this would shake their credit, and lead the disciples to go on against them.

28. To the Holy Spirit] Guiding us in the conclusions we have made respecting the question proposed to us,—Necessary things] Things highly expedient in the present state of the church.

30—35. So when they were] The letter to the Gentile believers satisfied them, and afforded great comfort; and the instructions and labours of Judas and Silas were very acceptable among them.—It pleased Silas] It is probable that returning with Judas to Jerusalem, from an affectionate regard to Paul, he returned to Antioch.

37. With them John] Mark was nephew to Barnabas, Coloss. iv. 10; and this might induce him to overlook his desertion of them as related, chap. xiii. 13.

39. Contention was] Or, sharp anger arose. Even these inspired men were not free from human infirmities See Gal. ii. 11.

CHAP. XVI. 1—3. To Derbe and Lystra] Here Paul had before laboured with success, and finding Timothy to be a young man of piety and gifts, he circumcised him, to conciliate the Jews, who knew that he had not been before circumcised, as his father was a Gentile. See 1 Cor. ix. 20.

4. 5. The decrees] The precepts to abstain from fornication, &c. chap. xv. 20. It has been observed that the word dogmata always signifies something temporary and ceremonial, and not laws of moral and perpetual obligation; but fornication is undoubtedly of a moral kind.—7. (a) Griesb.

6—10. Now when they] They were restrained from visiting some places, and sent to others for reasons inscrutable to us. The vision which the apostle had, was designed to direct him where he was to preach.—We endeavoured] Here Luke speaks as present with Paul, and so frequently afterwards.—Assuredly inferring] Observe in this case, as in the vision of Peter, chap. x. that the Holy Spirit left the apostles to reason and infer what was their duty

11 Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and 12 the next day to Neapolis; And thence to Philippi, which is a chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we abode in 13 that city some days. And on the sabbath we went out of the city by a river, where a house for prayer was allowed for the Jews; and we sat down, and spoke to the women 14 who resorted thither. And a certain woman heard us, named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, a Gentile, who worshipped God; whose heart the Lord opened, so that she attended to the things 15 which were spoken by Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us. 16 And it came to pass, as we went to the house for prayer, a certain damsel, having a spirit of divination, met us; who brought 17 her masters much gain by divining. She followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, who declare to us the way of salvation. And she did this many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And it 19 came out the same hour. And when her masters saw that the hope of their gain was gone, they seized Paul and Silas, and 20 drew them into the market-place; And they brought them to the magistrates and 'rulers,' saying, These men, being Jews, 21 exceedingly trouble our city, And teach customs which it is not lawful for us to receive, or to observe, being Romans. And 22 the multitude rose up together against them: and the magistrates tore off their clothes, and commanded to beat them with rods. And when they had laid many 23 stripes on them, they cast them into prison, charging the jailer to keep them safely: Who, having received such a charge, cast 24 them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks.

And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, 25 and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them. And suddenly there was 26 a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed. And when the jailer 27 awoke out of his sleep, and saw the prison doors open, he drew out his sword and was about to kill himself, supposing that the prisoners had escaped. But Paul cried with 28 a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm: for we are all here. Then he called for a 29 light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, And 30 brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? And they said, Believe 31 on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy household. And they spoke 32 to him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he took them the 33 same hour of the night and washed their stripes: and was immediately baptized, he and all his household. And when he had 34 brought them into his house, he set food before them, and rejoiced with all his household, believing in God.

11—15. Samothracia] An island of the Ægean sea, near to Thrace; and Neapolis was a sea-port town of Macedonia. —Philippi, which is a chief] This rendering is adopted, as it is doubtful whether Philippi or Amphipolis was accounted 'the chief' city of that part, &c. See Middleton.—By a river] The water of which served for the legal purifications of the Jews; and particularly for the usual washing of hands before they offered up their prayers. Lydia was a proselyte, and not a Jewess; and she was now called to believe on the Lord Jesus.

16. Spirit of divination] Supposed to be inspired by Apollo Pythius; and some of these spoke out of their bellies, or were ventriloquists.

17. These men are] God, by his power, constrained this maid, as he did the demoniacs, to give testimony to Jesus and the gospel, that greater attention might be excited.

18—21. Many days] Paul thought it necessary to show the power of Jesus, by expelling the spirit which she had; and as her masters perceived that their gain was gone, they raised an uproar, and then charged Paul and Silas as the cause of it. 20. (i) Syr. Erpen.

22—24. Tore off] They commanded this to be done, to expose them to greater disgrace.—To beat them with rods] See chap. v. 40. These magistrates acted contrary to the law.

26. Earthquake] The effects proved that it was an earthquake; yet it is manifest there was a peculiar divine interposition; for how could an earthquake unloose all the bands of the prisoners?

28. Do thyself no harm] This address was kind, and intended to prevent his committing one of the greatest of crimes, yet too common in that day among the Romans. As they were all in the dark, it is not easy to say how Paul knew of the jailer's purpose, unless by hearing some desperate words which declared it, or by some immediate suggestion from God.

30. What must I do to be] Whitby very justly observes, that the jailer adopted this language, from what the damsel had said, verse 17, 'that these servants of the most high God declare to us the way of salvation.'

31. Believe on the] Give full credit to the testimony which we hear to Jesus as the only Saviour, and commit yourself to him for safety and happiness.—And thy household] On his believing they would be favoured with the means of religious instruction, and the opportunity of attending upon them. The Apostle and Silas immediately began to instruct him, and explain to him and all his house, the nature of the gospel which they preached.

33. Washed their stripes] The blood from them, and in order to afford some relief from their pain. This shows that even the apostles had not power to heal themselves or others, when they pleased, but only when God suggested to them that such a miracle should be wrought.—Was baptized] There is no proof that they went to a river to perform this rite; but there is reason to conclude that it was performed in the prison, from the next verse; and it requires many gratuitous suppositions to support the inference that it was performed by immersion.

34. And rejoiced with all] It is well known that παῖς embraces the whole, children as well as servants and slaves. See Sept. Exod. i. 1, where it is confined to children, and

35 And when it was day, the magistrates sent 36 the officers, saying, Let those men go. And the jailer told these words to Paul, The magistrates have sent to let you go: now 37 therefore depart, and go in peace. But Paul said to them, They have beaten us publicly uncondemned, being Romans, and have cast us into prison; and now do they send us away privately? No, truly; but let 38 them come themselves and bring us out. And the officers told these words to the magistrates: and they feared, when they heard 39 that they were Romans. And they came and besought them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.
 40 And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

CHAPTER XVII.

A. D. 53. Paul preacheth at Thessalonica; some believe, others persecute him; he is sent to Berea, where the Jews of Thessalonica follow him; the brethren conduct him to Athens where he preacheth to them the true God, who made all things.

- 1 Now when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the 2 Jews. And Paul, as his custom was, went in unto them, and on three sabbaths discoursed 3 to them out of the scriptures, Explaining them, and alleging that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is 4 the Christ. And some of them believed, and joined themselves to Paul and Silas;
 and of the Greeks who worshipped God, a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.
- 5 But the Jews [who believed not, moved with envy] took unto them some wicked men of the meaner sort, and gathered a multitude and raised a tumult in the city, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought for Paul and Silas to bring them out to the 6 people. And when they found them not, some of them very young. While the jailer rejoiced domestically or with his family, the act of believing is ascribed to him only.

35—40. Let those men go] They perhaps thought that one night's confinement was punishment sufficient.—Uncon- demned] This was a direct violation of the Porcian law, (See Cic. Or. pro Rabirio, c. iv. ;) and hence the magistrates, fearing the consequence of their injustice, came and intreated them to depart.

CHAP. XVII. 2. Three sabbaths] He must have continued much longer there; and most probably spent the rest of the time in teaching the Gentiles. See Payley's Hæc Paulinæ.

3. Explaining them] In the manner he had done at Antioch, chap. xiii. 16, &c.

5—7. But the Jews] Thus we see how the gospel of peace hath occasioned disturbance.—Turned the] They had effected a considerable change; many had been enlightened, and turned to God; but these meant that the apostles violated the peace of society, and set up another king, in rebellion against Cæsar.

they dragged Jason and some of the brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also; Whom Jason 7 hath received: and all these act contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus. And they alarmed 8 the people and the rulers of the city, who heard these things. And when they had 9 taken security of Jason, and of the others they let them go.

Then the brethren immediately sent away 10 Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither, went into the synagogue of the Jews. These were more noble than 11 those in Thessalonica, because they received the word with all readiness of mind, searching the scriptures daily, whether those things were so. Wherefore many of them 12 believed; also of honourable women, who were Gentiles, and of men, not a few. But 13 when the Jews of Thessalonica knew that the word of God was preached by Paul at Berea, they came thither also, stirring up the multitudes. And then the brethren 14 immediately sent away Paul to go towards the sea; but Silas and Timothy abode there still. And those who conducted Paul 15 brought him to Athens: and having received a command unto Silas and Timothy to come to him with all speed, they departed.

Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, 16 his spirit within him was greatly moved, when he beheld the city full of idols. He 17 therefore discoursed in the synagogue with the Jews, and with those who worshipped God, and in the market-place daily with those with whom he met. Then certain philoso-18 phers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoics, disputed with him. And some said, What will this babbler say? and others, He seemeth to be a setter forth of foreign demons; because he preached to them the glad tidings of Jesus, and the resurrection. And they 19 took him, and brought him to the court of

11. Here more noble] Of a better and more generous disposition, as it is explained in what follows; for they acted in a more rational and becoming manner.

14. Towards the sea] Bos and Raphael have proved that 'towards,' and not, 'as it were to the sea,' is the true rendering.

16. Full of idols] This is the exact sense of the text; and how true it was we learn from several historians. Pausanias affirms, 'that there was no place where so many idols or images were to be seen;' and Petronius says, 'that it was more easy to find a god at Athens than a man.'

17. Market-place] This was in Greece, as well as in Judea, the place of general resort for business and discourse.

18. Epicureans—Stoics] These were celebrated philosophical sects among the Greeks. The former denied a providence and a future state, and considered pleasure the chief good. The latter were fatalists, and held that virtue was the chief good, that all vices were equal, that pain was no evil, &c.—Foreign demons] The gods of the heathen were deified men, and when Paul preached Jesus and the Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine is, of which thou speakest?

- 20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we desire therefore to know what 21 these things mean. (Now all the Athenians and foreigners who dwell among them spent their time in nothing else, but either in telling or hearing some new thing.)
22 Then Paul stood in the midst of the court of Areopagus and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive in all places that ye are much
23 addicted to the worship of demons. For as I passed by, and beheld the objects of your worship, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him 24 declare I unto you. The God who made the world and all things therein, he, being Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in 25 temples made with hands; Nor is he served by the hands of men, as if he needed any thing; since he giveth to all life, and 26 breath, and all things; And hath made of one blood all nations of men, to dwell on the face of the whole earth, and hath determined their appointed times, and the 27 bounds of their habitation; That they might seek 'God,' if possible they by searching could find him; though he be
28 not far from every one of us: For by him we live, and move, and have our being; as some of your own poets have also said, 29 For we are his offspring. Wherefore being the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Deity is like to gold, or silver, or stone, the engraving of man's art and device. And the times of this ignorance
30 God overlooked; but now commandeth all 31 men everywhere to repent: Because he hath appointed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath appointed; of which he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some scoffed; and others said, We will hear thee again of this matter. Then Paul departed from among them. 33 But some men joined themselves to him, 34 and believed; among whom was Dionysius, the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A. D. 54. Paul laboureth and preacheth at Corinth; by a vision he is encouraged; he is accused before Gallio, but dismissed; he visits different churches; Apollo, instructed by Aquila and Priscilla, preacheth Christ with success.

AFTER these things Paul departed from 1 Athens and came to Corinth; And found 2 a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome:) and went unto them: And because he was 3 of the same occupation, he abode with them, and worked: (for by their occupation they were tent-makers.) And he dis- 4 coursed in the synagogue every sabbath, and endeavoured to persuade the Jews and the Greeks. And when Silas and Timothy 5 had come from Macedonia, Paul was zealously affected in spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ. And 6 when they opposed themselves, and reproached, he shook his raiment, and said to them, Your blood is upon your own heads; I am pure; henceforth I will go unto the Anastasis, they took the latter term to signify some deity, and not a resurrection of the dead.

19. To the court of Areopagus] This was the highest court of justice at Athens, and had especially the cognizance of whatever respected religion.

21. Now the Athenians] This remark is supported by the testimony of Demosthenes, Thucydides, and others.

22. Addicted to the worship] This gives the real sense of the original term; and it must be evident that the design of the apostle was not to irritate, but to induce the people to listen to him with attention.

23. The objects of your] For the sense given to εἰδωμένα, see Pearce. The term implies their statues, altars, &c.—An altar with] When any calamity was supposed to be averted by sacrifice to some unknown god, an altar was erected to such unknown god. See Lardner, for the occasion of such altars, &c.

24—27. The God who made] As he is the creator of all things, his nature is such that he is not confined and limited to temples made by men; nor does the service which he required consist in the labour of men's hands in making of altars, statues, &c.—Of one blood] They all spring from one common head; and the rise, duration of nations, means of knowledge, &c. are appointed to all people, that they might seek God, &c. See Gen. x. 1. &c.—If possible they by searching] This is the metaphorical sense of the verb. The apostle struck at the basis of Epicureanism, and the fine-spun theories of their most esteemed philosophers.—27. (e) Griesb.

29. Wherefore being the] Having quoted this passage of Aratus, he argues from it—As God, who made us intelligent beings, must be of a nature far superior to us, we ought not to think that the Deity is like, &c.

30. The times of this] God had not directly interposed in kindness to prevent the ignorance and errors of the heathen world, nor in justice had cut them off. But now the gospel is designed for a universal remedy of ignorance and idolatry; and God by it commandeth men everywhere to repent.

32. Some scoffed] At this new doctrine, and especially at the resurrection of the dead; and others of the Areopagites, with more dignity, said, they would hear him again.

CHAP. XVIII. 2. Because Claudius] Suetonius, in the life of Claudius Cæsar, says, 'He expelled the Jews from Rome, who were continually raising disturbances, Chresto being their leader.' Christ is meant by this historian; and it is probable, that the factious unbelieving Jews, raising disturbances on account of the Christians, caused them to be banished from Rome.

3. Tent-makers] In the Talmud every father is commanded to teach his son a trade, &c. One of these rabbies is surnamed the shoemaker, another the baker, &c. Tents of skins or silk were much used in those countries.

4. Endeavoured to persuade] The verb unquestionably has this sense here. It does not express the effect, but the attempt of the apostle.

6. Shook his raiment] See Luke x. 11. Neh. v. 13. By this action Paul testified that, as a teacher, he would have no further intercourse with them.—Your blood] Your de-

- 7 Gentiles. And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, a Gentile, who worshipped God, whose house was adjoining to the synagogue. And Crispus, the chief ruler of a synagogue, believed on the Lord, with his whole household; and many of the Corinthians on hearing believed, and were baptized. Then the Lord spoke to Paul in the night by a vision, Fear not, but speak, and be not silent: For I am with thee, and no man shall lay hands on thee to hurt thee: for I have many people in this city. And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.
- 12 Now when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews rose with one consent against Paul, and brought him to the judgment-seat, Saying, This person persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the law. And when Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, If it were a matter of injustice or wicked mischief, O ye Jews, I might reasonably bear with you: But if it be a question of doctrines and names, and of your law, look ye to it; for I will not be judge of such matters. And he drove them from the judgment-seat. Then all the Greeks took Sosthenes, the chief ruler of a synagogue, and beat him before the judgment-seat. But Gallio cared for none of these things.
- 18 And Paul, after remaining there still many days, bade farewell to the brethren, and sailed thence into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow. And he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he himself entered into the synagogue, and discoursed to the Jews. And when they desired him to abide with them for a longer time, he consented not; But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep the approaching feast in Jerusalem: but I will return unto you, if God will. And he sailed from Ephesus. And when he had landed at Cæsarea, and gone up, and saluted the church, he went down to Antioch. And after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strengthening all the disciples.

And a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and able in the scriptures, came to Ephesus. This man was instructed in the doctrine of the Lord; and being fervent in spirit, he spoke and taught exactly the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John. And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue; whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took unto them, and explained to him the doctrine of God more perfectly. And when he desired to pass into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him; who, when he had come, helped those much who through grace had believed. For he earnestly confuted the Jews, and that publicly, proving by the scriptures that Jesus was the Christ.

CHAPTER XIX.

A. D. 56. Paul visits Ephesus; the Holy Spirit given by the laying on of his hands; the Jews blaspheme his doctrine; Jewish exorcists beaten; conjuring books brought and burnt; Demetrius raiseth an uproar in the city, &c.

AND it came to pass that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul, having passed through the upper parts, came to Ephesus: and meeting with some disciples, He said to them, Have ye received the Holy Spirit instruction is owing to yourselves. See 1 Kings ii. 32. Ezek. xxxiii. 5.

7. Named Justus] He is distinguished from the Jews, and of course was a Gentile proselyte. We also learn that those called Greeks, verse 4, were in fact Jews who spoke the Greek language.—Synagogue] There were more than one synagogue at Corinth, see verse 17; but the one referred to was probably that in which Paul had preached.

9, 10. Fear not] This was a kind and gracious assurance, and could not fail to inspire Paul with courage, and animate him to holy diligence in the work of the ministry.

12—16. When Gallio] He was brother to the philosopher Seneca, and was a man of a mild disposition. This conduct showed that he despised the Jews, and would not interfere in questions respecting their law.—Of doctrines] Of religious doctrines, whether true or false; and of names, as whether Jesus be the Christ, &c.

17. All the Greeks] The Alex. MS. and Vulg. Copt. and Arab. versions have not the word Greeks. If it be genuine, it must signify Gentiles, who, provoked at the Jews for accusing Paul because he preached to them, took Sosthenes, a ruler of a synagogue, and beat him.—Gallio cared] He did not interfere so as to punish them for this breach of the peace.

18. Cenchrea] This was the sea-port of Corinth.—Had a vow] Probably that of a Nazarite. The Nazarite was to shave his head at the Temple; but as many Jews lived at a distance from it, the strictness of the law was dispensed with. Why St. Paul acted thus, see chap. xvi. 3, and 1 Cor. ix. 20.

21. Keep the feast] The feast of the passover, at which Paul hoped to meet many of his Christian brethren, to convince many unbelievers.

22. Saluted the church] From Cæsarea Paul went to Jerusalem, stayed during the passover, and then departed to visit the churches which he had planted. This was his fourth visit to Jerusalem, and which he made about twenty-one years after his conversion.

25. Exactly the things] As far as his knowledge extended. He taught that men were to receive the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.

26. The doctrine of God] The truths of the gospel; what Jesus had taught and done.

27. Who through grace] Apollos was useful to them in increasing their knowledge, and deepening their serious impressions, as well as by maintaining the honour of the Saviour, and convincing the Jews.

CHAP. XIX. 1. Upper parts] Galatia and Phrygia, which lay north of Ephesus, chap. xviii. 23.

2. Have ye received] Their answer induced Paul to inquire for what end they had been baptized. If they were Jews or proselytes, they must have read of the Holy Spirit in the prophets. Hence it seems most probable that the text is elliptical, and the word supplied is necessary to give the true sense, John vii. 39.

since ye believed? And they said to him, We have not even heard whether there be 3 a Holy Spirit given. And he said to them, Into what then were ye baptized? And 4 they said, Into John's baptism. Then said Paul, John indeed baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying to the people, that they should believe on him who was to come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.
 5 And they hearing this were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Spirit came on them; and they spoke in different languages, and prophesied.
 7 Now all the men were about twelve.
 8 And Paul went into the synagogue, and spoke boldly, discoursing for about three months, and stating to them the things concerning the kingdom of God. But when some were hardened, and believed not, but spoke evil of that doctrine before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, discoursing daily in 10 the school of one Tyrannus. And this was done for the space of two years; so that all those who dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Gentiles.
 11 And God wrought signal miracles by the hands of Paul; So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.
 13 Then some of the Jews, who went about as exorcists, took upon them to call over those who had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth. And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the priests, who did so. And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and who Paul is I understand; but who are ye? And the man in whom the evil spirit was, leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded. And this was known to all, 17 both Jews and Greeks, dwelling at Ephesus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. And many 18 who believed came, confessing and declaring their past practices. Many of those 19 who used magical arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and the price of them was computed, and found to be fifty thousand pieces of silver. So mightily did the word of God grow and 20 prevail.

Now after these things were ended, 21 Paul purposed in his mind, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must see Rome also. So he sent 22 into Macedonia two of those who ministered unto him, Timothy and Erastus; but he himself continued a while in Asia. And at 23 this time there arose no small disturbance about that doctrine. For a certain man 24 named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made silver models of Diana and her temple, furnished no small gain to the workmen; Whom he called together, with those of 25 like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this employment we have our wealth. Moreover ye see and hear, that 26 not alone at Ephesus, but almost through all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned aside a considerable multitude, saying, that they are no gods, which are made with hands: So there is not only danger 27 that this our occupation should come into contempt; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshippeth. And when they heard this, they were full of 28 wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And the whole 29 city was filled with confusion: and having seized Gaius and Aristarchus, men of

4. John indeed] John's baptism was designed to lead men to Christ, to whom he bore testimony.

6. Holy Spirit came] It is probable that these twelve men were pious Jews, who had now come to Ephesus, but who had not heard Apollos, or other teachers.

9. Tyrannus] Perhaps a Gentile philosopher, or teacher. Paul always first preached to the Jews, and on their rejecting the gospel, he then spoke to the Gentiles.

12. From his body] The shadow of Peter passing by is supposed to have cured some; and in like manner Jesus honoured Paul by similar wonders being wrought by any thing which had touched him.

13. Exorcists] Such as used magical arts, adjuring demons, by certain names, to come out of those who had them. Seeing the cures which were effected by the apostle, through the name of Jesus, they thought this name more efficacious than what they had used.

14—17. Seven sons] These sons of a priest must have been wicked impostors.—The evil spirit] By the organs of the man, or he answered, influenced by the evil spirit, &c. And the man] This man was insane, a maniac, who, by an uncommon exertion, thus beat these Jews. This was likely to excite attention to the gospel.

19. Used magical arts] Such as sleight of hand, and other methods of deceiving and cheating the vulgar. This was common at Ephesus, so that Εφεσια ὑδαμματα denote spells or charms.—Fifty thousand] If these were the Roman silver denarii, one would be worth near eightpence of our money, and the whole amount to near two thousand pounds.

21—23. Paul purposed] From his epistle to the Romans we learn that he had long cherished the desire of visiting Rome.—Models of Diana] Demetrius reasoned as all men do, who regard their interest in this life as the one thing needful. He accuses Paul of teaching 'that they are no gods which are made with hands;' and deeply laments that he had persuaded many to believe this. The honour of Diana was at stake. They must, therefore, come to her assistance, whom Asia and all the world worshipped.

29—34. Filled with confusion] Popular tumults are often occasioned by a few cunning and interested men.—

Macedonia, Paul's fellow-travellers, the 30 And when Paul would have gone in to the people, the disciples suffered him not.
 31 And some of the chief magistrates of Asia, who were his friends, sent unto him, desir-32 ing that he would not venture himself into the theatre. Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused; and the greater part knew 33 not why they had come together. Then was Alexander advanced out of the multitude, the Jews having put him forward.
 And Alexander waved his hand, and would 34 have made a defence unto the people. But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice, for about two hours, cried out, 35 Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And when the town-clerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great Diana, and of the image which 36 fell down from Jupiter? Since therefore these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.
 37 For ye have brought hither these men, who are neither robbers of temples, nor yet 38 blasphemers of your goddess. Wherefore if Demetrius, and the workmen that are with him, have a matter against any man, court-days are kept to give judgment, and there are deputies; let them summon one 39 another. But if ye inquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined 40 in a lawful assembly. For we are in danger of being called in question for this day's disturbance, as there is no cause by which 41 we can account for this concourse. And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

CHAPTER XX.

A. D. 60. Paul goeth to Macedonia, preacheth, and raiseth Eutychus to life; he calleth for the elders and committeth God's flock to them; he warneth them of false teachers, commendeth them to God and departeth.

1 AND after the disturbance ceased, Paul called to him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed to go into Macedonia.
 2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he

The Jews having put The Jews put forward Alexander to make an apology for them, and to accuse Paul and his followers as the common disturbers of mankind. See 2 Tim.
 iv. 14.

35—41. The town-clerk] Or, 'the recorder.' He appears to have been favourable to Paul; and by his conciliating address at last succeeded in restoring peace.

CHAP. XX. 4. Son of Pyrrhus] (a) Griesb.—Gaius of Derbe] Derbe was a city of Lycaonia, chap. xvi. 6; and yet Gaius is called a Macedonian, chap. xix. 29. He may have been a native of Derbe, and an inhabitant of Thessalonica, as Jesus is called a Nazarene, because he resided there.—Timothy] The Syriac adds, of Lystra, which Wakefield considers genuine. See chap. xvi. 1.

came into Greece. And after abiding there 3 three months, the Jews having laid wait for him as he was about to sail into Syria, he determined to return through Macedonia.
 And Sopater, the son of Pyrrhus, a 4
 Berean, accompanied him as far as to Asia;
 but Aristarchus and Secundus of the Thessalonians; and Gaius, of Derbe; and Timothy, and Tychicus and Trophimus, of Asia; These went before and waited for 5 us at Troas. And we sailed away from 6 Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came to them at Troas in five days;
 where we abode seven days.

And on the first day of the week, the 7 disciples having assembled to break bread, Paul discoursed to them, being to depart on the morrow; and he continued his discourse until midnight. And there were 8 many lamps in the upper room, where they were assembled. Now a young man named 9 Eutychus had fallen into a deep sleep:
 and as Paul discoursed a long time, he sank down with sleep, and fell to the ground from the third story, and was taken up dead. Then Paul went down, and fell on 10 him, and embracing him said, Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him. When 11 he therefore had come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, he then departed. Now they brought up the young 12 man alive, and were not a little comforted.

And we went before to the ship, and 13 sailed unto Assos, there intending to take in Paul; for so he had appointed, intending himself to go by land. So he met with us 14 at Assos, and we took him in, and came to Mitylene. And we sailed thence, and 15 arrived the next day over against Chios;
 and the next day we touched at Samos;
 and, having remained at Trogyllium, on the next day we came to Miletus. For 16
 Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, that he might not spend much time in Asia: for he hastened, if it were possible for him to be at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost.

And from Miletus Paul sent to Ephesus, 17 and called the elders of the church. And 18 when they had come to him, he said to

7. To break bread] To partake of a feast of charity, which concluded with partaking of the Lord's supper. As Christians were not allowed to eat of what was offered to idols, the more wealthy made some provision for their poor brethren. See 1 Cor. xi. 20, and compare with chap. xvi. 2.

10. Trouble not] Paul restored him to life by the power of Christ; but did not claim any honour to himself.

12. They brought] To Paul, to express his gratitude for the mercy vouchsafed: and the brethren were comforted by what they heard and saw.

13—16. And we went] Luke speaks of himself as now with Paul.

17. Elders of the] It is evident, by comparing the 18th verse, that these elders were the bishops of the church at them, Ye know, from the first day since I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you the whole time, Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and trials, which befel me by the lying in wait of the Jews; And that I have not kept back any thing which was profitable to you; but have shown it you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house; Testifying both to the Jews and Greeks, repentance towards God, and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. And now, behold, I go bound in spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befel me there: Except that the Holy Spirit witnesseth to me in every city, saying, that bonds and afflictions await me. But none of these things move me, nor do I regard my life as dear to myself, so that I may finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received from the Lord Jesus, to testify the glad tidings of the grace of God. And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more. Wherefore I declare to you this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I have kept nothing back, but have declared to you the whole counsel of God.

Take heed therefore to yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Spirit hath made you overseers, to feed the church of 'the Lord,' which he hath purchased with his own blood. For I know this, that after my departure grievous wolves will enter in among you, not sparing the flock. From among your own selves also will men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Watch therefore, and remember, that for three years, night and day, I ceased not to admonish every one with tears.

Ephesus; and that these were no more than joint pastors of one church.

19. Many tears] These accompanied his earnest admonitions and intreaties. He felt the importance of what he delivered, and aimed to make others feel.

21. Towards God] Or in respect to God, &c. Repentance for the sins committed against him; and faith in Jesus, for pardon and life. To the Jews faith toward our Lord; and to the Gentiles repentance towards God.

22. Bound in spirit] Forced by his own inclination, and from a sense of duty. See chap. xviii. 5.—Not knowing] He had only the general knowledge mentioned in the next verse.

24. None of these things] What magnanimity does the apostle discover! He did not speak thus in a state of enjoyment and safety; but when he was constantly giving proof of this by his labours, trials, and sufferings.

26. I am pure] From the guilt or punishment of it. See note, chap. xviii. 6.

28. Church of the Lord] There are no fewer than six various readings of this text. We have του Θεου, του Κυριου, του Χριστου, του Κυριου Θεου, του Θεου και Κυριου, and του Κυριου και Θεου. After weighing the evidence for each, Griesbach

And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace; to him who is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all those that are sanctified. I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel. Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to those that were with me. I have shown you in all things, that by so labouring ye ought to support the infirm, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.

And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all. And they all wept much, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, Sorrowing most of all for the words which he had spoken, that they should see his face no more. And they conducted him to the ship.

CHAPTER XXI.

A. D. 60. Paul determines to go to Jerusalem; Philip's daughters prophetesses; Paul, having arrived at Jerusalem, is apprehended and in great danger; he is rescued by the chief captain, and permitted to speak to the people.

AND it came to pass, that, after we had separated from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course to Coos, and the day following to Rhodes, and thence to Patara. And having found a ship sailing over to Phœnicia, we went aboard, and loosed. Now when we had discovered Cyprus, and had passed by it on the left hand, we sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unload her burden. And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days: these spake to Paul by the Spirit, not to go up to Jerusalem, if he regarded his own liberty. And when we had completed those days, we departing, proceeded; and they all, with their wives and children, conducted us until we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the concludes in favour of 'the church of the Lord,' and on reviewing his reasons, I have now adopted it, as best supported.

30. From among] See Rev. ii. 2, and I Cor. xi. 19.

32. To him who is able] The term εὐδαιμονία is referred to God, the remote antecedent, as giving the best sense, and as here necessary.

33—35. I have coveted] The apostle had set a most noble example of industry and self-denial, as well as of liberality and kindness.—It is more blessed] These words are not found in any of the Evangelists; and they contain one proof that Jesus said and did many things which are not recorded by them.

36—38. He kneeled down] The apostle was a man of fervent devotion; and it is easy to imagine with what affection, zeal, and faith he would commend them to God in prayer; and what would be their sorrow on thinking that they should hear him and see him no more.

CHAP. XXI. 1—3. And it came to pass] Leaving Miletus, they reached Coos, then Rhodes, and landed at Patara, a sea-port of Lycia. The two former places were islands in the Ægean sea.

4. Not to go up] The words added seem necessary to complete the sense; for if Paul had been absolutely for-

6 shore, and prayed. And when we had taken leave one of another, we took ship : and they returned home.

7 And when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and remained with them one day. And the next day we departed, and came unto Cæsarea : and we entered into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven ; and remained with him. And this man had four daughters, virgins, who prophesied. And as we continued there many days, a certain prophet, named Agabus, came down from Judea. And when he had come to us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Spirit, So will the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and will deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard these things, both we, and those of that place, besought him not to go up to Jerusalem. Then Paul answered, What mean ye, weeping and breaking my heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem, for the name of the Lord Jesus. And when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done. And after those days we took up our "baggage", and went up to Jerusalem. Some disciples also of Cæsarea went with us ; bringing us to one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, with whom we might lodge. And when we had come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly. And the day following Paul went in with us to James ; and all the elders were present. And when he had saluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry. And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said to him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are who believe ; and they are all zealous of the law : And they have been informed concerning thee, that thou teachest all the Jews that are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses ; saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, nor to walk according to our customs. What therefore should be done? The multitude must needs assemble : for they will hear that thou art come. Do therefore this that we say to thee : We have four men who have a vow on them ; Take them, and purify thyself with them, and be at expense for them, that they may shave their heads, and all may know that those things which they have heard concerning thee, are not true ; but that thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law. But concerning the Gentiles who believe, we have written and concluded that they observe no such thing, but only that they keep themselves from what is offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication. Then Paul took the men, and the next day purified himself with them and entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

Now when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews that were of Asia, when they saw Paul in the temple, stirred up all the multitude, and laid hands on him, Crying out, Men of Israel, help : This is the man, who teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place : and, further, hath brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place. (For they had before seen with him in the city Trophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.) And all the city was moved and the people ran together : and they seized Paul, and drew him out of the temple : and immediately the doors were shut. And as they sought to kill him, a report came to the commander of the band, that all Jerusalem was in confusion : Who immediately took soldiers and centurions, and ran down unto them : and when they saw the commander and the soldiers, they bid by the Spirit, we may be sure he would not have gone up.

7—11. Ptolemais] This was a sea-port town between Tyre and Cæsarea. Here it seemed Philip dwelt, one of the seven deacons, happy in the piety and gifts of his daughters. See chap. vi. 5 ; viii. 40.—Agabus] See chap. xi. 28. He foretold what the result of Paul's visit to Jerusalem would be.

8. (o) That were of Paul's company. Griesb.

12—14. And when we heard] Neither Paul nor any of these brethren seem to have had it as yet revealed to them, what would be the consequence of his being bound and given up to the Gentiles, or they would not have intreated him not to go to Jerusalem. See chap. xx. 22. Paul's reply shows his love to Jesus and his manly spirit.

15. (v) Griesb.

18. Unto James] Called the Less, and the Lord's brother or cousin. He was the resident pastor, and probably, from his age, might preside among the elders at Jerusalem.

20—26. Thou seest] Many Jews, both in Judea and abroad, had embraced the gospel ; and the former had been informed, that Paul taught the latter to neglect circumcision, and other Mosaic ordinances. The advice they gave to Paul seemed most likely to prove the report false ; yet it became the occasion of disturbance, and of Paul's imprisonment and journey to Rome.—24. To be at expense] That is, in providing the necessary sacrifices.

27. Seven days] The vow ended in seven days ; but the people were not discharged from it until the sacrifices had been offered.

28. Greeks] Whether they were Gentile idolaters or proselytes to Judaism, they were not permitted to enter into the court of Israel.

32. They ceased beating] But for the appearance of the troops they would soon have killed the apostle, as they had before killed Stephen.

33 ceased beating Paul. Then the commander came near, and seized him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had 34 done. And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he ordered him to be carried into 35 the castle. And when he came upon the steps, it happened that he was carried by the soldiers, for the violence of the people.
36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Destroy him.

CHAPTER XXII.

A. D. 60. Paul, being allowed to speak, declares how he was converted to the faith, and called to the apostleship; on mentioning the Gentiles, the Jews exclaimed against him; when about to be scourged, he claims the privilege of a Roman citizen.

37 AND as Paul was about to be taken into the castle, he said to the commander, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou 38 speak Greek? Art thou not that Egyptian, who formerly madest a disturbance, and leddest out into the wilderness four thou-
39 sand men that were assassins? But Paul said, I am a Jew of Tarsus, a city of Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and I beseech thee, suffer me to speak to the people.
40 And when the commander had given him permission, Paul stood on the steps, and waved his hand to the people. And when a great silence was made, he spoke to them
1 in the Hebrew tongue, saying, Brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence, which I
2 now make unto you. (And when they heard that he spoke in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the greater silence: and 3 he saith,) I indeed am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city of Cilicia, but brought up in this city, instructed at the feet of Gamaliel, according to the exactness of the law of our fathers, and was zealous towards God, as 4 ye all are this day. And I persecuted this doctrine unto death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women. As 5 the high priest also can bear me witness, and the whole body of the elders: from whom I received letters also unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring bound unto Jerusalem those also that were there that they might be punished. But 6 it came to pass that, as I journeyed and came near to Damascus, about noon, a great light from heaven suddenly shone round about me. And 'I fell' to the 7 ground, and heard a voice saying to me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And 8 I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said to me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest. And those that were 9 with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the words of him that spoke to me. And I said, What 10 shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said to me, Arise, and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee concerning all things which are appointed for thee to do. And when I could not see because of the 11 glory of that light; being led by the hand of those that were with me, I came into Damascus. And one Ananias, a devout 12 man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews who dwell there, Came to me, and stood, and said to me, 13 Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And at that very time I looked upon him. And 14 he said, The God of our fathers hath appointed thee, to know his will, and to see that Just One, and to hear the words of his mouth. For thou shalt be witness 15 unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard. And now why delayest thou? arise, 16 and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord. And it

17 came to pass, when I returned to Jerusalem, and while I prayed in the temple, that I

34. Into the castle] Antonia. This was built on higher ground than the temple, and had the command of it. Josephus informs us, that it had four towers, one of which was joined to the porticoes of the temple, and had a double pair of stairs from it, by which the soldiers were accustomed to come down with their arms, and on festival days, keep guard before the porticoes.

36. Destroy him] That this was their meaning cannot be doubted. We might render 'take him off'; but it is better to give the sense clearly.

38. Four thousand] Felix attacked them, killed four hundred, and put the rest to flight; and among these the impostor himself made his escape, and was never afterwards heard of. See Jos. Antig. xx. l. c. 7. s. 6.

CHAP. XXII. 3. At the feet of Gamaliel] It was usual for the teacher to sit on an elevated chair, while the scholar sat on one lower, and of course beneath him.—Exactness] The Gamaliel here spoken of is most probably the same with him mentioned chap. v. 34, who was a Pharisee, to which sect Paul also belonged. They observed the traditions with the greatest exactness; and to this Paul alludes, chap. xvi. 5.

4. Doctrine unto death] Unto death, as to many who professed it. We read of Stephen as stoned; and doubtless many suffered so under their imprisonment as to occasion their death. See chap. ix. l. 1, &c.

8. Jesus of Nazareth] While he lived this was mentioned as his reproach, and as evidence against his being a prophet. John vii. 52. But as he was best known from the place where he had resided, our Lord mentioned this that Saul might be under no mistake.

9. Heard the words] See chap. ix. 7, where we are informed that the men who were with him 'heard a sound,' but saw no man. They might hear a sound, yet not hear the words which Jesus addressed to Paul, John xii. 28, 29.

12. Ananias] He was probably a Jew, and being serious before his conversion to Christ, enjoyed the good opinion of the Jews at Damascus after.

14. Just One] He is so called, chap. iii. 14; vii. 52, and James v. 6. The apostles, by giving him this character, virtually condemned the proceedings against him.

16. Be baptized] Paul was baptized by a Divine appointment, as appears from comparing verse 10th with this.—Wash away] Baptism, in adults, was a token of humiliation for sin, and of a desire to be cleansed from it; nor did God ordinarily give any person evidence of pardon, by bestowing extraordinary gifts, until he had submitted to that ordinance. It can only be said to 'wash away sin,' or 'to

18 was in a trance; And saw Jesus, who said to me, Make haste, and go quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy 19 testimony concerning me. And I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue those who believed 20 on thee: And when the blood of thy witness Stephen was shed, I also stood by, and consented to his death, and kept the mantles
21 of those that killed him. And he said to me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.
22 And they heard him unto this word, and then raised their voices, and said, Destroy such a man from the earth: for it is not 23 fit that he should live. And as they cried out, and cast off their mantles, and threw 24 dust into the air, The commander ordered that he should be brought into the castle, and bade that he should be examined by scourging; that he might know for what 25 cause they cried so against him. And as they prepared him for scourging, Paul said to the centurion who stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge one who is a Roman citizen, and uncondemned? When the centurion heard this, he went and told the commander, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman citizen.
27 Then the commander came, and said to him, Tell me, art thou a Roman citizen?
28 He said, Yes. And the commander answered, With a great sum obtained I this citizenship. And Paul said, But I was 29 born a citizen. Then they who should have examined him by scourging, immediately left him: and the commander also was afraid, when he knew that he was a Roman citizen, and because he had bound him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A. D. 60. Paul pleadeth his cause; dissension among his accusers; God encourageth him; some Jews laying wait for him, he is sent to Felix the governor.

30 On the morrow, desiring to know the certainty of what he was accused by the Jews, he loosed him from his chain, and commanded the chief priests and all the council to assemble, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

And when Paul had earnestly looked on 1 the council, he said, Brethren, I have conducted myself in all good conscience before God until this day. And the high priest
2 Ananias commanded those that stood by him to smite him on the mouth. Then 3 said Paul to him, God will smite thee, thou whited wall: for, sittest thou to judge me according to the law, and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law? And 4 those who stood by said, Revilest thou God's high priest? Then said Paul, I
5 knew not, brethren, that he was the high priest: for it is written, Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people. But 6 when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: concerning the hope of the resurrection of the dead, I am now judged. And when he had 7 said this, a dissension arose between the Pharisees and the Sadducees; and the multitude was divided. For the Sadducees
8 say that there is no resurrection, nor angel, or spirit: but the Pharisees confess both. And there was a great cry: and the scribes
9 that were on the part of the Pharisees arose, and strove, saying, We find no evil in this man: but if a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, it is well: [let us not fight against God.] And when there was
10 a great disturbance, the commander, fearing lest Paul would be torn in pieces by them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle. And the 11 night following, the Lord stood by him and said, Be of good courage, Paul: for as thou hast testified the things concerning me in Jerusalem, so must thou testify at Rome also.

save, 1 Pet. iii. 21, as it was to penitents, the seal of pardon and salvation.

17—21. In a trance] See chap. 10, and note.—That I imprisoned] Some suppose that the apostle thought these well-known facts would add credibility to his testimony, and that his desire to turn his countrymen induced him thus to speak. The reply of Jesus supports the above view.

22. They heard him] Paul displayed great courage in declaring his mission to the Gentiles; as he well knew that this was the chief cause of their hatred. Comp. chap. x. 28. and xi. 3.

24—29. Examined by scourging] This was done to no Roman citizen, but only to slaves, or those conquered people who were not submissive to their yoke. On this occasion, Paul's privilege as a citizen secured him from this treatment.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. When Paul had] Paul began his address with a solemn declaration of his innocence as to any crime against the law or his nation.

2. Ananias—to smite] This command proceeded from rancour against Paul for preaching to the Gentiles, and was very improper and unjust.

3. God will smite thee] This Ananias had been raised to the high priesthood by Herod, king of Chalcis; and about five years after this, he was dragged from an aqueduct, in which he had concealed himself from a tumult, and put to death by assassins. Joseph. Bell. ii. xvii. 5.—Whited wall] Comp. Matt. xxiii. 27.

5. I knew not] Ananias had been dispossessed of his office, and Jonathan raised to that dignity. On the death of Jonathan, the office continued for some time vacant; and it was in this interval that Ananias undertook to fill it, but without any proper authority; so that though he had been, he was not now, in reality, the high priest.

6. Brethren, I am a Pharisee] Paul was so by his education, and by holding on many points the same opinions.

7. A dissension arose] This arose, most probably, respecting the sentence which should be pronounced against him.

12 And when it was day, some Jews combined together, and bound themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat
 13 nor drink until they had killed Paul. And they were more than forty who had made 14 this conspiracy. And they went to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, that we will taste nothing until we have killed 15 Paul. Now therefore ye with the council signify to the commander that he bring him down unto you to morrow as though ye would inquire more exactly concerning him: and we, before he come near, will be ready to kill him.
 16 And when the son of Paul's sister heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered 17 into the castle, and told Paul. Then Paul called one of the centurions to him, and said, Bring this young man to the commander: for he hath a certain thing to tell 18 him. So he took him, and brought him to the commander and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and desired me to bring this young man to thee, who hath 19 something to say unto thee. Then the commander took him by the hand, and went aside with him privately, and asked him, What is it which thou hast to tell me?
 20 And he said, The Jews have agreed to desire thee that thou wouldest bring down Paul to morrow into the council, as though they would inquire somewhat more exactly 21 concerning him. But do not thou yield to them: for of them more than forty men lie in wait for him, who have bound themselves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink until they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from 22 thee. So the commander let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou hast showed these things 23 to me. And he called to him two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cæsarea, and seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen, at 24 the third hour of the night; And provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on one of them, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor. And he wrote a letter after this manner: Claudius Lysias to the most excellent governor Felix sendeth greeting. This man who had been seized by the Jews, and would have been killed by them; but I came with the soldiers and rescued him: Having understood that he was a Roman citizen, And desiring to know the cause why they accused him, I brought him down into their council; Whom I perceived to be accused concerning questions of their law; but to have no accusation worthy of death, or of bonds. And when it was made known to me that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent him immediately to thee, and commanded his accusers also to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell.

Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris. And on the morrow they returned to the castle, having left the horsemen to go with him: Who, when they came to Cæsarea, and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him. And when the governor had read the letter, he asked of what province he was. And when he understood that he was of Cilicia; I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers have also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A. D. 60. Paul being accused by Tertullus answereth for his life and doctrine; he preacheth Christ to Felix and Drusilla; the former hoped for a bribe, but, not receiving one, left Paul a prisoner, on going out of office.

AND after five days, Ananias the high priest went down to Cæsarea with the elders, and with a certain orator, named Tertullus; and these brought an accusation before the governor against Paul. And when he was called, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Since by thee we enjoy great quietness, and very worthy deeds are done unto this

8. Or spirit] That is, of men: that the spirit does not exist after death was their opinion, while the other Jews admitted both the resurrection and the existence of spiritual beings.

10. The commander] How turbulent were these people! and on every occasion they displayed a fury, which indicated they were growing ripe for destruction.

12—15. Some Jews combined] These were probably of the sect of the Sadducees.

16. Heard of their lying] It should seem that their intention was not kept very secret, when Paul's nephew heard of it.

17. Then Paul called one] Though Paul had been assured of his safety, by what Jesus had revealed to him, verse 11; yet he did not neglect any proper means to secure it, well knowing that these are necessary in their place.

18—22. To the commander] Lysias knew the hatred of the people; and he knew their violence too, and hence paid the greater attention to the information communicated.

23. At the third hour] That is, nine in the evening. He chose the night to elude the machinations of the Jews, and to place Paul beyond the reach of their cruel and bloody attempts.

27. Having understood that] This punctuation, suggested by Beza, is undoubtedly proper. For Paul was not rescued, because he was known to be a Roman citizen; but this was known when Lysias was about to examine him by scourging. See chap. xxi. 31; xxii. 25, &c.

31. By night] On that very night. See verse 23.—To Antipatris] This was a town built by Herod the Great, and named Antipatris, in honour of his father Antipater. It lay between Joppa and Cæsarea, on the coast of the Mediterranean. Jos. Ant. xvi. 5, 2.

32. They returned to] The four hundred foot soldiers, while the seventy horse conveyed Paul forward.

3 nation, by thy prudence, Always, and in all places we accept them, most noble
 4 Felix, with all thankfulness. But that I may not trouble thee further, I pray thee to hear us of thy goodness, a few words.
 5 For we have found this man a pestilent one, and a mover of insurrection among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ring-
 6 leader of the sect of the Nazarenes: Who hath attempted to profane the temple also: whom we seized and would have 7 judged according to our law: But the commander Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our 8 hands, Commanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining him thou thyself mayest gain knowledge of all these things, 9 whereof we accuse him. And the Jews also assented, saying that these things were 10 so. Then Paul answered, the governor having beckoned unto him to speak, Understanding that thou hast been for many years a judge to this nation, I do the more 11 cheerfully make my defence: For thou mayest know, that it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship at 12 Jerusalem. And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, nor raising up the people, either in the syna-
 13 gogues, or in the city: Nor can they prove the things of which they now accuse me.
 14 But this I confess unto thee, that, after the way which they call a sect, so I worship the God of my fathers; believing all things which are written in the law and in 15 the prophets: And having hope towards God, which they themselves also admit, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the righteous and the un-16 righteous. And in this I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence towards God, and towards men.
 17 Now, after many years, I came to bring 18 alms to my nation, and offerings. At which time certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple; but not with a multi-19 tude, nor with tumult. Who ought to have been here before thee, and accuse me, if they had any thing against me. Or let 20 these themselves say, if they found any crime in me, while I stood before the council, Unless it be for this one declara- 21 tion, which I proclaimed standing among them, Concerning the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day. And when Felix heard these things, 22 he deferred them, saying, Having obtained more perfect knowledge of that doctrine, when Lysias the commander shall come down, I will determine your matter. And 23 he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister or come unto him.

And after some days, Felix came with 24 his wife Drusilla, who was a Jewess, and sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ. And as he discoursed 25 of justice, temperance, and the judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Depart for the present, and, when I have a convenient time, I will send for thee. He 26 hoped also that money would have been given him by Paul, that he might release him; for which cause he sent for him the oftener, and conversed with him. But 27 after two years Porcius Festus succeeded Felix: and Felix, willing to gratify the Jews, left Paul bound.

CHAPTER XXV.

A. D. 62. The Jews accuse Paul before Festus; he answereth for himself, and appealeth unto Cæsar; he is afterwards brought before Festus and Agrippa, who conclude that he had done nothing worthy of death.

Now Festus, three days after he came 1 into the province, went up from Cæsarea to Jerusalem. Then the high priest and the 2 chief of the Jews brought an accusation before him against Paul, and besought him, Desiring a favour concerning him, that he 3 would send for him to Jerusalem; purposing to lie in wait that they might destroy him on the way. But Festus answered, 4 that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would shortly depart thither. Therefore, let those of you, said he, who 5

CHAP. XXIV. 5—9. A pestilent one] A pestilence itself, which is explained in what follows; a mover of insurrection, and a ringleader of the sect of Nazarenes. But the chief crime was his attempt to profane the temple.

10. Many years a judge] Some suppose him to have governed five, and others more than seven years. In this time he had become well acquainted with the opinions and customs of the Jews; and on this account Paul answered with more confidence.

11—16. For thou mayest know] By making the proper inquiry. Paul denies the charges alleged against him; but freely and boldly confesses his faith, which was alike supported by the law and the prophets.

17. To bring alms] See Rom. xv. 25—28; Gal. ii. 10, and chap. xxi. 26, 27. It was customary for the Jews, wheresoever they dwelt, to send offerings to the temple.

18—21. At which time] See chap. xxi. 26, &c.—Concerning the resurrection] Chap. xxiii. 6, &c.

22. He deferred them, saying] Felix did not mean that he would judge of the truth or falsehood of Christianity, but only whether or not it had led Paul to raise insurrection, and break the peace.

24, 25. And heard him] Drusilla was the daughter of Herod Agrippa, a woman of great beauty, whom Felix had seduced from her husband Azizus, king of the Emesenes. Paul, while he explained the Christian doctrine, so pressed home its morality as to make Felix tremble. Pearce thinks he trembled, not with remorse for his own sin, but lest Drusilla should be awakened to repentance, and leave him.

CHAP. XXV. 1—7. Now Festus] The priests and elders were as much enraged against Paul as ever: and nothing but his blood would satisfy their malice, and every art was tried in order to shed it.—(a) Griesb.

are able to accuse him, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any thing 6 amiss in him. And when he had passed among them not more than "eight" or ten days, he went down to Cæsarea; and the next day he sat on the judgment-seat and 7 commanded Paul to be brought. And when he appeared, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood round about, and laid many and heavy accusations against 8 Paul, which they could not prove. While he made his defence, saying, Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor yet against Cæsar, have I
 9 offended in any thing. But Festus, desiring to gratify the Jews, answered Paul, and said, Art thou willing to go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged concerning these 10 things before me? Then Paul said, I stand at Cæsar's judgment-seat, where I ought to be judged; to the Jews I have done no 11 wrong, as thou very well knowest. For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if none of those things of which these 12 accuse me be true, no one should deliver me up to gratify them. I appeal unto Cæsar.
 13 Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, Thou hast appealed to Cæsar; and to Cæsar shalt thou go.
 14 And after some days king Agrippa and Bernice came to Cæsarea to salute Festus.
 15 And when they had continued there many days, Festus related Paul's case to the king, saying, There is a certain man left a 16 prisoner by Felix: Concerning whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews laid an information, desiring judgment against him. To whom 17 I answered, It is not the custom of the Romans to deliver up any man to die, before that he who is accused have the accusers face to face, and have opportunity to make his defence concerning the crime laid 18 to his charge. When therefore they had come hither, on the morrow without any delay I sat on the judgment-seat, and 19 commanded the man to be brought. Against whom when his accusers stood up, they brought no accusation of such things as I supposed; But had against him some ques-

8—12. Neither against the law] Paul, as a Jew, had acted uprightly, and as a subject of Cæsar had been peaceful and submissive; and rather than be judged by the prejudiced Jews, he appealed to the tribunal of Cæsar.

13. Agrippa] The son of that Agrippa, mentioned chap. xii. 1. He was king of Chalcis, and had given to him the tetrarchies of Philip and Lysanias. Bernice was his sister, who was first married to her uncle, and then to Palemon, king of Cilicia, whom she soon left.

14—16. Related Paul's case] In the manner following. —It is not the custom] Many laws forbade punishment to be inflicted, until the guilt of the person was established. The Jews desired Paul to be punished, as if he had been proved guilty.

tions about their own religion, and about one Jesus, who died, and whom Paul affirmed to be alive. And because I was 20 doubtful about an inquiry into such matters, I asked him whether he was willing to go to Jerusalem, and there be judged about these things. But when Paul had 21 appealed to be reserved to the determination of the August emperor, I commanded him to be kept until I could send him to Cæsar. Then Agrippa said to Festus, I 22 myself also desire to hear the man. Tomorrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A. D. 62. Paul, brought before Agrippa, declareth his manner of life, and how he was converted and called to the apostleship; Agrippa almost persuaded to be a Christian; the whole assembly pronounce Paul innocent.

Now on the morrow, when Agrippa had 23 come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and they had entered into the place of hearing, together with the commanders, and principal men of the city, at the command of Festus Paul was brought. Then Festus 24 said, King Agrippa, and all that are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have applied to me, both at Jerusalem, and here also, crying out that he ought not to live any longer. But when I found that he 25 had committed nothing worthy of death, and he himself having appealed to the August emperor, I have determined to send him. Of whom I have nothing certain to 26 write to our sovereign. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and especially before thee, king Agrippa, that, after examination, I may have somewhat to write. For it seemeth to me unreasonable 27 to send a prisoner, and not to signify the charges also laid against him.

Then Agrippa said to Paul, Thou art 1 permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth his hand, and made his defence: I think myself happy, king Agrippa, 2 that I shall make my defence this day before thee, concerning all the things of which I am accused by the Jews: Espe- 3 cially as thou art acquainted with all the customs and questions which are among the Jews. Wherefore I beseech thee to

19. Who died] This is a valuable testimony to the two leading facts of the gospel, and shows in what manner Paul preached.

21. August emperor] As Augustus was a title given to the first emperor, and distinguished him from others, it is better to give the sense here, to prevent mistake.

23—27. Now on the morrow] This proceeding, while it gratified Agrippa and Bernice, appeared to be just and proper. Festus declares Paul's innocence; and yet wished to state the crime with which he had been charged.

CHAP. XXVI. 1—3. Then Paul] Paul begins his address with the highest respect to Agrippa, as knowing the customs and opinions of the Jews; and therefore better able to judge of his defence.

4 hear me patiently. All the Jews know my manner of life from my youth, which was passed from the beginning among mine own nation at Jerusalem; And these have knowledge of me from the first, if they would testify, that according to the strictest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee. And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise which God made to our fathers: 7 The fulfilment of which promise, our twelve tribes, serving God earnestly day and night, hope to obtain: concerning which hope, king Agrippa, I am accused by Jews. 8 What? is it esteemed among you a thing incredible, that God should raise the dead? 9 I indeed thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. Which thing I did also in Jerusalem: and many of the saints I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I gave my vote 11 against them. And I punished them often in every synagogue, and compelled them to speak evil; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto 12 foreign cities. And as I went to Damascus with authority and commission from the 13 chief priests, At midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me and those who journeyed with me. 14 And when we had all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking to me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? it is hard for thee to 15 kick against the goads. And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus 16 whom thou persecutest. But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to appoint thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those in which I will appear unto thee; Delivering thee 17 from the people of the Jews, and from the Gentiles, unto whom I now send thee, To 18 open their eyes, that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God; and may receive forgiveness of sins, and an inheritance among those who are sanctified by faith in me.

Whereupon, king Agrippa, I was not 19 disobedient unto the heavenly vision: But 20 declared first to them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the country of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works worthy of repentance. For these 21 causes the Jews seized me in the temple, and attempted to kill me. Having therefore 22 obtained help of God, unto this day I continue testifying both to small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses did say should come to pass; That 23 the Christ should suffer; and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should announce the light to the people of the Jews, and to the Gentiles.

And as he was thus making his defence, 24 Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning driveth thee to madness. But he said, I am not 25 mad, most noble Festus; but speak the words of truth and of a sound mind. For 26 the king knoweth of these things, before whom therefore I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this was not done in a corner. King Agrippa, believest thou 27 the prophets? I know that thou believest. Then Agrippa said to Paul, Thou almost 28 persuadest me to become a Christian. And 29 Paul said, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day,

6. Hope of the promise] The promise of a resurrection of the dead. See ver. 8, and chap. xxiii. 6.

8. What? is it] This punctuation preserves better the spirit of the original. Paul appeals to Agrippa and other Jews.

9. Name of Jesus] Our Lord's enemies called him the Nazarene, out of contempt; but Paul knew that his character was above reproach, and that the imputation itself was groundless, as understood in reference to the place of his birth.

11. To speak evil] To revile Jesus and his religion; he tried to force his disciples to do so; and might in some cases unhappily succeed.

14. It is hard for thee] The metaphor is taken from refractory oxen, who kick against the goads by which they are driven, and thus wound themselves more deeply. Thus Paul was but injuring his soul by persecuting Christ in his followers.

16—18. But rise and stand] The end and design of our Lord's appearing to Paul is here expressed, to make him a witness and a teacher of both Jews and Gentiles.—That they may turn] This is the usual way of rendering the verb in other places. See chap. ix. 35; xi. 21; xv. 19; xxvi. 20.

19. Heavenly vision] The history demonstrates that this was a real appearance, and not a mere representation to the mind; or else it could have been no proof of the resurrection of Christ, and of his great power and glory.

20—23. But declared] How justly Paul might thus speak of his labours the foregoing history clearly proves.—That the Christ] In proof of these things may be alleged all the predictions which foretold his sufferings, and his future kingdom and glory.

25. I am not mad] The charge of Festus shows that he considered what Paul related as things incredible, and proves that he had studied until he was deranged. His answer is manly and beautiful.

26. This was not done] The death of Jesus, his resurrection, and the events which have followed. Indeed, the number of converts, the many miracles wrought by the apostles must have been heard of by Agrippa.

27. I know that thou] Paul addresses him as a Jew who acknowledged the Divine authority of the prophets, and who ought to be influenced by their testimony.

28. Almost] This was a sudden, but alas, a transient impulse of conviction. It indicates the power of truth on a mind the least disposed towards it.

29. I would to God] How delicate, and yet impassioned is this reply! Paul avows his full satisfaction in the truth of the gospel, his assurance of final happiness, and his concern that his illustrious hearers might become as happy as were both almost and altogether such as I 30 am, except these bonds. And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat 31 with them: And when they had gone aside, they spoke among themselves, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death or of 32 bonds. And Agrippa said to Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A. D. 62. Paul, sailing towards Rome, foretelleth the danger of the voyage, but is not believed; they are tossed with a tempest, and suffer shipwreck, yet are all saved.

1 Now when it was determined that we should sail to Italy, Paul and some other prisoners were delivered to a centurion of 2 the Augustan band, named Julius. And entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to sail by the coasts of Asia; Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thes-3 salonica, being with us. And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius treated Paul kindly, and gave him liberty to go to 4 his friends to take refreshment. And when we had loosed thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.
 5 And when we had sailed over the sea of Cilicia, and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, 6 a city of Lycia. And there the centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.
 7 And when we had sailed slowly for many days, and were scarcely come over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed 8 under Crete, over against Salmone; And hardly passing by it, we came to a place which is called The fair havens; near 9 which was the city of Lasea. Now when much time had been spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, because the Jewish fast was now already past, Paul admonished 10 them, And said to them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with harm and much damage, not to the lading and ship 11 only, but to ourselves also. But the cen-turion believed the master and the owner of the ship, more than the things spoken by Paul. And because the haven was not 12 commodious to winter in, the greater part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and winter there; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth towards the south-west and northwest. And when the south wind blew 13 softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete. But not long after there 14 arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euroclydon. And when the ship was borne 15 away, and could not face the wind, we let her drive. And running under a certain 16 island which is called Claudia, we were scarcely able to make ourselves masters of the boat: Which when the sailors had 17 taken up, they used helps, undergirding the ship; and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, they struck sail and thus were driven. And we being exceedingly 18 tossed by a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship; And the third day we 19 cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship. And when neither sun nor 20 stars for many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

But after long abstinence, Paul stood 21 forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened to me, and not have loosed from Crete. and have prevented this harm and loss. And now I exhort you 22 to be of good courage: for there shall be no loss of life among you, but of the ship.
 For there stood by me this night an angel 23 of that God, whose I am, and whom I serve, Saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must be 24 brought before Cæsar: and, lo, God hath given thee all those that sail with thee.
 Wherefore, sir, be of good courage: for I 25 believe God, that it will be even as it hath been told me. However we must be cast 26 upon a certain island. Now when the 27 fourteenth night was come, as we were

10. Sirs, I perceive] Whether Paul spoke from his experience, or inspiration, we know not; but the event confirmed his opinion.
 12. Phenice] They wished to gain this place, as more safe to winter in than the 'fair havens.'
 13. Blew softly] This was against them; but it is probable that they had oars, and rowed the vessel into the open sea.
 14. Euroclydon] An east wind raising a hurricane;
 and it should seem very furious on the present occasion.
 16. Claudia] A small island at the south-west end of Crete.—Masters of the boat] They had, most probably, been washed overboard, and it was with great difficulty that they recovered it.
 17. Undergirding] With cables or chains brought round, to prevent the sides from starting. In Anson's voyage this practice is mentioned.
 21—26. Sirs, ye should] The God of Paul knew what would be the event of this tempest, and could inform his himself.—Except these bonds] The chain which he carried, and by which his hand was usually bound to the soldier who guarded him.

CHAP. XXVII. 3. Treated Paul kindly] This might be owing to the favourable injunctions of Festus, or to his own disposition, God giving him a heart to treat his servant in this manner.—Take refreshment] Perhaps they furnished him with what he might need for his voyage.

6. A ship of Alexandria] She was freighted with wheat, verse 38. Rome was supplied from Egypt and Africa with considerable quantities of grain.

7. Cnidus] A town of Caria, a province of the lesser Asia.
 It was on the sea-coast, on a promontory; and Salmone was a promontory of the island of Crete, and 'The fair ha-vents' was a sea-port of the same island.

9. Because the fast] That here spoken of was the day of atonement, and kept on the tenth day of the seventh month.
 Levit. xvi. 39; xxiii. 27; Numb. xxix. 7. This would be the latter part of our September.

driven up and down in the Adriatic sea, about midnight the sailors thought that 28 they drew near to some country; And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.
 29 Then fearing lest they should fall upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day. And as the sailors were about to escape out of the ship, and had let down the boat into the sea, under pretence as if they were about to 31 cast anchors out of the foreship, Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Unless these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.
 32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.
 33 And, while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take food, saying, To day is the fourteenth day of the storm, during which we have waited and continued
 34 fasting, having taken nothing. Wherefore I pray you to take some food: for this is for your health: for a hair shall not fall 35 from the head of any of you. And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God before them all: and when he had broken it, he began to eat.
 36 Then they were all of good courage, and 37 they also took food. Now all of us in the ship were two hundred and seventy-six 38 persons. And when they were satisfied with food, they lightened the ship, and threw the corn into the sea.
 39 And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they discovered a certain creek with an even shore, into which they were determined, if it were possible, to thrust the 40 ship. And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themselves to the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoisted up the mainsail to the wind, and 41 made towards the shore. And having reached a place which had the sea on both sides, they ran the ship aground; and the forepart stuck fast, and remained immoveable; but the hinder part was broken by the violence of the waves. Now the counsel 42 of the soldiers was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out, and escape. But the centurion, willing to save Paul, 43 kept them from their purpose; and commanded that they who could swim should cast themselves into the sea, and get to land first: And that the rest, some on 44 boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship, should save themselves. And so it came to pass, that all escaped safe to land.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A. D. 62. Paul kindly entertained; a viper seizeth his hand, but hurteth him not; he healeth many diseases in the island; they depart towards Rome, where he declareth to the Jews the cause of his coming; he preacheth, &c.

AND when they had escaped, they then 1 knew that the island was called Melita. And the barbarous people showed us no 2 little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and brought us all to it, because of the present rain, and because of the cold. And when 3 Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, a viper came out of the heat, and fastened on his hand. And 4 when the barbarians saw the serpent hang on his hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffereth not to live. And he shook 5 off the serpent into the fire, and felt no harm. However they expected that he 6 would have swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly: but after they had expected a great while, and saw no harm befall him, they changed their minds and said that he was a god.

Near this place were the lands of the 7 chief man of the island, whose name was Publius; who received us, and lodged us kindly for three days. And it came to pass, 8 that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever and of a flux: to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and servant of it; and while Paul reminds them of their own rash conduct in sailing from Crete, he encourages them with the assurance that they should not perish.

27—32. Drew near] Amidst a tempest, and in the night, it was terrible to find themselves near land.—About to escape] The sailors were consulting their own safety only; and but for Paul they would have left the soldiers to their fate. These had learned to regard what Paul said; and they cut off the boat before any of the sailors had made their escape into it.

33. Fasting] This must mean that they had taken but very little; for, if they had taken nothing whatever for fourteen days, they would have perished for want.

35. Took bread] He set an example of the advice which he gave, and of his piety in his gratitude to God for what he enjoyed.

38. Here satisfied] See note, verse 6. They now considered themselves likely to be supplied from the adjoining land.

41. Sea on both sides] They landed on a cape, and not where they had intended, verse 39. The place is now called la cala di S. Paolo, on the north-west side of Malta.

42—44. Now the counsel] This was cruel; but they probably feared the danger which they would incur should the prisoners escape. The centurion's regard for Paul delivered them; and the whole came safe to land.

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. Melita] Now called Malta, in the possession of the English. Some would refer it to a small island near Illyria; but the course of the voyage towards Rome supports the common opinion.

2. Barbarous] They were a colony of Phœnicians or Carthaginians, and spoke a language unknown to the Greeks or Romans.

4—6. Saw the serpent] They considered the bite as mortal, and imagined that vengeance was pursuing Paul for some murder committed; but how soon did they change their opinion, when they saw that Paul was not hurt by the bite of this serpent.

7—10. Publius] The name shows him to be a Roman, and most probably the governor of the island. Paul re-

9 cured him. So when this was done, others also, who had diseases in the island, came,
 10 and were cured: Who also honoured us with many honours: and when we departed, they laden us with such things as were necessary.
 11 And after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose sign was Castor and Pollux.
 12 And landing at Syracuse, we remained there three days. And thence we coasted round, and came to Rhegium: and after one day the south wind blew, and we came the 14 next day to Puteoli: Where we found brethren, and were desired to remain with them seven days: and then we went towards 15 Rome. And when the brethren heard of us, they came thence to meet us as far as Appii forum, and The three taverns: whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.
 16 And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard: but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier who kept 17 him. And it came to pass, after three days, that Paul called the chief of the Jews together. and when they were assembled, he said to them, Brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people or customs of our fathers, yet I was delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the 18 Romans: Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there 19 was no cause of death in me. But when the Jews spoke against this, I was compelled to appeal unto Cæsar; not that I had ought 20 to accuse my nation of. For this cause therefore have I called for you, that I might see you, and speak with you: because for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain. Then they said to him, We neither 21 received letters out of Judea concerning thee, nor any of the brethren who came related or spoke any thing bad of thee. But 22 we desire to hear from thee what thou thinkest: for as to this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against. And 23 when they had appointed him a day, many came to him into his lodging; to whom he explained and bore testimony to the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. And some believed the things which 24 were spoken, and some believed not. And 25 when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spoke the Holy Spirit by Isaiah the prophet unto our fathers, Saying, 26 Go unto this people and say, Ye hear indeed, but will not understand; and ye see indeed, but will not perceive: For this people's heart is become gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them. Be it 28 known therefore unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it. And when he had said 29 these words, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves. And 30 Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, Preaching the kingdom of God, and 31 teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

warded his kindness by curing his father, and many others who had diseases. This secured to them all abundance for the prosecution of their voyage.

11—15. He departed in] From Malta, and they came to Syracuse, the capital of Sicily, on the eastern side of the island.—Rhegium] A sea-port of Italy, in Calabria; and Puteoli is near to Naples.—Appii forum] Some of the Christian brethren came to meet Paul thus far, while others met him at the place called 'The three taverns,' which was near to Rome.

17—22. Brethren] Compare chap. xxv. 6; xxvi. 31, &c.—The hope of Israel] The doctrine of the Messiah, his sufferings and resurrection, he justly called the hope of Israel; and for maintaining this doctrine he was now a prisoner. The Jews at Rome had received no information from Jerusalem respecting him; and from this it should seem they considered that their accusations and charges could not be supported.

24. Some believed] Though they had told Paul that Christians were a sect every where spoken against, he was ready to avow and defend the doctrine of Christ, and to prove, from their own scriptures, the leading facts and truths of the gospel; and some were induced to believe, but others to oppose.

25—28. Well spoke] See Matt. xiii. 14, &c., and Acts xiii. 46—48, and 1s. vi. 9, &c.

30, 31. Two whole years] According to Pearson, Paul came to Rome in the fifth year of Nero, and was set at liberty in the seventh. He employed this period in the great work of the ministry, and doubtless had some fruit among them, as he had among other Gentiles.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE ROMANS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE great object of the Apostle in this celebrated epistle was to establish the excellence of the gospel, and to engage men both to receive it and act in a manner becoming it. He establishes this in stating and proving that the whole world needed such a dispensation; the Gentiles having fallen into the grossest errors and crimes, and the Jews, though condemning others, being themselves no better, chap. i. ii.; so that both ought to seek salvation by faith in Christ—that Abraham and David sought justification by faith, chap. iv.—and that hereby believers are brought into a state of acceptance, chap. v. 1–11,—that the miseries occasioned by the fall of Adam are repaired by the second Adam to all who believe;—and that the obligations of believers to holiness are hereby increased and enforced, chap. vi.

As the blessings of the gospel belong to such as believe, of course it follows that believing Gentiles have a full share in them, and that unbelieving Jews would be rejected. This led the Apostle to treat of the calling of the Gentiles and the rejection of the Jews, which occupies the ninth, tenth, and eleventh chapters. This delicate subject he discusses with great force and propriety.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 60. The apostle states his calling, and his desire to come to them; the excellence of the gospel; the need men had of it, from their ignorance, sins, and misery.

- 1 PAUL, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel
- 2 of God, (Which he had before promised by
- 3 his prophets in the holy scriptures,) Concerning his Son, who was born of the race
- 4 of David according to the flesh; But proved to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by his resurrection from the dead; even Jesus
- 5 Christ our Lord, From whom we have received grace and apostleship, for obedience to the faith among all nations, on account
- 6 of his name: Among whom are ye also
- 7 the called of Jesus Christ: To all that are in Rome, beloved of God, to the called, to the saints; Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.
- 8 First, I thank my God through Jesus

Christ on account of you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world. For God is my witness, whom I 9 serve with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you: Always requesting in my prayers that, 10 by some means, now at length I may have a prosperous journey by the will of God, so as to come unto you. For I long to see 11 you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, that ye may be established; Which is, that I may be comforted together 12 with you by our mutual faith, the faith of both you and me.

Now I would not have you ignorant, 13 brethren, that I have often purposed to come unto you, (but have been hindered hitherto,) that I might have some fruit among you also, even as among other Gentiles. I am 14 a debtor both to the Greeks, and to the barbarians; both to the wise, and to the unwise. So, as much as lieth in me, I am 15 ready to preach the gospel to you also that are at Rome. For I am not ashamed of 16

CHAP. I. 1. Called to be an apostle] Some disputed Paul's claim to the apostolic office; and hence he asserts it in the beginning of his letter. He was called to it by Christ, (Acts xxvi. 16–18,) as the other apostles were, and he was qualified with the same gifts.—Gospel of God] Of which he is eminently the author, being the accomplishment of his purpose and grace.

4. But proved to be] Determinately marked out, so that he might be known to be 'the Son of God,' by evidence the most powerful and convincing.—According to the Spirit] There is a manifest opposition between our Lord's human descent, as he was the offspring of David, and what he was as the Son of God, and in reference to his spiritual and divine nature. The formula πνευμα αγιωσμενι occurs nowhere else; but, as it is in contrast with κατα σαρκα, it is clearly intended to express his divinity. See Bretschneider and Dr. P. Smith.

5. From whom] Compare Gal. ii. 9; Eph. iii. 2.—For obedience] This expresses the end or design of the apostleship, to bring all nations to receive and obey the gospel, called 'the faith.'

6. The called of Jesus] The Roman church consisted both of Jews and Gentiles, who had been called by the gospel; and the efficiency of the gospel was owing to Christ.

7. To the saints] That is, holy persons, separated by their calling from the world, and devoted to God and his service.

8–12. First, I thank] The apostle rejoiced that their faith in Christ was so much celebrated; and he showed his affection by his prayers for them, and his desire to see them.

13. Often purposed] This proves that the apostles were not always under the influence of the spirit of inspiration. This was the prerogative of our Lord only. See John iii. 34.

14. I am a debtor] That is, under obligation to preach the gospel to all nations, and to all ranks and conditions of men.

15. To you that are] Paul was ready to preach the gospel, not only to those 'called to be saints,' but to all that would hear him. 'You that are at Rome' must signify all that would come to hear, whatever their characters might be.

16. The power of God] It is attested by the most wonderful display of divine power, and is the instrument which God employs to instruct and bring men to repentance, and the gospel, ° because it is the power of God to salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and then to the Greek.

17 For therein is the righteousness of God by faith revealed in order to faith, as it is written, The righteous by faith shall live.

18 Moreover the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hinder the truth by unrighteousness; Because that which might be known concerning God is manifest among them; for God hath manifested it unto them; For the invisible things of him since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things which are made, even his eternal power and divinity, so that they are without excuse:

21 Because, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, nor gave him thanks; but became vain in their reasonings, and

22 their inconsiderate heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became

23 fools, And exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and to four-footed beasts, and to reptiles.

24 Wherefore God also gave them up through the desires of their own hearts, to uncleanness, to dishonour their own bodies among themselves: Who exchanged the true God for an idol, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen. For this cause God gave them up to vile passions for even their women changed the natural use into that which is against nature: And in like manner the men also left the natural use of the woman, and burned in their desire one towards another; men working that which is unseemly with men; and receiving in themselves the due recompense of their error. And as they did not approve of retaining God in their knowledge, God gave them up to an undiscerning mind, to do those things which were not fit; Being filled with all injustice, fornication, maliciousness, covetousness, wickedness; full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, malignity; whisperers, Evil-speakers, haters of God, injurious, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, Without consideration, covenant-breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful: Who knowing the just ordinance of God, that they who commit such things are worthy of death, yet not only do them, but have pleasure in those who commit them.

to the enjoyment of salvation by faith in Christ.—(a) Of Christ.—Griesb.

17. The righteousness of God] This signifies the righteousness of which God is the author, or which he requireth. It is not his essential righteousness or rectitude, or the righteousness of his government; but the righteousness by which these are exhibited and displayed. As Peter styles it, it is 'the righteousness of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ,' 2 Pet. i. 1; or the whole work of his mediation and obedience unto death. The fall of man being foreseen, a compensative system, or one of mediation, was adopted as fittest to display the divine perfections, and maintain the honour of moral government. The Father admitted and appointed his eternally-beloved Son to be a mediator; who, to accomplish the work given him to do, willingly assumed human nature—became subject to the law and yielded perfect obedience to all its precepts, and offered himself a sacrifice for the sins of the world. What he has done and suffered constitutes the 'righteousness of God,' that which in his wisdom he contrived, and in his grace by the gift and work of his Son hath provided. This is a sovereign constitution; and, though not contrary to the moral law, is above the law. The law, as a law, does not admit of mediation, or of any substitutionary righteousness or sufferings. Yet it may be said, that the voluntary obedience and sufferings of so glorious a divine person as our Lord does more honour to the law than if all men had either suffered its penalty or obeyed all its precepts.

When the scriptures refer more especially to the sufferings and death of Christ, terms are used which clearly indicate that they were designed to atone or expiate sin, to propitiate, reconcile, and redeem. But when the reference is to the voluntary subjection of our Lord to the law, and to his holy and perfect obedience to all its requirements, this is properly denominated righteousness, the righteousness of God by faith. It is the righteousness of Christ which gives infinite value and worth to his sufferings. His sufferings apart from righteousness could not have been expiatory or meritorious, but penal; and his righteousness apart from his sufferings could not have exhibited to the intelligent universe the truth, holiness, and rectoral justice of God. Both his righteousness and sufferings were necessary to supply an adequate and all-sufficient ground to the divine government to pardon and accept or justify a penitent believer.—By faith] By confidence or trust. The full formula is, 'by faith in Christ Jesus,' Rom. iii. 22; x. 4; Phil. iii. 9. The last passage is remarkable, and supports the view given of the righteousness of God. Paul contrasts his own righteousness, whether moral or ceremonial, with that which is through faith in Christ, and then explains that righteousness through faith in Christ as being the righteousness which is of God by faith. Hence it is manifest, that the righteousness through faith in Christ is the same as the righteousness of God by faith; and can with propriety be referred to nothing but to the obedience of Christ unto death! If the view given be just, then to render 'justification of God,' does not convey the sense of the apostle. He clearly intended to state the ground or meritorious cause of justification or of pardon and acceptance to life. For the construction followed, see Prof. Stewart's note, and note on chap. iv. 3.

18. Moreover the wrath of God] While the gospel exhibits God's readiness to pardon the penitent believer, it also exhibits his displeasure against sin.—Hinder the truth] Many of the heathens had some just notions of the Divine nature, but through their own unrighteousness they were not influenced by them, nor did they teach them to the people generally.

19—23. Is manifested] Though God be invisible as to his nature and essence, yet his being and perfections are manifest in and by his works; so that they were without excuse, who, when they knew him, glorified him not as God. This clearly appeared in their degrading and abominable idolatry, rendering divine honour to contemptible reptiles.

25. The true God] The true sense is given. They exchanged God for idols, the images of men and beasts, which were most false representations of God, and hence called 'lying vanities,' Ps. xxxi. 6.

27. The due recompense] As they dishonoured God, he left them to dishonour themselves as a just punishment. The crimes mentioned, were prevalent among the Greeks and the Romans; and their very idolatry authorized and consecrated them.

28—31. Undiscerning mind] A mind which could neither discern nor approve of what was right and good.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 60. They that condemn sin in others, and yet practise it, are without excuse, whether they be Jews or Gentiles.

1 WHEREFORE thou art inexcusable, O man, whoever thou art, that judgest : for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself ; because thou that judgest
2 doest the same things. But we know that the judgment of God is according to truth,
3 against those who do such things. And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest those who do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment
4 of God ? Or despisest thou his abounding kindness and forbearance and long suffering ; not knowing that the kindness of God
5 should lead thee to repentance ? But through thy hard and impenitent heart dost thou treasure up to thyself wrath in the day
6 of wrath, and of the manifestation of the righteous judgment of God, Who will
7 render to every man according to his works ; To those who, by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory and honour and immortality, everlasting life ;
8 But to those that are contentious, and obey not the truth, but obey unrighteousness, anger and wrath. Affliction and distress shall be upon every soul of man who 9 doeth evil, of the Jew first, and of the Gentile also : But glory, honour, and 10 peace, shall be to every man who doeth good, to the Jew first, and to the Gentile also.
11 For there is no respect of persons with 12 God. For as many as have sinned without the law, will perish also without the law : and as many as have sinned under the law 13 will be condemned by the law ; (For not the hearers of a law are just before God, but 14 the doers of a law shall be justified. For when the Gentiles, who have no law, do in a natural state the things required by the law, these not having the law, are a law to themselves, Who show the law, in effect, to be written in their hearts ; their conscience also bearing witness, and their reasonings among themselves, accusing or else excusing one another.) In the day when God will judge the secret things of men by Jesus Christ according to the gospel which I preach.

But if thou be called a Jew, and rest in the law, and glory in God, And know his will, and discern the things that are excellent, being instructed out of the law ; And be confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of those that are in darkness, An instructor of the unwise, a teacher of babes, having the form of true knowledge in the law ; Dost thou then, who teachest another, not teach thyself ? Dost thou, who preachest against stealing, thyself steal ? Dost thou, who sayest a man should not commit adultery, thyself commit adultery ? Dost thou, who abhorrest idols, thyself commit sacrilege ? Dost thou, who gloriest in the law, thyself dishonour God by the transgression of the law ? For the name of God is evil spoken of among the Gentiles through you, as it is written.

Now circumcision verily profiteth, if thou keep the law : but if thou be a transgressor of the law, thy circumcision becometh uncircumcision. If therefore one uncircumcised keep the precepts of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision ? And shall not one uncircumcised in his natural state, who fulfilleth the law, condemn thee, who having the letter of the law, and being circumcised, art a transgressor of the law ? For he is not a Jew, who is one outwardly ; nor is that which is outward in the flesh circumcision : But he is a Jew, who is one inwardly ;

CHAP. II. 1. Wherefore thou] If the heathens were inexcusable in their wickedness, how much more those who had such knowledge of the truth as to condemn the vices of others ! This was evidently the case of the Jews ; and without mentioning them at present, he delicately alludes to their spirit and practice.

2. But we know] But how false soever the judgment of man may be, we know that the judgment of God, or his judicial sentence, &c. Some think the apostle refers to the law of Moses, and the sentence denounced by it on disobedient Jews.

4. Should lead thee] The indicative mood is here used for the subjunctive, as it is in many other places. See 1 Cor. iv. 6 ; xv. 50.

7—10. To those who] The apostle beautifully delineates the character of the primitive believers, who received the word in much affliction ; and who continued to profess and to adorn it by a pious and holy conduct.

11. No respect of persons] That is, in judgment ; in passing the final sentence, he is determined by their real characters, and not by their external privilege, or profession.

12. Without the law] The Mosaic law or revelation is clearly meant ; for none can be without the natural law, under which all are born, and commit sin ; for sin is the transgression of some kind of law.

13. Not the hearers] If we understand by the law, the whole Mosaic law, or revelation, the reasoning of the apostle is conclusive, as it must be in respect to any law.

14. In a natural state] Reason and the constitution of things furnish them with a law ; but it is obvious that they were transgressors of this law, as the Jews were of the written one.

15. The law, in effect] Schleusner shows that το ισχυει is a mere pleonasm. So it is, Eph. iv. 12 ; and it was thus used by the Greeks. The next clause explains this, their conscience, &c.

17—24. But if thou be] The apostle describes the proud spirit and claims of the Jew, arising from his possession of the law ; and then endeavours to humble and confound him by reminding him of his transgressions of that very law.

20. Having the form] A summary of the precepts and truths of the law. The term signifies a draught, a delineation or representation.

22—24. Commit sacrilege] Or, rob the temple, by converting to thy use things holy or dedicated to God. See Mal. iii. 8, &c. Is. lii. 5 ; Ezek. xxxiii. 23.

25. Thy circumcision] The observance of the mere rite is of no avail, unless accompanied with obedience to the other precepts of the law.

26—29. If therefore the] How could a heathen, who knew nothing of the law, keep the precepts of it ? The and circumcision is that of the heart, spiritual and not literal; whose praise is not of men, but of God.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 60. The prerogatives of the Jews, who are yet proved to be sinners as well as the Gentiles; so that none can be justified by the law, but by faith only.

- 1 WHAT then is the pre-eminence of the Jew? or what is the advantage of circum-
- 2 sion? Much every way, but chiefly, because to them were committed the oracles of
- 3 God. For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faithfulness of
- 4 God without effect? By no means: yea, let God be acknowledged true, though every
- 5 man be a liar; as it is written, That thou mayest be justified in thy words, and over-
- 6 come when thou art judged. But if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness
- 7 of God, what shall we say? Is not God unjust who inflicteth punishment? (I speak
- 8 after the manner of men.) By no means: otherwise how shall God judge the world?
- 9 But if the truth of God through my false opinion is rendered abundantly more glorious, why am I still judged as a sinner?
- 10 And why not say, as it is slanderously reported of us, and as some affirm that we say, Let us do evil, that good may come? whose
- 11 condemnation is just.
- 12 What then? do we excel the Gentiles? No, in no wise: for we have before proved
- 13 that both Jews and Gentiles are all under
- 14 sin; As it is written, There is none right-
- 15 eous, no not one: There is none that un-apostle is only reasoning hypothetically and not relating an historical fact; and his design is clearly to mortify the arrogance of the sinful Jews, and to show them that circumcision had a spiritual import and referred to a change of heart and temper.

CHAP. III. 1. What pre-eminence] A Jew is introduced as speaking, and inquiring, if a man may be a Jew by a good frame of mind, by a spiritual circumcision, what advantage hath the Jew?

2—4. Committed the] This is a decisive testimony to the divine authority and inspiration of the Old Testament. What if some did not believe these oracles, and especially that of raising up among them Messiah? Will he be unfaithful on account of their want of faith? No; God will be true, whatever man may be. See Ps. li. 4.

5. But if our] This is again the objection of a Jew, who was about to add, 'Why doth he find fault, or inflict punishment upon us?' but the apostle interrupts him, exclaiming, What! will you conclude that God is unjust in punishing the unbelieving Jews? The apostle denies the inference.

7. For if the truth of God] The Jew resumes his objection, notwithstanding what the apostle had said.

8. And why not say] The apostle supposes that this assertion is so absurd as to need no reply.

9. Do we excel? Are we Jews more deserving than the Gentiles? No, in no wise, &c. See chap. ii. 17—25, and i. 18—32.

10—18. None righteous] In these verses the apostle is thought to quote from various parts of scripture. It is allowed that these passages only prove directly what was the character of the Jews in the time of David; but they prove, by consequence, the general degeneracy of men: for if the Jews, in one of their best periods, were so depraved, derstandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, 12 they are together become corrupted; there is none that doeth good, no not one. Their 13 throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips: Their mouth is 14 full of cursing and bitterness: Their feet 15 are swift to shed blood: Destruction and 16 misery are in their ways: And the way of 17 peace have they not known: There is no 18 fear of God before their eyes. Now we 19 know that whatsoever things the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: so that every mouth must be stopped, and all the world be convicted before God. There- 20 fore by works of law shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin.

But now the righteousness of God with- 21 out works of law is manifested, being attested by the law and the prophets; Even 22 the righteousness of God by faith in Jesus Christ, unto all and upon all who believe; (for there is no difference, Since all have 23 sinned, and fallen short of the glory of God;) Who are justified freely, by his grace, 24 through the redemption which is by Christ Jesus: Whom God hath set forth, a propi- 25 tiatory offering, through faith in his blood, for the manifestation of his righteousness in respect to the remission of sins before committed, during the forbearance of God; For the manifestation, at this time, of his 26 righteousness, that he might be just and yet the justifier of him who believeth in it is natural to infer that the Gentiles were much more so; and in this view the quotations support the apostle's argument.

19. Now we know] This applies to the Jews, as they only had a written law, or revelation of God's will, yet if they could not attain acceptance, either by ceremonial or moral obedience, but were convicted of sin and guilt, what must be the state of the heathen?

21. The righteousness] See note, chap. i. 17.—By the law] That is, by the scriptures of the Old Testament. Compare Gen. xv 6; Ps. xxxii. 1, 2, with Rom. iv. 17; and Habak. ii. 4, with Rom. i. 17.

22. And upon all] Prof. Stewart, 'Offered to all, and bestowed on all who believe.' The offer is general; but the blessing is only enjoyed by believers.—For there is no difference] The sense is, that as there is no difference in the state of men, all being sinners; so there is none as to the way of acceptance.

23. The glory of God] That is, of attaining by works the state of glory in heaven.

24. Who are justified] That is, restored, meaning by it both pardon and a right to life eternal. Freely, without merit on their part; by an act of pure grace. Yet they are not pardoned and accepted to favour without the intervention of the obedience and sacrifice of Christ.

25. A propitiatory offering] Elsner and others consider τύπος as understood; and the next clause renders it certain.—His righteousness] Righteousness here signifies that moral righteousness or justice, which God displays in his method of pardoning sinners through the propitiatory offering of Christ.—Before committed] This refers to the sins which had been pardoned, during all the period which had elapsed from Adam until the death of Christ. During this long period, mercy had been exercised, and no real atonement had been made.

27 Jesus. Where then is glorying? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay, 28 but by the law of faith. Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without 29 works of law. Is he the God of the Jews 30 only? is he not also of the Gentiles? Surely of the Gentiles also; Since it is one and the same God, who will justify both the circumcised and the uncircumcised by faith. 31 Do we then make void the law through faith? By no means: yea, we establish the law.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 60. Abraham accounted righteous by faith; by faith he received the promise; he is the father of all believers, who are accounted righteous in like manner.

- 1 WHAT then shall we say that Abraham our father obtained in respect to the flesh?
- 2 Much every way; yet if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory;
- 3 but this he hath not before God. For what saith the scripture? Abraham believed God and it was counted to him in order to 4 righteousness. Now to him that worketh, the recompense is counted not matter of 5 grace, but of debt. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted in order to 6 righteousness. As David also describeth the happiness of the man, to whom God counteth 7 righteousness without works. Saying, Happy are they whose iniquities are forgiven,

27. By what law] By what law is glorying excluded? Is it by the law of Moses, or by any other, promising life only to perfect obedience? No: it is only excluded by the law of faith. For this supposes that persons confess themselves sinners, and humbly seek all spiritual blessings by believing the promises.

29. Is he the God] Are not Jews and Gentiles equally sinners, and in this respect stand upon a level? And has not God signified his intention of becoming the God of the whole earth? So that it is one and the same, &c.

31. Make void the law] By law seems to be meant the revelation imparted to the Jews, in which this doctrine was stated. See next chapter.

CHAP. IV. 1. In respect to the flesh] Did Abraham obtain righteousness by submitting to circumcision? The Jews had so high an opinion of the merit of circumcision, that they trusted to it for their salvation, maintaining that no one circumcised should perish. See Whitby, and Phil. iii. 3.

2. By works] By his obedience to God, in submitting to the rite of circumcision.

3. In order to righteousness] The common version is for righteousness. If for mean instead of, then faith supplies the place of righteousness, and is substituted for it. How is this to be reconciled with Paul's assertion, that men are justified or counted righteous by or through faith, if faith itself be our righteousness, or admitted in the stead of righteousness? Rom. iii. 28—30; v. 1; Gal. ii. 16; iii. 24. Faith or trust in Christ is usually and justly represented as the medium or instrument of receiving the blessings of righteousness and salvation; and the rendering adopted conveys this meaning. 'In order to righteousness' signifies, in order to a participation of, or interest in the righteousness or the obedience and sufferings of Christ. On this ground only is a believer pardoned and accepted. To count righteousness to a penitent sinner does not make him personally righteous; but he is treated as if he were so, on the ground of what the Saviour has done and suffered. And as the active and passive obedience of Christ and whose sins are covered. Happy is the man to whom the Lord will not count sin.

Cometh this happiness then upon those 9 circumcised only, or upon those uncircumcised also? for we say that faith was counted to Abraham in order to righteousness. How 10 was it then counted? when he was circumcised, or uncircumcised? Not when circumcised, but when uncircumcised. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had, being yet uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all those that believe, though uncircumcised, that righteousness might be counted to them also; And the father of 12 those circumcised, of those who are not circumcised only, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised. For 13 the promise, that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. For if they who are of 14 the law be heirs, faith is useless, and the promise is made of no effect: For the law 15 occasioneth punishment; because where there is no law there is no transgression. Therefore righteousness is by faith, that it 16 might be by grace; so that the promise might be sure to all the seed, not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the

are inseparably connected: so are the blessings flowing from them, pardon or the non-imputation of sin, and the counting righteousness, or treating the believer as if he had fulfilled the righteousness of the law, and was entitled to the life promised by it.

6—8. As David] Compare Ps. xxxii. 1, 2, and notes.—Counteth righteousness] The sinner is pardoned and treated as righteous, without any personal or perfect works of righteousness.

9—12. Cometh this happiness] The apostle ingeniously applies the testimony of David to the acceptance of Abraham; and demonstrates that circumcision cannot be the ground or the medium of it; as Abraham was counted a righteous person many years before the rite of circumcision was instituted.

11. The sign of] Or mark of circumcision. He received it as a sign or mark of the covenant between God and him, and as God's seal of the righteousness which he possessed by believing. The term 'seal' is explanatory of the other; and denotes that the covenant was confirmed and ratified. —That he might be the father] Father, the leader, the example of the way in which men should be justified or counted righteous.

13. Heir of the world] The world here, κοσμος, cannot signify one country or land, as γην sometimes does. It must imply his inheriting a seat out of all nations, whom he may be said to possess, as children are said to be an heritage, Ps. cxxvii 3; Prov. xxii. 6. His being heir of the world not only implies his having a believing seed, but that both he and they should enjoy all the blessings of the covenant made with him.

14, 15. Of the law] Who are under it, and depend on their observance of it; if such only be heirs, then faith is made void, &c. But this is by no means true; for the law to transgressors, as all men are, worketh wrath, or produceth punishment.

16. Sure to all the seed] The apostle teaches us that Abraham has two kinds of seed; one by natural descent, called 'of or under the law'; and another, 'by faith.' The 17 father of us all, (As it is written, A father of many nations have I made thee,) in the sight of that God in whom he believed, who giveth life to the dead, and calleth those things which are not as though they were. For Abraham against hope believed in hope that he should become the father of many nations, according to that which was spoken, So shall thy seed be: And not being weak in faith, he considered not his own body as now dead, when being about a hundred years old, nor yet the deadness of Sarah's womb: Nor did he stagger at the promise of God, through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; And was fully persuaded, that what he had promised he was able also to perform: And therefore it was counted to him in order to righteousness. Now it was not written for his sake only, that it was counted to him; But for our sakes also, to whom it shall be counted; even to us who believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; Who was delivered up for our offences, and was raised again for our justification.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 60. The happy consequences of justification; as sin and death came by Adam, so righteousness and life came by Christ.

1 THEREFORE we, being justified by faith, have peace with God, through our Lord 2 Jesus Christ: Through whom also we have access by faith into this state of grace in which we stand, and exult in hope of the 3 glory of God. And not only so, but we glory also in afflictions: knowing that affliction produceth patience; And patience. ex- 4 perience; and experience, hope: And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of 5 God is shed abroad in our hearts by the inheritance to both was of grace; to the natural seed, the inheritance of Canaan, and to the spiritual, all saving blessings; and the promise to both sure and certain.—Callesh things that are not] Paul means, 'that God can call into existence, things that have now no existence, and employ them for his purposes just as he directs and disposes of things that already exist.'

17. Life to the dead] As to the bodies of Abraham and Sarah. Thus too, life is given to the Gentiles who were dead in sin; and those who were not a people are now become the people of God.

18—22. Against hope] There being natural reasons against hope of posterity.

24. Believe on him] With the same confidence as Abraham did, who has displayed the same power in raising up the Lord Jesus from the dead.

25. For our justification] To assure us of our pardon, acceptance to favour, and hence of our future happiness.

CHAP. V. 1. Therefore being] The apostle infers the consequences of being justified, being counted righteous.—Peace with God] Reconciled to him, and are taught to regard him as a friend and a father.

2. This state of grace] This expresses the state of such as were accepted, as the following words manifest.

3, 4. Glory also in afflictions] Endured in the cause of the Saviour.—Experience] of God's goodness in upholding us; and we obtain such proofs of our own faith as to satisfy us of our interest in Christ.—The love of God] This

Holy Spirit which is given unto us. Now 6 when we were in a perishing state, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. For 7 scarcely for a just man will one die; though peradventure for a benevolent man some would even dare to die: But God com- 8 mendeth his love towards us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by his 9 blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. For if, when we were enemies, we 10 were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. And not only so, but 11 we glory also in God himself through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received this reconciliation.

Moreover, as by one man sin entered into 12 the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, because all have sinned: For until the law sin was in the 13 world: but sin is not charged when there is no law. Nevertheless death reigned from 14 Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the likeness of Adam's transgression, who is a figure of him who was to come. Yet not as the offence so is 15 the free gift: for if by the offence of one the many have died, much more the grace of God, and the gift which is by the grace of one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto the many. And not as the sentence by one 16 that sinned so is the gift, for the sentence was by one offence to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences to justification. For if by one man's offence death reigned 17 through that one; much more shall they, who receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness, reign in life through the one man, Jesus Christ. Therefore, as 18 was shed abroad in their hearts, along with the gifts of the Spirit, both ordinary and extraordinary.

6. Died for the] Or, 'in the stead and room of the ungodly.' Raphael has proved that the original has this sense; and the very next verse proves it demonstratively.

7. A just man] One who gives to all their due. To preserve such a one, scarcely would any considerate person give up his life.—A benevolent man] One kind and liberal, who contributes to the comfort and happiness of others. Probably, for such a character, some may be found willing to die; but what a wonderful instance of love is it, that while we were yet sinners, &c.

9—11. Much more then] Hence justified persons may assure themselves that they shall be saved from future misery. For if when enemies, they, &c.

12. Because] For the sense of εἰς, see Prof. Stewart.

13, 14. Not charged when] Now as death reigned prior to the giving of the law at Sinai, it is evident men were under a law which subjected them as transgressors to death. This could only be the law of nature, chap. ii. 14. Hence it follows that the transgression was not precisely like that of Adam, who transgressed a revealed positive precept.—A figure] Or type of him who was to come. Not so much in their persons as in their actions, the different effects of which the apostle contrasts and illustrates.

15—17. The gift by grace] The gift of righteousness, as the ground of justification.—Shall reign in life] All who receive the gift of righteousness exhibited in the gospel, by the offence of one sentence hath passed upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one hath it passed upon all men to justification of life. For as by the disobedience of one man the many were constituted sinners; so by the obedience of one shall the many be constituted righteous. Moreover the law entered, and showed that offence abounded. But where sin abounded, grace hath much more abounded: That as sin hath reigned by death, even so might grace reign by righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 60. Believers must not live in sin, but are under strong obligations to mortify every unwholy propensity, and to live to God.

1. WHAT then shall we say? shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? By no means. How shall we, who have died to sin, live any longer therein? Know ye not, that so many of us as have been baptized into Christ Jesus have been baptized into his death? We were, therefore, by this baptism into his death, buried with him; that as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glorious power of the Father, even so we also should walk in a new course of life. For if we have been united together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in that of his resurrection: Knowing this, that our old man hath been crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin. For he that is dead is set free from sin. Now, if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: Knowing that Christ, having been raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died for sin once for all: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

In like manner do ye account yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, so as to obey it: Nor yield your members to sin, as instruments of unrighteousness; but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and yield your members to God, as instruments of righteousness. For sin shall not have dominion over you: since ye are not under law, but under grace. What then? shall we sin, because we are not under law, but under grace? By no means. Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But thanks be to God, that though ye were the servants of sin, yet ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered to you. And being made free from sin, ye have become the servants of righteousness. I speak after the manner of men, because 19 of your carnal weakness: for as ye have shall finally enjoy a much more noble and exalted life than that from which Adam fell.

18. Offence of one] For this sentence has passed upon all men so far as to render them liable to sin and death; but by the righteousness of one, hath it, the sentence, come upon all men, upon all who embrace this righteousness to justification of life.

19. Constituted sinners] Or became sinners, and are treated as such; and so are all those who are justified treated as if they had never sinned.

20. The law entered] The moral, under which all men are. Even the positive laws, given afterwards to the Israelites, were in fact founded on the moral, and in consequence of that became obligatory.—Offence] The sin of men abounded, they becoming increasingly depraved.—Grace hath] In innumerable instances the superabounding of grace hath been illustriously displayed. The gospel exhibits and offers to all the abounding grace of God in Christ; and all who believe in him, whatever may have been the number or magnitude of their sins are pardoned and counted righteous.

CHAP. VI. 1. What then shall we say] The apostle now undertakes to vindicate the doctrine which he taught from the consequences some drew from it. See chap. iii. 7, 8.—That grace may abound] Does not this doctrine justify our continuance in sin, that grace may more abound in pardoning and saving us?

2, 3. Who have died to sin] Who have renounced and become dead to the love and practice of it.—Into his death] Into a conformity to his death, and the great design of it.

4. Buried with him] It has been thought that this text alludes to the mode in which persons were at first baptized. But why this burying should have any such allusion, any more than our baptismal crucifixion and death, does not appear. It is evident, that it is not the sign, but the thing signified in baptism, that the apostle here calls being buried with Christ.

5. United together in] The literal sense is not planted, but growing together; but growing in the likeness of his death appears to me so singular, that I cannot think the apostle could intend it. I therefore adopt the sense given, as expressing the union of believers, and their conformity to Christ. See De Sacy and Schleusner.

6. That our old man] The whole system of our depravity, which, in the following part of the verse, he calls, 'the body of sin.' The apostle so styles our depravity, because it chiefly consists in the lusts and passions of our animal nature, by which the mind is enslaved.

8—10. Now, if we have died] We shall share with Christ in the complete holiness and glory of the heavenly state.—Died for sin] The dative must have this sense, or we may consider that there is an ellipsis of the preposition. See Bos. Heb. ix. 26.

11. Do ye account] The apostle had hitherto stated principles, and reasoned upon them; but he now changes the form of address, exhorting them to a suitable improvement of their distinguished privileges.

12—14. Let not sin] Take heed that it do not again rule over you, and ye be enslaved to it; since ye are not under law only, but under grace also.

16. Of sin unto death] The consequence of living in sin will be death; but of obedience, acquittal and acceptance.

17, 18. Obedied from the heart] Willingly and joyfully ye have obeyed.—Which was] Professor Stewart renders, 'That model of doctrine in which ye have been instructed.' But see Kypke. Others, 'That mould of doctrine into which ye were cast.'

19. I speak after the] In respect to servants, accommodating the customs of men, to illustrate the subject.

yielded your members servants to impurity and to iniquity, in order to iniquity; even so now yield your members servants to 20 righteousness, in order to holiness. For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were 21 free from righteousness. What fruit had ye then in those things of which ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things 22 is death. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end will 23 be everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 60. Believers not under the law as a covenant, but are married to Christ; yet the law is holy, just, and good, which a good man acknowledges by his grief for violating it.

1 Know ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? For the married woman is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband die, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she will be deemed an adulteress: but if her husband die, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she marry another man.
 4 Wherefore, my brethren, ye also have become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is risen from the dead; so that we
 5 may bring forth fruit unto God. For when we were in the flesh, the sinful passions, which were excited by the law, wrought powerfully in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death. But now we, having died, 6 are delivered from that law by which we were held in bondage; so that we ought to serve with a new spirit, and not in the old literal manner.

What shall we say then? Is the law sin? 7 By no means. Nay, I had not known what was sin, but by the law: for I had not known the sin of coveting, unless the law had said, Thou shalt not covet. But sin, 8 taking occasion from the commandment, wrought in me all manner of evil desire. For without the law sin is dead. So I was 9 formerly alive without the knowledge of the law; but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. And the com- 10 mandment, which was appointed to give life, was found to be death to me. For sin, 11 taking occasion from the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me. Wherefore 12 the law is holy, and the commandment holy and just and good.

Was then that which is good made death 13 unto me? By no means: But sin, that it might appear sin, worketh death to me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceedingly sinful. We know indeed that the law is spiritual; 14 but I am carnal, sold under sin. For that 15 which I do I approve not; and what I would, that I perform not; but what I hate, that I do. If then I do that which I would 16 not, I assent to the law that it is good.

20, 21. Free from righteousness] Ye did no acts of righteousness; and now having become servants of righteousness, do no acts of sin.

22, 23. Wages of sin] The proper antithesis would have been 'the wages of righteousness;' but instead of that, wages and gift are opposed, to teach us that, though death is the just reward of sin, eternal life is the unmerited gift of grace.

CHAP. VII. 1—4. Know ye not] The apostle now addresses the Jews, who thought the law of Moses to be of perpetual obligation.—May bring forth] In this paragraph there is a climax of the figurative language used by the apostle. First, there is an annulling of a former marriage contract by the death of one of the parties; next, there is a new union formed; and lastly, the fruits of this, and the object of it, are designated.

5. In the flesh] When we were unregenerate Jews. Chap. ii. 21—24; iii. 9—19.

6. By which we were held] Namely, to the law of Moses.—Serve with a new] In the new spirit of the gospel, and not according to the old letter of the law. Comp. 2 Cor. iii. 6.

7. The sin of coveting] This term is retained here, that the reference to the tenth commandment may be noticed. Is the law sin? Does it enjoin any thing evil? No: the law discovers sin. Chap. iii. 20.

8. Sin, taking occasion] While I was ignorant of the demands and sanctions of the law, sin was dead; and I apprehended no more danger from it than from a dead enemy.

9. For I was alive] But when the commandment came, and I understood its extent, purity, and sanction, sin revived, as a powerful enemy, and I died by the curse of the law.

12. Wherefore the law] On the whole, we may conclude, that the law, and the commandment, which forbids us to covet, is holy and just, and good; and it is only the violation of it which brings death.

13. But sin hath] The direct cause of death is sin; and the law, by this sanction, makes sin appear a great and destructive evil. No stronger epithet can be used respecting it than its own name, that it is 'exceedingly sinful.'

14. The law is spiritual] If the ceremonial law may be called a carnal commandment, because of its bodily services; yet the moral is spiritual, extending to the thoughts and desires of the heart.—But I am carnal] When I consider myself by this holy, spiritual law, I am compelled to confess myself comparatively carnal, and sold under sin.

15—21. For that which I] In this whole paragraph the apostle describes his spiritual and renewed part, and his remaining depravity, as two persons. The latter he calls, 'the law of sin in his members;' the flesh, 'the sin that dwelt in him;' the former, 'the mind, the law of his mind, and the inner man.' Between these the apostle experienced a constant struggle; and on many occasions could not do the good which he desired to do, nor avoid the evil which he desired to avoid. Some suppose that the apostle personates an unregenerate Jew. I see nothing in his language to support this opinion. Indeed, what he says cannot belong to an unregenerate man. Does such an one disapprove and hate the evil which he does? Does he consent to the law as good, or delight in it after the inner man? Does he serve it with the mind, his whole soul desiring to be subject and conformed unto it? Compare also the apostle's language, when describing a natural and unregenerate person, chap. vi. 12; xiii. 16, 19; and surely that

17 Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin 18 that dwelleth in me. For I know that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. To will indeed is present with me ; but how to perform that which is good I 19 find not. For the good which I would I do not : but the evil which I would not, that 20 I do. But if I do that which I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwell-21 eth in me. I find then this law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me.
 22 For I delight in the law of God according 23 to the inward man ; But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and even bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my 24 members. O wretched man that I am !
 who will deliver me from this body of death ?
 25 I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then I myself with my mind serve the law of God ; but with my flesh the law of sin.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 60. Believers free from condemnation ; their character as enjoying the spirit ; support under trials ; their interest in the love of God, and final triumph.

1 Yet truly is there now no condemnation
 2 to those who are in Christ Jesus.* For the law of the spirit of life by Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.
 3 For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God hath done, who, by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and by a sin-offering, 4 hath condemned sin in the flesh ; That the difference of language must describe a different state. Comp. Gal. v. 17.

20. It is no more I] If I sometimes, in fact, do what my judgment disapproves, I cannot but maintain it is not so much I that do it, as sin that dwelleth in me ; and this I mention as matter for humiliation, and as what ought to excite to prayer and watchfulness.

21—23. I find then this law] A principle which has the force and power of a law, and to which, in fact, I too often yield obedience.

24. This body of death] The body of sin, which causeth death ; or he denotes his depravity, which he had to bear like a dead body, as an insupportable burden, alluding to the custom of some tyrants, who tied a dead body to a captive, which he had to bear till death ended his sufferings.

CHAP. VIII. 1. No condemnation] The apostle means, that whatever were his infirmities and sinful defects, when he considered himself in reference to the holy law of God, yet as a believer in Christ, he was freed from condemnation.

—(o) Who walk not according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit.—Griesb.

2. For the law of the Spirit] The gospel revealed by the Spirit, and confirmed by his gifts. Michaelis would read αἰών, 'the law of the Spirit and of life'.—Hath made me free] From the condemning and ruling power of sin which would otherwise produce death.

3, 4. For what the law] The law was not weak in itself, but through the sin of man. It could neither deliver from the guilt nor power of sin.—God hath done] The text is elliptical, and the words added are necessary.—Who walk not] Who in some good measure fulfil the precepts of the law, while we walk, not according to our corrupt, but according to our renewed nature, as aided and directed by the Spirit of God.

5. They that are] In a sinful, carnal state, &c.—Accord-

precepts of the law might be fulfilled by us, who walk not according to the flesh, but according to the spirit. For they that are 5 according to the flesh, mind the things of the flesh ; but they that are according to the spirit, the things of the spirit. Now to 6 be of a carnal mind is death ; but to be of a spiritual mind is life and peace. Because 7 the carnal mind is enmity against God : for to the law of God it is not subject, neither indeed can be. So then they that are car- 8 nal cannot please God. But ye are not 9 carnal, but spiritual, since the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. And if Christ be in you, the body indeed is 10 dead on account of sin : but the spirit hath life on account of righteousness. And if 11 the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwell-eth in you.

Therefore, brethren, we are not debtors 12 to the flesh, to live according to the flesh. For if ye live according to the flesh, ye 13 shall die : but if through the Spirit ye mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of 14 God, they are the sons of God. For ye 15 have not received again the spirit of bondage to fear ; but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit himself beareth witness with our 16 spirit, that we are the children of God :

ing to the Spirit] In a spiritual state. Each class will mind relish, and pursue things agreeable to the state they are in.

6—8. To be of a carnal mind] It is, in fact, to regard nothing but the indulgence of animal appetites, passions and desires, which is to be spiritually dead. On the other hand, to be of a spiritual mind is to be habitually concerned for the interest and happiness of the soul, which is life and peace.

8. Cannot please] Cannot be acceptable to God, or approved by him.

9. Since the Spirit of God] This verse proves that Paul addressed the church at Rome as regenerate persons, though there might be some among them who were not so in reality ; for many had received the gifts of the Spirit.—The Spirit of Christ] He reminds them that if a man have not the temper, and holy disposition of Christ, he is none of his.

10, 11. If Christ be in you] This is elliptical, for 'if the mind or Spirit of Christ dwell in you'.—The body is dead] That is, is subject to death on account of sin ; but the Spirit is now quickened and shall have eternal life, on account of the righteousness of God by faith, chap. iii. 21—28.—If the Spirit of him] This must denote the Spirit of God in the personal sense, and it will be by his agency that the mortal bodies of the saints will be at the last day reanimated.

12—14. We are not debtors] We are under obligation not to the flesh, but to grace.—Are led by the Spirit] As are under his sanctifying influence, and follow his guidance, are clearly heirs of life ; for they are sons of God.

15—17. For ye have not received] The spirit of bondage was that of the Jewish law.—But ye have received] The spirit of filial love, and confidence in God, as a father in Christ. The term father, being expressed both in Syriac and Greek, may refer to Jews and Gentiles joining in the same worship, and standing in the same filial relation to 17 And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; so that if we suffer with him, we shall be also glorified with him.

18 Moreover, I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be manifested to us. For the earnest expectation of mankind waiteth for this manifestation to the sons of God. For mankind were made subject to frailty, (not willingly, but by him who put them in subjection,) In hope that mankind will be delivered from the bondage of a perishing state, and brought into the glorious freedom of the sons of God. For we know that all mankind groan and travail in pain together, until now: And not only they, but ourselves also, who have the first-fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, looking for the adoption, even the redemption of our body. In hope, we are indeed saved now: but hope as to what is possessed is not hope; for how can a man hope for what he possesseth? But if we hope for what we possess not, then do we with patience wait for it. And, moreover, the Spirit helpeth our weaknesses; for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit himself intercedeth for us with groanings which cannot be expressed. But he who searcheth the hearts knoweth what the mind of the Spirit is, that intercedeth for the saints according to the will of God. And we know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to his purpose. For whom he foreknew, he predestinated also to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Moreover, whom he predestinated, those he also called: and whom he called, those he also justified: and whom he justified, those he also glorified.

What shall we say therefore to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how will he not with him also freely give us all things? Who shall accuse the elect of God? It is God who justifieth. Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died; yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who intercedeth also for us. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall affliction, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? (As it is written, for thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.) Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor elevation, nor depression, nor any other thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

God.—The Spirit himself] By his gifts and graces, bears witness with our spirit to our adoption.

18–23. For I reckon] Having mentioned suffering, the apostle contrasts it with the glory that shall be revealed, at the blessed resurrection, and accounts it as nothing.—Expectation of mankind] See Mark xvi. 15; Coloss. i. 23.—Made subject to frailty] To diseases and death, not for their own sin only, but on account of the sin of their first father.—Groan and travail] And are therefore indulging earnest expectations of deliverance. And ourselves also, who through grace have believed, and have the first-fruits of the Spirit, groan, &c., looking for the blessed day when mortality shall be swallowed up of life. The view given of this paragraph seems the real sense of the apostle. For first, mankind only can be the subject of earnest expectation; and secondly, the contrast which is made between believers and the creature or creation renders it evident, that the rest of mankind only can be intended. For the sense given, see Lightfoot on Mark xvi. 15, and Schleusner on verses.—The adoption] The resurrection may be thus called because ‘the children of the resurrection’ will be acknowledged to be ‘the children of God,’ Luke xx. 36.

24, 25. In hope indeed] The verb blasphemo is used figuratively, for what is present, or enjoyed, in opposition to what is future. See Schleusner. By adopting this acknowledged sense, the version is freed from ambiguity.

26. And moreover] As the Spirit beareth witness with our spirit, see ver. 16, so he assisteth our weaknesses, in our devotional exercises.

27. Mind of the Spirit] God, who searcheth all hearts, knoweth what is the temper, and what are the desires of the mind influenced by the Spirit; and this intercession for holy men under suffering and persecution is agreeable to his will, who will either rescue or support them.

28. All things] Even the most grievous sufferings shall work for the good of those who love God, &c. See 2 Tim. i. 9.

29. Whom he foreknew] This cannot respect his omniscience only, but rather regards his special favour and love.—That he might be] That he might have the dignity of the first-born, and be the head of many brethren, that they might rise after him, and resemble him.

30. Moreover, whom he] In the 28th verse, Paul describes the character of all believers. There is a lovely and inseparable connexion between the Divine purpose, and the calling, justification, and glorification of his people. Many ancient believers had been thus called, justified, and glorified; and this might be said of many Christians, who had then finished their course; and if this were true of them, it would be true of all other believers to the end of the world. In this view the apostle states principles which had been proved and illustrated by facts; and which would support the hope of believers under all their sufferings.

31, 32. If God be for us] Why should we fear the fiercest opposition? Cannot he moderate it or support us under it? For since he spared not, &c.

33–35. Who intercedeth] By his presence there as the lamb that has been slain.—Who shall separate us] The apostle by saying eis, who, hath personified the things following.

36. As it is written] For what was said of God’s people, Ps. xlv. 22, may be applied to our circumstances.

37. More than conquerors] We not only sustain their assaults; but we are enabled to triumph and rejoice in the assurance of everlasting victory, through the love of Christ.

38, 39. Death nor life] The fear of death, or the desire of life, or the temptations of the most powerful evil angels, or present or future sufferings, or height of prosperity, or depth of adversity, or any other matter, will not be able, &c.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 60. Paul's grief on account of the Jews; the promises are fulfilled to Abraham's spiritual seed; God's sovereign mercy, and the calling of the Gentiles and rejection of the Jews.

- 1 I SPEAK the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience bearing me joint witness with
- 2 the Holy Spirit, That I have great sorrow
- 3 and continual grief in my heart. For I could wish that I myself were made as one
- 4 accursed, after the manner of Christ, for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the
- 5 flesh: Who are Israelites; whose is the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants,
- 6 and the giving of the law, and the temple-service, and the promises: Whose are the
- 7 fathers, and of whom, as concerning the flesh, is Christ, who is over all, God blessed
- 8 for ever. Amen.
- 9 But it is not possible that the word of God should fail. For they are not all
- 10 Israel, who spring from Israel: Nor because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children of promise; but, In Isaac
- 11 shall thy seed be called. Which is, They who are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God; but the children of the promise are counted for the seed.
- 12 For the word of promise is this, At this time will I come, and Sarah shall have a
- 13 son. And not only this; but when Rebecca also had conceived twins by one, even by our father Isaac; And the children 11 being not yet born, and having done neither good nor evil, that the purpose of God according to his election might stand, (not of works, but of him that calleth;) It was said 12 to her, The elder shall serve the younger. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but 13 Esau have I disregarded.

What then shall we say? Is there un- 14 righteousness with God? By no means. For he saith to Moses, I will have mercy on 15 whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion. So then it is not of him that willeth, 16 nor of him that runneth, but of God that hath mercy. For the scripture saith to 17 Pharaoh, Even for this same purpose have I preserved thee, that I might show my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth. So then 18 he hath mercy on whom he will, and whom he will he suffereth to be hardened.

Thou wilt therefore say to me, Why doth 19 he still find fault? For who hath resisted his will? Nay but, O man, who art thou 20 that repliest to God? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? Hath not the potter 21 power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour? What now if God, 22 willing to show his wrath, and to make his CHAP. IX. 1, 2. I speak the truth] While the apostle exulted in the blessings and privileges of believers, he could not contemplate the state of his unbelieving brethren, the Jews, but with the greatest grief and sorrow.

3. For I could wish] It would require a long discussion to state all the renderings of this verse, and to canvass the reasons of them. The version of Doddridge is adopted, which is supported by the sense of the preposition ἵνα, 2 Tim. i. 3. See also 1 John iii. 16. Christ was accounted one accursed, as being crucified. Gal. iii. 13. Paul was willing to die in like manner, if this would induce them to believe. Or, we might render, 'made as one accursed, on account of Christ,' as this sense of the preposition is common; to suppose that the apostle could wish himself to be eternally accursed, would be as absurd as inconsistent with piety.

4. Whose is the adoption] They have been taken and made his family, and called 'his sons, his first-born.' See Exod. iv. 22, 23; Jerem. xxxi. 3, 20.—The glory] Of God in the pillar of cloud, and in the tabernacle and temple.—The covenants] Made with Abraham, and by Moses with the whole people; and 'the giving of the law' at Sinai, and 'the service of the temple,' belonged to them, together with many promises.

5. And of whom] The unbiassed sense of this text supports the doctrine of two natures in the person of our Lord. As to the human, he descended from the fathers; but as to his divine, he was, and ever will be, God over all, blessed for ever.

6. But it is not possible] But though some Jews will be rejected, yet the promises will not fail to be accomplished to the believing seed of Abraham.

8—13. Which is, they who] In these verses the apostle proves his assertion, verses 6, 9, from the examples of Abraham and Israel's children.—According to his election] He freely, without any respect to works, chose Jacob to be the heir of the promise of Canaan, and his posterity to enjoy national and religious privileges; and many among them to spiritual blessings and eternal life.—I loved Jacob] See Mal. i. 3, and note. Gen. xxv. 23.

14. Is there unrighteousness] Is it unjust in God to bestow favours to whom and in what measure he pleaseth? Surely not: for in the exercise of kindness and mercy he does and must act according to his own good pleasure, these not being in any respect deserved.

16. It is not of him] So then, to be the child of promise, the spiritual seed of Abraham, is not of him that willeth, &c. See verse 6, 7. Esau ran to hunt venison for Isaac, and strongly desired the blessing; but it was not bestowed on Jacob, nor refused to Esau, for any thing they did, but from God's mere mercy.

17. For the scripture] See Exod. ix. 16, and note. God continued him in being. Jer. xviii. 2—6, to display his power, and spread abroad his name, as the one true God, and did not cut him off by the plagues.

18. Mercy on whom] See verse 14.—He suffereth to be] See Exod. ix. 23, and note.

19. Who hath resisted his will] Or who can? When he determines to destroy a nation, or a person, who can prevent it?

20—24. Nay but, O man] The apostle answers that there is great irreverence in such language; and is as unbecoming as it would be for the clay to complain of the potter, for not making it into a more honourable vessel.—

22. If God, willing] As he may show his wrath in punishing the guilty, without any impeachment of his justice; especially when it is considered that he has borne with great patience long with them, as he had with you Jews.—Vessels of wrath] These are opposed to the 'vessels of mercy,' and what is said of each should be carefully observed. The former are 'fitted for destruction,' or 'have fitted themselves for destruction,' as the text may be rendered, by their own sins and crimes; but as to the vessels of mercy, it is God who before prepares them for the glory which he has purposed to confer upon them.

power known, have endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath fitted for 23 destruction : And what, if willing to receive us that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he hath before prepared for glory ;
 24 Even us, whom he hath called, not from among the Jews only, but also from among 25 the Gentiles ? As he saith also in Hosea, I will call those my people, who were not my people ; and her beloved, who was not 26 beloved. And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said to them, Ye are not my people ; there shall they be 27 called sons of the living God. But Isaiah crieth out concerning Israel, Though the number of Israel's sons be as the sand of the sea, the remnant only shall be saved :
 28 For he will finish, and cut short the account in righteousness : because a short account will the Lord make in the land. And 29 as Isaiah had said before, Unless the Lord of hosts had left us a seed, we had become as Sodom, and been made like unto Gomorrah.
 30 What shall we say then, That the Gentiles, who followed not after righteousness, have laid hold on righteousness, even the 31 righteousness which is by faith ? But Israel, who followed after the law of righteousness, hath not attained to the law of righteousness.
 32 Wherefore ? Because they sought it not by faith, but as if it were to be attained by the works of the law. For they stumbled 33 at the stone of stumbling ; As it is written, Behold, I lay in Zion a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence ; and yet whosoever confideth in him shall not be ashamed.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 60. Paul asserts his love to the Jews ; states the righteousness of the law, and of faith ; and that Jews and Gentiles who believe shall be saved ; this doctrine taught by the prophets.

1 BRETHREN, my heart's desire and prayer

25, 26. In Hosea] Comp. Hos. chap. i. 10 ; ii. 23, and notes.

27—29. But Isaiah crieth out] See Isaiah x. 22, 23, and i. 9. and the notes.

30. Righteousness] See chap. i. 17, and note. The Gentiles knew nothing respecting the doctrine of righteousness for justification, while in their heathen state ; but on their embracing the gospel, they laid hold of this blessing, and enjoyed pardon and acceptance.

31. The law of righteousness] That the Israelites did follow the law, with the design of attaining a justifying righteousness, is certain ; but they did not reach the requirements of the law for this purpose.

32, 33. As if it were by] As if sinners could attain such a righteousness by their works, which is manifestly absurd. Had they sought it by faith, they would have found it ; but they stumbled, &c. Comp. Is viii. 14 ; xxviii. 16.

CHAP. X. 2. A zeal for God] Or, a godly zeal. That they were zealous for what they esteemed religion is evident, Acts xxi. 27—31 ; xxii. 3 ; but their zeal, not being directed by knowledge, misled them, and occasioned innumerable crimes.

4. For Christ is the end] The righteousness for justification attested by the prophets, and now so plainly revealed to God for Israel is, that they may be saved. For I bear them witness that they have a 2 zeal for God, but not according to knowledge. For being ignorant of the righteous- 3 ness of God, and seeking to establish their own righteousness, they have not submitted themselves to the righteousness of God. For Christ is the end of the law in order 4 to righteousness, to every one that believeth. For Moses describeth the right- 5 eousness which is by the law, That the man who doeth these things shall live by them. But the righteousness which is by faith 6 speaketh thus, Say not in thy heart, Who will ascend into heaven ? that is, to bring Christ down from above : Or, Who will 7 descend into the deep ? that is, to bring up Christ again from the dead. But what 8 saith it ? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart : that is, the word of faith, which we preach. For if thou 9 shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thy heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man 10 believeth to righteousness ; and with the mouth confession is made to salvation. For 11 the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. For there is 12 no difference between the Jew and the Gentile ; for the same Lord of all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whoso- 13 ever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.

How therefore shall men call on him in 14 whom they have not believed ? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard ? and how shall they hear without a preacher ? And how shall men preach 15 unless they be sent ; as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of those who bring glad tidings of peace, who bring glad tidings of good things ! But all have 16 in the gospel, they rejected through their blindness. For Christ is the perfecting end of the moral law, by his full obedience to all its holy precepts and penalty, in order to righteousness to all believers.

5. The man who doeth] See Levit. xviii. 5 ; Deuter. xxvii. 26.

6—10. But the righteousness] Speaks in a different style, and to represent it I may borrow and apply the words of Moses, Deut. xxx. 11—14.—To bring Christ down] The Jews, it seems, expected Messiah to come from heaven in a visible manner, to take possession of his kingdom, which some think was meant by the sign from heaven Matt. xvii. 1.—To bring up Christ] They also thought Messiah would abide and live among them as a king for ever. Hence they refused to admit his resurrection, however forcibly attested. John xii. 34 ; Luke xxiv. 21.—The word is nigh] It is brought home by the gospel. It is nigh thee, easy to be understood.—For with the heart] So as to attain a righteousness for justification, and to attest the power of his faith, confession will be made unto salvation.

11—13. For the same Lord] This seems to refer to the Lord Jesus, (see Acts x. 36.) who in the following verses is spoken of, as preached, believed in, and invoked, in order to salvation. See Joel ii. 32.

not obeyed the gospel: For Isaiah saith, 17 Lord, who hath believed our report? So then belief cometh by hearing, and hearing 18 by the word of God. But I say, Have they not heard? Yes, truly; their sound hath gone forth into all the earth, and their 19 words unto the ends of the world. But I say, Did not Israel know this? First Moses saith, I will move you to jealousy by an abject people; and by a profligate nation I 20 will provoke you. But Isaiah is very bold, and saith, I was found of them that sought me not; I was made manifest to them that 21 asked not for me. But to Israel he saith,
 All the day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gain-saying people.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 60. God hath not cast off all Israel; a remnant saved; there is hope of their future conversion; the Gentiles admonished; God's judgments unsearchable.

1 I ASK then, Hath God cast off his own people? By no means. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe 2 of Benjamin. God hath not cast off his people whom he before loved. Know ye not what the scripture saith on the section of Elijah? how he pleadeth with God 3 against Israel, saying, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek 4 my life. But what saith the divine oracle to him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the 5 knee to the image of Baal. In like manner then, at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace.

14, 15. Shall men call on him] The apostle draws this inference to justify himself and other preachers in proclaiming the gospel wherever they had opportunity.

16. But all have not] This appears to be an objection.
 All did not then, any more than formerly, obey the gospel message; for Isaiah complained and said, Who hath believed, &c. Is. liii. 1.

17. So then belief cometh] Though only those believe to whom the arm of the Lord is revealed, overcoming their prejudices, yet we maintain there can be no faith without hearing the word of God.

18. Have they not heard] Have we not sounded forth the word of the Lord in most parts of the Roman empire, and even in other kingdoms? so that what David said on another subject may be applied to the gospel. Ps. xix. 4.

19, 20. Did not Israel know this] Know that the gospel should be preached to the Gentiles? Moses and the prophets had foretold this, as well as their unbelief. See Deut. xxxii. 21; Is. lxi. 1, 2.

CHAP. XI. 1. Cast off his people] That is, wholly rejected them, so as to have mercy on none of them. By no means. For I also am an Israelite, &c.

2. Whom he before loved] Here the term must denote his choice and his approbation. At all times there have been some chosen and called to faith and obedience. 1 Kings xix. 14. See Campbell.

4. I have reserved] At that time, when the prophet thought himself the only pious worshipper of Jehovah, there were seven thousand scattered through Israel, who had persevered in the good old way. 1 Kings xix. 18.

5, 6. A remnant according] This remnant, or the part left, was honoured and distinguished as the objects of

And if by grace, then it is no more from 6 works: otherwise grace is no more grace.

What then? Israel hath not obtained 7 that which he seeketh for; but those elected have obtained it, and the rest have been blinded unto this day: According as it is 8 written, God hath given them a spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear. And David 9 saith, Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumbling-block, and a recompense unto them: Let their eyes be 10 darkened, that they may not see, and bow down their back always.

I ask then, Have they stumbled so as to 11 fall for ever? By no means: but rather by their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, to excite them to emulation. Now if 12 their fall be the riches of the world, and their failure the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulness. For I 13 speak to you, Gentiles; (inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine 14 office) That by any means I may excite to emulation those that are my own flesh, and may save some of them. For if their 15 rejection be the reconciliation of the world, what will the receiving of them be, but life from the dead? Now if the first-fruits be 16 holy, so also will be the mass: and if the root be holy, so will be the branches.
 And if some of the branches have been 17 broken off, and thou being a wild olive hast been engrafted in their stead, and made a partaker of the root and fatness of the olive tree; Boast not against the branches. 18
 But if thou boast, remember that thou divine favour and choice; and it was through this choice and favour that they had been made to differ from others.

And if grace] Here grace and works are opposed. The next clause is omitted. (c) But if it be of works, then it is no more of grace; otherwise work is no more work.
 Griesb.

7—10. And the rest have been] That is, by their own prejudices and crimes; so that in them may be said to be fulfilled what Isaiah and David predicted, xxix. 10;
 vi. 9; Ps. lxi. 22. &c.

11. So as to fall for ever] By no means. Had the Jews generally received the gospel, their church-state would have been first settled; but as they did not, the gospel was preached to the Gentiles, to awaken their jealousy.

12. The riches of the world] The next clause explains this.

13, 14. For I speak to] Paul was particularly sent to labour among the Gentiles, (Acts xxvi. 17, 18, &c.) and he had a right to speak honourably of his ministry, as tending to their benefit.

15. For if their rejection] Be the means of bringing the Gentile world into a state of reconciliation; what may we expect to occur when they are received again to favour?

16. Now if the first-fruits] The apostle states the ground of his expectation that the Jews will be received again.
 (Numb. xv. 20, 21.)

17, 18. And if some] The branches broken off were the unbelievers among the Jews; and the branches of the wild olive grafted in are the believing Gentiles. How proper the caution to the Gentile not to boast! The wild olive, for want of culture, is barren; but when grafted into a good olive tree is fruitful.

bearest not the root, but the root thee.
 19 Thou wilt say then, The branches have been broken off, that I might be grafted in.
 20 Well; because of unbelief they have been broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be 21 not high-minded, but fear. For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed
 22 lest he spare not thee also: Behold then the kindness and severity of God: on them who have fallen, severity: but towards thee, kindness, if thou continue in his kindness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.
 23 And they also, if they continue not in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is 24 able to graft them in again. For if thou wert cut off from the olive tree, which is wild by nature, and contrary to nature wert grafted into a good olive tree; how much more shall these, which are the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive 25 tree? For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this secret, (lest ye should be wise in your own conceits,) that blindness in part hath happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.
 26 And then all Israel will be saved: as it is written, A deliverer shall come out of Zion, and shall turn away ungodliness from 27 Jacob: And this is my covenant with them, when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the gospel, they are enemies because of you: but as touching the election, they are beloved because of the fathers.
 28 For the gifts and calling of God are 30 without repentance. For as ye formerly disbelieved God, yet have now obtained 31 mercy through their unbelief: Even so have these also now disbelieved, through the mercy shown you, that they may also 32 obtain mercy. For God hath given up all to unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

O the depth of the riches both of the 33 wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known 34 the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? Or who hath first given 35 to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? For of him, and by him, and to 36 him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 60. Men should dedicate themselves to God, and be humble, attending to their peculiar callings; love and other duties enjoined.

I BESEECH you therefore, brethren, by 1 the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, well-pleasing to God, even your rational service. And 2 be not conformed to this world; but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is the good, and well-pleasing, and perfect will of God. For, through the grace bestowed on me, I 3 charge every one that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man his measure of faith. For as we have many mem- 4 bers in one body, and all the members have not the same office; So we, though 5 many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another. Having 6 then gifts differing according to the grace bestowed on us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith; Or ministry, let us attend on our 7 ministry; or he that teacheth, on teaching;

19—22. Thou wilt say then] The apostle probably discovered in some converts a hatred of the Jews, and he labours to eradicate it, and to inspire them with humility and holy fear.

23, 24. If they continue not] The apostle grounded his hope of the final calling of the Jews as a nation on the power of God, and on their church-relation.

25. Fulness of the Gentiles] See ver. 12. The secret Paul makes known clearly means a truth which had not been before fully revealed, 1 Cor. xv. 51.

26. Then all Israel] As the fulness of the Gentiles signifies their general conversion to the Christian faith; so the apostle must mean, by all Israel being saved, their being saved as a nation from their avowed unbelief. See Isa. lix. 20, 21.

28. Enemies because of you] Because of your admission into the gospel-church.—As touching the election] They are so far beloved because of their fathers, as to be the objects of many promises, and which will in the end be fulfilled.

30—32. Disbelieved God] The one only true and living God; were grossly ignorant of him, and worshipped idols of wood, stone, &c.—Given up all] It is necessary to observe that what the apostle asserts refers to different times. God had once suffered the Gentiles to revolt and walk after their own hearts, while he took the seed of Abraham as his own peculiar people; but now he had permitted them to fall, by their unbelief, and had taken the Gentiles, on their believing the gospel, to be his people.

33—36. O the depth of] Here the apostle confesses that the reasons of the divine conduct were altogether incomprehensible; and we ought rather to adore the riches of his wisdom and judgments than unprofitably endeavour to fathom them.

CHAP. XII. 1. A living sacrifice] Every animal was presented to God alive, and then slain and offered. In allusion to this custom, the Christian is to consider himself a living sacrifice, wholly devoted to God; and this is as service or worship, in which reason is to govern, and so is a spiritual service.

2. To this world] To the corrupt and sinful practices of the world, as the Jews were, chap. ii.; and the Gentiles, chap. i.—Prove what is] Prove by trial and experience what is the good, &c. will of God, revealed in the gospel.

4, 5. Many members] This comparison of the church to the human body is made more fully, 1 Cor. xii. 12, &c. Eph. iv. 16, &c.

6. Prophecy] This was vouchsafed to some, and implies either foretelling particular events, or explaining the Old Testament prophecies. They were to prophesy according to the proportion of faith; arising from the revelation communicated, from which they were not to depart.

7. Or ministry] As that of deacons, to whom Paul gives particular directions, 1 Tim. iii. 8, &c.—He that teacheth]

- 8 Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation. He that giveth, let him do it with liberality; he that presideth, with diligence; he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.
- 9 Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. As to brotherly love, be kindly disposed one to another; as to honour prefer one another; As to diligence be not slothful; be fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Rejoice in hope; be patient in affliction; persevere in prayer; Distribute to the necessities of saints; practise hospitality. Bless those who persecute you; bless, and curse not. Rejoice with those that rejoice, and weep with those that weep. Mutually mind the same thing. Mind not high things, but conform yourselves to lowly ones. Be not wise in your own conceits. Return to no one evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men. If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord. Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 60. The duties we owe to magistrates; love the great evil of the law; works of sin and darkness to be avoided.

- 1 Let every person be subject to the supreme powers. For there is no power but from God; and the powers that exist are appointed of God. Whosoever therefore opposeth the power, resisteth the appointment of God: and those who resist will

Any person of competent gifts, who taught the ignorant, or such as were called catechumens.

8. He that exhorteth] This, I think, was the office of the bishop or pastor and implies, not only enforcing Christian duties, but applying the doctrines of Christianity, for the comfort, hope, and joy of the faithful.—He that giveth] Some were then remarkable for their charity; and the exigencies of the times required it. 2 Cor. viii. 2; ix. 13. Presideth over distributions to the poor; and he who has the care of such as are imprisoned for the faith, let him visit them, and show them mercy with all readiness.

11. As to diligence] Indulge not sloth in any affair. Fervent in spirit] Guard against a lukewarm state of mind. This accomplishes nothing excellent.

12—18. Rejoice in hope] These precepts are honourable to Christianity, and were, in a good degree, observed by the primitive Christians.

19—21. Avenge not] See Matt. v. 44.—Give place unto wrath] Leave the injury done you to the wrath of God, who has said 'vengeance,' &c. Deuter. xxxii. 35. See Prov. xxi. 21, and note.

CHAP. XIII. 1. To the supreme powers] A general expression, denoting those who have the power of government in their hands, of whatever kind or form that government may be.—Are appointed of God] Magistracy and government are agreeable to the will of God, and are appointed by him in the general course of his providence.

2. Resisteth the appointment of God] As the apostle is bring on themselves condemnation. For 3 rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Wouldst thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise from it. For the ruler is 4 a minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid: for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, an avenger to execute punishment upon him that doeth evil. Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not 5 only because of punishment, but also because of conscience. For on this account pay ye tribute also; because they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing. Render therefore to all their dues: 6 tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.

Owe to no man any thing, but love to 8 one another: for he that loveth another fulfilleth the law. For the commandments, 9 Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not commit murder, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is summed up in these words, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Love worketh no ill 10 to a neighbour: love therefore is the fulfilling of the law.

And this we should do, knowing the 11 time, that now is the hour to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed: The night is far spent, 12 the day is at hand: let us therefore lay aside the works of darkness, and let us put on the attire of light. Let us walk decently, as in the day; not in revellings and drunkenness, not in debauchery and wantonness, not in strife and envying, But put 14

speaking of government in general, as being the appointment of God, he must mean by resisting it, an attempt to set it aside; and such an attempt would in fact be to resist the appointment of God. But to seek to improve the government of a state, or to alter its form to a better; or to oppose unjust and oppressive laws, or to seek to remove corrupt magistrates, or those who abuse the power with which they have been entrusted, is so far from resisting the appointment of God, that it is the strongest proof of a wise and steady attachment to government, and the lawful end of it, as the appointment of God. For rulers, &c.

3—9. Are not a terror] In these verses the apostle states what should be the end of the laws and of their administration; and so far as they afford security to persons, property, and the acknowledged rights of individuals, we should be subject to them, not only because of punishment, but because of conscience.—Tribute denotes a fixed tax; and custom what was levied on merchandise.

9. (a) Thou shalt not bear false witness.—Griesb.

11—14. Knowing the time] Knowing that our time on earth cannot be long, we should not sleep, but awake unto righteousness; and put on 'the attire of light,' be clothed with the Christian graces, that it may appear that we are children of light.—But put ye on the] Chrysostom observes, that in his day it was usual to say, 'Such a one had put on such a one,' to intimate that he had become his follower and imitator.

ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil its evil desires.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 60. The apostle recommends mutual candour between the converted Jews and the converted Gentiles, as to their practices in respect to food, &c.

- 1 Now the weak in faith kindly receive,
- 2 but not to doubtful disputations. For one believeth that he may eat all things; another, who is weak, eateth herbs only. Let not him who eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him who eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him. Who art thou that judgest the servant of another? to his own master he standeth or falleth: yea, he shall be established: for God is able to establish him. One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it from respect to the Lord: and he that regardeth not the day, from respect to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth from respect to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, from respect to the Lord he eateth not, and yet giveth God thanks. For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live to the Lord; and whether we die, we die to the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. For to this end Christ both died,* and lived again, that he might have dominion both over the dead and the living. But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou despise thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, 11 every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then 12 every one of us shall give an account of himself to God.

Let us not therefore judge one another 13 any more: but judge ye this rather, not to put a stumbling-block before a brother, or an occasion of falling. I know, and am 14 persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean of itself: but if any man esteem any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean. But if thy brother be grieved 15 because of thy food, thou no longer walkest according to love. Destroy not him by thy food, for whom Christ died. Let not 16 then your good be evil spoken of: For the 17 kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit. For he that in these 18 things serveth Christ is well-pleasing to God, and approved by men. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and for the edifying of one another. On account of food destroy not the work 20 of God. All things indeed are pure; but it is evil in that man who eateth so as to cause offence. It is good neither to eat 21 flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do any thing by which thy brother stumbleth or is offended, or is made weak. Hast thou 22 faith? Have it with respect to thyself, in the sight of God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth himself to do. And he that 23 doubteth is condemned if he eat, because he eateth not from faith: for whatsoever is not from faith is sin.

CHAP. XIV. 1. Now the weak in faith] Receive, with brotherly love, the Jewish convert, who is doubtful about the lawfulness of eating meals offered to idols. Respect his scruples, and do not irritate him by perverse disputes.

2. Eateth herbs only] Because he could not find in a Gentile country such animal food as he conceived to be clean.

3. God hath received him] God hath received the Gentile into his church and to his favour, as is evident by the spiritual gifts conferred on him.

4. That judgest the servant] The Jews were prone to condemn the Gentiles for the liberty they exercised in respect to food; and against this temper the apostle justly inveighs.

5. One day above] The Jews esteemed many days as holy, but the Gentiles considered all days of this kind alike, and did not observe them as sacred.

6. He that eateth] He that eateth animal food, &c.—He that eateth not] Any animal food, but liveth on vegetable produce, acts from the same principle, and is thankful.

7—9. None of us liveth] We have become the professed subjects and servants of Christ, and we ought to seek and pursue his honour and glory, both by our life and our death.—Over the dead] From this it appears that the saints who have died, as well as those who are alive, are under the dominion of Jesus, and consequently that the souls of the former enjoy a conscious existence: for if they did not, how could they be subject to Christ?

9. (a) And rose—Grieu.

10—12. Why dost thou judge] Both in this and verse 3, the Jew judges, and the Gentile despises, but the apostle reminds them that they must all stand before the tribunal of Christ, whose sentence will be final. See Is. xlv. 23.—Confess to God] The Hebrew is, 'Swear to God,' but the Sept. and the apostle have explained the prophet.

13. But judge ye this] Exercise your judgment in what relates to your duty, and you will be convinced, that it is the duty of every one not to put, &c.

14. And am persuaded] That 'nothing' proper and suitable for food 'is unclean of itself,' but may be used without sin; yet if a Jew esteem any kind of food unclean, to him it is unclean, and to use it would be to sin.

15. Be grieved] Distressed by doubts and anxieties. Do you in such a case act on the principle of Christian love. Destroy not] Schl. and others render, 'give not pain;' but may not the apostle mean, Do not so act as to occasion the apostacy of any professor?

16. Let not then your] Let not your just views of Christian freedom lead you so to act as to occasion any to speak evil thereof.

20. Destroy not the] The next verse explains this.

22. Hast thou faith] A right persuasion as to these things. Retain it as to thyself in the sight of God; but do not exercise it before men so as to give offence.—Happy is he] Who does not act contrary to his own convictions and conscience.

23. Not from faith] Because he does it, not from a full persuasion that he is right; and whatsoever is done without such a persuasion is sin.

25 Now unto him that is able to establish you, according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the secret not made known since the world began; But hath now been made manifest, and, by the scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the everlasting God, hath been made known to all the Gentiles for the obedience of faith: To God only wise, be glory through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen."

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 60. The strong should bear with the weak, and all of them receive one another as brethren; the reason of Paul's writing this epistle, &c.

1 Now we that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good, to edification.
 3 For even Christ pleased not himself; but, as it is written, The reproaches of those who reproached thee have fallen on me.
 4 For whatsoever things were formerly written were written for our instruction, that we, through the patience and comfort taught by the scriptures, might have hope. Now the God of patience and comfort grant you mutually the same thing, according to the mind of Christ Jesus: That with one consent and with one mouth ye may glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
 7 Wherefore kindly receive each other, as Christ hath received you to the glory of God.
 8 Now I say that Jesus Christ became a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers: And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; as it is written, For this cause I will praise thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name. And again he saith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people. And again, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and celebrate him, all ye peoples. And again, Isaiah saith, There shall be a root of Jesse, and one shall rise to reign over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles hope. Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace, in believing; that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Spirit.

And I myself also am persuaded concerning you, my brethren, that ye also are full of kindness, filled with all knowledge, able to admonish one another also. Nevertheless, brethren, I have written more boldly to you in part, as putting you in mind, because of the grace which God hath bestowed on me, That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Spirit. I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ in things relating to God. For I will not dare to speak of any of those things which Christ hath not wrought by me, but of what he hath wrought to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed, Through mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God; so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ. Yea, I have earnestly endeavoured to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation: But as it is written, Those to whom he had not been spoken of, they shall see: and those that had not heard, they shall understand. On which account also I have been often hindered from coming to you. But now having no longer place for preaching in these parts, and having a great desire for these many years to come unto you; Whensoever I go into Spain, I hope to see you as I pass on, and to be conducted by you on my way thitherward, when I have been in some measure satisfied with your company. But now I am going to Jerusalem to minister unto the saints. For it hath pleased those of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor saints who are at Jerusalem. It hath pleased them indeed; and their 25—27. Now unto him] In the common Greek copies these verses conclude the epistle; but the evidence in favour of their being originally here is so strong that the best writers have here inserted them. See Griesb.—The secret since] The calling of the Gentiles was not wholly kept secret, but it was only occasionally mentioned, and the nature of it was altogether unrevealed until it was made known by the gospel.

CHAP. XV. 3. The reproaches] See Ps. lix. 9. The reproaches cast on God's law and government, by the sins of men, fell on Christ, as he had to suffer for them.

4—7. Were formerly written] We should attend to the scriptures, as containing matter for our direction and comfort, and to inspire us with hope under all our difficulties.—As Christ hath received] No motive could be more forcible with the pious than this, to live in peace and cherish brotherly affection.

8—13. Of the circumcision] He was himself a Jew as man, and exercised his ministry among the Jews, Matt.

xv. 24. On this account Gentile believers should respect them; and as Jesus came to fulfil the promises made to the fathers in favour of the Gentiles, the Jews should not envy or persecute them. See Ps. xviii. 49; Deut. xxxiii. 43; Ps. cxvii. 1; and Is. xi. 10.

14. And I myself also] As Locke observes, the apostle skillfully apologizes for writing unto them.—Full of kindness] Good and kind dispositions towards each other, as well as possessing, in a high degree, Christian knowledge.

17—21. I may glory] In having been made the instrument of so much good in preaching the gospel to the Gentiles.—From Jerusalem] How unwearied had the apostle been in travels and labours of love, appears from this account of the countries where he had preached the word of life. See Is. lii. 15.

22—24. I have been often] Paul's ardent mind led him to form, and urge him to undertake, the most hazardous enterprises to spread the gospel.

25—29. I am going to] This shows when Paul wrote debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual 25 things, the Gentiles ought also to minister to them in worldly things. When therefore I have performed this, and have consigned 29 to them this fruit, I will come by you into Spain. And I know that when I come unto you, I shall come with the fulness of the blessing" of Christ.

30 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in 31 your prayers to God for me: That I may be delivered from those in Judea who believe not, and that my ministry at Jerusalem may be accepted by the saints; That I may come unto you with joy, by the will of God, and may be refreshed together 33 with you. Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 60. Paul commends Phebe, and greets a number of the brethren; cautions them against such as fomented divisions, &c.

1 Now I commend unto you Phebe our sister, who is a deaconess of the church
 2 which is at Cenchrea: That ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a helper of 3 many, and of myself also. Salute Priscilla and Aquila my fellow-labourers in Christ
 4 Jesus: Who have laid down their own necks for my life: unto whom not only I give thanks, but all the churches of the Gentiles also.
 5 Salute likewise the church in their house. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, who is 6 the first-fruits of "Asia" to Christ. Salute Mary, who hath laboured much for you.
 7 Salute Andronicus and Junia, my kinsmen, this epistle. See 2 Cor. ix. 2, 12, and Acts xix. 21.—For if the Gentiles] See 1 Cor. ix. 11.—With the fulness] With such knowledge, graces, and gifts, as to bestow the richest blessings of the gospel upon you. (o) Gospel of] Griesb.

30—33. And by the love] Some understand the love of the Spirit to signify the love which he had to the saints, while others think that it denotes that Christian love which is the fruit of the Spirit.

CHAP. XVI. 1. A deaconess] The habits of the people of Asia and Greece rendered it necessary for well-instructed females to be allowed, and even appointed to visit, teach, and comfort those of their own sex. These deaconesses were generally widows. See 1 Tim. v. 3—9; Phil. iv. 2. Pliny describes them as existing in his time.—Cenchrea] This was the eastern sea-port of the city of Corinth, eight or nine miles distant from it.

2. In the Lord] Receive her as a believer in the Lord; and assist her.

3—5. Salute Priscilla] See Acts xviii. 2, 26. They appear to have been zealous and well-instructed disciples, who for the sake of the gospel had suffered much.—The church in their house] As the first Christians had no buildings erected for public worship, they assembled in private houses; and such an assembly is called a church.—Asia] All the best MSS. support this reading, in preference to the common one, Achaia; and from 1 Cor. xvi. 13, we learn that the family of Stephanus, and not Epenetus, were the first fruits of Achaia.

and my fellow-prisoners, who are of note among the apostles, who also were in Christ before me. Salute Amplias my be- 8 loved in the Lord. Salute Urbanus, my 9 fellow-labourer in Christ, and Stachys my beloved. Salute Apelles who is approved 10 in Christ. Salute those that are of the household of Aristobulus. Salute Herodian 11 my kinsman. Salute those that are of the household of Narcissus, that are in the Lord. Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, 12 who are labouring in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, who hath laboured much in the Lord. Salute Rufus, who is chosen 13 in the Lord; and his mother and mine. Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patro- 14 bas, Hermes, and the brethren that are with them. Salute Philologus, and Julia, 15 Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints that are with them. Salute 16 one another with a holy kiss. "All" the churches of Christ salute you.

Now I beseech you, brethren, mark those 17 who cause divisions and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For those that are such, serve 18 not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the innocent. For 19 your obedience hath come abroad unto all. I rejoice therefore on your account: but yet I would have you wise concerning that which is good, and simple concerning evil. And the God of peace will quickly bruise 20 Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Timothy 21 my fellow-labourer, and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen, salute you. I 22 Tertius, the scribe of this epistle, salute you in the Lord. Gaius my host, and the host 23

6. Much for you] For this reading, see Griesbach. Who this Mary was we know not; nor how she had laboured for the brethren at Rome, unless as a zealous Christian or deaconess.

7. My kinsmen] The apostle, chap. ix. 3, styles all the Jews his kinsmen. It is therefore uncertain whether these persons were relations in blood, or only of the same nation.

8—16. Salute Amplias] The names of the Roman brethren here mentioned are not noticed elsewhere, and we know nothing more of them than that they were believers.—With a holy kiss] The Jews considered the kiss as an expression of friendship. See 2 Sam. xx. 9; Luke vii. 43. The first Christians adopted it from the Jews.—The churches] There was one at Corinth, and another at Cenchrea, and perhaps many other Christian assemblies in Achaia, who all joined in this salutation.—(a) Griesb.

17, 18. Mark those who] Jewish zealots, who pretended by their ceremonious rites to add perfection to the Christian system; and hence sought to make proselytes to their own views, and to serve their own carnal interests.

20. Bruise Satan] See Gen. iii. 15. Bad men, the instruments of Satan, especially the persecuting Jews.

22. Tertius, the scribe] Whether he wrote what Paul dictated, or copied in a more legible hand what Paul had written, is uncertain.

23. Gaius] He is supposed to be the person mentioned, 1 Cor. i. 14, whom Paul had baptized, and who, being rich of the whole church, saluteth you. Erastus the chamberlain of the city, and Quartus a 24 brother, salute you. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE C O R I N T H I A N S .

INTRODUCTION.

CORINTH was situated on the Isthmus which joins Peloponnesus to Greece, and from its situation became famous for its trade and commerce, wealth and luxury. Here the apostle Paul laboured near two full years; and a numerous church was gathered and formed, consisting both of Jews and Gentiles. On his departure they were divided into parties and factions; and some teachers among them disputed Paul's apostolic mission. His design in writing this epistle was to defend his own authority, to correct the abuses and corruptions which had crept into the church, and to answer some queries which had been sent to him.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 57. After saluting them, the apostle reproves their dissensions; he vindicates the gospel, and the plain manner of preaching it, as tending to advance the Divine glory.

- 1 PAUL, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and Sosthenes,
- 2 a brother, To the church of God which is at Corinth, to those that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and
- 3 ours: Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.
- 4 I thank my God always on your account, for the grace of God which is bestowed on
- 5 you by Jesus Christ; For ye have been enriched by him, in every thing, even in all
- 6 utterance, and in all knowledge; According as the testimony concerning Christ was
- 7 confirmed among you: So that ye are inferior in no gift; earnestly expecting the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ:
- 8 Who will also establish you blameless unto the end, even to the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. God is faithful, by whom ye have 9 been called into fellowship with his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

Now I beseech you, brethren, by the 10 name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment. For it hath 11 been declared unto me concerning you, my brethren, by those that are of the household of Chloe, that there are contentions among you. Now I mean this, that every 12 one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I, of Apollos; and I, of Peter; and I, of Christ. Is Christ divided? was Paul cru- 13 cified for you? or were ye baptized into the name of Paul? I thank God that I baptized 14 none of you, but Crispus and Gaius; So that 15 none can say that I baptized into mine own name. But I baptized also the household 16 of Stephanas: besides, I know not that I baptized any other.

For Christ sent me not so much to bap- 17 tize, as to preach the gospel; not with CHAP. I. 1. Called to be an apostle] In the most singular manner. See Acts ix.—Sosthenes] If this person be the same as mentioned Acts xviii. 17, he must have been afterwards converted, and became a preacher, and was now the fellow-labourer of Paul.

2. Sanctified] Set apart in the Divine purpose. As this is mentioned as prior to their being 'called to be saints,' the sense given must be admitted. See Jude, verse 1.—Call upon the name] See note, Acts ix. 21.

4—9. I thank my God] What the apostle says does not respect every individual, but such among them as had received miraculous gifts; such as 'utterance' of tongues they had not spoken; 'knowledge' of the Christian doctrine, &c.

[16. Speak the same thing] Maintain the same doctrine and sentiments so as to avoid divisions or schisms; that there may be no diminution of Christian esteem and affection.

12. Now I mean this] That you regard different teachers as different leaders, and you range yourselves as followers of some one of them. 'One saith, I am of Paul;' I am his disciple and follower.—I, of Christ] From this we may infer that there were some Jews at Corinth, who had heard our Lord preach, and who claimed, on this account, particular honour.

13—16. Is Christ divided] As to his person or doctrine. 'Was Paul crucified for you?' He uses his own name with great delicacy, though the same might be said of Peter, or of Apollos.

17. Wisdom of speech] Learned and eloquent speech, adorned with all the beauties of language.

wisdom of speech, lest the cross of Christ 18 should be made of no effect. For the preaching of the cross is to those that are lost, foolishness; but unto us that are 19 saved, it is the power of God. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the under-20 standing of the prudent. Where is the wise, wherethe scribe? where is the dis-puter of this world? hath not God made 21 foolish the wisdom of this world? For after that, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness which we preach, to save 22 those who believe. For the Jews require signs, and the Greeks seek after wisdom:
23 But we preach Christ crucified; to the Jews a stumbling-block, and to the Greeks 24 foolishness; But to those that are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of 25 God, and the wisdom of God. For this foolishness of God is wiser than men; and this weakness of God is stronger than men.
26 For observe, brethren, those of you that are called, as men judge, that not many are wise, not many mighty, not many 27 noble; But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to put to shame the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to put to shame the 28 things which are mighty; And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that 29 are: That no flesh should glory in his 30 presence of God." By him then are ye in Christ Jesus, whom God hath made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and 31 sanctification, and redemption: That, ac-ording as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 57. Paul declares that though his preaching was not in the style of human wisdom, yet it was far above the wisdom of this world to discover or impart the matter of it.

AND accordingly I, brethren, when I 1 came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God. For I determined 2 not to make known any thing among you, but Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And 3
I was with you in weakness, and in much fear, and trembling. And my speech and 4 my preaching were not with persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: That your faith 5 might not be founded in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

However, we speak wisdom among those 6 that are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the rulers of this world, who will come to nought: But we speak 7
the unknown hidden wisdom of God, which God ordained before the world for our glory: Which none of the rulers of this 8 world knew: (for if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.) But as it is written, Things which 9 eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, God hath prepared for them that love him.
But God hath revealed them to us by his 10 Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. For what 11 man knoweth the things of a man, but the spirit of a man which is in him? In like manner also, none knoweth the things of

18. Are lost—saved] The apostle describes sinners as lost from the state in which they are, and believers as saved, for the same reason.

19, 20. It is written] Is. xxix. 14. This shows that God had a design to confound the boasted wisdom of the proud. Where now is the wise?—Made foolish] Shown it to be so, by teaching men its insufficiency to convey the knowledge of God, or to reform sinners.

21. After that, in the] In the wisdom of God displayed in his works and government, it appeared that the wisest men of the world knew not in reality God, it pleased God, &c.—By the foolishness] By the doctrine of a crucified Saviour, to save all who believe. The context supports the sense given; yet some apply it to an unlearned method of preaching. But see ver. 18—23.

22—25. The Jews require signs] Miracles and wonders to usher in a temporal Messiah; and the Greeks wisdom, some scheme of philosophy. What is meant by 'the foolishness of God' being wiser than men, is explained in the following verses.

26. Those called] The sense is given, and not the idiom, and the apostle refers both to common professors and preachers.—Not many are] 'Not many' implies, that there were some, who had been taught the philosophy of the schools—some men of power, by their wealth or their offices—and some of noble descent, who had been called.

27—29. Foolish things] Persons so accounted by the wise; weak, base, or ignoble and despised; even Gentiles, who were regarded by the Jews as nothing, Deut. xxxii. 21, and 1 Pet. ii. 10, to bring to nought, &c., to occupy the place and enjoy the privileges of which the Jews deprived themselves by their unbelief.—(a) Griesb.

30. By him then are] It is owing to God, then, who hath taught us wisdom of a nature far more excellent than any scheme of philosophy; so that by him we have righteousness for our justification, the Spirit for our sanctification, and are expecting redemption from all the evils and enemies we have had to encounter.

CHAP. II. 2. Not to make known] Locke, in effect, gives this sense. 'Not to own, or show any knowledge,' &c. So also Whitty. The connexion requires it.

3. In weakness] He probably refers to his bodily infirmities, and to his humble situation, 2 Cor. x. 10.

4, 5. In demonstration] Though not adorned with the beauties of human eloquence; yet it was attended with the fullest evidence of its divine origin, by the gifts of the Holy Spirit, and the miracles with which it had been confirmed. See Acts x. 38.

6. That are perfect] In the judgment of well-instructed Christians we speak wisdom; yet not the wisdom of this world, &c. The wisdom the apostle spoke was what regarded the person and offices of Christ, and the doctrines of the gospel.

7—10. The unknown hidden] The doctrines of the gospel lay hid, in a great measure, in the types and figures of the law of Moses, and in the Old Testament prophecies, until the coming of our Lord, by whose ministry and death, and the subsequent labours of his apostles, they were made manifest, Is. lxiv. 4.

11. In like manner] The Spirit of God is as much one 12 God, but the Spirit of God. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is from God; that we may know the things which have been freely given to us by God. Which things we speak also, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Spirit teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the carnal man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness to him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually searched out. But he that is spiritual searcheth out all things, yet he himself is searched out by no man. For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct the spiritual man? But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 57. Paul reproves them as carnal, shows that ministers are nothing without Christ, who is the only foundation; men should regard themselves as the temples of God, and keep themselves pure, &c.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, I could not speak to you as to spiritual, but as to carnal, as to babes in Christ. I fed you with milk, and not with meat: for ye were not then able to bear it; nor indeed are ye now able. For ye are still carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as carnal men? For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal?
5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, with God as the conscious principle or spirit of a man is one with him.

13. Comparing spiritual. Comparing one revelation with another, using our reason as Peter did, Acts xi. 28, and Paul himself, Acts xvi. 9, 10. Doddridge, 'Explaining spiritual things in spiritual words.' Dr. Pearce, 'Explaining spiritual things to spiritual men.' The text will bear any of these renderings; and I am not able to decide which is the true one. The first gives the most usual sense of συνεπαίρει; the second supposes that the term λογισ, words, is implied, which agrees with the preceding clauses; and the third that αφευρισ, men, is understood, which connects with the following verse.—(o) Holy. Griesb.

14. The carnal man] One who maintains the sufficiency of his own reason and follows the gratification of his senses, confining his thoughts and cares to this life only.—Neither can he know] Not for want of understanding; but from his strong indisposition towards them.—Searched out] The term is so rendered, Acts xvii. 11, where it means a diligent and careful examination of the Old Testament scriptures.

15. Spiritual] One born of the Spirit will search out all things which he hears, reasoning upon the revelations which unfold the scheme of salvation; yet he himself is searched out by no carnal man; as such cannot judge of his principles, or the mode of his reasoning.

16. That he may instruct him] Who of the philosophers or rabbies can instruct the spiritual man?—But we have] He speaks of himself and other inspired teachers, as knowing the mind of Christ, respecting the way of salvation, and all things relating to it.

CHAP. III. 1. As to carnal] What he immediately adds, as to babes, shows that 'carnal' signifies only that they were comparatively so.

but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to each of us? I planted, 6 Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So that neither is he that planteth 7 any thing, nor he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase. Now he that 8 planteth, and he that watereth, are one: and each will receive his own reward, according to his own labour. For we are 9 fellow-labourers of God: ye are God's field: ye are God's building. According to the 10 grace of God which hath been given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth upon it. But let every man take heed how he buildeth upon it. For no other foundation 11 can any man lay than what is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build 12 upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, grass, stubble; Every man's 13 work will be made manifest: for the day will declare it, because it will be revealed with fire; and the fire will try every man's work of what kind it is. If any man's 14 work remain which he hath built upon this foundation, he shall receive a reward. If 15 any man's work shall be burned, he will suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as through fire.

Know ye not that ye are the temple of 16 God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth among you? If any one defile this temple 17 of God, him will God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. Let no one deceive himself. If any man 18

2—4. I fed you with milk] Taught you the first principles of the gospel.—Walk as carnal men] Showing great ignorance of the gospel, in regarding it as if it owed its authority to those who preach it, and not to God.

5—8. Who then is Paul] He mentions himself first, that he might confound the adherents of others. The planter or waterer is nothing compared with him who gives the increase.—Are one] One in design, interest, and affection; and each will receive his own reward.

9. Fellow-labourers] This gives the real sense of the word, as expressing the union of Christian ministers in the work of God; and no one minister ought to value himself above another, nor should hearers.—God's field] So the Sept. use the word, Prov. xxiv. 30; xxxi. 16. The church is God's field, and ministers his labourers to cultivate it.

11, 12. For no other] No other firm and solid foundation of a sinner's hope and happiness can any man lay than this; and let every builder aim to raise a temple adorned with gold and silver, and precious stones, and not a mean hut, made of wood and covered with hay and stubble. By these terms the apostle meant that every teacher should teach the pure doctrines of truth, unminged with Jewish or heathen conceits and customs.

13—15. For the day] This refers to the day or time of per-secution, which will be, as it were, with fire, God trying every work and doctrine.—He himself shall be] Because he made Christ the foundation; but with difficulty, as one who escapes through the fire. See Ps. lxxi. 12; Is. xlii. 2; Jude, verse 23.

16, 17. The temple of God] As a church of Christ they had this honour.—Defile this] By false doctrines, bad example, or contentious behaviour.—Destroy] The verb φθηναι is used in its two related senses. See Parkh.

18. Thinketh himself wise] Make pretence of being wise, as having received the doctrines taught by philosophers or among you thinketh himself wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may 19 be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness.

 20 And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts 21 of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore let none glory in men. For all things are 22 yours; Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Peter, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all things are 23 yours; And ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 57. In what light ministers should be regarded; how they were exposed to trials and persecutions; yet they should be followed as our examples, &c.

- 1 LET a man so account of us, as of ministers of Christ, and stewards of the revealed
- 2 truths of God. Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man should be found
- 3 faithful. But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you, or by human judgment: yea I do not even
- 4 judge myself. For I am not conscious to myself of any evil; yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the
- 5 Lord. Therefore judge nothing before the time: until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts of men: and then shall every man have praise from God.
- 6 Now these things, brethren, I have transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up in behalf of
- 7 one against another. For who maketh rabbits.—Become a fool] Embrace the gospel, which men of the world deem foolishness, and he will then be in the true sense a wise man.

19. Wisdom of this world] All its attainments in moral science, and as to the way of salvation, are foolishness with God, John v. 13; Ps. xciv. 11.

22. Whether Paul] We are all furnished with gifts for your edification; and whatever the world affords is for you, Rom. viii. 28.—And ye are Christ's] His servants, as Christ was the Father's servant in the great work of salvation.

CHAP. IV. 1, 2. So account of us] Let none glory in us; but think of us in a proper manner, as 'ministers of Christ,' whom he hath entrusted with the gospel for the salvation of men.

4. For I am not conscious] Of having done any thing to justify those charges which some teachers have brought against me: yet am I, &c. The apostle appeals to the decision of Christ at the last day.

5. Of the hearts] This is similar to Revel. ii. 23; and as it is applied to our Lord, must imply such knowledge as belongs only to God.

6. Transferred to myself] That ye should not make us the heads of parties, and much less should you rank yourselves under others as leaders.

7. Maketh thee to differ] This is addressed to any proud factious leader, who boasted of his knowledge and gifts.

8. Are ye now full] With Pearce, I render interrogatively, that St. Paul may not affirm and deny the same thee to differ from another? and what hast thou which thou didst not receive? now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst received it not? Are ye now full? are ye now rich? have ye reigned as kings without us? I even wish that ye did reign, that we also might reign with you. For I think that God hath brought forth us apostles last on the stage, as devoted to death: for we are made a spectacle to the world, both to angels and to men. We are fools for the sake of Christ, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, but ye are strong; ye are honourable, but we are despised. To this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are beaten, and have no certain abode; And labour, working with our own hands; being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we bear it: Being evil-spoken of, we exhort; we are made as the vilest of the world, as the offscouring of all things, until now. I write not these things to shame you; but I admonish you as my beloved children. For if ye have ten thousand guides in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for I have begotten you in Christ Jesus through the gospel. Wherefore I beseech you, be ye imitators of me. For this cause have I sent unto you Timothy, who is my beloved and faithful son in the Lord, who will remind you of my ways which are in Christ, as I teach every where in every church.

Now some are puffed up, as though I should not come to you. But I will come to you shortly, if the Lord permit, and will know, not the speech of those who are puffed up, but the power. For the kingdom of God is not in speech, but in power.

thing. This rendering implies, that some of them thought themselves full and rich, and that they had an authority like kings.

9. For I think that God] The apostle alludes to those last exposed to fight with wild beasts or with one another, and who were devoted to certain destruction.—A spectacle] While we are suffering persecutions, we are exposed to the notice of good and evil angels, as well as of men. See Heb. x. 33.

10. We are fools] So accounted for the plainness of our preaching; but 'ye are wise,' because ye follow those who study eloquence and philosophy. We are deemed 'weak' by our infirmities, &c.

12. Working with our] This shows that Paul speaks of himself in the preceding verses. Compare 1 Thess. ii. 9, and 2 Thess. iii. 8.

13. As the vilest of the world] The original word denotes such criminals as were sacrificed to appease the heathen gods, and remove some calamity.

15. Guides in Christ] Or such as attend upon youth.—I have begotten you] He first preached the gospel among them, and was the happy instrument of their calling and Christian privileges.

18—20. Now, some are] He refers to their factious leaders and teachers, who pretended that Paul durst not visit Corinth again; but I will come, &c.—Not the speech] however eloquent, but 'the power' of inflicting punishment on offenders, as well as working miracles.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 57. The scandalous conduct of one member of the church; directions respecting him.

21 WHAT do ye prefer? that I come to you with a rod, or in love and in the spirit of meekness?

1 It is generally reported that there is impurity among you, and such impurity as is not committed among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife. And are ye puffed up? And have ye not rather mourned? So that he who hath done this deed might be taken away from among you. For I truly, as absent in body, but present in spirit, have already judged, as though I were present, him that hath so done this deed; That ye and my spirit being gathered together in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, Do deliver up such an one to Satan, for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? Cleanse out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, and as ye ought to be, unleavened: for our passover, Christ, hath been slain for us. Let us therefore keep the feast, not with old leaven, nor with the leaven of wickedness and maliciousness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 I write to you in this epistle not to keep company with the impure: Yet not wholly with the impure, or the covetous, or oppressors, or idolaters of this world; for then indeed ye must go out of the world. But now I write to you not to keep company with any man that is called a brother, if he be impure, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an oppressor; with such an one do not even eat. For 12 what have I to do to judge those also that are without the church? Should not ye judge those that are within? But those that 13 are without, God will judge. Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 57. Paul blames them for going to law; mentions who shall not inherit God's kingdom, and the obligations of believers to holiness and purity.

DOTH any of you, having a matter against 1 another, dare to go to law before the unrighteous, and not before the saints? Know 2 ye not that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world is to be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest causes? Know ye not that we shall judge angels? 3 how much more things which belong to this life? If then ye have judgments of causes be- 4 longing to this life, set those to judge who are least esteemed in the church. I speak to 5 your shame. Is it so, that there is not even one wise man among you, who can decide between his brethren; But brother 6 goeth to law with brother, and that before unbelievers? Now therefore it is certainly a 7 defect among you, that ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take 8 wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? Whereas ye wrong, 8 and defraud; and that your brethren.

Know ye not that the unrighteous shall 9 not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor pathics, nor abusers of CHAP. V. 1. Have his father's wife] The son might have married his father's divorced wife, who was only his mother-in-law, not his own mother. From 2 Cor. vii. 12, the father appears to have been living.

2. Are ye puffed up] With an opinion of your purity and perfection as a church?—Might be taken away] If they had mourned for this deed, they would have cut off from their communion such an unworthy member.

3—5. For I truly, as absent] Paul, by virtue of his authority as an apostle, proceeds to pass sentence on this offender. The church being assembled, and the apostle being present, 'in spirit or mind,' armed as he was with miraculous power, they were to pass the sentence on him.—Such an one to Satan] Some bodily disease was to be inflicted, which should gradually consume the offender, unless God should, on his repentance, remove it. Comp. Luke xii. 16; 2 Cor. xii. 7; and 1 Tim. i. 20. This mode of punishment was confined to the age of miracles. Chap. xi. 30.

6—8. Your glorying is] In your eloquent and boasting leaders' is not good, when they can suffer such an offence, without any regret, or even censure. Exod. xii. 15; xiii. 7.—Old leaven] The wickedness and sins in which you once lived; that ye may be a new unleavened mass, serving God in purity. The beauty of this application of the Jewish passover, and the circumstances of it, every reader must perceive. Let your lives be a continued and joyful serving of God.

9. I write to you in] For the propriety of this rendering, see Whitby, and Middleton in loc. Compare Rom. xv. 15.

Philem. xix. 21, &c. The apostle refers to what he had just written respecting the incestuous person; but lest he should be misunderstood he adds,

10. Yet not wholly with] The world, or the unconverted, were too commonly guilty of such impure and wicked deeds; and a man must go out of it before he could altogether avoid the company of such persons.

11. Called a brother] This was an usual name among professed believers; and if any such should act so unbecomingly his Christian calling, others ought, after proper admonition, to regard him as a heathen or publican. Matt. xviii. 17.

12. What have I to do] It does not belong to me to judge those who are without the pale of the church; but is it not your duty to judge those within it?

CHAP. VI. 1. Before the unrighteous] Heathen magistrates or arbitrators, who were often unrighteous in their decisions; but in a religious sense were so as to their characters.—Before the saints] The Romans allowed the Jews to decide and judge any differences which arose among themselves; and it is probable that the first Christians, being considered as a Jewish sect, had the same privilege. See Campbell's ninth Lect. on Eccles. Hist.

2—4. Judge angels] The fallen ones, in the same manner, as the world,—Least esteemed] Make these judges of any differences rather than heathens.

5—8. I speak to you] That you should act in the manner you do; and thus expose the cause of Christ to contempt by your quarrels and treatment of one another.

9—11. Know ye not] The following list of offenders

10 themselves with mankind, Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor oppressors, shall inherit the kingdom of 11 God. And such were some of you: but ye have been washed, but ye have been sanctified, but ye have been justified, through the name of the Lord Jesus, and through the Spirit of our God.
 12 All things are lawful to me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought 13 under the power of any thing. Meats are for the belly, and the belly for meats: yet God will destroy both it and them. But the body is not for fornication, but for the 14 Lord; and the Lord for the body. And God hath both raised up the Lord, and 15 will raise up us also by his power. Know ye not that your bodies are members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them members of a 16 harlot? By no means. Know ye not that he who is joined to a harlot is one body? (for the two, saith he, shall be one flesh.)
 17 But he that is joined unto the Lord is one 18 spirit. Flee fornication. Most sins which a man committeth are without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth 19 against his own body. Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God?
 20 Nor are ye your own: For ye were bought with a price: therefore glorify God with your body?

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 57. Marriage a remedy to fornication; the bond of it should not be lightly dissolved; men should be content in their situation; advice to young persons, widows and widowers, &c.

1 Now concerning those things about which shows the prevailing vices of the heathens, from which the Corinthians had been, in some measure, saved by the gospel. — Pathics] Such as suffered themselves to be abused by men. — Through the name] That is, through the Lord Jesus, they were justified; and through the work of the Spirit, they were sanctified.

12. All things are lawful] Christians are not restrained by the ceremonial law. Many things are lawful to them, which were not to the Jews. But some of these things are 'not expedient,' because they may offend a weak brother.

13. Meats are] It is not necessary to abstain from certain kinds of food, forbidden by the law, or offered to idols, see chap. viii.; but it is necessary to use moderation, and act in a charitable manner.

15. Members of Christ] Shall I take then one of these and join it to a harlot? By no means.

17. Is one spirit] Hath one mind and spirit with him, as partaking of the grace and influence of the Holy Spirit.

18–20. Most sins] Leave their defilement on the mind; but the fornicator humbles and debases his own body; and as the body is the temple of the Spirit, impurity is an act of sacrilege. — Nor are ye your] This is another argument for purity. They were his property who had bought them, by the blood of his own Son. — (v) And with your spirit, which are God's. Griesb.

CHAP. VII. 1. Not to take a wife] In present times and circumstances, when individuals are exposed to so many trials and sufferings.

ye wrote to me: It is good for a man not to take a wife. Nevertheless, to avoid 2 fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband. Let the husband render what is 3 due to the wife; and in like manner the wife also to the husband. The wife hath 4 not power over her own body, but the husband; and in like manner the husband 5 also hath not power over his own body, but the wife. Deprive not one another of what 6 is due, unless by consent for a short time, that ye may have leisure for prayer; and 7 come together again, that Satan tempt you not through your incontinence. But this I 8 speak by way of permission, and not by way of commandment. For I would that 9 all men were even as I myself am. But every man hath his proper gift of God, one 10 after this manner, and another after that.

Now I say to widowers and to widows: 8 It is good for them if they remain even as I. But if they have not continence, let 9 them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn. And to the married I command, 10 yet not I only, but the Lord, that the wife depart not from her husband: (But if she 11 depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband:) and that the husband put not away his wife.

But to the rest I speak, not the Lord: 12 If any brother have an unbelieving wife, and she be pleased to dwell with him, let him not put her away. And if a woman 13 have an unbelieving husband, and he choose to dwell with her, let her not put him away. For the unbelieving husband is 14 sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband: otherwise your children would be unclean; but

2. To avoid fornication] We have here the moral end of marriage, and a strong argument against polygamy. See verse 9.

3. Render what is due] Treat her in all respects as a wife; and let her in return treat him as her husband.

5. Unless by consent] In such times of persecution married persons might agree to exercise self-denial and mortification for the purpose of devotion; but they are to guard against their spiritual enemy, who might avail himself of this, to tempt them. — (v) Fasting and. Griesb.

6. This I speak] I speak this concerning marriage, and some duties arising from it, by way of permission, but not as enjoining them. For I would that all, &c. See the reason of this wish, verses 26, 28.

8. To widowers] To those who now have no wives. See Schleus. in ayawos. In this sense there is an agreement with the next term, 'widows.'

10, 11. But the Lord] Who condemned divorce, except in case of adultery. Mark x. 11, 12. — But if she depart] Having either quarrelled with him, or he, for some trifling cause, having given her a bill of divorce, let her remain unmarried, &c. See Matt. xix. 9.

12, 13. I speak, not the Lord] I speak as an inspired apostle; not the Lord Jesus, who has left us no precept on this subject. Paul distinguishes the commands which our Lord gave in his ministry, from those which were revealed to the apostles by the Spirit. Comp. 2 Pet. iii. 2; Jude, verse 17. — Let her not put him] See Mark x. 12, and note.

15 now are they holy. But if the unbelieving person depart, let such depart. A brother or a sister is not enslaved in such cases. God however hath called us to peace.

16 For how knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O husband, whether thou shalt save thy wife

17 However as God hath distributed to every one, as the Lord hath called every one, so let him walk. And thus I appoint

18 in all the churches. Hath any man been called, being circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised. Hath any man been called in uncircumcision? let him not

19 be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God is

20 necessary. Let every man remain in the 21 same calling wherein he was called. Wast thou called being a servant? care not for it: but if thou canst be made free, use it

22 rather. For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is the freeman of the Lord: in like manner also he that is called, being a freeman, is the servant of Christ.

23 Ye were bought with a price; become not

24 ye servants to men. Brethren, let every man remain with God, in that state wherein he was called.

25 Now concerning single persons I have no commandment of the Lord; but I give my judgment, as having obtained mercy of

26 the Lord to be faithful. I judge therefore that this is good because of the present distress; I say, that it is good for a man

27 to continue as he is. Art thou bound to a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou

28 loosed from a wife? seek not a wife. But if thou marry, thou hast not sinned; and if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned. Nevertheless, such will have trouble in the flesh: but I spare you. However this I say, brethren, the time is short. It remaineth, that they that have wives be as though they had none; And they that 30 weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy, as though they possessed not; And they that use this world, as 31 though they used it not: for the fashion of this world passeth away. But I would have 32 you without anxious care. He that is unmarried careth for the things of the Lord, how he may please the Lord: But he that 33 is married careth for the things of the world, how he may please his wife. There 34 is a difference also between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit; but she that is married careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband. And this I speak for your own advantage; 35 not that I may cast a snare upon you, but for that which is becoming, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

But if any man think that he behaveth 36 himself unbecomingly towards his virgin-daughter, if she pass the flower of her age, and it ought so to be, let him do what he pleaseth, he sinneth not, let such marry. But he that standeth stedfast in his heart, 37 having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so determined in his heart, that he will keep his virgin-daughter unmarried, doeth well. So then 38 he that giveth her in marriage, doeth well; but he that giveth her not in marriage, doeth better.

The wife is bound by law as long as her 39

14. By the wife] The believing wife, as the structure of the passage evidently suggests; and so 'by the husband' must be meant the believing husband. Sanctified so far, by this relation to a believer, that their children were admitted to the rite of Christian baptism, and other privileges as they grew up; and were thus regarded as relatively holy, being dedicated to the true God.

16. For how knowest] It must often occur in those times that a wife or husband must have been instrumental in promoting the knowledge of their ignorant partners, and, in the end, the means of their conversion.

18. Become uncircumcised] Let him make use of no method to appear so. See 1 Macc. i. 15.—Not be circumcised] The Judaizing teachers urged this; but the apostle condemned it. Gal. v. 2, 3; vi. 12—15.

20. Remain in the same] And not think that Christianity affects his civil state; but let him improve his condition in life, if he can do it by lawful means.

23, 24. Ye were bought] Those who were freemen should regard themselves as the property of Christ, and not sell themselves to heathens, as this would be attended with many difficulties respecting their Christian duties.

25. Single persons] The original term denotes persons of either sex who are unmarried, and for this reason I adopt the rendering given.—No commandment of] None delivered by him when on earth; but I give my judgment as having obtained mercy. He refers to his inspiration in the words, I give my judgment, &c.

26—28. To continue as he is] This is confined to a season of persecution.

29—31. It remaineth] Owing to our circumstances we should not be too much attached to one another, or worldly things, 'for the fashion of this world,' the persons and things of it, are ever changing and passing away.

32—35. Without anxious care] In married life there are many cares from which single persons are free; and if single persons be serious, they have more leisure for devotion, and for labours of love and kindness.

36—38. Towards his virgin-daughter] Kypke has shown that πρὸς τὴν παρθένον αὐτοῦ has the sense given, in Eurip. and other writers. Daughters were under the absolute power of parents. But if a father thought he acted with too much rigour, in not giving his daughter in marriage; 'and it ought so to be' from her inclination or other circumstances; let him give her in marriage, nor would he sin by so doing.—But he that] Having firmly resolved to keep her unmarried, and 'having no necessity' from her expressed desire, nor being compelled by any law, hath power over his own will, &c. From this we may conclude, that in the present state of the church, he that giveth her in marriage, doeth well; but he that giveth, &c.

39—40. The wife is bound] See Rom. vii. 2.—Only in husband liveth; but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to 40 whom she will; only in the Lord. But she is happier if she remain as she is, in my judgment; and I am conscious that I have the Spirit of God.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 57. On things offered to idols; we ought not to offend a weak brother, but if we have knowledge, we should join to it brotherly affection.

1 Now concerning idol-sacrifices, we know (for we all have knowledge: Knowledge puffeth up, but love edifieth. And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know. 3 But if any man love God, such an one is made to know by him. Concerning therefore the eating of idol-sacrifices, we know) that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is no other God but one. For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, (as there are gods many and lords many,) But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we for him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him. But all have not this knowledge: for some with a consciousness of the idol, unto this hour eat as of an idol-sacrifice; and their conscience, being 8 weak, is defiled. But food commendeth us not to God: for neither, if we eat, are we the better; nor, if we eat not, are we 9 the worse. But take heed lest by any means this your liberty become a stumbling-block to those that are weak. For if 10 any man see thee who hast knowledge, placed at meat in an idol's temple, will not the conscience of him who is weak be 11 emboldened to eat of those idol-sacrifices? And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died?

the Lord. She must marry a believer, one who is in Christ by faith and profession. See Rom. xvi. 11.—That I have the Spirit] Wolfius and others consider δοξω not as expressing doubt, but certainty. It cannot be imagined that Paul, if he had not been inspired, would have referred to it at all. For to say, 'I think that I have,' or I seem to have the 'Spirit of God,' to an English reader conveys doubt whether he had or not.

CHAP. VIII. 1—4. We know] Idol-sacrifices were partly eaten in the idol's temple, and partly sold in the shambles.—For we all have knowledge] The Corinthians prided themselves in their knowledge; and hence the apostle adds the remarks included in the parenthesis.—That an idol is nothing] Represents what has no existence, much less dignity.

5. In heaven] As those called the greater gods, such as Jupiter, &c.—On earth] Various deified powers, supposed to be messengers and mediators between the celestial gods and mankind, such as nymphs, the penates, &c.

6. But to us there] Christians, who own and worship the one only and true God, 'of whom are all things, and we for him,' for his service and glory; and we are brought to this knowledge and the privileges of it by the Lord Jesus, as the visible agent of all things.

7. With a consciousness of] With a persuasion that the

But when ye sin thus against the brethren, 12 and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ. Wherefore, if food cause 13 my brother to offend, I will never more eat flesh, lest I cause my brother to offend.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 57. Paul mentions his own conduct and practice as a proof of his desire not to offend any; but if possible to win them to Christ.

Am I not a free-man? am I not an 1 apostle? have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? are not ye my work in the Lord? If I be not an apostle unto others, yet 2 doubtless I am to you: for ye are the seal of mine apostleship in the Lord. My defence to those that examine me is this, Have we not a right to eat and to drink? 4 Have we not a right to lead about a Christian wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and especially Peter, do? Or have I and Barnabas only 6 no right to forbear working? Who ever serveth in war at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of its fruit? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? Say I these 8 things after the manner of men? or doth not the law also say the same? For it is 9 written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? Or doth he say this altogether 10 for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this was written: for he that ploweth ought to plow in hope: and he that thrasheth should do it in hope of partaking. If we have sown to you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your worldly things? If others be 12 partakers of this right over you, ought not we rather? Nevertheless we have not used this right; but endure all things, that we idol is a real superior being; and in this view, partaking of it they sin against their own conscience, because they act contrary to what they perceive.

10. In an idol's temple] Where the feasts or sacrifices were made, on which many of the poor were accustomed to eat.—Will not the] Will not weak and uninformed brethren be induced to eat after your example?

11. Weak brother] See Rom. xiv. 15, and note; and consider the next verse, where they are said to 'wound their weak consciences.'

13. I will never more] How noble this resolution! Paul would do nothing to ensnare, but would exercise any self-denial to promote the peace and comfort of the weakest brethren.

CHAP. IX. 1, 2. Am I not a free-man] These questions not only bear on the subject which occupied the apostle's mind; but were cutting to those who had called his authority in question.

3—6. To those that examine me] Why I do not receive a stipend from you, as if I were not an apostle on this account.—To eat and to drink] At the charge of our converts; or 'to lead about a Christian wife' as well as other apostles.

7—14. Who ever serveth in war] These questions amount to this, that the labourer is worthy of his hire.—After the manner] According to their customs. Does not the law

- may not give any hinderance to the gospel
 13 of Christ. Know ye not that they who minister about holy things, live of the things of the temple? and they who attend at the altar are partakers with the altar?
 14 So likewise hath the Lord appointed that the preachers of the gospel should live by the gospel.
 15 But I have used none of these things. Nor do I write these things, that it should be thus done to me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make 16 my glorying void. For if I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, wo to me, 17 if I preach not the gospel! For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward; but if against my will, the dispensation of the 18 gospel is committed to me. What then is my reward? That, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, so as not to use my right in the gospel.
 19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself a servant to all, that I 20 might gain the more. And to the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to those that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain those that 21 are under the law; To those that are without the law, as without the law. (being not without law to God, but under law to Christ,) that I might gain those that are 22 without the law. To the weak I became as weak, that I might gain the weak: I become all things to all men, that I may 23 by all means save some. And this I do teach the same? See Deuter. xxv. 4.—Live of the things] He alludes to the Jewish and heathen priests, who had a portion of the offerings made for their own support.

15. I have used none] I have not claimed the rights and privileges of my office.

16. Have nothing to glory of] In preaching it as others do, and living by it; 'for necessity is laid, &c.' by the Lord Jesus, who called me so miraculously to this work; and wo to me, if I should be unfaithful and negligent.

17. Against my will] Still the dispensation of the gospel is committed to me, and I must be accountable for the trust.

18. Without charge, so as not] That this is the sense appears from verse 12. If Paul had received support, he would not have 'abused his right,' but have simply exercised it as others did.

20. To the Jews] When living with them, observing the customs as to meats and other indifferent things; and going so far as to circumcise Timothy, &c. Paul did not teach that it was sinful in the Jews observing the law, when they believed, but he taught that it was unnecessary, and might be dangerous, as leading them to trust in it instead of Christ.

21. To those without law] To the Gentiles, who were without the law of Moses, without any revelation.—Being not without] The apostle, while he did not observe the ceremonial law, regarded the moral law of God, while he lived under the law of Christ, or the gospel.

23. That I may be a joint] With other Christians, may attain the prize of my high calling of God, future happiness.

24. Know ye not] The Isthmean games, so famous in for the sake of the gospel, that I may be a joint-partaker of its promises.

Know ye not that those who run in a 24 race, run all, but one only receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain. And 25 every man who contendeth in the games, is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, as not 26 uncertainly; I so fight, as not striking the 27 air: but I bruise my body, and bring it into subjection; lest by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be rejected.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 57. The privileges, sins, and punishments of the Jews are recorded for our admonition; idolatry must be avoided; how the Lord's supper should be observed, &c.

For, brethren, I would not have you ignorant, that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; And were all baptized into Moses in the 2 cloud and in the sea; And all ate the same 3 spiritual food; And all drank the same spiritual drink. (For they drank of the water 4 which followed them out of the spiritual rock; and that rock was Christ.) Yet 5 with most of them God was not well pleased: for they were destroyed in the desert.

Now these things are become examples 6 to us, that we should not desire evil things, as they also desired. Nor be ye idolaters, 7 as were some of them; as it is written, This people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play. Nor let us commit forni- 8

Greece, were celebrated near Corinth; and to these the apostle beautifully alludes.

26. As not uncertainly] With respect to the event; but with a full assurance of obtaining the prize set before me.—As not striking the air] Wasting my strength and my labour, by missing my aims, as the boxer sometimes did.

27. I bruise my body] As the boxer did that of his antagonist, and bring it into subjection to my own reason and to the law of Christ.—Rejected] And thus I should lose the expected reward.

CHAP. X. 1. Have you ignorant] Having noticed his own conduct, 'lest he should be disapproved and rejected,' he shows from what happened to the Israelites that there is need of such watchfulness, as all are not saved who enjoy the advantage of revelation and its ordinances.

2. Baptized into Moses] All participate in the laws and institutions enjoined by him. See Rom. vi. 3; Gal. iii. 27. By their being in the cloud and sea, they declared their belief in the Lord and in his servant Moses. See Exod. xiv. 31.

3, 4. Spiritual food] The manna is so called, because it had a spiritual meaning. See John vi. 45, &c.—For they drank] The text requires the explanatory terms added. The same figurative mode of speaking occurs, chap. ix. 13, 14; Heb. xiii. 10. Compare Exod. xvii. 5, 6; Ps. lxxviii. 16. The rock smitten was an emblem of Christ stricken and smitten of God, when he suffered for our sins, as the water was of the effusion of the Spirit. John iv. 14; vii. 37.

6—8. Are become] By being recorded, admonitory examples to us, &c.—Evil things] They loathed the manna, and desired flesh and other things, which they partook of in the worship of idols, &c. Ps. lxxviii. 30, &c. Exod.

- cation, as some of them committed, and fell in one day 'twenty-four' thousand.
- 9 Nor let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and perished by serpents.
- 10 Nor murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and perished by the destroyer.
- 11 Now all these things happened to them for examples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the 12 ages are come. Wherefore let him who seemeth to stand, take heed lest he fall.
- 13 No temptation hath befallen you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above your ability; but with the temptation will make a way also to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.
- 14 Wherefore, my dearly beloved, flee from 15 idolatry. I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say. 'The cup of blessing, for which we give thanks, is it not a common partaking of the blood of Christ? The loaf which we break, is it not a common 17 partaking of the body of Christ? For as there is but one loaf, so we, though many, are but one body: for we are all partakers 18 of that one loaf. Behold Israel according to the flesh: are not they who eat of the sacrifices, common partakers of the altar? 19 What say I then? that an idol is any thing; or that an idol-sacrifice is any thing? 20 Nay; but I say, that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons, and not to God: and I would not that ye should be common partakers with 21 demons. Ye cannot drink the Lord's cup, and the cup of demons: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table 22 of demons. Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?

xxxii. 6—19; and Numb. xxv. 1—9.—Twenty-four thousand] As some copies so read still, I prefer it to the common one, as a mistake might be easily made by the custom of writing numbers in an abbreviated form.

9—11. Tempt Christ] There is good authority for reading 'Lord' instead of Christ. Griesbach has put Lord into the inner margin, as of nearly equal authority. See Numb. xxi. 6.—By the destroyer] The angel of punishment; or any agent, as the plague, &c., by which they were destroyed.

12. Who seemeth to stand] To himself to stand firm, from these examples learn caution and watchfulness, lest he should fall and perish.

13. Common to man] And what a man may not only bear, but surmount.

15—17. Judge ye what I say] Paul considered that they had understanding, and he calls upon them to use it.—A common partaking] Is not the design of the cup 'a common partaking' of that which represents 'the blood of Christ?' And so of the loaf.—Are but one body] One society, maintaining the same faith, and serving the same Lord, and our union is manifest from our partaking of one loaf.

18. Partakers of the altar] Part was consumed to the honour of God; and of part they partook in common, as joined in the same worship.

20. Nay but I say] The apostle's questions strongly imply the contempt he had both for idols and their worship; and the structure of the language renders this addition ne-

All things are lawful,* but all things are 23 not expedient: all things are lawful, but all things edify not. Let no man seek his 24 own good only, but every man that of another also. Eat whatever is sold in the 25 shambles, asking no question because of conscience: For the earth is the Lord's, 26 and all that is therein. And if any of 27 those who believe not ask you to a feast, and you be disposed to go; eat what is set before you, asking no question because of conscience. But if any man say to you, This 28 hath been offered to idols; eat not, because of him, who told thee, and because of conscience. I say, not thine own con- 29 science, but that of the other: For why should my liberty be condemned by another man's conscience? If I partake with 30 thanksgiving, why should I be evil spoken of on account of that for which I gave thanks? For this reason, whether ye eat 31 or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do to the glory of God. Give no occasion of offend- 32 ing, either to the Jews, or to the Gentiles, or to the church of God: As I also please 33 all men in all things: not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved. Be ye imitators of me, 1 even as I also am of Christ.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 57. Paul gives directions about women praying and prophesying; reproves their disorders and contentions; and reminds them of the nature of the Lord's supper, &c.

Now I praise you, brethren, because ye 2 remember me in all things, and keep the traditions, as I delivered them to you. But 3 I would have you to know, that the head of every man is Christ; and that the head necessary.—To demons] The spirits of men, which superstition had deified, in the same manner as popery has its saints. See 1 Tim. iv. 1, and Mede and Pearce.—Partakers with] Paul did not forbid the eating or drinking of what was offered to idols, but all fellowship with idolaters.

21, 22. Ye cannot drink] Ye cannot thus maintain fellowship with idolaters in their religious feasts, consistently with your own Christian principles, and without encouraging them.

13—26. All things are] To which Christian liberty extends. See chap. vi. 12.—Sold in the shambles] Part of the flesh of animals which had been sacrificed was sometimes given to the poor, who sold it again.

23. (o) For me] Griesb.

28. Any man] Any Christian or Jew; then respect his scruples, and wound not thy own conscience by acting uncharitably.

29—31. For why should my] The apostle illustrates what he had said, 'not thine own conscience,' but that of the others who informed thee, and who thought eating of it unlawful. Then to eat is contrary to benevolence.

CHAP. XI. 2. The traditions] Or the precepts which the apostle had given them relating to the manner of worshipping God. See v. 16, 23, and 2 Thess. ii. 15.

3. Is Christ] You as Christians are members of his body, the church, subject to his authority, as the woman is to the man; and as he is to the Father, chap. iii. 23.

of the woman is the man; and that the 4 head of Christ is God. Every man praying or prophesying having his head covered, 5 dishonoureth his head. But every woman praying or prophesying having her head uncovered, dishonoureth her head: for that is one and the same thing as if her head 6 were shaven. For if a woman be not covered, let her head even be shorn: but if it be shameful that a woman should have her head shaven or shorn, let her head be 7 covered. For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, since he is the image and glory of God: but woman is the glory
 8 of man. For man is not of the woman;
 9 but the woman of the man. Nor indeed was man created for the woman; but 10 woman for the man. For this cause a woman ought to have a veil on her head, 11 because of the angels. Nevertheless, neither is the woman without the man, nor the man without the woman, through the 12 Lord. For as the woman is of the man, so is the man also by the woman; but 13 all things are of God. Judge among your own selves: is it becoming that a 14 woman pray to God uncovered? Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a dishonour to him; 15 But that, if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her? because her hair is given her 16 for a covering. But if any one be contentious, we have no such custom, nor the churches of God.
 17 But I praise you not when I declare this; that ye come not together for the better, but for the worse. For first, when 18 ye come together in the church, I hear that there are divisions among you: and I partly believe it. For there must be sects 19 among you, that they who are approved among you may be made manifest. When 20 therefore ye come together into one place, it is not to eat the Lord's supper. For when 21 ye eat, every one taketh before others his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is full. What? have ye not houses 22 to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God, and shame those that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you for this? I praise you not.

For I have received from the Lord that 23 which I delivered also unto you, That the Lord Jesus, the same night, on which he was delivered up, took a loaf: And when 24
 he had given thanks, he broke it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me.
 In like manner he took the cup also, when 25
 he had supped, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood: this do ye, as often as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, 26 and drink this cup, ye do show forth the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore 27 whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, will be guilty of profaning the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, 28 and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and 29 drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh

4. Dishonoureth his head] By appearing as if he were in subjection, instead of being the head of the woman.

5. Every woman praying] That the Spirit was poured upon some women, see Joel ii. 28; Acts xxvii. 17; xxi. 9, &c. In such cases they were allowed to pray and prophesy in the church; but unless thus excited by the impulse of the Spirit, they were not allowed. See chap. xiv.
 34. &c. 1 Tim. iii. 12.—Her head uncovered] Among the Jews, Greeks, and Romans, women wore veils when they appeared in public; and these veils covered both the head and the face. To be unveiled was to show a want of modesty; and some understand by her head her husband, who was dishonoured by her impudence.

6. Should have her head shorn] Women of licentious habits were punished among the Jews with this mark of infamy.

7. The image and glory of God] As to the dominion granted him, and the proper exercise of it, see Ps. viii. 5, 6. In other respects the woman is as much the image and glory of God as the man.—The glory of the man] As being taken from, made for, and put in subjection to him.

10. Because of the angels] Some render 'messengers,' and suppose persons sent from the men's separate assemblies to be meant. Heuman endeavours to prove that they were messengers sent by the pagans to observe what was said or done in the Christian assembly. Compare Heb. xi.
 31, and James ii. 25.

11—16. Nor the man without] Let not the man be lifted up with pride against the woman; as neither can exist without the other.—Even nature] Is not long hair among men regarded as a mark of delicacy and pride?
 While, on the other hand, it is considered as the glory of a woman, being given, &c.

17. I praise you not] He had praised them, verse 2;

but here, with great delicacy, he censures them for their divisions and improper behaviour.

18, 19. Come together in the church] Or congregation.
 Here and verse 22, church must signify the people, and not the place, as is clear from verse 20.—Divisions] Separate parties, eating and drinking by themselves, contrary to the nature of the Lord's supper.—Must be sects] Arising from different opinions obstinately maintained, and with the purpose of drawing away men, and of making gain. See Gal. v. 20.

20. It is not to eat] But instead of that, you make it only a common meal. The Syriac renders the words translated 'Lord's supper,' a 'meal which is proper for the Lord's day,' or 'a sabbath's meal;' as Michaelis has observed.
 See his Anmerk. in loc.

22. The church of God] Offend many of your brethren, and shame the poor, who have it not in their power to bring provisions as you do.

23—25. I received from the Lord] By special revelation; and so he did the whole gospel which he preached.
 See Gal. i. 11, 12, and notes, Matt. xxv. 26—28.

26. The Lord's death] The Lord's supper is a communion of his death; and this is the end of the institution; and not eating and drinking, as at ordinary feasts or meals.

27. Unworthily] As some of you do, by regarding it as a common meal, and taking occasion from it to form parties.—Will be guilty] Will be liable to the punishment due for so grossly dishonouring the symbols of the Lord's body and blood.

28. Examine himself] If he come to this ordinance to keep up the remembrance of the death of Christ, and from a grateful sense of his love, as well as with a firm purpose to obey and serve him, then let him eat that bread, &c.

so as to bring punishment on himself, not 30 distinguishing the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and a considerable number are dead.
 31 But if we would judge ourselves, we should 32 not be judged. But when we are judged by the Lord we are chastened, that we should not be condemned with the world.
 33 Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat the Lord's supper, wait one 34 for another. And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home; that ye may not come together unto punishment. But the rest will I set in order when I come.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 57. Spiritual gifts are bestowed in various degrees; yet like the various members of the human body are all necessary, and tend to the perfection of the body of Christ.

1 Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren,
 2 I would not have you ignorant. Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away to those dumb idols even as ye were led.
 3 Wherefore I declare, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God, saith Jesus is accursed; and that no man can affirm that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Spirit.
 4 Now there are differences of gifts, but the 5 same Spirit. And there are differences of 6 ministries, but the same Lord. And there are differences of operations, but it is the same God who worketh all things in all.
 7 And to each is given the manifest influence of the Spirit for the advantage of all.
 8 For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge according to the same Spirit; To 9 another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit;

 To another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another the discerning 10 of spirits; to another different kinds of languages; to another the interpretation of languages. But all these things worketh 11 that one and the same Spirit, distributing to every man severally as he pleaseth.

For as the body is one, and hath many 12 members, and all the members of that one body, though many, are one body; so is the body of Christ also. For by one Spirit 13 we have been all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Gentiles, whether bond or free; and have been all made to drink of one spirit. For the body is not one mem- 14 ber, but many. If the foot shall say, Be- 15 cause I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? And 16 if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? If the whole body were an eye, 17 where would be the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where would be the smelling?
 But now God hath disposed every one of 18
 the members in the body, as it hath pleased him. And if they were all one member, 19 where would be the body? But now there 20 are many members, yet only one body. The 21 eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee; nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. Nay, those members 22 of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are much more necessary: And those mem- 23

29. Punishment on] The next verse shows plainly that this is the sense of αμα here, as it is in other places. See Matt. xxiii. 14; Rom. xiii. 2.—Not distinguishing] Not making any difference between the bread, the symbol of the Lord's body, and ordinary bread.

30. For this cause] On account of the abuse of the Lord's supper, many in the church at Corinth were then under temporal punishment, weak and sick, and some had died. See Acts v. 5; 1 Cor. v. 5; 2 Cor. x. 8.

31. But if we would judge] So as to distinguish the Lord's supper from an ordinary meal, we should not be judged in this manner.

33, 34. Wait one for] And appear as one family, united in love. And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home.

CHAP. XII. 1. Spiritual gifts] See chap. xiv. 1. Pearce and Locke suppose persons are understood who enjoyed the spiritual gifts.

3. Jesus is accursed] As the unbelieving Jews did, because he was crucified, Gal. iii. 13.—Jesus is the Lord] By so doing acknowledging his resurrection, exaltation, dominion, and glory. Such a man must be enlightened and possessed of the Holy Spirit in his gifts and graces.

4-6. Of operations] Or works of power, but it is the same God, &c. It is the same Spirit 'who worketh all things in all.' It is the same Lord 'who worketh all things,' &c. It is the same God, 'who worketh,' &c. In this view we must say, either that the terms Spirit, Lord, God, mean the same person; and will prove the Divinity of the Spirit; or that they refer to each, and prove each is a partaker of the same essence. This opinion is ancient. See ver. 11.

8-11. Word of wisdom] A full knowledge of the gospel in all its parts, called the 'wisdom of God,' chap. ii. 7, 10; and how it was connected with former dispensations.

Some think this was peculiar to the apostles, Eph. iii. 10, and 2 Pet. iii. 15.—Word of knowledge] To explain the types and prophecies of the Old Testament. See chap. xiii. 2, 8.—Faith] Such an assurance or full conviction of the truth of the gospel as enabled him to preach it with boldness, courage, and perseverance.—Gifts of healing] These were promised, Mark xvi. 17, and many possessed and exercised them under the direction of the Spirit.—Working of miracles] Of various other and stupendous ones for the confirmation of the gospel.—Prophecy] See chap. xiv. 3, 24, 29, 30.—Discerning of spirits] So as to know whether those who prophesied, were inspired or not, Heb. iv. 12.—Different languages—interpretation] The former was given to spread the gospel, or to edify any foreign convert who might be present in some religious assembly, and the latter to edify the great body of the people, who would not otherwise have understood what had been said.

12. So is Christ also] As to the church, which is frequently called the body of Christ. Pearce ingeniously supposes that Paul wrote οὗτο τὸ τοῦ Χριστοῦ; so also is that of Christ.

13. All baptized into one body] To be baptized into the name, or into Moses or Christ, signifies participation, so that we belong to Moses or Christ; to be members of his body, or of one society. Hence they should endeavour to preserve Christian unity and fellowship.

14-22. The body is not] As the natural body hath many members; so also hath the body of Christ the church. They are all necessary to the perfection of the body, and have need of each other.

22-26. Are much more necessary] To abate the pride of superiority in station or gifts, the apostle makes the-

bers of the body, which we think to be less honourable, upon these we bestow more abundant honour; and our uncomely members obtain more abundant comeliness. 24 For our comely members have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given to the member which wanted 25 it, more abundant honour; That there should be no division in the body; but that the members should have the same care for one 26 another. And thus if one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or if one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it. Now ye are the body of Christ, 27 and members in part. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers, then miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, 29 different kinds of languages. Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? 30 are all workers of miracles? Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak in different languages? do all interpret?

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 57. Gifts, however excellent, are nothing without love; the nature of it; its preference to faith and hope.

31 Now ye earnestly desire the best gifts; but yet I show unto you a more excellent 1 way: For though I could speak in the languages of men and of angels, and have not love, I should be like sounding brass, or like 2 a noisy cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all unknown truths, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, 3 and have not love, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing. Love is long-suffering and kind; 4 love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, Doth not behave itself unbecomingly, seeketh not its own, is not easily provoked, deviseth not evil, Rejoiceth 6 not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; Covereth all things, believeth all things, 7 hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall be done away; whether there be languages, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall be done away. For we know in part, and we 9 prophesy in part: But when that which is 10 perfect cometh, then that which is in part shall be done away. When I was a child, 11 I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I reasoned as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things. For 12 now we see as through a dim glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then I shall fully know even as I also am fully known. And now remaineth faith, 13 hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 57. Prophecy commended as more useful than other gifts; edification should be considered as the great end of all; the abuse of gifts reprov'd.

FOLLOW after love, and earnestly desire 1 spiritual gifts; but rather that ye may prophesy. For he that speaketh in a different 2 language, speaketh not to men, but to God: for no one understandeth him: however in spirit he speaketh truths unknown. But he 3

27. Members in part] That is, some of them. For those at Corinth were but a few in comparison of those who then believed.

28-30. First apostles] Those who had received their commission immediately from Christ, and had seen him after his resurrection.—Prophets—teachers] The former may denote such as possessed 'the word of knowledge' as well as the gift of prophecy, verses 8, 10; the latter, those who had faith, so as to teach by preaching with uncommon boldness and success.—Miracles] Persons who were enabled to do them.—Helps] Persons who assisted the apostles in administering baptism, praying with the sick, &c.—Governments] Persons who presided in Christian assemblies, and regulated them, Rom. xii. 8.—Kinds of languages] These are placed last, because the Corinthians were elated with this gift, chap. xiii. 1; xiv. 1.

31. Now ye earnestly] The apostle knew that they were very desirous of excelling in these wonderful gifts of the Spirit; and to show them that there was something more essential to their own happiness, both here and hereafter, he points out what it is.

CHAP. XIII. 1. And of angels] Were it possible for men to speak or convey their sentiments as they do.—Have not love] The term is generally thus rendered in other places, and was so here in the versions which preceded the common one.

2. All unknown truths] Such as the calling of the Gentiles, and the change of their bodies who shall be alive at the last day. Chap. xv. 51. Eph. iii. 3.—Faith to remove] See Mark xi. 23, and comp. Matt. vii. 22, 23.

3. Bestow all my] Here bestowing goods is opposed to 201

Christian love; but it is in fact the same thing as the word charity now signifies.

4-7. Love is long-suffering] The apostle personifies Christian love; and by its properties, shows that he meant by it such a love as is the fruit of the Spirit. The varied exercises of this love, and the rich fruits it produces, are here beautifully exhibited. May every Christian exemplify it!

8. Never faileth] In the mind where it is; nor will it ever fail in the church. This will exist when prophecies, languages, and knowledge of extraordinary kinds have failed.

9, 10. We know in part] We inspired apostles and teachers do but know and prophesy in part in this imperfect state; but when we attain perfection in heaven, that which is in part will be done away.

11. When I was a child] The apostle illustrates what he had said, by comparing this state as to our knowledge to that of childhood; and the future to that of manhood, when childish notions and pursuits are put away as altogether unsuitable.

12. A dim glass] The ancients used horn, talc, and sometimes transparent stones for their windows, through which objects would be seen darkly; and so only do the wisest Christians see spiritual things in this life; but in the future they will see face to face, &c.

13. Remaineth] See verses 8, 10. These now remain in us and in the church; but love has the pre-eminence, as it will abide for ever in heaven.

CHAP. XIV. 2. In spirit he] He may in his own mind, and as he understands the language, speak some important and edifying truths. See next verse.

that prophesieth speaketh to men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort. He that speaketh in a different language edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth edifieth the church. I wish that ye all spoke in different languages, but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh in different languages, unless he interpret, that the church may receive edification.

Now, brethren, if I come unto you speaking in different languages, what shall I profit you, unless I shall speak intelligibly to you either by a revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine? In like manner if things without life, which give a sound, whether pipe or harp, give no distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped? For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who will prepare himself for battle? So likewise ye, unless ye utter by the tongue words which can be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye will speak to the air. There are I know not how many kinds of languages in the world, and none of them is without signification. If therefore I know not the meaning of the language, I shall be to him that speaketh a barbarian, and he that speaketh will be a barbarian to me. So likewise, since ye are zealous of spiritual gifts, seek that ye may abound in them to the edification of the church. Wherefore let him that speaketh in an unknown language pray that he may interpret. For if I pray in an unknown language, my spirit prayeth, but not being understood is without fruit. What then is to be done? I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray so as to be understood also: I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing so as to be understood also. Otherwise when thou shalt bless God with the spirit, how shall he that occupieth the place of the un-learned say Amen, at thy thanksgiving, since he understandeth not what thou sayest? For thou verily givest thanks well; 17 but the other is not edified. I thank my 18 God, I speak in more languages than ye all: Yet I had rather speak five words in 19 the church so as to be understood, that I may teach others also, than ten thousand in an unknown language.

Brethren, be not children in understanding: yet in malice be ye even babes, but in understanding, men. It is written in the law, With men of other languages and other lips will I speak to this people; yet not even then will they hearken to me, saith the Lord. Wherefore different languages are for a sign, not to those that believe, but to those that believe not: but prophesying serveth not for those that believe not, but for those that do believe. If therefore the whole church come together into one place, and all speak in unknown languages, and those that are unlearned, or unbelievers come in, will they not say that ye are mad? But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever, or one unlearned come in, he is convicted by all, he is judged by all. The secrets of his heart are made manifest; and so falling down on his face he will worship God, and declare that God is indeed among you.

How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, hath each of you a psalm, hath he a doctrine, hath he an unknown language, hath he a revelation, hath he an interpretation? Let all things be done to edification. If any man speak in an unknown language, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that in succession; and let one interpret. But if there be no interpreter, let such keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself, and to God. Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others judge. If any thing be revealed 29

3. He that prophesieth] With Macknight, I consider prophesying as a general name for any inspired truth delivered in a known language; or for prayers and psalms inspired on any particular occasion, in which the church joined, and by which it was edified.

5. Unless he interpret] This might be, and sometimes was, done by the same person. See verse 13.

6. By a revelation] Of some new and interesting truth as an apostle; or by 'the word of knowledge,' in explaining the types, see chap. xii. 10; or 'by prophesying,' delivering any inspired truth; or 'by doctrine,' inculcating any doctrine of faith.

7—11. If the trumpet] The sounds of instruments must be understood that they may become useful; and so must languages. They differ greatly in sound, and yet to those who understand, they convey a proper meaning; but to those ignorant of them they appear barbarous.

14—19. Not being understood] The sense of vous is not in these verses the understanding as a faculty, but the meaning, the import of what was said in prayer, as perceived or understood by others. See Pearce's excellent note. The 16th and 19th verses prove that the rendering adopted is the true one.

20—22. Be not children] As such are who speak in unknown languages.—Languages are] Here the apostle states the design of the gift of languages, and of prophesying. Is. xxviii. 11, 12.

23. The whole church] Nothing can be more evident, than that 'the whole church' means here 'the whole brotherhood, or assembly of believers.'—Unlearned] Among the members of the church; or 'unbelievers,' unconverted heathens, will they not say that ye are mad?

24, 25. If all prophesy] Are uttering in a known language inspired truths, then such persons are convicted by all. His secret thoughts, purposes, and sins are exposed to his own view; and falling down, &c.

27—29. By two, or at the] Two or three who had the gift of languages might successively speak, at one Christian meeting, if there was an interpreter; and so might the prophets.

30, 31. Revealed to] It seems from this, that it was not unusual for the Spirit to reveal something to individuals, while in the assembly; and in this case the person who was speaking was to be silent, while what was revealed was communicated.

to another that sitteth by, let the first be 31 silent. For ye may all prophesy one by one; that all may learn, and all may be 32 comforted. Now the spirits of the prophets 33 are subject to the prophets; (For God is not the author of disorder, but of peace;) as in all the churches of the saints.

34 Let your women be silent in the churches: for they are not permitted to speak; but are commanded to be under 35 obedience, as the law also saith. And if they desire to learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is unbecoming for women to speak in the church.

36 What? did the word of God come out from you? or hath it reached to you only?

37 If any man seem to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write to you are the commandments 38 of the Lord. But if any one be ignorant, 39 let him be ignorant. Wherefore, brethren, earnestly desire to prophesy, yet forbid not 40 to speak in different languages. But let all things be done decently and in order.

CHAPTER XV.

*A. D. 57. By Christ's resurrection he proves that of the saints; answers objections, and shows the manner of it;
those alive at the last day will be changed.*

1 Now I declare to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached unto you, which ye also received, and in which ye stand;
2 By which ye are saved also, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless 3 ye have believed in vain. For I delivered to you among the chief things, what I received also, how that Christ died for our 4 sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the 5 third day according to the scriptures; And that he was seen by Peter, then by the 6 twelve. After that, he was seen by above five hundred brethren at once, of whom the greater part remain until now, but some are fallen asleep. After that, he was 7 seen by James: then by all the apostles.

And, last of all, he was seen by me also, 8 as by one born out of due time. For I am 9 the least of the apostles, and not worthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God, But by the grace of 10 God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me. Therefore, whether it were I 11 or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

Now if Christ be preached that he rose 12 from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?
But if there be no resurrection of the dead, 13 then Christ is not risen. And if Christ 14 be not risen, then our preaching is vain, and your faith also is in vain. Yea, and 15 we are found false witnesses concerning God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if the dead rise not. For if the dead 16 rise not, then Christ is not risen: And if 17 Christ be not risen, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also that 18 are fallen asleep in Christ, have perished.
If in this life only we have hope in Christ, 19
we are of all men the most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, 20 and become the first-fruits of those that sleep. For since by man came death, by 21 man also cometh the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam all die, even so by 22 Christ shall all be made alive. But every 23 man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his appearing. Then is the end, when he 24 shall deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have done away all rule and all authority and power:

32. The spirits of the] The minds of the prophets, even when inspired, are subject to their own judgment and reason; and not, like the heathen prophets, carried away with the most violent transports. Some would render 'spiritual gifts,' the same as in verse 12.

34. Be silent in the] Except in the cases mentioned, chap.
ii. Macknight contends that the apostle, in the 11th chap.
only adverts to the indecent practice of females in the Corinthian church, without considering the right to do so; and that here he forbids them to do it under any circumstances.

36. If hat? did the] Are you the first, the mother-church? Or hath the word of God reached to you only as a church, that ye should act differently from the rest?

38. Be ignorant] Be ignorant of my commission as an apostle. Some of the teachers at Corinth pretended to doubt it.—Let him be ignorant] For a similar mode of speaking, see Rev. xxii. 11.

CHAP. XV. 1, 2. Now I declare] We have a summary of the gospel, from verses 3—8. This he had preached to them, and this they had professedly received.—Unless ye have believed] Unless you have believed not cordially and sincerely, but only under the influence of some transient excitement, Matt. xiii. 20. That any should cordially and really believe in vain, is contrary to the promise of our Lord, John iii. 16, &c.

3, 4. Among the chief things] This rendering of αἱ ἀρχαὶ seems more suitable than the common one, as referring to the importance, and not to the order of the things delivered.—According to the scriptures] See Is. liii. 9—12; Ps. xxii. &c.

5—7. By Peter] See note Acts i. 3.

8. One born out] An abortive child, as it were, and not worthy to be called an apostle.

12—19. No resurrection] That it is an impossibility. If it be so, to what a miserable state are we reduced, having only persecution here, and nothing to expect hereafter!

20. But now is Christ risen] The apostle boldly asserts the resurrection of his Lord as the first-fruits, the earnest and pledge of that of all believers.

21—23. By Christ shall all] The whole of mankind are subject to death by Adam's sin, and the whole will be raised by Christ; but it is only of all believers that the apostle is speaking here, as they are said 'to be Christ's at his appearing.'

24. Then is the end] The end of the world, as it is then to be so changed as to be a new earth. 2 Pet. iii. 11—13.
—Deliver up] The kingdom which he has had among men, or those who have been subjected to him, he will deliver up saved from all their enemies, having done away all opposing rule, &c.

25 For he must reign, until he hath put all 26 enemies under his feet. Death, the last 27 enemy, shall then be done away. For he hath put all things under his feet.
 But when it is said, all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted, who did put all things under him.
 28 Now when all things are put under him, then will the Son also himself show all due respect to him that put all things under 29 him, that God may be all in all. Otherwise, what shall they do who are baptized in the place of the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized in 30 their place? And why stand we in danger 31 every hour? I protest by my glorying on your account, which I have in Christ Jesus 32 our Lord, that I die daily. If, to speak after the manner of men, I have fought with wild-beasts at Ephesus, what advantage will it be to me, if the dead rise not?
 let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die.
 33 Be not deceived: evil communications cor-34 rupt good manners. Awake truly, and sin not: for some have not the knowledge of 35 God: I speak this to your shame. But some one will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?
 36 Foolish man! that which thou sowest is 37 not made alive, unless it die: And as to that which thou sowest, thou sowest not the body that shall be, but bare grain; per-38 haps of wheat or of some other grain. But God giveth it a body, as it hath pleased 39 him, and to every seed its own body. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one flesh of men, and another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

25, 26. Put all enemies] See Ps. cx. 1, which the apostle appears to have had in his mind.

27. For he hath] For He, the Father, hath put all things, &c. He promised this to him, and then it will be manifest that the promise has been fulfilled.

28. The Son himself] As our Lord declared himself the servant of the Father, both as man and mediator, and in all he did and suffered was subject to his will and authority, I know not how he can be more subject, when he has put down all rule, &c.: but by delivering up his mediatorial kingdom, having accomplished the end for which he received it, he will thus show all due respect, &c. For the sense given, see Schleus. and Parkh.—God may be] That the deity, including each divine person, may be considered the author, finisher, the end of this salvation.

29, 30. In the place of] As many were put to death for their profession, and yet others were continually coming forward, and by submitting to baptism, taking their place in the church and the world; but what shall such do if the dead rise not at all! Why are, &c. See verses 12—19.

31. On your account] So Estius, Wall, and others explain μαρτυρῶν.—Which I have] As a believer in him, and an apostle, and minister of the gospel, that I die, or am exposed to die daily; and am ready to die for the name of Jesus.

32. With wild-beasts] With men as fierce as wild-beasts. There is no reason to think that the apostle had fought with wild-beasts literally, 2 Cor. xi. 22—28. Ignatius said, αὐτὸς ζῳεύει μετὰ τοῖς θηρίοις; 'From Syria to Rome I fought with beasts,' yet it is certain he did not do so literally, but he so calls cruel men.

There are also heavenly bodies and earthly 40 bodies: but the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another.
 There is one glory of the sun, and another 41 glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: (for one star differeth from another star in glory.) So is the resurrection of the 42 dead also. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: It is sown in dis- 43 honour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: It is sown 44 an animal body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is an animal body, and there is a spiritual body. And so it is written, 45
 The first man Adam was made a living person; but the last Adam is a life-giving spirit. However that was not 46 first which is spiritual, but that which is animal; and afterwards that which is spiritual. The first man was from the earth, 47 earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven. As was the earthy, such also are 48 the earthy: and as is the heavenly, such also will be the heavenly. And as we have 49 borne the image of the earthy, we shall bear also the image of the heavenly.

Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and 50 blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God;
 nor doth corruption inherit incorruption.
 Behold, I tell you a secret: We shall not 51 all sleep, but we shall all be changed, In a 52 moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet: for the trumpet will sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this cor- 53 ruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So 54 when this corruptible shall have put on in

33. Be not deceived] By such a maxim of such characters: but avoid them and their discourse, knowing 'that evil communications,' &c.

34. Awake truly] From your dreams and errors, respecting the resurrection and a future state.—Knowledge of God] Such a knowledge of his power and other excellencies as they should have had, &c.

35—38. With what body] When their bodies are dissolved into dust, how are or can they be raised? And if they be, what kind of body will it be?—Unless it die] John xii. 24. Some part of it wasting away, but the germ abiding and springing up.—Pleased him] When he created each seed, and formed the laws of nature, he gave to each its appropriate form and body.

42—44. In corruption] A Hebraism for corruptible, and so 'in incorruption' for incorruptible, 'in dishonour' for dishonourable, 'in glory' for glorious, &c.—A spiritual body] Having so far the nature of a spirit, as not to be subject to dissolution, nor to need support, rest, &c.

45—49. A living person] This version is adopted as giving that sense which the Hebrew most properly suggests. See Gen. ii. 7. It might be rendered, 'a living animal;' and the antithesis with him who is a life-giving spirit would be more strongly marked.

50. Flesh and blood] Such a body as ours now is cannot inherit or possess the future spiritual and glorious kingdom of God; and as it is subject to corruption, it would be wholly unfit for a state of incorruption and immortality.

51. I tell you a secret] What has not yet been revealed, that those who are alive at the coming of Christ will not die and see corruption; but will be changed by the al-corruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? Now the sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 57. Exhortation to be charitable; Timothy commended; and after friendly admonitions, Paul concludes with various salutations.

- 1 Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have appointed to the churches
- 2 of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay up something by him, treasuring up according as he prospereth, that there may be no collections when I come. And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve, them will I send with letters to carry the fruit of your liberality to Jerusalem. And if it be worthy of my going also, they shall go with me.
- 5 Now I will come unto you, when I shall pass through Macedonia: (for I intend to pass through Macedonia.) And perhaps I shall remain, yea, and winter with you, that ye may conduct me on my way whithersoever I go. For I do not desire to see you now on the way only; but I hope to remain a while with you, if the Lord permit. But I shall remain at Ephesus until Pentecost. For a great and effectual door is opened to me; yet there are many adversaries.

mighty power of Christ, when he raises the dead. See Hosea. xiii. 14, and note.

56—58. The sting of death] What renders it bitter is sin; and what gives sin its condemning power is the law, but thanks to God, &c. both over sin and death, by the merits of our Lord and Saviour.

CHAP. XVI. 1. The saints] Those believing Jews, who resided at Jerusalem. See Rom. xv. 26.—The churches] In the various towns and cities of Galatia, Acts xvi. 6; xviii. 23.

2. On the first day] The Lord's day, as it was also called, because of his resurrection, and of the worship rendered on that day.—Lay up something] First let him lay by some little for this express purpose, and then let it be given to the deacons, that there may be no need of making collections when I come.

5—9. For I intend to pass] Paul had before intimated his intention of visiting them; and tells them when they might expect him.

10. If Timothy come] He had sent Timothy (chap. iv. 17) to visit them; and now requests that they would treat him as his character justly demanded; for though young, he ought not to be despised, but honoured as a faithful servant of Christ.

12. Apollos, I earnestly] He had left Corinth, and must now have been with Paul. Probably the divisions of that church had induced him to leave them, and go to Paul. He was not willing at that time to visit them again.

Now if Timothy come, see that he may 10 be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do. Let no 11 man therefore despise him: but conduct him on his way in peace, that he may come unto me: for I expect him with the brethren. And concerning our brother Apollos, I 12 earnestly desired him to come to you with the brethren; but he was by no means willing to come now, but he will come, when he shall have convenient time. Watch; stand 13 fast in the faith, acquit yourselves like men, be strong. Let all things be done among 14 you in love.

Have regard to the family of Stephanas, 15 because they are the first-fruits of Achaia, and have addicted themselves to the service of the saints. Now I intreat you, brethren, 16 to submit yourselves to such as Timothy, and to every fellow-worker and labourer with me. I rejoice at the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus: for that which was wanting on your part they have supplied. For they have refreshed 18 my spirit, and will yours: wherefore acknowledge those that are such.

The churches of Asia salute you. Aquila 19 and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house. All 20 the brethren salute you. Salute ye one another with a holy kiss. The salutation of 21 me Paul written with mine own hand. If 22 any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha. [ACCURSED. OUR LORD COMETH.] The grace 23 of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. My 24 love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

The first epistle to the Corinthians was written from Philippi by Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Timothy.

13, 14. Watch] Against your enemies; maintain the faith delivered to you, and let every affair, respecting you as a church, be managed with prudence and order.

15. Have regard] To avoid the parenthesis, I have, with many other critics, transposed the first clause to the end of the verse, or rather to the beginning of the 16th. Indeed the construction strongly requires this change. The whole family of Stephanas were devoted to God, and showed it by their kind attentions to Christians in general.

17. Coming of Stephanas] He is supposed to be the son of him before-mentioned.—They have supplied] By giving me a full account of your state and affairs.

19. Aquila] These persons lived at Corinth, while Paul preached there; but on his departure they accompanied him to Ephesus, where they abode for some time. See Acts xviii. 18.

21. Written with mine] Paul usually dictated, and another wrote his letters for him. He wrote this salutation as a proof that the whole was his.

22. Let him be Anathema] Doddridge supposed that, after the Jews had lost the power of life and death, it was usual with them to pronounce anathema on such as ought to have suffered according to the law, and that they expected the Lord would come and inflict it in some way in his providence. Paul adopts their language towards such as professed, but were without love to our Lord Jesus Christ. For the version given of these Syro-Chaldaic words, see Schleusner.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE C O R I N T H I A N S.

INTRODUCTION.

PAUL having received, by Titus, an account of the state of the Corinthian church, and what effects his first epistle had produced, wrote his second about a year after the other. As they had observed his directions in many things, he commends them; and vindicates his own apostolic character more fully and boldly. He relates his own sufferings and persecutions; and as he was compelled by opposition, his own extacy, and other things. The whole is interspersed with many illustrations of the gospel; important advice and practical admonitions are every where interwoven.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 58. Encouragements under troubles; Paul assigns the reason of his not coming to them so soon as they might expect, &c.

- 1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, to the church of God which is at Corinth, and to all the saints who are in all Achaia:
- 2 Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.
- 3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; Who comforteth us in all our affliction, that we may be able to comfort those who are in any affliction by the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted of God. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our comfort also aboundeth by Christ.
- 4 And whether we be afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation; or whether we be comforted, it is for your comfort, which worketh in the patient enduring of the same sufferings, which we also suffer. And our hope concerning you is steadfast, knowing, that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so are ye of the comfort also. For, brethren, we would not have you ignorant of our affliction which befel us in Asia; that we were exceedingly pressed, above our strength, so that we despaired even of life:
- 5 But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God who raiseth the dead: Who delivered us from so great a death, 10 and doth deliver us: in whom we trust that he will still also deliver us; You also helping together by prayer for us: that because of the benefit bestowed upon us by the means of many persons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

For our glorying is this: the testimony 12 of our conscience, that in simplicity and sincerity towards God, (not with carnal wisdom, but by the grace of God,) we have behaved ourselves in the world, and more abundantly towards you. For we write no other things 13 unto you, than what ye know and acknowledge; and I trust ye will acknowledge even to the end; As also ye have, as to the 14 most part, acknowledged us, that we are your glorying, even as ye also will be ours in the day of the Lord Jesus.

And in this confidence I was desirous of 15 coming to you formerly, that ye might have a second benefit; And to pass by you into 16 Macedonia, and to return to you from Macedonia, and to be conducted by you on my way towards Judea. When I therefore 17 thus purposed, did I use any lightness? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose after the manner of men, that with me there should be yea, yea, and nay, nay? But as 18 God is faithful, our preaching to you was not yea and nay. For Jesus Christ, the 19 Son of God, who was preached among you

CHAP. I. 1. Timothy our brother] Timothy was Paul's son in the gospel, and his brother in the faith.—In all Achaia] This shows that there were believers in other parts of Achaia, as well as in the capital.

3—5. Blessed be God] Afflictions every where came upon Paul and his fellow-labourers; but they had also comfort in Christ for their support, and to teach them with what, and in what manner, they should comfort others.—Which worketh] Which comfort worketh, shows its energy, in the patient enduring of the same, &c.

8—11. For, brethren] What Paul refers to, unless to the commotions at Ephesus, Acts xix. I cannot conjecture. Although he did not go into the theatre, his life might be in danger in other respects; and he, as well as other Christians, might on that occasion suffer much, and even expect their own martyrdom.—Of the benefit] The deliverance granted him in answer to the prayers of many might excite many to give thanks for it.

12. Sincerity towards God] If any man could make such an assertion surely Paul might, and his fellow-sufferers too.—Behaved ourselves] Keeping a good conscience in the sight of all; but showing great affection and disinterestedness to the Corinthians.

13. Ye know] So the Syriac renders; and it is well known that compound verbs are often used in the sense of simple.

14. Us, as to the most part] So as to follow the directions given to you, by correcting the abuses which had crept in among you; so that we are your glorying, &c.

15. A second benefit] By my preaching and labours among you again.

17. Any lightness] Did it arise from mere levity of mind? From inconstancy, as some affirm, so that with me there is now yea, yea, and then nay, nay? strongly affirming and then as strongly denying, so that no dependence can be placed in me, either as to doctrine or practice.

19—20. Our preaching was] We never varied in our

by us, (even by me and Silvanus and Timothy,) was not yea and nay, but in him 20 was yea. For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the 21 glory of God by us. Now he who establisheth us together with you in Christ, and 22 hath anointed us, is God: Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 58. Paul's solemn appeal to God, and the reasons of his not coming to them; advice as to the excommunicated person; the success of his preaching.

23 MOREOVER I call God as a witness upon my soul, that to spare you I have not as 24 yet come unto Corinth. (Not that we have dominion over your faith, but are fellow-helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.)
1 But I determined this with myself, that I would not come again to you in grief.
2 For if I grieve you, who maketh me glad,
3 but one grieved by me? And I wrote to you for this very reason, that when I come, I may not have grief from those on whose account I ought to rejoice; having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of 4 you all. For out of much affliction and distress of heart I wrote to you with many tears; not chiefly that ye might be grieved, but that ye might know the abundant love
5 which I have for you. But if any one have caused grief, he hath not grieved me only, but (that I may not overcharge) the most 6 part of you all. Sufficient to such a man is that rebuke, which was given by many.
7 So that, on the contrary, ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, lest such an one should be swallowed up by abounding doctrine, but constantly preached the same thing, Christ and him crucified, in whom all the promises are firmly ratified and sure.

23. Moreover I call] This is a strong asseveration, and shows that some at Corinth had imputed Paul's change of mind to some base and unworthy motives.

24. Not that we have] Not that we pretend to lord it over you, or your faith; but to assist you and promote your joy: still remember that by faith ye stand, Rom. xi. 20.

CHAP. II. 1-3. In grief] On account of your conduct and divisions.—And I wrote for] Lest by finding my children in so unhappy a state, I should have grief instead of joy.—Having confidence] Especially now from what I have heard, that ye would promote my joy by obeying me.

4. Not chiefly that ye] It was not to occasion grief or sorrow, but to avoid it, and as a proof of my tender regard for your welfare.

5. If any one have] If the incestuous person have caused grief, he has only grieved me, in common with many of you. See Whitby and Bowyer's Conj.

6-8. That rebuke] Public censure of the church.—Lest such an one] Seeing his proper and penitential behaviour, ye ought to be satisfied, and endeavour to comfort him, by the expression of your Christian love.

9-11. That I might know] That by the directions given, and your conduct in respect to them, I might have a proof of your disposition.—To whom ye forgive] This refers to verse 7.—Of his devices] Had we used rigour towards him, he would, by his instruments, have represented the gospel grief. Wherefore I beseech you to confirm 8 your love towards him. For to this end 9 also I wrote, that I might know your approved disposition, whether ye be obedient in all things. But to whom ye forgive any 10 thing, I forgive also: for what I have forgiven, if I have forgiven any thing, for your sakes forgave I it in the person of Christ; Lest Satan should gain an advantage over 11 us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

Now, when I came to Troas to preach 12 the gospel of Christ, and a door was opened unto me by the Lord, I had no rest in my 13 spirit, because I found not Titus my brother: but taking my leave of them, I went thence into Macedonia. Now thanks be to God, 14 who always leadeth us on in triumph with Christ, and maketh manifest the odour of the knowledge of him by us in every place. (For we are a sweet smell of Christ unto 15 God, among those that are saved, and among those that are lost. To these indeed 16 we are an odour of death unto death; but to the others, an odour of life unto life. And who is sufficient for these things?) For we are not as many, who adulterate 17 the word of God; but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God we speak in the name of Christ.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 58. A commendation of Paul's ministry; comparison between the ministry of the law and the gospel; the latter proved to be far the more excellent.

ARE we to begin to recommend ourselves I again? or need we, as some, epistles of recommendation to you, or of recommendation from you? Ye are our epistle of re- 2 commendation written on our hearts, known as a system of cruelty, and not of grace and mercy, and thus prevented its success.

12, 13. To Troas] See Acts xx. 5, 6.—Had no rest] Titus had been sent to Corinth, and Paul expected to meet him at Troas, but not finding him here, he was much distressed in his mind in reference to the affairs of that church. Hence he went into Macedonia, supposing that he might meet Titus there, which he actually did. See chapter vii. 5-7.

14. Thanks be to God] Paul, affected by what Titus related, and at the success of the gospel in other places, gives thanks to God as the glorious cause.—The odour of the] Having mentioned 'triumphing,' the apostle beautifully alludes to the custom observed in triumphs, of strewing the streets with flowers and burning incense.

15, 16. A sweet smell of Christ] By our preaching and labours in the gospel.—Among those] God accepted their labours, not only in reference to such as were saved, but in respect to such as were lost, by rejecting the gospel, and persisting in their sins.

17. Adulterate] Debase for their own advantage and gain, as vintners adulterate their wines.—Of sincerity] But we are truly sincere; but we are truly of God, &c.

CHAP. III. 1. Are we to recommend] This shows that he had been charged with commending himself. See 1 Cor. iv. 1-4; v. iii.—Or need we, as some] This proves that those persons who had caused divisions at Corinth had obtained influence by recommendatory epistles; and had received such from the Corinthian church.

2, 3. Our epistle] Our epistle of recommendation as

- 3 and read by all men: For ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ through our ministration, not written with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not on tables of stone, but on the fleshly tables of the heart.
- 4 Now such confidence have we through Christ towards God. Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to reckon upon any thing as from ourselves: but our sufficiency is from God; Who hath even made us able ministers of the new covenant; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. But if the ministry of death, engraven in letters on stones, was glorious, so that the Israelites could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance: which glory was to be done away; Shall not the ministry of the Spirit be rather glorious? For if the ministry of condemnation was glorious, much more doth the ministry of righteousness abound in glory.
- 10 For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth. For if that which was to be done away was glorious, much more must that which remaineth be glorious.
- 12 Having therefore such hope, we use great freedom of speech: And are not as Moses, who put a veil over his face, that the Israelites could not stedfastly behold the end of that which was to be done away.
- 14 (But their minds were blinded: for until this day the same veil remaineth in the reading of the old covenant, it not being discovered, that it is done away in Christ. Yea, even unto this day when Moses is 15 read, the veil is upon their heart. But 16 whenever they shall turn to the Lord, the veil shall be taken away.) Now the Lord 17 is he who imparteth the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. For we all, with uncovered face, beholding 18 as by a mirror, the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory likewise by the Spirit of the Lord.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 58. Paul asserts his own sincerity and diligence in preaching; the troubles and distresses which he had to endure, and the benefit of them.

WHEREFORE having this ministry, according as we have received mercy we faint not; But have renounced the hidden things of 2 shame, not walking in craftiness, nor corrupting the word of God; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience, in the sight of God. But if our gospel be covered, it is 3 covered among those that are lost: Among 4 those that believe not, whose minds the god of this world hath blinded, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine into them. For we preach not ourselves, but 5 Christ Jesus as Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake. For God, who 6 commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined into our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of God's glory in the face of Jesus Christ.

But we have this treasure in earthen 7 vessels, that the excellency of the power apostles and ministers of Christ, 'written on our hearts' in the love we have for you as our spiritual children; and this is seen and read by all who know us and you.—The epistle of Christ] Their conversion, by his ministry, was a striking proof both of his apostolic mission, and of the power, grace, and love of Christ. See 1 Cor. vi. 9—11.

4—6. To reckon upon] For the version given, see Doddridge's note, and Heb. viii. 7.—Not of the letter] The Mosaic law, which, by its innumerable rites, multiplied offences, and subjected to the curse and to death.—But of the spirit] Of the new covenant, which is spiritual in its nature, and attended with the Holy Spirit, which giveth life.

7—11. Ministry of condemnation] Spirit in the former verse, and ministry of righteousness in this, evidently refer to the gospel covenant, as opposed to the law; and this so far exceeds the glory of the law, as to throw into shade and darkness that dispensation. The gospel excels it in another particular, it is to remain and not to be done away.

12. Such hope] Or persuasion of the glory of the gospel as a spiritual dispensation, as giving life, and as what will endure, we use great freedom of speech in unfolding its nature and privileges, and in pressing its obligations on men.

13. That the Israelites] As if thereby he had intended to intimate that they could not see what was the end of that dispensation, which we know to have been Christ.

14. The same veil] As covered the face of Moses and his dispensation, now remains upon it, when his writings are read.

16. When they shall] When they shall turn to the Lord Jesus as their promised Messiah, then will their ignorance be removed, and the veil which covered the spiritual designs of their law taken away.

17. Now the Lord] Having mentioned 'the people turning to the Lord,' he observes that the Lord Jesus is he who imparteth the life-giving spirit of the gospel. See verse 6.

18. For we all] We believers on Christ see in the gospel, with uncovered face, as in a glass, the glory of the Lord. As by the Spirit] The common version is preferred, which is that of the Vulg. old Italic, and the Latin Fathers; and the 'Spirit of the Lord' is mentioned in the 17th verse.

CHAP. IV. 1. This ministry] See chap. iii. 6—9. God had compassion on him, and when a persecutor, called and made him an apostle.

2. Things of shame] The things which follow, 'walking in craftiness and corrupting the word of God.'

3, 4. Be covered] Like the law, chap. iii. 13, 14, it is covered among those that are lost in ignorance and vice.—Among those that believe not] For the construction, see Beza, whom Grotius follows.—Hath blinded] by alluring them with worldly advantages, pleasures, &c. and his design is to prevent the success of the gospel.

5. As Lord] So Grotius, Beza, and others render; and the order of the words requires it.

6. God who commanded] We are qualified to preach the glorious gospel of Christ, for God hath shined into our hearts, hath inspired us, that we may communicate the knowledge of God's glory, &c. See Grotius.—In the face] Not as it appeared in the face of Moses, but in the face of Christ, who is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person, Heb. i. 3.

7. This treasure] Of divine knowledge, comprehending the counsels of divine grace and love.—In earthen vessels]

8 may be of God, and not of us. We are every way afflicted, but not distressed; we 9 are perplexed, but not in despair; Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not 10 destroyed; Always bearing about in our body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be made manifest in 11 our body. For we who are alive are always delivered unto death for the sake of Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be made 12 manifest in our mortal flesh. So that death
 13 worketh in us, but life in you. Yet having the same spirit of faith, as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak;
 14 Knowing that he who raised up the Lord Jesus, will raise up us also by Jesus, 15 and will present us with you. For all these things are for your sakes, that the grace which hath abounded may, through the thanksgiving of many, abound to the 16 glory of God. For which cause we faint not; but even though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day
 17 by day. For our present light affliction worketh out for us a far more exceeding 18 and everlasting weight of glory; While we regard not the things which are seen, but the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are of short duration; but the things which are not seen are everlasting.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 58. In hope of glory, and of the general judgment, Paul laboured to keep a conscience void of offence; to live as a new creature and preach reconciliation.

1 For we know, that if our earthly house,

So he calls himself and other preachers, because of their natural weakness and frailty.

8—11. Afflicted but not distressed] So as to be overcome and vanquished. Indeed I may say, that our condition is like the 'dying of our Lord Jesus'; the same cruelties are exercised towards us; but God's design is, that the life of Jesus Christ, &c.

13—15. Having the same] As David had, we preach the gospel, because we firmly believe it, notwithstanding the danger which we incur.

17, 18. For our present] We do not faint, because our present light affliction is under the sanctifying influence of grace, working out for, &c. In speaking of his present sufferings, in comparison with what he hoped to enjoy, he styled them light.—A far more exceeding] Nothing can equal this sublime passage. Paul uses a form of speaking, which intimates that no language, no metaphor, can equal the subject of his thoughts.

CHAP. V. 1. This body] Greek, this tent. The Hebrews so called the body, and so did some of the philosophers of Greece. See Mich. Anmerk. The Syriac translator is followed.—A building of God] This refers to the heavenly state and blessedness, called the city of God, Heb. xi. 10; John. xiv. 2.

2. Earnestly desiring to put on] The verb is in the middle voice, as it is 1 Cor. xv. 50. and the preposition on is only intensive.—Our habitation which] This refers to the resurrection-body, which may be said to be from heaven, or heavenly, in opposition to our present frail body, which is of the earth, and called earthly. At the second coming of our Lord, the soul will put on this changed, this immortal body, and be for ever invested with it, as the glorious vehicle of its operations and services.

this body, were destroyed, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, everlasting in the heavens. For in 2 this body we groan, earnestly desiring to put on our habitation which is from heaven: (Since, having put on this, we shall not be
 3 found naked.) For we that are in this
 4 body groan, being burdened: not that we desire to put off this, but to put on the other, so that mortality may be swallowed up of life. Now he that hath wrought us
 5 to this very thing, is God, who hath also given unto us the earnest of the Spirit. Wherefore we are always of good courage,
 6 as we know that, while we are present in the body, we are absent from the Lord; (For we walk by faith, not by sight:)
 7 We are of good courage, I say, and willing 8 rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. Wherefore we 9 earnestly strive, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him. For 10 we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to what he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

Knowing, therefore, the terror of the 11 Lord, we persuade men; and our fidelity is manifest to God; and I hope that it is manifest in your consciences also. For we 12 recommend not ourselves again unto you, but only give you occasion to glory on our account, that ye may have somewhat to answer those who glory in appearance and not in heart. For whether we be trans-
 13 ported beyond ourselves, it is for God: or

3. Not be found naked] The following explains this verse, where 'to put off this,' or to be unclothed, as the common version signifies, to die, or to be in the state of the dead; so to be 'naked' is to be in the state of the dead. See Piscator.

4. Groan, being burdened] So he had said before; but he now mentions the cause of it, being burdened with sins and infirmities.—Not that we desire] Not that we long so much to put off this mortal body; but to put on our immortal one, so that death may, &c.

5. To this very thing] To this holy desire of future blessedness, and of a glorious resurrection.—Is God who] No other could raise and maintain such exalted and glorious expectations.

6—8. As we know] We know that while here we can but walk by faith in the promise of future blessedness in the presence of Christ; but when we leave this state we shall be for ever with him.

9. We earnestly strive] We are ambitious of being accepted of him both in this state and in another. See Phil. i. 23.

10. Done in his body] This is a solemn thought, and should awaken all to prepare to meet their God.

11. Knowing therefore] How terrible this judgment will be to unfaithful ministers, and to all who persist in their sins, 'we persuade men,' to embrace the gospel, that they may be saved.—Our fidelity is] So Sept. and Grotius.

12. We recommend] From this it is probable some imputed his defence of himself to pride and vain-glory.—Not in heart] Paul suggests that his opponents were condemned by their own consciences.

13. Beyond ourselves] As some affirm, because we expose ourselves to dangers, and even death, we can assure whether we be sober-minded, it is for your 14 sakes. For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died 15 for all, then were all dead; And that he died for all, that they who live should no longer live unto themselves, but unto him 16 who died for them, and rose again. So that henceforth we regard no man according to the flesh: yea, though we have regarded Christ according to the flesh, yet now we 17 regard him no more in this view. Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: the old things have passed away; 18 behold, all things have become new. Now all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of this reconciliation; Namely, that God through Christ 19 reconciled the world unto himself, not counting their trespasses unto them; and hath committed to us the doctrine of this 20 reconciliation. We are therefore ambassadors in Christ's stead, as though God besought you by us: we intreat, in Christ's 21 stead, Be ye reconciled to God. For he hath made him a sin-offering for us, who knew no sin; that we might become righteous with God through him.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 58. Paul asserts his own faithfulness in the ministry; he exhorteth to flee the society and pollutions of idolaters.

1 FELLOW-LABOURERS, we also beseech you not to receive the grace of God in vain: 2 (For God saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation them, we do it for the glory of God; or 'be sober-minded, acting with prudence, and shunning persecution, we do it to promote your welfare.

14. For the love of Christ] In becoming incarnate, and dying on the cross.—Were all dead] Were not only obnoxious to death, but were dead in trespasses and sins.

15. That they who live] This verse, in connexion with the preceding, justifies the sentiment, that the merit of the Saviour's death is infinitely great and sufficient for all Adam's race; but is only actually efficacious to those who believe.

16. According to the flesh] We have no respect in our ministry to Jew or Gentile, rich or poor.—Known Christ according] Expecting him to be a temporal king, and hoping for worldly advantages; and even after his ascension, many of us thinking it right to observe and follow the law, yet now being better instructed, we regard him, &c.

17. A new creature] Or, 'there is a new creation' in the heart and principles of that man. There is a complete renovation of mind, as well as change of conduct.

18. Now all things] All things relating to this great change are of God, who laid the foundation of it in giving his Son to be a propitiation for our sin, and thus reconciled us to himself.

19. Through Christ reconciled] For the construction of the Greek, see Mark xiii. 25; comp. with Matt. xxiv. 25; Acts xvi. 12; Eph. v. 5; Coloss. iii. 1. In the last we have the same position of the verb substantive and participle.

20. Ambassadors in] Christ was God's chief ambassador, and the apostles as commissioned and sent by him, were his substitutes and representatives.

21. A sin-offering] The term has often this sense in the Sept. and the best expositors so regard it here.—Righteous with God] The term righteousness as used metonymically have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation :) Giving no offence in any thing, 3 that our ministry be not blamed: But in 4 all things let us approve ourselves as ministers of God, by much patience, by afflictions, by necessities, by distresses, By stripes, by 5 imprisonments, by tumults, by labours, by watchings, by fastings; By purity, by 6 knowledge, by long-suffering, by kindness, by the Holy Spirit, by love unfeigned, By 7 the word of truth, by the power of God, by the right and left hand armour of righteousness; By honour and dishonour, by 8 evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true; As unknown, and yet well 9 known; as dying, and, behold, we live; as chastened and not killed; As grieved, yet 10 always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things. Our mouth is opened to you, 11 O Corinthians, our heart is enlarged. Ye 12 are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened by your own bowels. Now as a re- 13 compensate for this, (I speak as unto my children,) be ye also enlarged.

Be not unequally yoked together with 14 unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with iniquity? and what communion hath light with darkness? And 15 what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an unbeliever? And what agreement hath the 16 temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell among them, and walk for the persons who receive, by faith in Christ, the righteousness of God.

CHAP. VI. 1. Fellow labourers] See note, 1 Cor. iii. 9.—Grace of God] In calling and qualifying you for the work of the ministry.

2. God saith] See Is. xlix. 8, where Messiah is introduced interceding for the Gentiles; and this answer is returned.—Now is the day] Now is the prayer of Messiah granted; now is salvation proclaimed among the Gentiles.

4—10. Approve yourselves] For this sense of the verb, see Wetstein on Rom. iii. 5; and this verse justifies the insertion of the pronoun in the former.—The right and left hand] Soldiers used the spear and sword with the right hand, and the shield with the left. The apostles had no other armour than a righteous cause, supported by a holy and righteous conduct.

11. Is enlarged] With love and affection. The apostle speaks in a most pathetic manner, and indicates his joy on their account.

12, 13. Not straitened by us] By our want of affection to you, but by your own bowels, when reflecting on your own conduct. Elsner and Kypke, render 'Not distressed by us.'—Now as a recompense] For your distress be ye also joyfully enlarged in mutual love.

14. Unequally yoked] Macknight, 'discordantly yoked.' Most suppose that the apostle alludes to Deuter. xxii. 10. It forbids believers to unite in religious fellowship with unbelievers; but has no direct reference to marriage, as it is often applied.

15. What concord] Does Christ give the same precepts, or enjoin the same rites as Belial, the false god, who profiteth not his worshippers? He calls any false god Belial, 'a thing of nought, which cannot profit any.'

16. Ye are the temple of] As a Christian society; and among them; and I will be their God, and 17 they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not any unclean 18 thing; and I will receive you. And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Al-1 mighty. Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 58. Paul exhorts them to purity of life, and declares what comfort he had derived from the good account which Titus had given of them.

2 RECEIVE us; we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have de-3 frauded no man. I speak not this to condemn you, for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts to die together and to 4 live together. Great is my freedom of speech to you, great is my glorying of you:
 I am filled with comfort, I exceedingly abound in joy in all our affliction.
 5 For, when we had come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were afflicted on every side; without were fightings, 6 within were fears. Nevertheless God, that comforteth those that are cast down, com-7 forted us by the coming of Titus; And not by his coming only, but by the comfort with which he was comforted by you, when he told us your earnest desire, your lamentation, your zeal for me; so that I rather 8 rejoice. For though I grieved you by my epistle, I do not now repent, though indeed
 I did repent: for I perceive that my epistle hath grieved you for a short time only.
 9 Now I rejoice, not that ye were grieved, but that ye were grieved to repentance: for ye were grieved in regard to God, so that in nothing have ye sustained loss by us.
 10 For grief in regard to God worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of;

 but the grief of the world worketh death.
 For behold this very thing, that ye grieved 11 in regard to God, what diligence it wrought in you, what clearing of yourselves! what indignation! what fear! what vehement desire! what zeal! what revenge! In all things ye have proved yourselves to be clear in this matter. Wherefore, though I wrote 12 unto you, I did it not so much for his cause that had done the wrong, or for his cause that had suffered the wrong, as that our care for you might be made manifest to you in the sight of God. We were there- 13 fore comforted by reason of your comfort:
 yea, and we the more abundantly rejoiced by reason of the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all. For if I 14 had gloried to him in any thing concerning you, I am not ashamed; but as we spoke all things to you in truth, so our glorying, which I made before Titus, is found a truth. And his tender affection is more 15 abundant towards you; while he remembereth the obedience of you all, how ye received him with fear and trembling. I 16 rejoice therefore that in every thing I have confidence in you.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 58. He exhorts them to a liberal contribution to the saints of Jerusalem, by the example of others, the love of Christ, and their own spiritual profit, &c.

Now we make known to you, brethren, 1
 the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia; How that, in a great trial 2 of affliction, their joy was abundant, and their deep poverty hath made their rich liberality to abound. For to their power I 3 bear witness, yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves; Beseech- 4 ing us with much intreaty, concerning their gift, and the joint ministrations of it to the saints. And this they did, not as we ex- 5 to you what God promised to Israel is now freely vouchsafed. See Levit. xxvi. 11, 12, and Jerem. xxxi. 33.

17, 18. Among them] Among idolaters. See Is. lii. 11, in the Sept.—And will be a father] These precise words are not in any place in the Old Testament; but they are contained as to the sense in many places. See 2 Sam. vii. 14; Jer. xxxi. 9.

CHAP. VII. 1. These promises] Mentioned chap. vi.
 16—18.—Defilement of flesh] All impure actions and desires, such as were but too common at Corinth.

2, 3. Receive us] With enlarged affection, as we have not acted as your corrupt teachers have, having injured no one, corrupted no one by false doctrine, &c.—Have said before] As to the sense, chap. vi. 11, 12.

4. Freedom of speech] Respecting my own conduct, and my sincere affection to you.

5—7. Without were fightings] Oppositions and contentions from unbelievers; within fears on account of weak believers, lest they should be discouraged.—Earnest desire] To correct every thing agreeably to my first epistle; your lamentation for your past conduct, and your zeal and affection for me.

8. Though indeed I did repent] Paul, though he wrote by the inspiration of the Spirit, yet was concerned in respect to the effects which his epistle might have on the Corinthians; and from this we learn that the consequences of it were not revealed to him.

9. Grieved in regard to God] For having incurred his displeasure, and acted in a manner so contrary to your duty and obligations.

11. What diligence] To reform what had been amiss;
 'what clearing of yourselves' to Titus for your conduct;
 'what fear' lest some judgment should fall on you.—Have proved yourselves] Clear at present of some dividing divisions, and encouraging the licentious.

13—16. Of the joy of Titus] Who found you so ready to submit to our directions, and thus established the opinion which I had given of you.

CHAP. VIII. 1. The grace of God] Some render, 'very liberal gift bestowed by the churches,' &c. Extraordinary generosity, &c. The word χάρις signifies a gift, verses 6, 7, 19; and as ἀσκή is sometimes used as an epithet according to the Hebrew idiom, the renderings given are plausible; but the common version is preferred, as it is the most usual sense of the words, and in fact only ascribes to its proper cause, Divine influence, their liberal spirit.

3, 4. Beseeching us] To receive it and convey it, together

pected; but they first gave themselves to the Lord, and then to us by the will of 6 God: So that we desired Titus, that, as he had begun, so he would also finish among 7 you this work of liberality also. Now, as ye abound in every thing, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound
 8 in this liberality also. I speak not by way of command; but to try the sincerity of your love also, by the diligence of others.
 9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through 10 his poverty might be rich. And I give my judgment in this matter: for this is expedient for you, who have already not only begun to do, but also to be forward, a year
 11 ago. Now therefore fully perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a full performance also 12 out of that which ye have. For if there be first a readiness of mind, it is accepted according to what a man hath, and not according to what he hath not. For I mean
 13 not that others may be eased, and ye burdened: But that, by an equality, your abundance may be at this time a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be at another a supply for your want: that 15 there may be an equality, As it is written, He that had gathered much, had nothing over; and he that had gathered little, had no want.
 16 But thanks be to God, who hath put the same earnest care for you into the heart of Titus. For he accepted indeed my exhortation; but, being more earnest, he went 18 unto you of his own accord. And we sent with him a brother, whose praise in the 19 gospel is throughout all the churches; And not that only, but who was also chosen by the churches our fellow-traveller with this with some of their members, to the poor suffering disciples at Jerusalem.

5. They first gave themselves] Hearing of this collection, they gave up themselves and what they had to the honour and glory of the Lord Jesus, without any exhortation from us; and then to us to do what we knew to be the will of God.

6—8. Titus] He had, it appears, mentioned this to the Corinthians, who were a wealthy people; and Paul now desires them to show their sympathy and Christian love.

9. The grace of our Lord] No motive surely could influence so much as this. Rich in the glories of the Divine nature; yet became incarnate, was born of poor parents, lived in a poor state, and died on the cross, Phil. ii. 5—8.—Might be rich] In the enjoyment of spiritual blessings; in faith, hope, and consolation.

10—15. I give my judgment] Paul would not command, but advise, and thus exemplify his own assertion, that he was not a lord over their faith.—A year ago] They had manifested an extraordinary zeal in this affair, when Titus pressed it upon them, and Paul desires them fully to perform what they intended, according to their ability. See Exod. xvi. 18.

17. Of his own accord] He anticipated the time which I had proposed.

18. A brother] This brother is most generally supposed gift, which is administered by us to the glory of the Lord himself, and to show our ready mind: We avoiding this, that no one should blame us, in our administration of this abundance: Providing things which are good, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men. And we have sent with them our brother, (whom we have often found diligent in many things, but now much more diligent,) because of the great confidence which we have in you. If any inquire concerning Titus, he is my partner and fellow-labourer towards you: or concerning our brethren, they are the messengers of the churches, and the glory of Christ. Wherefore show ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our glorying on your account.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 58. Paul states the reason for sending Titus and others; exhorts them to liberality, which may and will yield them much advantage.

FOR concerning this ministration to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you: For I know your readiness, for which I glory of you to those of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath excited very many. Yet have I sent the brethren, lest our glorying of you should be in vain in this respect; that, as I said, ye may be ready: Lest if those of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we should be put to shame, (not to say ye,) for this confidence. I have therefore thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before to you, and make up beforehand your bounty, before announced, that the same might be ready, as matter of bounty, and not as something extorted.

However, this I say, He who soweth sparingly, sparingly shall he also reap; and to be Luke the Evangelist. He accompanied Paul, Acts xvi. 10, 11, and must have been a man of excellent gifts, who was so generally esteemed. But see Michaelis, who argues that this brother could not be Luke, but some Macedonian believer. As some of the best copies of the Syr. read 'brethren,' Middleton is inclined to the opinion that Sospiter, Aristarchus, and Secundus, were the brethren intended. See Acts xx. 3, 4.

19—21. Chosen by the churches] As their representative, and to prevent all suspicion of any misapplication of the money collected.

22—24. Our brother] That Luke might go with Titus to Corinth, and again meet Paul at Troas, Acts xx. 4, 6. See Whitby on chap. ii. 12.—Messengers of the churches] This shows the regular and prudent intercourse of the Christians at that period.—The glory of Christ] They have his glory in view, and to promote which is the end of their visit and labours among you.

CHAP. IX. 1. It is superfluous] I need say nothing of the reasonableness of this, as you admit it.

2—5. I glory of you] As having manifested such a charitable disposition, and being ready to contribute so long ago.—As something extorted] By importunity, against your will. See verse 7.—(o) Boasting.—Griesb.

6—9. He who soweth] This is a beautiful representation of kindness and charity. It is like sowing, and as we sow, he who soweth bountifully, bountifully shall 7 he also reap. Let every man give according as he purposeth in his heart; not with grief, nor by constraint: for God loveth a 8 cheerful giver. And God is able to make every blessing abound towards you; that, 9 having always all sufficiency in all things, ye may abound in every good work: (As it is written, He hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness 10 remaineth for ever.) Now he that supplieth seed to the sower, and bread for food, will supply and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness; 11 Being enriched in every thing to all boun-tifulness, which produceth thanksgiving by 12 us to God. For the ministration of this service not only supplieth the want of the saints, but aboundeth also in many thanks-13 givings to God; While by the experience of this ministration they glorify God for your professed subjection to the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal contribution to them, 14 and unto all men; And by their prayer for you, ardently loving you on account of the superabounding grace of God towards you.

15 Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

CHAPTER X.

1. D. 58. Paul vindicates his own spiritual authority against certain opponents; he taxes them with boasting of what belonged to other men.

1 Now I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in outward appearance am humble among you, but being absent am bold towards you:
2 Now I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence, with which I think to be bold against some, who think of us as if we walked according to 3 the flesh. For though we walk in the flesh, 4 we do not war according to the flesh: For the weapons of our warfare are not fleshly, but mighty through God to the overthrow-5 ing of strong-holds; Casting down reasonings, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ; And being ready 6 to avenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

Do ye look on things according to the 7 outward appearance? If any man trust in himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this also, that, as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's. For though I 8 should glory in a somewhat extraordinary manner of our authority, which the Lord hath given us for your edification, and not for your destruction, I should not be ashamed: But I forbear, that I may not 9 seem as if I would terrify you by my epistles.
For his epistles, say they, are weighty and 10 powerful; but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible. Let such an 11 one think this, that as we are in word by epistles when we are absent, such we will be indeed also when present. For we dare 12 not rank ourselves, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves: but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves, are unwise. But we will not glory of 13 things beyond our measure, but concerning the measure of the line, even of the measure which God hath allotted to us, that we should reach even unto you. For we stretch 14 not ourselves too far, as if we reached not to you: for we are come as far as to you also in preaching the gospel of Christ: Not 15 glorifying of things beyond our measure, that is, in other men's labours; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you, as concerning our line abundantly; So as to preach the gospel 16 in the regions beyond you, and not to glory in another man's line of things made ready for us. But he that glorieth, let him 17 glory in the Lord. For not he who com- 18 mendeth himself is approved, but he whom the Lord commendeth.

we may expect to reap.—Every blessing] Every temporal blessing of which you at any time may be in need. See Ps. cxii. 9.

10—13. Thanksgiving by us] Such kindness excites us to renewed praises to God for what he has done to you, as well as those who are the objects of your charity.

14. Superabounding grace] In visiting you Gentiles, and enriching you both with spiritual gifts and graces.

15. His unspeakable gift] Paul abruptly breaks out in this language, thanking God for his first, his greatest gift, and which included all others, the gift of his Son.

CHAP. X. 1. In outward appearance] See verse 7. In his person there was nothing majestic or commanding; and his adversaries laid this as a charge against him.

2. Against some who] Those who fomented divisions. Hulked] Had only our reputation and worldly interest in view.

3—6. Walk in the flesh] Live like other men, and are in appearance as weak; yet 'we do not war,' &c. against idolatry and vice with carnal weapons or arms.—Mighty through God] Some consider the words as a Hebraism, and render 'exceedingly powerful.' See Greek, Acts vii. 20. But as the text will naturally bear the common version it is preferred.—Strong-holds] All the ignorance and vice, which may be regarded as the fastnesses of Satan.—Reasonings] Of philosophers and statesmen, who opposed the gospel.

7—9. I should glory in a] The apostle had indeed extraordinary authority in the church; but he used it with moderation, for the advantage of men's souls.

10, 11. His epistles] Thus spoke the factious leaders, reproaching the bodily infirmities of the apostle, and especially his manner of speaking.

12. Measuring] Judging of themselves and their deeds from their own false opinions.

13—16. Even of the measure] God had, as it were, measured out, and distributed to the first heralds of the gospel not only their several offices in the church, but the scenes of action where they should labour. The province allotted to Paul was large, not only reaching to Corinth but he hoped to a far greater extent.

17, 18. In the Lord] As having crowned his labours

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 58. Paul, from necessity, commendeth himself; and sheweth, from his labours, sufferings, and success, that he was not inferior to others.

- 1 I wish that ye would bear with me a little in my foolish boasting: and indeed
- 2 bear with me. For I am jealous of you with a very great jealousy: for I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ. But I
- 3 fear, lest as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.
- 4 For if he that cometh among you preach another Jesus, whom we have not preached; or if ye receive another spirit, which ye have not received, or another gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with me.
- 5 For I suppose I am in nothing inferior to the chiefest apostles. But though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge; but in every thing we have been made manifest
- 7 towards you among all men. Have I committed an offence in humbling myself, that ye might be exalted; because I have preached to you the gospel of God without
- 8 cost? I spoiled other churches, by receiving
- 9 wages, to minister to you. And when I was present with you, and wanted, I was chargeable to no man: for that which was wanting to me, the brethren who came from Macedonia supplied: and in every thing I have kept myself from being burdensome
- 10 to you, and I will keep myself. As the truth of Christ is in me, this glorying shall not be stopped with respect to me, in the
- 11 regions of Achaia. Why? because I do not love you? God knoweth that I love
- 12 you. But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occasion from those who desire occasion; that wherein they glory,
- 13 they may be found even as we. For such are false apostles, deceitful workmen, transforming themselves into apostles of Christ. And no wonder; for Satan also transformeth himself into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also transform themselves as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works. I say again, Let no man think me foolish; if otherwise, yet as foolish receive me, that I may glory a little. That which I speak, I speak not by command of the Lord, but as it were foolishly, on this subject of glorying.

Since many glory according to the flesh, I also will glory. For ye bear with the foolish gladly, since ye yourselves are wise. For ye bear with it, if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take of you, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face. I speak as 21 in respect to the reproach, namely, that we are weak. Yet whereinsoever any is bold, (I speak foolishly,) I also am bold. Are 22 they Hebrews? so am I. Are they Israelites? so am I. Are they the seed of Abraham? so am I. Are they ministers of 23 Christ? (I speak as one foolish) I am more; in labours more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, in deaths often. Five times I received of 24 the Jews forty stripes except one. Thrice 25 I was beaten with rods, once I was stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I floated in the deep. I have been in 26 journeys often, in dangers from rivers, in dangers from robbers, in dangers from mine own countrymen, in dangers from the Gentiles, in dangers in the city, in dangers in the desert, in dangers on the sea, in dangers among false brethren; in labour and 27 toil, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Besides those things that are with- 28 out, the troubles which come on me daily, with success. Even among men, self-praise is no commendation. It is, indeed, an honour to receive commendation from God, either here, by being made useful, or hereafter, by being admitted to his presence and glory.

CHAP. XI. 1. In my foolish boasting] That this gives the sense the whole context proves.

2. One husband] The Lord Jesus. They had been espoused or betrothed to him by the ministry of Paul, and he was anxious that they might be preserved as a chaste virgin, and at last presented to him without spot.

3. I fear] Paul's affection to them made him fear on their account, lest, through temptation, they should be corrupted from that simplicity of manners and doctrine which became them as believers in Christ.

4. He that cometh] The leader of the faction among you. Another Jesus] Were he to announce to you another Jesus as the foundation of your faith; but does he not, in fact, build on him whom I have preached?

5. To the chiefest] He doubtless refers to James, Peter, and John. See Gal. ii. 9. Hence the Papists are convicted of folly in setting up Peter only.

6. Rude in speech] 1 Cor. ii. 1, 4. This was the language or charge of his opponent.

7—10. Without cost] Is this a proof of my want of apostolic authority? It seems the churches in other places sent him some supplies; and his acceptance of it, he calls spoiling them. He refers to the churches of Macedonia.

11. God knoweth] I have thought it better to supply what is implied, so that the sense may not be mistaken.

13. Deceitful workmen] It is probable that he alludes to some Jewish zealots, who, pretending to be apostles of Christ, tried to injure him, as well as prevent the success of the gospel.

14, 15. Satan also] Some think that he might do this when he tempted Eve and our Lord.—His ministers] All false teachers and wicked men are intended, but awful will be their reward.

18—21. With the foolish] With those who glory in their carnal privileges and other things of a secular nature, because you judge yourselves to be wise.—If a man] Paul must allude to the tyranny and insolence of the false teachers, which they had as yet borne.

22. Hebrews] So am I speaking their language, and not an Hellenist; of the seed of Abraham, as I can prove by direct genealogies.

25. Beaten with rods] This was the Roman manner of punishment, Acts xvi. 21, 22.—Stoned] Acts xiv. 19.—Shipwreck] When he did so, or where, we have no infor-

29 in the care of all the churches. Who is weak, and I am not weak? who stumbleth, 30 and I burn not? If I must needs glory, I will glory in the things which concern my 31 weakness. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is blessed for ever- 32 more, knoweth that I lie not. In Damascus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damascenes with a 33 garrison, desiring to apprehend me: And through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall, and escaped his hands.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 58. Paul commendeth his apostleship not by the revelations communicated, but by his infirmities, blaming them for compelling him to this boasting.

1 DOUBTLESS it is not expedient for me to glory. Yet I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord. I know a man in Christ, who about fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I know not; or whether out of the body, I know not: God knoweth :) that such an one was caught up to the third heaven. And I know such a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I know not :) God knoweth; 4 How that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not possible for a man to utter. Of such an one will I glory: but of myself I will not glory, except in my weaknesses. 6 For if I were desirous of glorying, I should not be foolish; for I should speak the truth: but I forbear, lest any man should think of me above what he seeth me to be, or what he heareth from me. And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of these revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to buffet me; lest, I say, I should be exalted above measure. Concern- 8 ing this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said 9 to me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my weaknesses, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. I take pleasure there- 10 fore in weaknesses, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong. I am become foolish in glory- 11 ing; ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended by you: for in nothing am I inferior to the chiefest apostles, though I be nothing. The signs 12 indeed of an apostle were wrought among you, in all patience, in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds. For what is it wherein 13 you were inferior to other churches, unless it be that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong. Behold, a 14 third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdensome to you: for I seek not yours, but you. For the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children. And I 15 will very gladly spend and be spent for the sake of your souls; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I am loved.

But be it so; I did not burden you: 16 nevertheless, being crafty, I caught you with guile. Did I make a gain of you by 17 any of those whom I sent to you? I desired Titus to go, and with him I sent a brother. Did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the same spirit? walked we not in the same steps? Think ye that 19 we again defend ourselves to you? we speak before God in Christ: but we do all things, mation. On one of these occasions he floated a night and a day in the deep.

28, 29. In the care of] Especially those which he had planted.—Is weak] In knowledge, and full of scruples; and do I not condescend to him? Who stumbleth, and I do not burn to raise him up?

30. My weakness] My own helpless and exposed situation, which gave occasion both to men and to God to display kindness unto me. He refers to verses 32, 33.

32, 33. Under Aretas] Acts ix. 23—25.

CHAP. XII. 1. It is not expedient] It brings upon me the suspicion of vain-glory.—Yet I will come] As you have, in a measure, forced me.

2. I know a man in Christ] A believer in him. 'Whether in the body,' by being actually caught up to heaven; or 'out of the body,' in a vision or trance, Acts xii. 9.—Third heaven] The highest heaven, where God manifests his glory. See note, Gen. i. 6.

4. Paradise] St. Paul speaks of the same vision here, and verse 2; and consequently paradise is the same as the third heaven.—Not possible] Though he was enabled to understand what he saw and heard, yet he could not, by human language, convey to others any conceptions of it.

5, 6. Of such an one] This is a delicate mode of speaking of himself, and shows his great humility. He might justly glory in the honour done him; but he was afraid lest any one should think too much of him instead of the Saviour.

7. A thorn in the flesh] Some bodily infirmity; and no conjecture seems so natural as that of Dr. Whitby, that the views he had of the heavenly glory, produced some paralytic symptoms, perhaps a stammering in his speech, and some particular distortions in his countenance. As this might lessen both his acceptance and his usefulness, it is no wonder he should be so importunate to have it removed; and yet being the consequence of 'so great a favour,' he might justly glory in it.—A messenger of Satan] Natural evil or affliction is attributed to Satan, Luke xiii. 26. But some think that the messenger of Satan refers to the false teachers, or apostles, who took advantage of Paul's infirmities to oppose and injure him.

8—10. The Lord thrice] This shows how much he desired that it might be removed.—My grace] This answer to his prayer was made most probably in a vision, or else by revelation through the Spirit.—My power] In converting men, is displayed by the weakness of the instruments I employ.—Most gladly] Rather than he discouraged, I will rejoice in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may overshadow me as a tent, as the term signifies, affording me shelter, safety, refreshment, and rest.

11—15. Ye have compelled me] By what has been said against me. Yet 'the signs of an apostle were wrought among you' by various and wonderful miracles and gifts of the Spirit.—I seek not yours] He considered himself as a father, and hence bound to do all for their advantage.

16—19. I caught you with guile] This was the language

20 dearly beloved, for your edification. For I fear, lest, when I come, I may not find you such as I would, and lest I shall be found by you such as ye would not: lest there be contentions, envyings, wrath, strifes, evil-speaking, whisplings, swellings, tumults: 21 And lest, when I come again, my God may humble me among you, and that I shall have to bewail many who have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness, and fornication, and lasciviousness, which they have committed.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 58. Paul threateneth obstinate sinners; adviseth them to examine themselves, and concludes with an exhortation and prayer.

1 THIS third time I am coming to you. By the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established. I told you before, and I tell beforehand a second time, as if present, though now absent, those who heretofore have sinned, and all others, that, if I come again, I will not spare them: 3 Since ye seek a proof of Christ speaking by me, who towards you is not weak, but is 4 mighty among you. For though he was crucified through weakness, yet he liveth by the power of God. For we also are weak in him, but we shall live with him by the 5 power of God towards you. Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, unless ye be disapproved? But I trust that ye will know that we are not disapproved. Now I pray God that ye do no evil: I pray not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is good, though we be as if disapproved. For we cannot do any thing against the truth; but for the truth. For we are glad, when we are weak, and ye are strong; and for this we pray also, even your perfection. Wherefore I write these things, being absent; lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me; yet this is for edification, and not for destruction. Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you. Salute one another with a holy kiss. All the saints salute you. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen.

The second epistle to the Corinthians was written from Philippi, a city of Macedonia, by Titus and Luke.

of some opponent. He appeals to them whether or not this charge was true. See note, chap. viii. 18.

20, 21. For I fear lest] Paul was concerned, lest on his arrival he should find some very far from being what he desired, in their temper and practice; and lest he should have sorrow over such on account of their sins.

CHAP. XIII. 1. By the mouth] See Deuter. xix. 15. Paul would examine into their conduct; and if any thing immoral was proved by the testimony of two or three witnesses, he would punish the obstinate.

2. I told you before] See 1 Cor. iv. 18, 19.

4. Through weakness] Of that human nature which he assumed; yet he liveth again, being raised by the power of God; so we also are weak in him, and like him exposed to many evils; but we shall prove that we live by him, through the power of God exercised towards you.

5. Disapproved] See 1 Cor. ix. 27. Every man is disapproved who is not in Christ, and who has not Christ formed in him. It is only in him that we are accepted.

6. Are not disapproved] Of God, however we may be so by some men.

7. Now I pray God] That he would keep you from doing evil.—I pray not] So Valable and others supply. I do not pray that we may appear approved by the exercise of our apostolic authority, in punishing offenders, but I am rather desirous in this respect to appear as if rejected or disapproved.

8. We cannot do] We cannot do anything in approving, or disapproving of men, or in exercising our authority against the interest of the truth of the gospel, but for it. We are influenced by no selfish ends and views.

9. We are weak] When we are accounted so, and when you are strong in faith and other Christian virtues; and we even most fervently pray for your perfection.

10. Yet this is for] I have supplied what appears to be necessary; and from this we learn that censures or punishments were not to be inflicted but for the good both of the offenders and of the whole body.

11. Of one man] United in your views and affections, and live in peace and concord; and then may you expect the God of peace to be with you.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE GALATIANS.

INTRODUCTION.

NUMEROUS Christian societies had been formed in various parts by the labours and ministry of Paul; and several such in Galatia: Acts xvi. 1; xviii. 23. The members of these societies or churches were chiefly Gentiles. Some Jewish zealots had come among them, and maintained, that they could not be saved unless they were circumcised according to the law of Moses. To establish this sentiment, they asserted that the authority of Paul was not equal to that of Peter, and other apostles of the circumcision. Paul vindicates his own authority, and maintains that he who submitted to circumcision became obliged to perform the whole law, and did in effect renounce the gospel; the grand peculiarity of which is justification by faith, without the works of the law.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 58. Paul wonders that they should so soon desert him and the gospel; solemnly condemns any other gospel, and shows how he was called to the apostleship.

- 1 PAUL, an apostle, (not from men, nor by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead;)
- 2 And all the brethren that are with me, to
- 3 the churches of Galatia: Grace be to you, and peace from God the Father, and from
- 4 our Lord Jesus Christ: Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the
- 5 will of our God and Father: To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.
- 6 I wonder that ye are so soon removed from him that called you through the grace
- 7 of Christ, to another gospel: Which is not another; but there are some that trouble you, and desire to pervert the gospel of
- 8 Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any gospel to you besides that which we have preached to you, let him
- 9 be accursed. As we have already said, so I now say again, If any one preach any gospel to you besides that which ye have
- 10 received, let him be accursed. For do I now aim to approve myself to men, or to God? or do I seek to please men? for if I still pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ.
- 11 But I declare to you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached by me is not ac-
- 12 cording to man. For I neither received it from man, nor was I taught it, but by the
- 13 revelation of Jesus Christ. For ye have heard of my former behaviour in the Jewish religion, that I exceedingly persecuted the church of God, and laid it waste: And I 14 made a proficiency in the Jewish religion above many of the same age in my own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my forefathers. But when 15 it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, To reveal his Son to me, that I might 16 preach him among the Gentiles; I did not immediately consult with flesh and blood; Nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who 17 were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned unto Damascus. Then, after three years, I went up to Je- 18 rusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days. But I saw no other of the 19 apostles, except James the Lord's brother. (Now the things which I write to you, 20 behold, before God, I lie not.) Afterwards 21 I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia; And I was unknown by face unto the 22 churches of Judea which were in Christ: But they had only heard, That he, who 23 formerly persecuted us, now preached the faith which he once destroyed. And they 24 glorified God on account of me.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 58. Paul mentions his second journey to Jerusalem, and the reason of it; blames Peter, and states the doctrine of justification by faith, &c.

THEN, after fourteen years, I went up 1 again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took with me Titus also. And I went up 2 by revelation, and communicated to them that gospel which I preach among the Gen- tiles; but privately to those who were of reputation, lest I should run, or had run,

CHAP. I. 1—5. From men] Originally; not from the suggestion or instruction of men, nor by the instrumentality of any man; but by Christ himself, and as he is one with the Father, by his will and act also.—Gave himself for] Gave up himself a sacrifice for our sins.—This present evil] Gentiles being given up to idols and the most degrading vices, and the Jews being no better.

6. Him that called you] With Dr. Chandler, I refer this to the apostle; and as the proper translation of iv χαριτι is 'by or through the grace of Christ,' as it is rendered 2 Cor. i. 12, and 2 Thess. ii. 16; the apostle only speaks of himself as the instrument which Christ had employed in this work of mercy.

7. Which is not another] Having called the opinion of the Judaizing teachers, 'another gospel,' probably using their boasting language, he corrects such a statement by observing, what they maintain and preach is not another gospel, but a perversion of the gospel of Christ.

8—10. Angel from heaven] This is supposing a strong case by way of illustration; and the repetition of it shows how much the apostle felt the importance of the subject.—Aim to approve] For this sense of πιδω, see Acts xii. 20; xiv. 19, and the authorities in Schleusner.

11, 12. According to man] It is not of man's invention, nor was I taught it by any man, but received it by immediate revelation from Christ, as the following facts will testify.

14. Traditions] Not only being more zealous for the law of Moses, but for all the traditions which had been mixed with it, as of the same Divine authority.

15. Separated me] Who had in his secret and holy purpose appointed me to the office of an apostle from my very birth. See Jerem. i. 5.

16. To reveal his Son] To discover him to me in the way to Damascus, as risen from the dead. 'I did not, after that, consult any man,' respecting the gospel, or my duty as to preaching it. See Matt. xvi. 17.

17. Into Arabia] We have no account of this journey in Acts ix. It is probable that Paul, having tarried a few days at Damascus with the brethren, and preached Christ, then withdrew into Arabia to exercise his ministry, and after some time returned to Damascus, where what is related Acts ix. 23, 24, occurred.

18. After three years] From the time of his conversion. If this visit is that related Acts ix. 26—30, Paul must have laboured some time in Arabia as well as at Damascus. He abode with Peter fifteen days; but all the other apostles, except James, were then employed in their different missions.

20—24. I lie not] I write only what is true. On his departure from Jerusalem he first went into Syria, and then into his own native country, Cilicia. During all this period he was personally unknown to the churches in Judea.

CHAP. II. 1. Fourteen years after] Most probably, not after his first journey, but after his conversion. He went to consult the apostles and church about the freedom of the Gentiles from Jewish rites. Acts xv. 2, &c.

2. By revelation] Either communicated to himself or to some other teacher or prophet.—But privately] To the apostles and elders, because many of the Jewish believers could not bear the doctrine that all converts were exempted from their rites.—Should run] Lest, if the apostles should oppose my sentiments as to this particular, I should have laboured in vain, and the progress of the gospel should be impeded.

3 in vain. But not even Titus, who was with me, being a Gentile, was compelled to be circumcised; On account of false brethren artfully introduced, who had come in privily to spy out our freedom which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage: To whom we did not give place by subjection even for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you. But in respect to those who were of most reputation, (whatsoever they were, it maketh no difference to me: God accepteth no man's person:) for they who were of reputation, in conference added nothing to me. But, on the contrary, when they saw that I was entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcision, as Peter was with the gospel for the circumcision; (For he that wrought effectually by Peter in the apostleship of the circumcision, the same wrought powerfully by me in the conversion of the Gentiles:) And when James, Peter, and John, who were judged to be pillars, perceived the grace that was bestowed on me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; that we should go to the Gentiles, and they to the circumcision. Only they would that we should remember the poor; which very thing I was earnest also to do.

11 But when Peter had come to Antioch, I withstood him to his face, because he was 12 to be blamed. For before certain persons came from James, he ate with the Gentiles: but when they had come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing those of the circumcision. And the other Jews also dissembled with him; so that Barnabas likewise was carried away by their dissimulation. But when I saw that they walked 14 not uprightly, according to the truth of the gospel, I said to Peter, in the presence of them all, If thou, being a Jew, live according to the manner of the Gentiles, and not according to that of the Jews, why dost thou urge the Gentiles to observe the laws of the Jews? We, who are Jews by 15 nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles, Knowing that a man is not justified by 16 works of the law, but by faith in Jesus Christ; even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by faith in Christ, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified. But if, while we seek to be 17 justified by Christ, we ourselves are still sinners, is therefore Christ the minister of sin? By no means. For if I build again 18 the things which I have destroyed, I make myself a transgressor. For I, through the 19 law, have died to the law, that I might live unto God. I am crucified with Christ: 20 nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me. I do not make void the grace 21 of God: for if righteousness come by the law, then Christ died in vain.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 53. Paul interrogates them respecting their attachment to the law; shows that men are justified by faith, and blessed with believing Abraham.

O UNWISE Galatians, who hath imposed 1 on you,^a before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth as crucified for you? This only I desire to learn from 2

3—5. Titus, who] Paul took Titus, a believing Gentile, as his companion, to show what was his opinion about consorting with Gentile converts; nor was he compelled to be circumcised. Paul would not suffer it, to gratify some false brethren. See Acts xv. 1, 2, 24. The reason why the apostle resisted was: to maintain the freedom of Christians, as such, from all Mosaic rites and observances.

6—10. Of most reputation] Men of eminence, as were the apostles and elders at Jerusalem. These, on learning his success in preaching to the Gentiles, concluded that Christ had entrusted him with the gospel for their benefit and salvation, as he had Peter with it for the conversion of the Jews.—The poor] The poor Christians who were at Jerusalem, and in Judea. See Rom. xv. 26, and 2 Cor. ix. 1, &c.

11—13. Blameful] For not acting according to his own convictions, and the revelation which had been made to him. See Acts x. and xi.

14. Not uprightly] This shows that the apostles were not perfect characters; but, when not under the powerful influence of the Spirit, were liable to fall, and become guilty of unsuitable behaviour.—According to the manner of the Gentiles] Eating with them, and of food which, to a Jew, is unclean. Why do you this at one time, and then, at another, refuse to eat with them?—Observe the laws] Or become Jews, by submitting to all the Mosaic rites.

16. Even we have believed] And if it be necessary for us to believe in Christ for justification, it is manifest that we neither are, nor can be, justified by the observance of the law. &c. Rom. iii. 20; iv. 15, &c.

17. Are still sinners] And need the aid of the law to pardon us, then indeed is not Christ the minister of sin, leaving those who believe in him under it, and subject to all its consequences? This question implies the apostle's indignation at such a thought.

18. If I build again] If we re-establish the law and its rites as necessary to salvation, which, by our decree at Jerusalem and our preaching, we have declared not to be binding, we prove ourselves transgressors by deceiving others. But I solemnly, for myself, declare, that through a full knowledge of the law, I have died to the law as affording me any ground of justification; and in consequence have believed in Christ, that I may live unto God.

20. Crucified with] See note, Rom. vii. 4.—Nevertheless I live] Having been raised with him, by the work of his Spirit; yea, Christ even lives in me.

21. Come by the law] If this blessing could be obtained by our moral obedience, or by any ceremonial observances, the death of Christ would have been in vain, and the grace of God in the gospel made void and destroyed.

CHAP. III. 1. Imposed on you] As if by the supposed power of magic, as the word signifies. The words 'among you' are very doubtful.—Before whose eyes] Paul had exhibited the person of the Saviour in so lively a manner to them, and especially his crucifixion, that they might be considered as having seen him giving up himself for them.—(c) That ye should not obey the truth. Griesb.

you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of 3 the law, or by the obedience of faith? Are ye so unwise? having begun in the Spirit, 4 are ye now making yourselves perfect by the flesh? Have ye suffered so many things 5 in vain? if it be indeed in vain. He therefore that ministered to you the Spirit, and wrought miracles among you, did he it by 6 the works of the law, or by the obedience of faith? Even as Abraham believed God, 7 and it was counted to him in order to righteousness. Know therefore that those who are of faith, are the children of 8 Abraham. And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles through faith, proclaimed before glad tidings to Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations 9 be blessed. So then those that are of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.
 10 For as many as are of the works of the law are under a curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of 11 the law, to do them. But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, is evident: for, The righteous by faith shall 12 live. Now the law is not of faith: but,
 He that doeth them, shall live by them.
 13 Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, having been made a curse for us:
 (for it is written, Cursed is every one that 14 hangeth on a tree :) That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit by faith.
 15 Brethren, (I speak according to the manner of men;) Though it be but a man's covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no man disannulleth, or addeth to it. Now to 16 Abraham and his seed the promises were made. (He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ.) And this I say, that the 17 covenant, which was before confirmed by God in respect to Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, so as to make the promise of no effect. For if the inheritance be by 18 the law, it is no more by promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise. To what 19 purpose then was the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made; and the law was given, through the ministry of angels, by the hand of a mediator. Now a mediator is not a mediator 20 of one, but God is one.

Is the law then against the promises of 21 God? By no means: for if a law had been given which could have bestowed life, verily righteousness would have been by the law.
 But the scripture hath shut up all under 22 sin, that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe.
 For before faith came, we were kept under 23 the law, shut up to the faith which should afterwards be revealed. So that the law 24 was our guide to Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But now the faith is 25 come, we are no longer under a guide.
 For ye are all the children of God by faith 26 in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as 27 have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Gentile, 28 there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one

2-5. Having begun] With receiving the Spirit by the gospel, do you now seek to be perfect by carnal ordinances? If it be yet in vain] They had suffered much on account of the gospel; and if they could not be saved by it, they had suffered in vain.

7. Who are of faith] Or 'who have faith,' are the children of Abraham; his spiritual seed. See Romans iv. 10, 18.

10. Of the works of the law] These are opposed to those who 'are of faith,' and expected mercy as promised.

11, 12. Is evident] By the testimony of the prophet. IIab. ii. 4; Rom. iii. 17.—The law is not of faith] It does not require faith, but works, nor will it acquit a believer, but only such as perfectly keep it.

13, 14. Redeemed us] By submitting to bear it in his own body on the tree, with the kind design that the 'blessing of Abraham,' &c.

15-17. A man's covenant] When duly ratified, is not altered in any respect; so we may expect the covenant made with Abraham to be literally fulfilled: for to him and his the promises were made. Now the law given so long after cannot be supposed to disannul this prior covenant containing the promises, which had so direct a reference to Christ.

18. The inheritance] Of the earthly Canaan to his natural seed; and to his spiritual, that of life and happiness in heaven. See Rom. iv. 4, 14, &c. This was given to Abraham by promise; and his seed have ever enjoyed it as a gift, and not as a matter of debt due to them for obedience to the law.

19. To what purpose] The apostle anticipates this objection, and answers, It was added because of transgressions, to expose and restrain the idolatry and vices with which the world abounded.—The ministry of angels] Acts vii. 53; Hebr. ii. 2. They attended God on Sinai, as his servants.—By a mediator] By Moses, who was the mediator between God and Israel, on the giving of the law.

20. Now a mediator] A mediator supposes more parties than one; and of these parties the unchangeable God is one. Michaelis and others consider this verse a marginal gloss.

21. Is the law then] Is it inconsistent with the promises made to Abraham? By no means. The law is so excellent in itself, that if any law had ever been, or could be given, which would insure eternal life, it would have been that which God gave at Sinai.

22. All under sin] See Rom. iii. 10, &c.—That the promise] Of pardon and salvation through Christ, might be given to those who believe in him.

23. Faith came] The gospel, the doctrine of faith.—Kept under] In the custody of the law, and from its rigour, hoping for the appearance of Messiah.

24-26. Our guide] A pedagogue, or one who conducts children to their exercises, &c. The law was thus our guide to Christ, by its moral precepts, types, and prophecies, and especially by showing the impossibility of attaining righteousness by it.—But now faith] The gospel has visited us, we no longer need the law as a guide. For by faith in Christ Jesus, &c.

27. Baptized] Having submitted to this rite, you engaged to put on Christ. For the sense of 'putting on Christ,' see note, Rom. xiii. 14.

28. Jew nor Gentile] The gospel invites and admits all nations, all ranks and conditions of men, and as far as 29 in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye the seed of Abraham, and heirs according to the promise.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 58. Christ having come, we are no longer under the law; he illustrates the nature of the two dispensations, the law and the gospel.

1 Now I say that an heir, as long as he is a child, differeth in nothing from a servant, 2 though he be master of all; But is under tutors and guardians until the time appointed 3 by the father. Even so we, when we were children, were in servitude under the ele- 4 ments of the world: But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, 5 To redeem those that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. 6 And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, 7 crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, 8 then an heir of God through Christ. At that time, however, when ye knew not God, ye served those who by nature are not gods. 9 But now, after ye have known God, or rather have been known by God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, to which ye desire again to be in servitude? 10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, 11 and years. I fear concerning you, lest I have bestowed on you labour in vain. 12 Brethren, I beseech you, be as I am; for I am as ye were; ye have not wronged me 13 in any thing. Ye know that in weakness of the flesh I preached the gospel to you at 14 first. And my trial which was in my flesh ye did not despise, or scorn; but ye received me as an angel of God, or even as Christ Jesus. What then was your happiness? 15 for I bear witness, that, if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me. Am I 16 therefore become your enemy, when I tell you the truth? Some are zealously affected 17 to you, but not well; yea, they would exclude us, that ye may be zealously affected to them. But it is good to be always zealously affected in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you. My 19 children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you, I desire to 20 be present with you now, and to change my voice; for I doubt concerning you.

Tell me, ye that desire to be under the 21 law, do ye not hear the law? For it is writ- 22 ten, that Abraham had two sons, one by a bond-woman, and another by a free-woman. But he who was of the bond-woman was 23 born according to the flesh; but he of the free-woman was by promise: Which things 24 may be allegorized. For these are the two covenants; the one from mount Sinai, which beareth children to servitude, which is Hagar. (For this Hagar is mount Sinai 25 in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is; for she is in servitude with her children.) But the Jerusalem which is 26 above is the free-woman, who is our mother. For it is written, Rejoice, thou barren that 27 bearest not; break forth and shout, thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children than she who hath a husband. Now we, brethren, according to 28 the manner of Isaac, are the children of promise. But as then he that was born ac- 29 cording to the flesh persecuted him that was religion is concerned, all personal distinctions are done away.

CHAP. IV. 1-5. The heir] While a person is under age, he is in subjection; so the church of God, under the law, was in a state of subjection to a ritual law, the elements of the world. See Gal. ii. 8, 20; Heb. ix. 1.—Fulness of time] The time appointed of the Father.—Born under the law] To every part of which he was obedient, and even submitted to its curse, &c.

8 At that time] In the time of your servitude and sin.—By nature are not] But only in the imaginations of men, who foolishly attribute divine attributes to them.

9-11. How turn ye again?] After having been in servitude to false gods, would you wish to be in servitude to Jewish rites and days?

12. Am as ye were] I am as concerned for your welfare, and as affectionately disposed towards you, as ye formerly were towards me.—Not wronged me] But yourselves, by submitting to the impositions of your erroneous teachers.

13. In weakness] This he calls his 'trial' in the next verse, and 'his thorn in the flesh,' 2 Cor. xii. 7, where see the note.

15-19. The truth] State and defend your freedom from the law of Moses.—But not well] Their zeal is not so much for your spiritual advantage, as to exclude us from your esteem, that you may become zealous for them.—In a good thing] Such as the pure doctrine of the gospel, or towards any good man.—My children] For the punctuation, see Griesbach. This language shows the unabated regard of the apostle.

20. I desire to be] I doubt whether you have courage to maintain your Christian freedom, and to reject the yoke imposed on you.

21. Hear the law] Do ye not attend to what it enjoins, and with what rigour it demands your compliance? Permit me to illustrate the nature of the law and gospel by an apt comparison.

22, 23. Two sons] Ishmael and Isaac. Gen. xvi. 15; xxi. 3.—According to the flesh] Without any divine promise, or any peculiar interposition of God; but the other was born according to an express promise, and in some sense out of the course of nature.

24. Allegorized] Are applied to show the nature of the two covenants, for these two women and their sons are or represent these covenants.—Which is Hagar] Hagar, being a bond-maid, bore a son, who was in the same state.

25. This Hagar] Represents the covenant made at Mount Sinai, and corresponds with the state of the present Jerusalem, which is under servitude to the law.—Answereth] Or 'is in the same rank with;' Bishop Fell, 'in the same order or file.' Covenant by Moses, contrasted with that by Christ; bondage of the former, with the liberty of the latter; Hagar with Sarah; Ishmael with Isaac; law from Sinai, with gospel from heaven; Jerusalem that now is, with Jerusalem above; Jews circumcised with Christians baptized.

27. Rejoice] See ls. liv. 1. The Christian Church, comprehending the Gentiles, will have a more numerous offspring than the Jewish church ever had.

29. Persecuted] See Gen. xxi. 9. Derided, insulted him; so now the Jews deride and persecute us born according to the Spirit, even so it is 30 now. Nevertheless, what saith the scripture? Cast out the bond-woman and her son: for the son of the bond-woman shall not be heir with the son of the free-woman.

 31 So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond-woman, but of the free-woman.
 1 Stand firmly therefore in the freedom with which Christ hath made us free, and be not put under the yoke of servitude.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 59. He exhorts them not to submit to circumcision, but to cultivate brotherly love; he enumerates the works of the flesh, and the fruits of the Spirit, &c.

2 BEHOLD, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ will profit you 3 nothing. Yea, I testify again to every man who is circumcised, that he is a debtor to 4 do the whole law. Christ is become of no effect to you, whosoever of you seek to be justified by the law: ye are fallen from 5 the doctrine of grace. For we, through the Spirit, look for the hope of righteousness 6 by faith. For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love.
 7 Ye did run well; who hath hindered you 8 that ye should not obey the truth? This persuasion came not from him that called 9 you. A little leaven leaveneth the whole 10 lump. Yet I have confidence in you through the Lord, that ye will not think otherwise than I do: but he who troubleth you shall 11 bear his judgment, whosoever he be. And as to myself, brethren, if I still preach circumcision, why do I still suffer persecution?

30. Cast out the] This intimates, in a delicate but forcible manner, that the unbelieving Jews would be rejected. The mode of applying the scripture histories which Paul has adopted from verses 21—31, was usual with the Jewish teachers; and it must have awakened in their minds many reflections.

31. Of the bond-woman] Since we are children of promise, verse 28, and are persecuted as Isaac was, it follows that we are children of the free-woman.

CHAP. V. 1. Stand firmly] Do not suffer yourselves to be again enslaved, but firmly and constantly maintain your Christian freedom.

2—4. Christ will profit] In this case you reject him and the doctrine of grace, while you become obliged to perform the whole law.

7. Who hath hindered] What Judaizers, what perverters of the gospel, have come and impeded your Christian exertions?

8. This persuasion] This opinion, that the observance of Jewish rites is necessary to your acceptance, came not from any instructions which I gave you, when, by my ministry, you were called to the fellowship of the gospel, chapter i. 6.

9. A little leaven] A few seducers may corrupt a whole church. 1 Cor. v. 6.

10. Yet I have confidence] I hope, through the assistance and grace of Christ, that you will renounce your errors, and cordially adhere to the truth.

11. Suffer persecution] In that case they would have no reason to be offended at me, as I should cease to preach salvation through a crucified Redeemer.

12. Cut off who trouble] By the infliction of diseases, in that case the offence of the cross would be done away.
 221

I could wish that they were even cut off 12 who trouble you. For, brethren, ye have 13 been called to freedom; only use not freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. For the whole law 14 is fulfilled by one precept, even by this;
 Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.
 But if ye bite and devour one another, take 15 heed that ye be not consumed by one another.

Now I say, Walk in the spirit, and fulfil 16 not the desire of the flesh. For the flesh 17 desireth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye do not the things which ye would. But if ye be led 18 by the spirit, ye are not under the law.
 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, 19 which are these; adultery, fornication, un-cleanness, lasciviousness. Idolatry, sorcery, 20 hatred, variance, rivalries, wrath, disputes, factions, sects, Envyings, murders, drunken- 21 ness, revellings, and such like: concerning which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.
 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, 22 long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faithfulness, Meekness, temperance: against 23 such things there is no law. Now they that 24 are Christ's have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. If we live in the spi- 25 rit, let us also walk in the spirit. Let us 26 not be vain-glorious, provoking one another, envying one another.

so that the body might perish, but the soul be saved, 1
 Cor. v. 5.

13. Use not freedom] So as to occasion disputes, quarrels, or even to prejudice weak Jewish brethren.

14. The whole law] As far as it refers to our fellow-creatures.

16. Walk in the spirit] In a spiritual manner, agreeably to those spiritual principles which you have received.

17. Desireth against] Our depravity desireth what our spiritual principles, the new man, condemn; and this new man desireth what is opposite to our depravity. See John iii. 6; Rom. vii. 19.

18. Led by the spirit] When you act according to your spiritual principle, I assure you that ye are not so under the law, as to be condemned for defects which you lament. See Rom. viii. 13, 14.

19—21. Works of the flesh] As many of the things, called 'works of the flesh,' consist in errors, and evil dispositions of the mind, it is manifest that by flesh is meant man's corruption and depravity.—Sorcery] The arts of incantation, by which the priests imposed on the people, Rev. xviii. 23.—Sects] Parties formed for the sake of worldly interest, Titus iii. 10, and 2 Pet. ii. 1.

22, 23. Fruits of the Spirit] Which arise from the influence of the Holy Spirit, and which exist in the renewed mind, some in one degree, and some in another; and only some of them in each person.

24—26. Have crucified] Such as are in reality Christ's, are engaged, by their own interest and profession, to be crucifying the flesh daily.—If we live in] Having been raised from a death in sin, let us walk in a spiritual and becoming manner, and not be vain-glorious, provoking, &c.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 58. He chargeth them to deal kindly with an offending brother; to be liberal to their teachers, and to continue doing well; he glories in the cross of Christ.

- 1 BRETHREN, if a man be even overtaken in any fault, ye that are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.
- 2 Bear ye one another's burdens; and thus
- 3 fulfil the law of Christ. For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself. But let every man prove his own work; and then will he have glorying in himself alone, and not in another. For every man shall bear his own burden.
- 6 Let him that is taught the word, communicate to him that teacheth in all
- 7 good things. Be not deceived; God is not to be deluded: for whatsoever a man soweth,
- 8 that shall he reap also. For he that soweth to his flesh, from the flesh shall reap destruction; but he that soweth to the spirit, from the spirit shall reap everlasting life.
- 9 And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

CHAP. VI. 1-5. That are spiritual] Bear with each other's infirmities, considering what Christ has enjoined, and what reason each has to be humble.—Prove his own] By trying what he thinks, and what he does by the word of God, and then will he have glorying, in the proofs of his own state and safety.

7-10. God is not to be] By any fraud or hypocrisy.—Soweth to the flesh] By aiming solely to attain carnal, worldly gratifications shall reap destruction; see 1 Cor. iii. 17, and 2 Pet. ii. 12.—To the spirit] Who pursue their spiritual interests, shall reap everlasting life. And let us particularly regard our Christian brethren.

11. With my own hand] He usually employed a scribe; but on this occasion he wrote with his own hand.

13. Glory in your flesh] In having brought you to submit to circumcision.

As therefore we have opportunity, let us do 10 good unto all men; but especially to those who are of the household of faith.

Ye see how large a letter I have written 11 unto you with mine own hand. As many 12 as desire to make a fair show in the flesh, such would compel you to be circumcised, only lest they should suffer persecution for the cross of Christ. For neither do they 13 themselves who are circumcised keep the law; but they desire to have you circumcised, that they may glory in your flesh. But far be it that I should glory, unless in 14 the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world. For in Christ Jesus neither cir- 15 cumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature. And as many 16 as walk according to this rule, peace be upon them, and mercy; even upon the Israel of God. From henceforth let no man 17 trouble me: for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus. Brethren, the 18 grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

Unto the Galatians written from Rome.

14. Should glory] In any object of this kind; but in the cross of Christ I will glory, as on it he displayed the most amazing love and grace, and by the influence of which on my mind, I am crucified to all the unlawful pleasures and pursuits of the world.

15. A new creature] Being created unto good works; 1 Cor. vii. 19; Eph. ii. 10; being wholly changed as to temper, views, and practices, 2 Cor. v. 17.

16. To this rule] As maintain the truth stated in the foregoing verse, and conduct themselves accordingly, peace be upon them, &c.

17. Trouble me] By charging me with adulterating the gospel, chap. v. 11.—The marks of] See note, 1s. xlv. 5. Paul considers that the marks of the stripes, and scourgings, and stoning, showed that he too belonged to Christ.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

INTRODUCTION.

This epistle was written when Paul was a prisoner at Rome; and the design of it was to establish the church at Ephesus in the doctrines which the apostle had before preached to them. It is very evident that some errors had been mixed with the truth; and that the apostle wished to guard and secure them from their pernicious influence. He displays the excellence and power of the gospel, as exhibiting the counsels of divine love, and as producing all the fruits of righteousness. The language is forcible, and indicates how much the apostle felt the subject.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. Paul treats of election by grace as the only proper foundation of a sinner's salvation; earnestly prays that they might be able to understand it.

- 1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the CHAP. I. 1. At Ephesus] The external authority for this reading is full and decisive; yet there is much internal will of God, to the saints, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus, who are at Ephesus: Grace 2 and peace be to you, from God our Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ.

Blessed be the God and Father of our 3 evidence, that this is the epistle directed to the church at Laodicea, mentioned Coloss. iv. 16. See Paley's Horan

Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing in heavenly things
 4 in Christ: According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we might be holy and without blame
 5 before him: In love having predestinated us to the adoption of sons to himself by Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, To the praise of his glorious grace, by which he hath made us accepted
 7 in his beloved: In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace;
 8 Which he hath made to abound towards us in all wisdom and prudence; Having made known to us the secret of his will, according to his good pleasure which he purposed in 10 himself, In respect to the dispensation of the fulness of times, that he would gather together all things in Christ, both which are 11 in heaven, and which are on earth; Even in him, in whom we have obtained an inheritance also, having been predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will:
 12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, having first hoped in Christ: In whom ye also hoped after ye heard the word of truth, the glad tidings of your salvation: in whom ye also, having believed, were sealed
 14 with the promised Holy Spirit, Which is the earnest of our inheritance unto the full redemption of his purchased people, to the praise of his glory.

Pauline. Paul's epistles were certainly communicated by one church to another; and as Ephesus was a city of great note, επιστολὴ might be introduced by some transcriber. Some think it was directed not only to the Ephesians, but to other Christian brethren, to the faithful in Christ Jesus at Laodicea.

3. In heavenly things] In things relating to heaven, and securing to us the enjoyment of the heavenly inheritance. John iii. 12.

4. Chosen us in him] As Paul directs his epistle to saints, and to the faithful, or believers, it is only of them that he now speaks, as chosen in Christ.—Might be holy] Not only separated from the world, but become really holy, as one end of his gracious choice.

5. In love having] For this punctuation, see Griesb.—To the adoption] If this adoption be to admit such into his own family, and treat them as his sons, his predestinating them to it was an instance of the freest love, solely arising from the good pleasure of his will.

6. Glorious grace] This is the end he had in view in the salvation of man. If man be sinful, it is clear that he can claim nothing from God on the ground of merit; but must be indebted to his free grace for every spiritual blessing.

8. Which he hath made] See 2 Cor. ix. 8.—In all wisdom] In communicating 'wisdom' in the knowledge of the gospel, and 'prudence' in our conduct towards men.

9, 10. Secret of his will] His purpose to call the Gentiles.—In respect to the] As to the dispensation of the gospel, introduced now, the times being fulfilled which he had appointed. Gal. iv. 4.—All things] All persons, all intelligent beings, see John vi. 17, 19, where τα πάντα is used.

11. We have obtained] We believing Jews do enjoy and inherit the promises made to Abraham, especially the adoption of sons, (verse 5,) to which we have been predestinated.—Purpose of] God's purpose is ever wise, as well as holy and just, being the counsel of his own will.

Wherefore I also, having heard of your 15 faith in the Lord Jesus, and love to all the saints, Cease not to give thanks for you; 16 making mention of you in my prayers, That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the 17 Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation, in the knowledge of him; The eyes of your 'mind' 18 being enlightened, that ye may know what is the hope of his having called you, and what the glorious riches of his inheritance for the saints; And what is the exceeding 19 greatness of his power towards us who believe, According to the working of his 20 mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and seated him at his own right hand in the heavenly places; Far above all principality, 21 and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but in that also which is to come: And hath put all things under his feet, and 22 appointed him to be the head over all things to the church, Which is his body, the com- 23 pletion of him who filleth all the members with all they possess.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 63. What we are by nature and practice, and what we become by grace; we are created to good works, citizens with the saints, and of the family of God.

AND you hath God made alive, who were 1 dead in trespasses and sins; In which ye 2 formerly walked, according to the course of this world, according to the powerful ruler

13. Here sealed with] See 2 Cor. i. 22, and notes. The Holy Spirit does not seal any now by miraculous gift; but when, by his influence, we are instructed and sanctified, so as to love and serve God, we may be said to be sealed as his sons, for whom a glorious inheritance is provided.

14. Redemption of his] As it is certain that παραγωγὴ may be and is applied to people, (1 Pet. ii. 8,) and as it is generally so understood here, I have supplied to make the sense more obvious, Acts xx. 28, and 1 Tim. iii. 13.

18. Of his having called] The sense is given rather than the idiom.—What is the hope arising from his having called you by the gospel to be his people.—Of his inheritance] See Deuter. xxxii. 9. Which he will finally distribute among them.—(c) Griesb.

19—23. Of his power] In the miracles and operations, by which we were called to believe, which power will be exerted in our resurrection, as it was when Christ was raised from the dead.—Far above all] Whatever rank celestial beings enjoy, they have no name or honour like Jesus, whom the Father, on account of his suffering death, has thus highly exalted.—Which is the completion] That the term πληρωμα has this sense, see Dr. Chandler and Parkhurst. Christ is mentioned as the head of the church; but he could not be a head unless there were a body; and the body may be said to fill up, or make complete, this mystical person.—Filleth all] All his members, with all their gifts and graces.

CHAP. II. 1. God made alive] The words which begin this verse are so evidently resumed in the fifth, that most critics think both governed by the same verb.—Dead in trespasses] Wholly given up to them, and strangers to the principle and operation of spiritual life.

2. Course of this world] The common practices and vices of men.—Powerful ruler] Mede has observed, that it was an opinion of the Jews that the air was inhabited by evil spirits; and the apostle, alluding to this opinion, observes,

- of the air, the spirit that now worketh in 3 the disobedient : Among whom even we all in time past lived, in the desires of our flesh, fulfilling the will of the flesh and of our minds ; and were by nature the children of 4 wrath, even as others : But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith
 5 he loved us, Even when we were dead in sins, hath made us alive together with 6 Christ, (by grace ye are saved ;) And raised us up together, and made us sit together in 7 heavenly places in Christ Jesus ; That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindness
 8 towards us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith ; and this not of yourselves ; it is the gift of God :
 9 Not by works, so that no man can glory.
 10 For we are his workmanship, created by Christ Jesus to good works, in which God hath ordained that we should walk.
 11 Wherefore remember, that ye formerly were Gentiles in the flesh, (called the Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision made by hands in the flesh ;)
 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the community of Israel, and strangers from the covenant of promise, having no hope, and without God in the 13 world. But now in Christ Jesus ye, who formerly were afar off, are made nigh by the 14 blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us ;
 15 (Having abolished by his flesh the cause of enmity, the law of commandments consisting in ordinances, to form in himself the two into one new man, thus making peace ;

that their conduct was such as the ruler of these evil spirits might be supposed to approve.—Disobedient] Greek, 'sons of disobedience,' a Hebraism for disobedient.

3. Among whom even] We Christians, whether sprung from Jews or Gentiles, even we lived in the manner they now do, gratifying the desires of the flesh. &c.—Were by nature] By our fallen state, and evil dispositions and habits, we 'were children of wrath,' deserving of wrath, and exposed to it, even as all such sinners now are.

4—7. Rich in mercy] Naturally and eternally so. In these verses our Lord is considered as the head of his body, the church ; and every believer, as a member, may regard his resurrection, ascension, and glory, as a pledge and security, that he himself shall, in like manner, be raised, exalted, and glorified.

8. This not of yourselves] The salvation which you now in a sense enjoy, and which will be finally completed, is, in its origin, means, and end, all of grace ; and your personal interest in it is by faith ; and this faith itself is the gift of God, in connexion with the gospel. That τὸν may refer to πίστις, faith, see chap. vi. 18 ; Phil. i. 28 ; Gal. iii. 17 ; iv. 12. Some would refer it to salvation, σωτηρία, which contains the same anomaly.

9, 10. Not by works] Were it so, a man might glory ; but as it is by grace, all occasion of glorying is removed.

11, 12. Remember] Remember the condition you were in as heathens and sinners, not only uncircumcised, but without any knowledge of Christ, and even destitute of all the privileges belonging to the Israelites.

13—18. Were afar off] From God and his service.—Are made nigh] The blood of Christ having expiated your

And to reconcile both to God in one body 16 by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby :) And hath come and proclaimed the 17 glad tidings of peace to you who were afar off, and to those that were nigh. For 18 through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

Now therefore ye are no more strangers 19 and sojourners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God ; Having 20 been built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone ; By which the 21 whole building, being fitly framed together, groweth into a holy temple to the Lord : By which ye also are builded together, for a 22 habitation of God through the Spirit.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. The secret of calling the Gentiles revealed to Paul ; on him was conferred the office of preaching the gospel to them ; his prayer, &c.

For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of 1 Jesus Christ on account of you Gentiles, (Since ye have heard of the dispensation of 2 the grace of God which is given me towards you : How he made known to me, by revelation, the secret ; (as I have written before 3 in few words ;) By which, when ye read, ye 4 may understand my knowledge in this secret of Christ, Which in other generations was 5 not made known unto the sons of men, as it hath now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets, by the Spirit ; namely, That the Gentiles should be fellow-heirs, 6 and of the same body, and joint-partakers of his promise in Christ, by the gospel : Of 7 which I have been made a minister, according to the gracious gift of God bestowed on sins, and being called by the gospel to be the people of God, as well as believing Jews.—To form in himself] The Jew and the Gentile, into one new man ; and to effect this union to each other and to God, he suffered on the cross, by which he slew the enmity which had subsisted between them.—Hath come] By his ministers, &c. both to you, Gentiles, and to the Jews ; and all believers, of whatever nation they may be, have access, through him, to God as their father, and are assisted in their approaches by the Spirit.

19—22. No more strangers] No more what you were in your sins and idolatry, verse 13.—Having been built] Apostles and prophets of the Christian church, (chap. iii. 5 ; iv. 11.) are called the foundation, because on their miracles and predictions, and explanations of the Jewish prophets, believers are built.—Chief corner-stone] See note Ps. cxviii. 22.

CHAP. III. 1. For this cause] For maintaining and preaching that believing Gentiles are admitted to all the spiritual privileges of the gospel, I am a prisoner, Acts xxi. 28 ; and for this cause, I bow my knees, verse 14.

3. By revelation] This was peculiarly revealed to Paul, because he was the chief instrument appointed to accomplish God's design.—Written before] He refers to what he had said, chap. i. 4—10 ; ii. 13—21.

5. Which was not] It was a predicted event, yet still imperfectly known, until the gospel was actually preached among the Gentiles.

6. Of his promise in Christ] Of the promise made to Abraham, which was to be fulfilled in Christ.

me by the effectual working of his power :
 8 On me, who am less than the least of all saints, hath this grace been bestowed, that I should preach among the Gentiles the 9 unsearchable riches of Christ : And should make manifest to all what is the 'dispensation' of the secret, which, from the beginning of the world, was hidden in God, who 10 created all things by Jesus Christ : That the manifold wisdom of God might now be made known through the church, to the principalities and powers in the heavenly 11 places ; According to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord :
 12 Through whom we have freedom of speech and access with confidence by faith in him.
 13 Wherefore I intreat that ye faint not at my afflictions for you, which are your glory :)
 14 For this cause, I say, I bow my knees to 15 the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, From whom the whole family in heaven and earth 16 is named, That he would grant you, according to his glorious riches, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner 17 man ; That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith ; so that, being rooted and 18 grounded in love, Ye, with all the saints, may be able to apprehend what is the 19 breadth, and length, and depth, and height ; And to know the love of Christ, (but indeed it surpasseth knowledge,) so that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God.
 20 Now unto him that is able to do very abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power which worketh in 21 us ; Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all generations, and for ever and ever. Amen.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 63. An exhortation to unity ; different gifts bestowed for the edification of the church ; the old man to be put off, and the new to be put on, &c.

I THEREFORE, a prisoner on account of 1 the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the calling with which ye have been called ; With all humbleness of mind, 2 meekness, with long-suffering, bearing with one another in love ; Earnestly endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body, and one 4 Spirit, even as ye have been called in one hope of your calling ; One Lord, one faith, 5 one baptism, One God and Father of all, 6 who is above all, and through all, and in [us] all. But on every one of us grace hath 7 been bestowed according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore it is said, 8 When he ascended on high he led a multitude captive, and gave gifts unto men. Now that he ascended, what is it but 9 that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth ? He that descended is 10 the same that ascended also far above all heavens, that he might fill all things. And 11 he gave some to be apostles ; and some, prophets ; and some, evangelists ; and some, pastors and teachers ; For the perfecting of 12 the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edification of the body of Christ : Till 13 we all come to the same faith in, and to the

8. Less than the least] He uses this expressive and humble language, for the reason he has stated, 1 Cor. xv. 9, and 1 Tim. i. 10.—Unsearchable riches] His unsearchable perfections and merits, whereby he is able to save the chief of sinners, and to bestow on them the greatest spiritual blessings, which are the only true and durable riches to an immortal mind.

9—12. Dispensation of] What is the nature of the gospel, which reveals and makes manifest the secret of calling the Gentiles.—Manifold wisdom] Manifested in the whole scheme of saving sinners of all nations by him. This wisdom is now made known to every order of angels, and superior powers, in such a manner as it never had been done, according to God's eternal purpose.

13. Afflictions for you] This seems to discover a personal regard and knowledge of those to whom he was writing.—Your glory] Because endured on your account.

14. For this cause I say] All from verse 2d to here is parenthetical.

16. Glorious riches] The glorious abundance of all spiritual gifts, and blessings which he can impart.—Strengthened with] Enlightening you that you may know your privileges, and giving you courage to maintain them. Rom. vii. 22, and 2 Cor. iv. 16.

17. By faith] By faith in him as your head and Saviour, let him be ever present to your thoughts, and govern and direct all your actions.—Rooted] Firmly fixed and established in the love of Christ, and of each other.

18, 19. May be able] As the apostle had compared the Ephesians to a temple, some think that 'the breadth, and length, and depth, and height,' refer to the dimensions of this temple, as comprising men of all ages, nations, and people. But the subject in his thoughts was the love of Christ, that love, which in the depth of its origin, in the breadth of its comprehension, the length of its duration and happy effects, and the glorious height to which it raises its objects, will be a theme of everlasting praise.—To all the fulness] That ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God, or to that perfection of knowledge and love which God designed you to attain.—Others apply it to the full presence of God in the church.

CHAP. IV. 1—3. On account of the Lord] Of my preaching him to you Gentiles, chap. iii. 1.—Unity of the Spirit] Having the same Spirit, closely united in peace and love.

7. Grace hath been] According to the proportion in which Christ chooses to bestow his free and undeserved gifts.

8—10. He ascended on high] See note, Ps. lxxviii. 18.—All heavens] All those visible to men, even into the third or invisible heavens, and above all angels or powers. Fill all things] The verb signifies also 'to fulfil,' and this sense several of our old translators adopted ; but the term of our common version is preferable, as it expresses the fulness of gifts and graces which he bestowed on his disciples for the support, increase, and edification of the church.

11. Apostles] See note, 1 Cor. xii. 8.—Prophets] 1 Cor. xii. 10 ; xiv. 3.—Evangelists] Propagators of the gospel, and assistants of the apostles, 1 Cor. xii. 9.—Pastors and teachers] Over-seers or bishops, whose chief duty was teaching. Acts xx. 28 ; Heb. xiii. 7, 17.

12. For the perfecting] Some suppose that the first clause refers to apostles and prophets, the second to evangelists, and the third to pastors and teachers ; but others, more justly, to all the various classes, as designed to promote the general interest of the church.

same knowledge of, the Son of God, to a perfect man, unto the measure of the full stature of Christ: That we may be no more children, tossed like waves and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and their subtlety in every method of deceit; But, speaking the truth in love, may grow up to him in all things, who is the head, even Christ: From whom the whole body fitly compacted together and connected by every assisting joint, according to the due operation of every part, maketh its increase to the edification of itself in love.

17 This I say therefore, and charge you in the Lord, that ye walk no more as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind, 18 Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, through the ignorance that is in them, through the blindness of their heart: Who being past feeling have given themselves over unto lasciviousness, to the working of all uncleanness with greediness. But ye have not so learned Christ; Since ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus, To put off, according to your former behaviour, the old man, which was corrupt according to deceitful desires; 23 And to be renewed in the spirit of your mind; And to put on the new man, which, after God, is created in righteousness and true holiness.

25 Wherefore put away lying, and speak every man truth with his neighbour; for we are members one of another. If ye be angry, yet sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath: And give no advantage to the accuser. Let him that stole, steal no more: but let him rather labour, providing with his hands what is good, that he may have something to give to him that needeth. Let no corrupt discourse proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edification, that it may minister benefit to the hearers. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye were sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice. And be ye kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, as God also through Christ hath forgiven you. Be ye therefore imitators of God, as beloved children; And walk in love, as Christ also loved us, and gave up himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God, of a sweet-smelling savour.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth to avoid all uncleanness, to walk circumspectly, and specifies the various duties of wives and husbands.

Now let not fornication, or any uncleanness, or covetousness, be once named among you, as becometh saints; Or filthiness, or foolish talking, or lewd jesting, which are not proper: but rather giving of thanks. For this ye know, that no fornicator, or unclean person, or covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of the Christ and God. Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things the wrath of God cometh on the disobedient. Be not therefore partakers with them. For ye were formerly darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: For the fruit of "light" is in all goodness and righteousness and truth; Proving what is well-pleasing unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness; but rather reprove them. For it is shameful even to speak of those things which are done by

13. Of the full stature of Christ] The church being compared to the human body, while it consisted of few members, and those but imperfectly instructed, the apostle considered it as in a state of childhood; but by the labour of teachers, supernaturally endowed, it was to grow to a state of manhood, when ordinary teachers would be sufficient for its edification and continuance.

14—16. Carried about] As a ship in a storm, by the wind of false doctrines, propagated by artful and crafty men.—Maketh its increase] This figure or simile shows the anatomical knowledge of the apostle, Comp. 1 Cor. xii. 12—22; Coloss. ii. 19.

17—19. In the Lord] As his apostle, inspired to make known his will.—Vanity of their] Following only the things of this life, as their chief good; having the understanding darkened by their superstitions and vices. In the 18th verse, the third clause answers to the first, and the fourth to the second.

20—24. Learned Christ] The doctrine, the religion of Christ.—Since ye have] Teaching and instructing you by us, as the truth is in him; have been taught To put off, &c.—To be renewed] Dr. Chandler supposes that the apostle alludes, in these verses, to the custom of actors on the stage, who not only change their dress, but assume and act the part of different persons and characters.

25—29. Put away lying] The heathens were much addicted to this, and their wise men justified it.—If ye be angry] I so render, because I cannot suppose that the apostle would give a command to be angry, but it is agreeable to his office to caution against sinful anger. Comp. Matt. vii. 7; Prov. xix. 25; Ps. iv. 4, and note. Some render, 'Are ye angry?' yet sin not. Let not the sun go, &c., see Bowyer.—To the accuser] This term is adopted as expressing the ambiguity of the original, which may be applied to Satan, or to any man who slanders and accuses another.

30. Grieve not] Here the term Spirit must be understood personally, as it would be absurd to talk of grieving a power, or a gift.

CHAP. V. 1, 2. Imitators of God] In his kindness and mercy, that ye may prove yourselves to be his beloved children. Griesbach joins these verses to the fourth chapter.

3—5. Let not fornication] Not only abstain from, let them not be heard of among you.—Or filthiness] Obscene discourse, or any thing ludicrous, or double entendres, are very improper for Christians.—An idolater] Making a god of his riches.—The Christ and God] See Titus ii. 13.

6. Vain words] Pretending that the things mentioned are harmless; for because of, &c. 9. (v) Griesb.

11, 12. Works of darkness] Properly so called, as being

13 them in secret. But all things that are discovered, are made manifest by the light : for it is the light which maketh every 14 thing manifest. Wherefore the Spirit saith, Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.
15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not 16 as unwise, but as wise, Redeeming the 17 time, because the days are evil. Wherefore be not inconsiderate, but understand what 18 the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, in which is dissoluteness ; but 19 be filled with the Spirit : Speaking to one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your 20 heart to the Lord ; Giving thanks always for all things, to our God and Father, in 21 the name of our Lord Jesus Christ ; Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of ' Christ.'
22 Wives, submit yourselves to your own 23 husbands, as to the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church : (and he is the 24 Saviour of this his body.) Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let wives be to their own husbands in every 25 thing. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave up 26 himself for it ; That he might sanctify it, having cleansed it with the washing of 27 water by the word preached ; That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing ; but that it should be holy and 28 without blemish. So ought husbands to love their wives, as their own bodies. He 29 that loveth his wife loveth himself. For no man ever hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as ' Christ' the church ; For we are members of his 30 body, of his flesh, and of his bones. Be- 31 cause of this shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife, and the two shall be one flesh. This is a 32 great secret : but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Nevertheless let every 33 one of you likewise so love his wife even as himself ; and let the wife take care that she reverence her husband.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 63. The duty of children and parents ; of servants and masters ; a Christian life is a warfare ; his armour, and how he should use it, &c.

CHILDREN, obey your parents in the 1 Lord : for this is right. Honour thy father 2 and mother ; which is the first commandment with promise, That it may be well 3 with thee, and thou mayest live long on the land. And, ye fathers, provoke not 4 your children to anger ; but bring them up in the instruction and admonition of the Lord.

Servants, obey your masters according to 5 the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as ye obey Christ ; Not 6 with eye-service, as men-pleasers ; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart ; Doing service with 7 good will, as to the Lord, and not to men ; Knowing that whatsoever good thing any 8 man doeth, the same shall he receive from the Lord, whether he be bond or free. And, 9 ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threats : knowing that ye yourselves also have a Master in heaven, with whom there is no respect of persons.

Finally, my brethren, be strong in the 10 Lord, and in his mighty power. Put on the 11 whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we 12 unfit for the light. They are unfruitful and destructive to those who practise them.—In secret] In their mysteries and hidden rites.

13. By the light] By the gospel, and by the light of a holy and upright life, the secret vices of men, especially of heathens, are exposed and reprehended.

14. The Spirit saith] So Newcome and others supply and consider that the apostle gives the sense of the gospel message addressed to sinners.—Awake thou] See Rom. xiii. 13. Arise from the dead ; the dead and lost state of sin and iniquity, and then Christ will give thee light to guide and bless thee.

15—21. See then that] So as to give no offence, and so as to convince ignorant sinners of their folly.—Dissoluteness] Both of mind and manners, Prov. xxiii. 29.—With the Spirit] With the truths and discoveries which he has made, speaking to one another, &c. in psalms such as those of David, and in hymns dictated by the Spirit, 1 Cor. xiv. 15, 26.—(v) Griesb.

22—24. As to the Lord] Husbands having an authority over you, as he has over the church, which is his body.

25—27. Having cleansed it] By the rite of baptism, enjoined by his word, and which was, and is, a symbol of purity.—A glorious church] Comparing the church to a person, he will so form it as to be without defect, and in all things holy, beautiful, and ever enjoying the vigour of youth.

28—31. Own bodies] As by marriage they become one flesh ; so that to love his wife is in fact to love himself, even as Christ the church, his body. 29. (v.) Griesb.

32. This is a great] This truth, which was a secret until revealed or explained and made known—that Christ should leave the glory which he had with the Father, to join himself to sinners, and become their Saviour, friend, and husband.

38. Nevertheless] Though I have been led to consider the union of Christ with the church, yet let every one of you, &c.

CHAP. VI. 1—4. In the Lord] Not only as being your parents, but as being in the Lord as Christian believers.—With promise] See Exod. xx. 12.—Provoke not] By any unkind or improper behaviour ; but instruct and admonish them in a manner becoming your character as Christians.

5—9. Masters according] In opposition to Christ, who is your Lord and master in all that regards religion, Matt. xxiii. 8—12.—With fear] With diligence and earnestness, Phil. ii. 12 ; and in 'singleness of heart,' in opposition to that deceit for which you have been blamed.—Masters] Consider that your rank does not justify you in treating them with severity, as you have a master who will not regard you because of your wealth and power.

10—12. In the Lord] Confide in his power, might, and grace, for suitable assistance in all your duties and trials ;

wrestle not against flesh and blood only, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of this dark world, against spiritual wickedness in heavenly things. Wherefore take up the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having subdued all, to stand. Stand, therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; And your feet ready shod with the gospel of peace; Above all, taking the shield of faith, with which ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one: Take also the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: Praying always with all prayer and supplication with your spirit; and watching thereto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints: And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth with freedom, to make known the truth of the gospel, For which I am an ambassador in bonds: 20 that therein I may speak freely, as I ought to speak.

But that ye also may know my affairs; 21 and what I do, Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, will make known to you all things: Whom I have 22 sent to you for this very purpose, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

Peace be to the brethren, and love with 23 faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace be with all those that 24 love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

Written from Rome unto the Ephesians by Tychicus.

and so resist the wiles of the devil.—Not against flesh] That is, against men only, Matt. xvi. 17; but 'against principalities,' &c. all the various orders of fallen spirits; 'against all the rulers of this dark world,' whether heathen or Jewish magistrates. Dr. Chandler conceived those deceivers to be meant, who, under the profession of the gospel, were its corrupters, introducing dangerous errors among 'those heavenly things,' which it reveals to men.

14—20. Your loins girt] Having mentioned the armour in general, he now specifies its parts. First, we have the military belt of truth; secondly, the breast-plate of righteousness; thirdly, the sandals, the gospel of peace; fourth, the shield of faith; fifth, the helmet, the hope of salvation; and sixth, the word of God, as the sword of the Spirit, Is. xi. 5.

21, 22. My affairs] How I succeed in my work, and what are my sufferings and trials, &c. Tychicus] One who had been with Paul at Rome, and from experience, one whom he could thus recommend.

23, 24. Peace be to] Prosperity attend them, as consisting in peace, faith, and love from God the father, &c. In sincerity] Without hypocrisy in their profession, and without corruption in practice or sentiment. Such should all Christians be.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE P H I L I P P I A N S .

INTRODUCTION.

PAUL visited Philippi, in consequence of a vision which he had of a man of Macedonia, who said, "Come over and help us," Acts xvi. 9, 40. On his departure he appears to have left Timothy, Luke, and Silas, to carry on the work. He paid them a second visit, Acts xx. 6, when a collection was made there and among the other churches of Macedonia, for the saints at Jerusalem, 2 Cor. viii. and ix. chap. The design of the apostle was to comfort them under the concern they had expressed on hearing of his imprisonment; to check a party spirit, and to promote union and love; to guard them against Judaizing teachers, and to inspire them

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. Paul's thankfulness for the fruit of their faith; his prayer for them; what had been the consequence of his troubles at Rome; his readiness to suffer.

1 PAUL and Timothy, servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints, the faithful in Christ Jesus, who are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons: Grace and peace be 2 unto you, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

I thank my God upon every remembrance 3 of you; Always, in every supplication of 4 mine for you all, making supplication with joy, For your participation in the gospel 5

CHAP. I. 1, 2. To all the saints] An usual appellation of the disciples; but I find no other instance of ἀγίοις ἐν Χρ. In, and suppose that there is an e lipsis, which I have supplied from Eph. i. 1. Newcome renders, 'To the Holy through Christ Jesus.'—Bishops and deacons] Only two orders are mentioned here, nor is there any proof from the New Testament, that any more ordinary officers existed in the church. There were more bishops than one at Philippi, as there were in some other places; and of course they could not be in any sense Diocesan, but simply co-ordinate pastors and teachers of the same people. The Syriac renders ἐπισκοποι, elders, and their office the office of an elder; thus, says Bishop Marsh, showing that he knew the meaning of his text.

3—6. With joy] At the recollection of your readiness to receive the gospel, and for your continued fellowship, or joint participation in the blessings and privileges of it. This occasioned the most lively joy to him.

6 from the first day until now; Being confident of this very thing, that he who hath begun a good work in you, will perform it
 7 until the day of Jesus Christ; As it is right for me to think this of you all, because I affectionately regard you; inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in my defence and confirmation of the gospel, ye are all joint partakers of the grace bestowed on me. For God is my witness, how greatly I long after you all with the tender affection of 9 Jesus Christ. And this I pray, that your love may abound still more and more in 10 knowledge, and in all judgment; That ye may discern the things that are excellent; so that ye may be sincere and without 11 offence till the day of Christ; Being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.
 12 Now I wish you to understand, brethren, that the things which have befallen me have come to pass, rather to the furtherance of 13 the gospel; So that my bonds on account of Christ are known through the whole
 14 palace, and in all other places; And that many of the brethren in the Lord, growing confident by my bonds, are much more bold
 15 to speak the word without fear. Some indeed preach Christ even through envy and strife; and some also through good 17 will. Some preach him from love, knowing that I am appointed for the defence of the 16 gospel. But others from contention, not sincerely, thinking to add affliction to my 18 bonds. What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice. For I know that this will end in my deliverance through your prayer, and through the supply of the 20 Spirit of Jesus Christ; According to my earnest expectation and hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed; but that with all freedom of speech, as always, so now also, Christ will be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death. For to 21 me to live is that I may honour Christ, and to die will be gain. And if I live in the 22 flesh, this is the fruit of my labour; yet what I should choose I know not. For I 23 am in a strait between the two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; for this would be far better: Nevertheless to 24 remain still in the flesh is more needful for you. And having this confidence, I know 25 that I shall remain and continue with you all for your improvement and joy in the faith; That your glorying in Jesus Christ 26 may abound through my coming to you again.

Only let your conduct be becoming the 27 gospel of Christ: that whether I come and see you, or be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel; And in nothing terrified by 28 your adversaries: which is to them an evident token of perdition; but to you of salvation, and that of God. For to you it 29 hath been graciously given in respect to Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake; Having the same 30 conflict which ye saw in me, and now hear to be in me.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth to unity and humility by the example of Christ; and to a holy conduct that they might be useful to others, and a comfort to him; he recommends Timothy to them, &c.

If there be, therefore, any comfort in 1 Christ, if any consolation of love, if any fellowship of Spirit, if any tender regards and mercies, Fill up my joy, that ye be of the 2 same mind, having the same love, joined together in soul; minding this one thing, That nothing be done through strife or 3 vain-glory; but in humility of mind, es-

7. As it is right for me] As you have given the strongest proofs of your sincerity, and of your faith and love, in steadfastly maintaining your profession, and in showing to me, as an apostle, the tokens of the warmest affection, during my bonds.

8—11. With tender affection] The Greek is, literally, bowels.—In all judgment] Or inward perception and feeling.

13. The palace] The word signifies the judgment-hall, where the prætor heard and decided causes; but was applied to his whole house, and to that of the emperors. Paul's defence of himself, and of the gospel which he preached, became the subject of discourse in the palace, and in the whole city.

14. And that many] Seeing his firmness and constancy, many Christian brethren assumed confidence, and boldly preached the gospel.

15—17. Through envy] At my success, or with a design to form a party against me; but others from hearty good will to me and the gospel. The 16th and 17th verses are transposed, after Griesbach.—Am appointed for] And that nothing will encourage me more than the success of this cause.

15—20. Christ is preached] And whatever be the motives of men, the knowledge of his name will spread abroad.—Whether by life] That Christ would be honoured in and by him, whether he was to live or to die, was his desire and hope.

21—24. To live is that I may] His honour is the end of my life; to preach and serve him in the gospel; but to die would be my own unspeakable gain. See 2 Cor. v. 8.

25, 26. And joy in the faith] That I may be a helper of your joy, when I am delivered and come to you again.

27, 28. Which is to them] Which courage and confidence in maintaining the faith, they will think an evident token of your perdition; but to you it will be a token of salvation and that of God.

29, 30. To suffer for his sake] A privilege conferred on you, as it will enhance your future reward.—I saw in me] When I was first with you, Acts xvi. 12, 22, &c.

CHAP. II. 1—4. Any comfort in Christ] This hypothetical manner of speaking is designed more forcibly to impress the particulars on their hearts.

- 4 teeming others better than yourselves: Not regarding every man his own things only, but every man the things of others also.
- 5 For let this mind be in you, which was in Christ Jesus also: Who, existing in the form of God, did not think it robbery to be equal with God, Yet made himself of no account, taking on him the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men;
- 6 And being in condition truly man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient to death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and bestowed on him a name which is above every other name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of beings in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth; And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.
- 12 Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.
- 13 For it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do, of his own good pleasure.
- 14 Do all things without murmurings and disputings; That ye may be blameless and harmless, the unreprouvable children of God, in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation; among whom do ye shine as lights in the world, Holding forth the word of life; that I may glory in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, nor laboured in vain.
- 17 Yea, and if my blood be poured out upon the sacrifice and public offering of your faith, I joy, and rejoice with you all. And in the same manner do ye also joy, and rejoice with me. But I trust in the Lord Jesus, to send Timothy shortly unto you, that I may be of good comfort also, when I know your affairs. For I have no man 20 likeminded with him, who will sincerely care for your affairs. For all seek their own 21 things, not the things of Jesus Christ. But ye know him by experience, that, as a 22 son serveth a father, he hath served with me in the gospel. I hope therefore to send 23 him presently, as soon as I shall see how the things concerning me will end. But 24 I trust in the Lord, that I myself also shall come shortly. Yet I thought it necessary 25 to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother, and fellow-labourer, and fellow-soldier, but your messenger, and minister to my wants. For he greatly longed after you all, and 26 was full of anguish, because ye had heard that he had been sick. For indeed he was 27 sick, and nigh to death: but God had mercy on him; and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have grief upon grief. I have sent him therefore the more 28 speedily, that, when ye see him again, ye may rejoice, and that I may have the less grief. Receive him therefore in the Lord 29 with all joy; and hold such in reputation: Because for the work of Christ he was nigh 30 to death, not regarding his life, that he might fill up what remained to be done of your service towards me.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. He warns them against Judaizing teachers; shows that he had more reason to glory as to the low than most others, but that he had renounced all his privileges for Christ, &c.

FINALLY, my brethren, rejoice in the 1 Lord. To write the same things to you, is not indeed grievous to me, but for you it is safe. Beware of dogs, beware of evil-work- 2

6—8. Did not think it] After reading and thinking much on this verse, and on the unusual terms, ἀπαρνούμενος ἑαυτὸν, I have adopted the common version.—Taking on him the form] The 'form of a servant,'—'the likeness of men and the fashion of a man,' must and cannot but signify, that he was really a man, and really a servant; and 'existing in the form of God' must, by parity of reason, signify that he was, is, and ever will be, a divine person, God blessed for ever. The passage proves then that our Lord God 'existed in the form of God, became a servant,' which consisted in his incarnation; and in this incarnate state he humbled himself still more by 'becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.' Here is humility indeed! See Whitby and Chrysostom, in loc.

9—11. Highly exalted him] The Father, in reward of his humiliation and death, exalted him to his own right hand, and he was honoured with a title, that of Saviour, a name which is above every name. All intelligent beings, whether good or evil, are subject to him as Lord and king; and this subjection, as well as the whole work of Jesus, is to the glory of God the Father. See Is. xlv. 23; Rom. xiv. 11.

12—16. To will and to do] This working must be understood as being in a way consistent with the exercise of men's own rational powers, presenting such motives to the mind, and in such a clear light, as induces it both to choose the way of salvation exhibited, and to perform all the duties required.—Do ye shine] Comp. Matt. v. 14.

17, 18. Sacrifice and] The apostle considers their 'faith,' as a sacrifice and public offering presented to God; and declares, that if his blood was to be shed and poured out as a drink-offering, to accompany their sacrifice, he would joy and rejoice with them all. Paul was always a martyr in spirit. Acts xx. 23, &c.

21—24. All seek their own things] Probably the apostle had desired some others of the Christian brethren to undertake this journey; but from a regard to their own ease and comfort they had refused, thus minding their own things, &c.

25—30. Your messenger] The Philippians showed their respect to Paul by sending to Rome Epaphroditus, with money to supply his wants. While there he was sick, and in great danger. It is probable, from the last verse, that the fatigues he endured in his journey, and his various labours in the gospel, brought on his disorder.

CHAP. III. I. The same things] Which I taught you when I was with you; or, as Pierce suggests, which I have ordered Epaphroditus to deliver to you.

2. Of dogs] Of Jewish false and impudent teachers, who would tear and devour you. See Is. lvi. 10, 11. Revel. xxii. 15. The Jews gave this name to the Gentiles, and Paul retorts it on themselves.—Concision] They gloried in being the 'circumcision;' but the apostle refuses to allow them that name, and gives them the name of concision, a mere cutting of the flesh.

3 men, beware of the concision. For we are the circumcision, who worship God with our spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and 4 have no confidence in the flesh. Though I might have confidence even in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he may have confidence in the flesh,
5 I have more : Circumcised the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews ; concerning
6 the law, a Pharisee ; Concerning zeal, persecuting the church ; concerning the righteousness which is by the law, blameless. But what things were gain to me, those I counted
8 loss for the sake of Christ. Yea doubtless, and I count that all things are loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord ; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and count them as refuse, that 9 I might gain Christ. And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness which is by the law, but that which is through faith in Christ, the righteousness which is of 10 God by faith : That I might know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conform-
11 able unto his death ; If by any means I might come to the resurrection of the dead.
12 I do not say that I have already attained, or am already made perfect : but I follow after, if indeed I may apprehend that for which I have been apprehended also by 13 Christ Jesus. Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended : but one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and stretching forth to those things which are before, I press towards the goal for the prize 14 of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Let us, therefore, as many as are perfect, 15 be thus minded : and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you. Nevertheless, whereto we 16 have already attained, let us walk [by the same rule, let us mind the same thing.]

Brethren, be joint imitators of me, 17 and mark those that walk so as ye have us for an example. For many walk, of whom 18 I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ ; Whose end is destruction, 19 whose god is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame ; who mind earthly things. But our citizenship is in heaven : whence 20 we look also for a Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ ; Who will change our vile body, that 21 it may be of like form with his glorious body, according to the mighty working by which he is able even to subdue all things unto himself. Therefore, my brethren, dearly I beloved and longed for, my joy and crown, so stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 63. He gives some particular, and then some general exhortations ; he commends their Christian doc- trinity, and affectionately salutes them.

I BESEECH Euodia, and I beseech Syn- 2 tyche, that they be of the same mind in the Lord. And I intreat thee also, true com- 3 panion, help those women who have laboured

3. We are the circumcision] We have what was signified by circumcision, Rom. ii. 28, 29,—No confidence] That is, in the circumcision of the flesh, or other Jewish rites. Our religion is inward and spiritual, not consisting in outward privileges and distinctions.

4—6. Though I might] If any might trust in such privileges, surely I might ; and even more than those teachers who now trouble you.—Blameless] If by the law he meant the ceremonial only, what he states was no doubt just and true, and it is to ceremonial and ritual observances to which the whole context refers, and in which the Jews placed their confidence and glory.

7—11. Were gain to me] The things which I then considered as my gain, or the surest grounds of confidence in respect to acceptance with God, I counted loss, &c.—Have suffered the loss] I do still count all my Jewish privileges as refuse, as things to be thrown away.—Mine own righteousness] As consisting in a blameless observance of all the Mosaic rites, and in which I once trusted ; but that which is through faith in Christ, &c. See Rom. i. 17 ; iii. 19—26.—If by any means] The apostle's language, ' if by any means,' implies no doubt, but only describes the ardour of his own mind, in pursuing the objects before him. Some apply what is said to the spiritual resurrection, or that perfection of holiness which the Christian system requires.

12. Attained] All I wish to be, or enjoy, ' or am already made perfect,' as I confidently hope to be ; but as one who hath started in a race, I follow after, &c.—Apprehend that] That degree of excellence and holiness, usefulness and conformity to Christ, for which I was in so remarkable a manner apprehended by Christ.

13. Forgetting those] Like the athletes or racers, who reflect not on the space run, but who look on what is before them.

14. The prize of] Of eternal life and blessedness, which is the design of the high calling of God, &c., and it is for this I am running.

15. Be thus minded] Regarding no outward privilege as a ground of our acceptance.—If in any thing] If from your want of instruction, or from the weak state of your faith, you should differ, I have confidence that God will discover your error, and bring you to think and act as I do.

16. Let us walk by] As far as we have attained in knowledge, let us walk, &c. The last words Griesbach rejects ; they are retained, as the text appears defective when they are omitted ; but marked as doubtful.

17. For an example] How holily and unblameably must the apostle have lived, when he could thus recommend his own example !

18, 19. Many walk] Many teachers, and particularly those Judaizers, who infested various churches, who, while they professed respect for Christ, were in reality his enemies ; as indeed their practice proved.

20, 21. Citizenship] They mind earthly things ; but we heavenly, as we are citizens of heaven, whence we are expecting the Saviour, &c.—Our vile body] Vile, as infected by sin, and as destined to return again to dust. This he will change indeed, and make like his own glorious body, &c.

CHAP. IV. 1. My brethren] With Griesbach and others, this verse is joined to the preceding chapter, as forming a proper conclusion. Things being as I have stated, do you, who are my joy and crown now, and who will be so hereafter, stand fast in the Lord.

2. Of the same mind] These must have been persons of some consideration, to whom the apostle recommends unity.

3. Thee also, true] We have no clue to ascertain who this individual was, whom he calls his true companion.—Those women] Perhaps aged widows, who might instruct the younger women, and perform many other offices for the

with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with mine other fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I
5 say, Rejoice. Let your gentleness be known 6 unto all men. The Lord is near. Be not anxious for any thing; but in every thing let your requests be made known unto God,
7 by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts
8 and minds through Christ Jesus. Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are grave, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these 9 things. Those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you

10 But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at length your care of me hath revived; wherein ye were careful also before, but 11 wanted opportunity. Not that I speak in respect of want: for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therein to be content.
12 I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: every where and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer want. I can do all things 13 through Christ who strengtheneth me. 14 Notwithstanding ye have done well, that ye have jointly contributed to relieve my affliction. Now, ye Philippians, know also, that 15 in the beginning of the gospel when I departed from Macedonia, no church had intercourse with me, as concerning giving and receiving, but ye only. For even in Thessalonica ye sent once and again also to my necessity. Not that I desire a gift; but 17 I desire fruit that may abound to your account. But I have every thing, and 18 abound: I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were sent from you, an odour of a sweet smell, an acceptable sacrifice, well-pleasing to God. And 19 my God shall supply all your wants according to his riches in glory, by Christ Jesus. Now unto our God and Father be glory for 20 ever and ever. Amen.

Salute every saint in Christ Jesus. The 21 brethren who are with me salute you. All 22 the saints salute you, chiefly they that are of Cæsar's household. The grace of our 23 Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

It was written to the Philippians from Rome by Epaphroditus.

saints, 1 Tim. v. 15. Pierce refers this to Euodia and Syntyche, &c.

4—7. Peace of God] A sense of reconciliation with him and the animating hope of the everlasting enjoyment of his favour.

8, 9. Things are true] How comprehensive this summary of Christian morals! and he adds, if there be any other virtue, or thing worthy of praise, think on these things.

10—13. Hath revived] By your sending a supply for my need. Paul happily brought his mind to his circumstances; and however various these were, he was content. He tells them the ground of it, 'through Christ strengthening him.'

Griesbach omits Christ; but his authorities for so doing are by no means satisfactory.

14—16. My affliction] My present distress; and to your honour it may be mentioned, that formerly you only among all the churches in Macedonia showed a liberal spirit towards me.—Once and again] That is, several times.

17—20. Fruit that may] Christian kindness and liberality is fruit which will be rewarded; and I can assure you, that as ye have abounded in kindness, God will abound towards you, to whom be glory for ever.

22. Cæsar's household] Some of Nero's domestics, courtiers, or even of his own family, had embraced the gospel.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE COLOSSIANS.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Epistle appears to have been written at the same time with that to the Ephesians, and sent by the same persons. They seem to have borne an honourable character for piety and zeal; but from the cautions given, were in danger of being drawn aside by the subtleties of some heathen philosophers, and the arts of some Jewish Christians, who maintained the necessity of observing their rites. Hence the great design of the apostle was to excite them to a behaviour worthy of the gospel, and to guard them against the seductive arts of its real enemies.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. Paul thanks God for their faith, and prays for their growth in grace; he describes the person and deity of Christ, and commends his own ministry.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, To 2 the saints and faithful brethren in Christ who are at Colosse: Grace and peace be to you, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, (praying always for you, Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of your love to all the saints,) Because of the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, of which ye have heard before in the true word of the gospel; Which is come to you, as it is into all the world: and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard it, and knew in truth the grace of God: As ye learned from Epaphras our beloved fellow-servant, who is to you a faithful minister of Christ; Who hath also declared to us your spiritual love.

9 For this cause we also, since the day we heard it, cease not to pray for you, and to desire that ye may have a full knowledge of his will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding; That ye may walk worthy of the Lord as to all that is well-pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God; Strengthened with all might, according to his glorious power, unto all patience and joyful long-suffering. We give thanks also to the Father, who hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light; Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his beloved Son; By whom we have redemption, through his blood, the forgiveness of sins; Who is the image of the invisible God, chief of all the creation: For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are on earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him, and for him: And he is before all things, and by 17 him all things consist. And he is the head 18 of his body, the church: who is the chief, the first-born from the dead, that in all respects he might have pre-eminence. For 19 in him all the fulness of deity pleased to dwell; And by him to reconcile all things 20 to himself, making peace by the blood of his cross; by him, I say, whether they be things on earth, or things in heaven. And 21 you, who were formerly alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, he hath now indeed reconciled, By his fleshly 22 body, through his death, to present you holy and unblameable and unprovable in his sight: Since ye continue grounded and 23 stedfast in the faith, and are not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature that is under heaven; of which I Paul have been made a minister.

I now rejoice in my sufferings for you, 24 and fill up in my flesh what remaineth of the afflictions on account of Christ, for his body's sake, which is the church: Of which 25 I have been made a minister, according to the dispensation of God which hath been given me towards you, that I may fully preach the word of God; Even the secret 26 truth which hath been hidden from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints; To whom God 27 would make known what are the glorious CHAP. I. 3—8. Give thanks] The apostle having begun to state his unfeigned gratitude, and the reason of it, goes off, and parenthetically notices his praying for them. He gives thanks to God for their conversion by the ministry of Epaphras.

9—11. May be filled] More abundantly with the knowledge of God's will as to the way of salvation by Christ.

12. We give thanks] As the former verses contain the requests of the apostle, and this begins his thanksgiving, it should be considered as the commencement of a new period.—Meet to be] Or fit for a portion in the inheritance which saints enjoy in the light of the gospel.

13. Power of darkness] The rule and dominion of Satan, and the power of our own dark and sinful state as heathens. See Luke xxii. 53; Eph. vi. 12.—Kingdom of] Brought us under his authority by the gospel, to whom we, as believers, are now subject.

14. Through his blood] Judging from the authorities, these words should be omitted; yet as all the copies have them, Eph. i. 7, I see no reason for thinking them interpolated. See Paley's Horæ Paulinæ.

15. Chief of all] The secondary sense of πρωτογενής is adopted. See Dr. P. Smith, and Schleus., and Wahl. Comp. 1 Chron. v. 11, and 2 Sam. xix. 43. This is supported and confirmed by the πρῶτον of the 17th verse. His being the image of the invisible God, expresses his personal glory as manifested to men and angels, Hebr. i. 1—3.

16. By him were] The apostle describes here the creation of all things. The whole universe, with all the beings contained in it, is evidently intended.

18. And He is the head] And he who is the Creator and upholder of all things is also the head of the church, as the incarnate Redeemer and Saviour.—The beginning] Either the first cause, or beginning of the church, which began immediately after the fall, by the promise of the Saviour; or else, 'the first-fruits,' as a few MSS. read, 1 Cor. xv. 20; and then what follows will be explanatory.—First-born from] There is manifestly a difference both in the language and construction here, from verse 15. He rose from the dead as the first-fruits of the resurrection; and he rose to an immortal life, death having no more dominion over him. Enoch and Elijah were translated, and not raised from the dead; and others who were raised from the dead were raised to live here only for a short season, and then to die and see corruption.—In all respects] This denotes his greatness and glory, as the foundation of the church, and as the risen Mediator.

19. All the fulness] The Armenian version, a manuscript of the old Italic, one of the Vulgate, and a few Latin fathers, read here διοντος, as chap. ii. 9, which at least shows the sense in which they understood the passage.

20. By him I say, whether] Our Lord, by his mediation, has reconciled and united in himself men of every nation and condition, that believe in him, and has become the head and Lord of angels, to whom they are subject and pay homage and worship. Comp. Eph. i. 10; Matt. xxviii. 18; Heb. i. 14.

21—23. By his fleshly body] By his offering up himself on the cross as a sin-atoning victim. For the sense given to ἡγά, Pierce observes, that the apostle, had he only meant the conditional sense, would have made use of the verb in the future, and not in the aorist tense. Whitby on Eph. iii. 2, has fully proved this sense from Philo.

24—29. Afflictions on account] Afflictions endured for his sake, and in some respects like those which he suffered.—Fully preach] See Rom. xv. 19, where the verb is thus riches of this unknown secret, which, in respect to the Gentiles, is Christ to you, the 29 hope of glory : Whom we preach, admonishing every man, and teaching every man with all wisdom ; that we may present every 29 man perfect in Christ Jesus : For which I labour also, striving according to his working, which worketh in me with mighty power.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth them to perseverance, to beware of philosophy and vain traditions, the worshipping of angels, and the observance of legal rites, &c.

1 FOR I would that ye knew how great a conflict I have for you, and for those at Laodicea, and for as many as have not
 2 seen my face in the flesh ; That their hearts may be comforted, being knit together in love, and to the richest and fullest understanding, to the acknowledgment of the truth of God, even of the Father and of
 3 Christ ; In whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Now this I say, lest any man should beguile you
 4 with enticing words. For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in spirit, rejoicing and beholding your order, and the stedfastness of your faith in Christ.
 6 As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him ; Rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.
 8 Beware lest any man make a prey of you through philosophy and empty deceit, according to the tradition of men, according to the principles of the world, and not
 9 according to Christ. For in him dwelleth
 10 all the fulness of the Deity bodily : And ye rendered.—In Christ to you] Made known to you, and who is the ground of your hope of future glory, and the subject of our preaching and labours among all men, whom we affectionately warn and instruct that they may be saved.

CHAP. II. 1. Have not seen my face] What a holy zeal does this manifest in the cause of Christ, and how anxious was he to see and aid its prosperity !

2. God even the Father] Griesbach rejects these words ; but it must be admitted that his authorities are few, and of little value.

3. In whom are hidden] Or, laid up all the treasures of divine wisdom and knowledge, and not in angels, or in the reveries of vain philosophy.

4—7. Now I say this] As I know the errors of many designing men, I do most affectionately warn you to guard against them.

8. Beware lest any] Through what they call philosophy, but which is nothing but empty deceit, and consists in traditions respecting the invisible powers. Some refer 'vain deceit,' to the traditions of Judaizing teachers.

9. For in him dwelleth] If this fulness of the Godhead, or deity, signify the full and entire perfection thereof ; 'dwelling in him bodily' can mean nothing else than the union of the divine nature with the human, which is considered as the temple in which this fulness of the Godhead dwells. Comp. John i. 1—3 ; Rom. ix. 5 ; Titus ii. 13, &c.

10—15. Complete in him] In what sense they were 'complete in him' may be collected from the particulars mentioned, circumscribed in heart, admitted by baptism as are complete in him, who is the head of all principality and power : By whom ye have 11 been circumcised also with a circumcision not made by hands, by putting off the carnal body* through the circumcision of Christ : Having been buried with him by 12 baptism, by which ye were raised also with him through faith in the mighty working of God, who raised him from the dead. And 13 you, being dead in your trespasses, and in your carnal uncircumcision, hath he made alive together with him, having forgiven all 'our' trespasses ; Having blotted out, 14 in respect to us, the written law, together with its ordinances, which was contrary to us, and taken it out of the way, having nailed it to his cross. And by it having 15 spoiled principalities and powers, he exposed them publicly, by triumphing over them.

Let no man therefore judge for you as 16 to meat, or drink, or in respect to a feast-day, or new moon, or sabbath, Which were 17 a shadow of things to come ; but the substance is Christ. Let no man defraud you 18 of your reward, by a voluntary humility, and the worshipping of angels, intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up by his carnal mind ; And 19 not holding fast the Head, from which all the body, supplied and connected by joints and bands, increaseth with the increase of God.

If ye have died with Christ to the prin- 20 ciples of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances, (Such as, touch not ; taste not ; handle 21 not ; All which are to perish by the use of 22 them ;) according to the commandments and doctrines of men ? Which ordinances 23 have indeed a show of wisdom in will-members of his body, the church ; and had received the forgiveness of their sins. Carnal body] Paul speaks of our vices and virtues under the figure or notion of a man, calling the former the new, and the latter the old man, Ch. iii. 9, 10. Eph. iv. 22—24 ; the latter we put off, when regenerated, and the former we put on ; as though a man ceased to be the same self he was before, Rom. vi. 6.—Hand-writing of] Comp. Eph. ii. 14, 15, and notes. While the Levitical service continued, no means of grace were afforded to the Gentiles ; but when the law was disannulled, and blotted out, being nailed to the cross, in allusion to the abrogation of any law, by driving a nail through the table on which it was written, then was salvation preached to the Gentiles. Comp. Eph. vi. 12.—11. (α) Of the sins] Griesb. 13. (v) Griesb.

16, 17. Let no man] Suffer no one to judge or condemn you, because you do not regard Jewish customs about meats or days, which were but a shadow of spiritual things which we now have in Christ.

18, 19. By a voluntary] Paying worship to angels as a kind of mediators between you and God, considering it as an act of humility to approach God in this manner. From Philo the Jew, we learn that this was a sentiment common in his day. See Tobit, chap. xii. 12, &c. This condemns the worship of departed saints and martyrs practised in the Roman church.

20—23. Died with Christ] Professedly by your baptism ; why, as if living under these rites and notions, are ye subject to ordinances ? Such as the Jews still observe and enforce ;

worship and humility of mind, and in severity to the body; but not in any regard unless to the satisfying of the flesh.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. He sheweth where we should seek Christ; exhorteth to mortification, and to the cultivation of Christian virtues, and the discharge of Christian duties.

- 1 If then ye have been raised with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.
- 2 Set your affection on things above, not on the things on the earth. For you have died, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, with whom your life is hid, shall appear, then ye also shall appear with him in glory.
- 5 Mortify therefore your members as to the things on earth; as to fornication, uncleanness, unnatural passion, evil desire, and covetousness, which is idolatry: On account of which things the wrath of God cometh on the disobedient: In which ye also walked formerly, when ye lived in them. But now do ye also put away all these; anger, wrath, malice, evil speaking, filthy talking out of your mouth. Lie not one to another, since ye have put off the old man with his deeds; And have put on the new man, that is renewed as to knowledge, according to the image of him who created him: Where there is neither Gentile nor Jew; circumcision nor uncircumcision; Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all. Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercy, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering; Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a complaint against any; even as Christ forgave you, so do ye also: And besides all these things, abound in love, which is the most perfect bond. And let the peace of Christ preside in your saying, 'Eat no unclean food; taste it not.'—But not in] Are in themselves of no value, and only serve to satisfy the pride of a Jewish faction. See verse 18; Gal. vi. 12.

CHAP. III. 1—4. Raised with Christ] Raised from a death in sin, mind the things above as of everlasting importance.—For ye have died] He assigns the reason of the duty. The life is opposed to the death which they had died, clearly a death to sin, and the life must be spiritual, an eternal life.—(v) Griesb.

5—7. As to the things on] Which men do in this sinful world.—Unnatural passion] Rom. i. 27.—Evil desire] Of every kind, but especially the luxury of the table, which leads to other sins.—Covetousness] Eph. v. 5. This vice is classed among the others, because it involves in it whatever is gratifying to a depraved heart, and the habitual indulgence of it is practical idolatry.

8—11. But now do ye] Not only abstain from such gross vices as mentioned, but from anger, &c.—Renewed as] Restored to a just view of spiritual things, and their excellence.—Christ is all] He is all things as to believers of all nations; and in all periods of time and places of the earth he is among them.

12—15. Holy and beloved] Called with a holy calling, hearts, to which ye have been called also in one body; and be ye thankful.

Let the word of Christ dwell in you 16 richly in all wisdom, while teaching and admonishing one another or singing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, with thankfulness in your hearts, to God. And 17 whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God, even the Father, by him.

Wives, submit yourselves to your own 18 husbands, as it is fit in the Lord. Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter towards them. Children, obey your parents 20 in all things: for this is well-pleasing to the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your 21 children, lest they be discouraged. Servants, 22 obey in all things your masters according to the flesh; not with eye-service, as men-pleasers; but in singleness of heart, fearing the Lord. And whatsoever ye do, do it 23 heartily, as to the Lord, and not to men; Knowing that from the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ. But he that doeth 25 wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons.

Masters, give to your servants that which 1 is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth them to be fervent in prayer; to walk so as to gain those who are not yet converted; and concludes with salutations.

PERSEVERE in prayer, watching therein 2 with thanksgiving; Praying at the same 3 time for us also, that God would open to us a door of utterance, to speak the truth of Christ, for which I am even in bonds: That 4 speaking as I ought to speak, I may make it manifest. Walk in wisdom towards them 5 that are without, redeeming the time. Let 6 and beloved and blessed in Christ.—Perfect bond] Love may be called the bond of perfection, or most perfect bond, as it unites Christians to their Saviour and head, and to one another, as members of his body.—(v) 15, 16. (v) Griesb.

16, 17. The word of Christ] The gospel or doctrine which he taught, and which we, apostles, teach; richly in all wisdom; thoroughly understanding it, so that ye may be able to teach and admonish, &c. See Eph. v. 19.

18—25. Wives] Comp. Eph. v. 22—33; vi. 1—9.—In all things] Here, and verse 22, the words must be restrained to all such things as are reasonable and proper.—Knowing that from the Lord] Ye will receive the reward of an everlasting inheritance; but should you be unfaithful and do wrong, you will be punished.—25. (v) Griesb.

CHAP. IV. 3. Door of utterance] They ought to watch and pray; and when they did so, Paul desired that they would remember him.

5. Are without] The unconverted heathens.—Redeeming the time] Avoiding or preventing persecution, and thus gaining time to spread the gospel.

6. Well-pleasing] Mild, becoming, and good, so as to gain the favour of those with whom you converse. I take κατα as used adverbially, and have given the sense.—

- your discourse be always well-pleasing, seasoned with the salt of wisdom, that ye may
- 7 know how ye ought to answer every man.
- All things concerning me Tychicus will declare to you, who is a beloved brother, and a faithful minister and fellow-servant
- 8 in the Lord ; Whom I have sent to you for this purpose, that he may know your affairs, and comfort your hearts ; Together with Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They will make known
- 10 to you all things which are done here. Aristarchus, my fellow prisoner, saluteth you, and Mark, son of the sister of Barnabas, (respecting whom ye have received commands :
- 11 if he come to you, receive him ;) And Jesus who is called Justus, who are of the circumcision. These have been my only fellow-labourers as to the kingdom of God ; and
- 12 they have been a comfort unto me. Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, always earnestly striving for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God. For 13 I bear witness for him that he hath a great 'concern' for you, and for those at Laodicea, and for those at Hierapolis. Luke, the 14 beloved physician, and Demas, salute you. Salute the brethren that are at Laodicea ; 15 and Nymphas, and the church which assembleth in his house. And when this epistle 16 hath been read among you, cause it to be read in the church of the Laodiceans also ; and do ye likewise read the epistle from Laodicea. And say to Archippus, Take heed 17 to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fully discharge it.

The salutation by the hand of me, Paul. 18 Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

Written from Rome to the Colossians by Tychicus and Onesimus.

Seasoned with the salt] Tempered with wisdom, of which salt is the symbol. Matt. v. 13 ; Mark ix. 50.

7—9. Tychicus] Paul had sent him with Onesimus, one of themselves, that they might be informed of their affairs, and be useful to them by their instructions. This notice of Onesimus renders it certain that Philemon, his master, was a Colossian, one who probably had heard Paul, and been converted in some other place.

10, 11. Aristarchus] This person, and Mark and Justus, were Paul's fellow-labourers at Rome, and all Jews by descent, though not born in Judea. Aristarchus was a native of Macedonia.

12, 13. Epaphras] This good man, though absent from his native city, was anxiously concerned for the Christians there.—Perfect] In maintaining your Christian liberty, and understanding the whole counsel of God in the gospel.—13. (v) Griese.

16. From Laodicea] From this verse we learn that it was customary for the Christian churches to send the letters of the apostles to one another, among the members of which they were read and most probably copied for their edification. They were intended for general good. The epistle from Laodicea might be a copy of that sent to Ephesus.

17. Take heed] This faithful admonition to Archippus should remind every teacher of his duty, and how diligent he ought to be in the discharge of it.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE T H E S S A L O N I A N S.

INTRODUCTION.

PAUL and Silas visited Thessalonica after they quitted Philippi ; and for some time preached the gospel with great success both among the Jews and Gentiles, Acts xvii. 1—4. The unbelieving Jews at length raised such a disturbance in the city, as obliged the believing brethren to send away Paul and Silas ; but they continued steadfast in the doctrines of the gospel. The design of the Epistle is to confirm them in the faith which they had received ; and to encourage them to perseverance. This is the first of Paul's Epistles ; and was most certainly written from Corinth. See Acts xviii. 5, where we are informed that Timothy and Silas came to Paul, and they join him in this epistle.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. Paul states his good opinion of their faith, love, and patience ; and then offers various things for their comfort and joy in their afflictions.

- 1 PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians which is in God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ ;

Grace and peace be to you, from God our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

We give thanks to God always for you 2 all, making mention of you in our prayers ; Remembering without ceasing your work of 3 faith and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, before our

CHAP. I. 1. Paul and Silvanus] That Silvanus was a Jew is evident from Acts xv. 22, where he is called by his Hebrew name Silas ; and that he was a Roman citizen also, appears from Acts xvii. 37 ; and it is probable that Silvanus was his Roman name. He was the fellow-traveller and labourer with Paul in the gospel. See Acts xvii. 4—15 ; xviii. 5 ; xxvii. 32—40, and 2 Cor. i. 19, and 2 Thess. i. 1, and 1 Pet. v. 12.—In God the Father] The church which professes to believe in, and be subject to, God the Father, &c.

2—4. Work of faith] The fruit of your faith, and the labour which your Christian love induces you to sustain.—

4 God and Father; Knowing, brethren, be-5 loved of God, your election; Because our gospel came not unto you in word only, but in power also, even with the Holy Spirit, and with much assurance; as ye know what manner of men we were among you 6 for your sake. And ye became imitators of us, and of the Lord, having received the word amidst much affliction, with joy of the 7 Holy Spirit: So that ye have been examples to all that believe in Macedonia and 8 Achaia. For from you sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith towards God is spread abroad; so that we need not to speak any thing concerning it.
 9 For they themselves declare of us what kind of admission we had among you, and how ye turned to God from idols, to serve the 10 living and true God; And to look for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus, who delivereth us from the wrath to come.

CHAPTER II.

A.D. 63. In what manner the gospel was brought to them, and how they had received it; a reason why he was so desirous to see them.

1 For yourselves, brethren, know that our admission among you was not in vain;
 2 But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully treated, as ye know, at Philippi, we were bold through our God to speak to you the gospel of God amidst a 3 great conflict. For our exhortation was not from error, nor from uncleanness, nor 4 in guile: But as we were approved of God to be intrusted with the gospel, we so speak not as pleasing men, but God, who trieth 5 our hearts. For we did not at any time use flattering words, as ye know, nor a pretence for covetousness; (God is witness:) 6 Nor from men sought we glory, either from you, or from others; though we might have

Your election] That God hath chosen men to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth, and even these Thessalonians, Paul asserts, 2 Thess. ii. 13.; and this appeared from the fact that they were called, and did believe in Christ and serve and obey God.

5-7. But in power] It was attested by miracles, Acts x. 35; xvi. 14.—With the holy] Whose various gifts were conferred upon some of you, such as speaking in other languages, prophecy, &c.—Assurance] And it produced a full and entire conviction in your minds of its truth, importance, and divinity, 2 Tim. iv. 17; Heb. vi. 11.

8-10. Sounded forth] Your ready reception of it, and its influence on your conduct, forsaking the idols you had been accustomed to worship, have been sounded forth to very distant regions, but more especially in Macedonia and Achaia.

CHAP. II. 2. Shamefully treated] See Acts xvi. 23.—We were bold] Dr. Chandler remarks that the word signifies to speak openly and publicly before others. Acts xvii. 10.

3, 4. Not from error] We were not deceived in what we preached to you, nor did we do it from impure motives, nor in any guile: but as we were approved, &c.

5-8. As ye know] No arts to gain your favour, nor did we preach under the guise of sincerity, while we were really coveting other men's goods; and of this God is witness. 1 Cor. ix. 4.—Even as a] For this punctuation, used authority, as apostles of Christ; But 7

 we were gentle among you, even as a nursing mother who cherisheth her children:
 So we being affectionately desirous of you, 8 were willing to bestow on you, not the gospel of God only, but our own lives also, because ye had become dear unto us. For 9 ye remember, brethren, our labour and toil: how working night and day, that we might not be burdensome to any of you, we preached to you the gospel of God. Ye 10 are witnesses, and God also, how holily, and justly, and unblameably, we behaved ourselves among you that believe: As ye 11 know how we exhorted, and comforted, and charged every one of you, as a father doth his children, That ye should walk worthy 12 of God, who called you to his kingdom and glory.

For this cause we thank God also with- 13 out ceasing, that, when ye received the word of God which ye heard from us, ye embraced it, not as the word of men, but (as it is in truth) the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe.
 For ye, brethren, became imitators of the 14 churches of God in Judea, which are in Christ Jesus: for ye also have suffered like things from your own countrymen, even as they have from the Jews; Who both killed 15 the Lord Jesus, and the prophets, and have persecuted us; and they please not God, and are against all men; Forbidding us to 16 speak to the Gentiles that they may be saved; thus always filling up the measure of their sins, while wrath is overtaking them to utter destruction.

Now we, brethren, being taken from you 17 for some time in presence, not in heart, have the more abundantly endeavoured with great desire to see your face. Wherefore 18
 we would have come to you, even I Paul, once and again; but Satan hath hindered see Griesbach. As an affectionate mother cherishes her child, and imparts to it the breast, so we, being affectionately desirous of you, were willing, &c.

9-12. How working] This leads us to think that Paul and Silas abode at least some few weeks at Thessalonica, as otherwise they would have had no need to labour for their own support.—Ye are witnesses] This appeal to them shows that the apostles lived according to the gospel, as well as preached it.—Kingdom and glory] Some consider this as a hendiadis for 'glorious kingdom'; but as it may refer to the gospel state here, and to the glory of heaven, the common version is retained.

13. Ye embraced it] Not as a doctrine contrived by men, or resting on the opinion of men, but, as it is in truth, the word and doctrine revealed by and sanctioned of God, &c.

14-16. Churches of God] Hence we learn that, in spite of all the power of the Jewish priesthood, numerous Christian societies existed in Judea.—Killed the Lord Jesus] Paul does not hesitate to charge his countrymen with this murder, and with others, as well as continuing to persecute him and other Christians.—Forbidding us] Hindering as much as possible the salvation of Gentiles, and by this conduct they were filling up the measure of their sins, and bringing on themselves the wrath of God.

17-20. Satan hath] By his instruments, wicked men.

19 us. For what is our hope, or joy, or will be our crown of boasting? Will it not be even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming? For ye are indeed our glory and our joy.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. Paul testifies his love to them by sending Timothy to exhort and comfort them, and by praying for them, and desiring to see them.

1 WHEREFORE, when we could no longer bear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone; And sent Timothy, our brother, and "fellow-worker of God" in the gospel of Christ, to establish you, and to comfort you concerning your faith: That no man should be moved by these our afflictions: for yourselves know that we are appointed thereunto. 4 For when we were with you, we told you beforehand that we should suffer affliction; even as it hath come to pass, and ye know. 5 For this cause also, when I could no longer bear, I sent to know your faith, fearing lest by some means the tempter should have tempted you, and our labour should be in vain. But now when Timothy came from you to us, and brought us glad tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have a good remembrance of us always, desiring greatly 7 to see us, as we also do to see you: For this cause, brethren, we were comforted concerning you in all our affliction and distress, even by your faith: For now we live, 9 if ye stand fast in the Lord. For what thanks can we render to God again because of you, for all the joy with which we rejoice 10 for your sakes before our God; Night and day praying exceedingly that we might see your face, and might perfect that which is 11 wanting in your faith? Now may our God and Father himself, and our Lord Jesus 12 Christ, direct our way unto you. And may the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one towards another, and towards 13 all men, even as we do towards you: That he may establish your hearts unblameable

—What is our hope] What is the source of my hope, what produces present joy, what will be at last my crown of glorying? Will not, &c. Paul alludes to the famous Grecian games, the victors at which were crowned and celebrated. Paul considers that his converts would be his crown in the day of Christ's appearing.

CHAP. III. 1—5. Fellow-worker] One called and appointed of God to labour in the ministry of the gospel.—That no man] As Paul and others wrought miracles, it might be urged against them, that they ought to secure themselves from sufferings and broils; but Paul replies by Timothy, that they were appointed thereto. Comp. Matt. x. 17—23; Acts ix. 16.—2. (v) Griehs.

6—8. Timothy came] Timothy returned, and made glad the apostle by informing him of the steadfast faith of these men; and of their regard to him.—We live, if ye] We enjoy and have pleasure in life. The word is so used by Latin and Greek writers.

11—13. Our God and Father] Paul joins here Jesus Christ in a direct prayer with the Father, and in the 12th verse prays directly to the Lord Jesus, to bestow an increase of brotherly love, and to establish their hearts, &c.

in holiness before our God and Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth to persevere in godliness, holiness, love, and submission; not to indulge immoderate sorrow for the dead; describes the resurrection and last judgment.

FINALLY then we beseech you, brethren, 1 and exhort you by the Lord Jesus, that, as ye have received of us how ye ought to walk and to please God, ye would abound more and more. For ye know what com- 2 mandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God, even your sanc- 3 tification; that ye should abstain from fornication; That every one of you should 4 know how to keep his body in sanctification and honour; Not given up to lustful pas- 5 sions, even as the Gentiles who know not God: That no one overreach and defraud 6 his brother in this matter: because that the Lord is the avenger of all such, as we have formerly also told you and testified. For 7 God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but to sanctification. He therefore that 8 despiseth, despiseth not man, but God; who hath also given to us his holy Spirit.

Now as concerning brotherly love, ye 9 need not that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another. And indeed ye do this towards 10 all the brethren who are in all Macedonia. But we beseech you, brethren, that ye abound in love more and more; And that 11 ye earnestly study to be quiet, and to do your own business, and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you; That 12 ye may walk in a becoming manner towards those that are without, and that ye may have need of nothing.

Now we would not have you ignorant, 13 brethren, concerning those who are asleep, that ye grieve not, even as others who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died, 14 and rose again; even so those who sleep

CHAP. IV. 1, 2. By the Lord Jesus] In his name and by his authority.—Ought to walk] Paul had not only taught them doctrines to be believed, but had stated how they should live so as to please God, and adorn the gospel.

3—8. For this is the will] This is his great design in the gospel, to effect your sanctification; and this consists in abstaining from fornication, &c.—Keep his body] Greek, his vessel. The apostle exhorts them to regard their bodies as those holy vessels which were consecrated and used in the temple.—Overreach] Or pass the bounds of justice and chastity, and thus defraud his brother-man of what is his property, by seducing his daughter or his wife; for of all such offences the Lord is the avenger. Comp. Luke x. 16, with Acts v. 3, 4.

11, 12. Study to be quiet] To live peaceably, to provoke and quarrel with no one; but be industrious, that so ye may have what is needful, and be able to do good to others.

13. Now we would] As to those of your believing brethren who have died, grieve not as your heathen neighbours do, who have no hope of a future happy state, or of a resurrection.

in Jesus, will God bring also with him. 15 For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive and remain to the coming of the Lord, shall not go up 16 before those who are asleep. For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God: and the dead in 17 Christ shall rise first: Afterwards, we, who are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them into the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and then shall we 18 ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort ye one another with these words.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 63. He pursues the subject of Christ's second coming to judgment; gives various interesting precepts, and concludes with fervent prayer for them.

1 BUT concerning the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto 2 you. For yourselves well know that the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the 3 night. For when men shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction will come upon them, as travail upon a woman 4 with child; and they shall not escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that the last day should overtake you as a thief. 5 Ye are all sons of light, and sons of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do 6 others; but let us watch and be sober. For those that sleep, sleep in the night; and those that are drunken, are drunken in the 7 night. But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of 8 salvation. For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to the obtaining of salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ; Who died for 10 us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we may live together with him. Wherefore comfort 11 yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do.

Now we beseech you, brethren, to know 12 those who labour among you, and preside over you in the Lord, and admonish you; And to esteem them very highly in love for 13 their work's sake. And be at peace among yourselves. And we exhort you, brethren, admonish those that are disorderly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the 14 weak, be long-suffering towards all. See 15 that none render evil for evil unto any man; but always follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and towards 16 all. Rejoice always. Pray without ceasing. 17 For every thing give thanks: for this 18 is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Quench not the Spirit. Despise 19 not prophesyings: Prove all things; hold 20 fast that which is good. Abstain from 21 every evil appearance. And the very God 22 of peace sanctify you wholly; and may your whole frame, spirit, and soul, and body, be preserved blameless to the coming of 23 our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is he that 24 calleth you, who will also do this. Brethren, 25 pray for us, Salute all the brethren with a 26 holy kiss. I charge you by the Lord that 27 this epistle be read to all the holy brethren. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with 28 you. Amen.

The first epistle unto the Thessalonians was written from Athens.

14. Bring also with him] When he comes to judge all men, then those who sleep in him will be raised and appear with him in his glory.

16—18. For the Lord] The apostle explains what he meant in the preceding verse. The dead in Christ will be first raised; and then those alive will be changed, and the whole of Christ's flock will be caught up to meet their Lord, and to remain for ever with him. What comfort should this view of the dead and of the blessed resurrection impart!

CHAP. V. 1. Times and seasons] Longer periods are meant by times; and shorter, referring to various events occurring within these periods, are meant by seasons. Eccles. iii. 1; Dan. ii. 21; Acts i. 7.

2. As a thief in] So our Lord had said, and so the apostle had taught them, Matt. xxiv. 43; and 2 Peter iii. 10.

3. Then men] When careless and wicked men shall say, Peace, &c. shall, like the antediluvians, be eating and drinking, &c. then sudden destruction will come on them.

4—8. We are not of the night] Not living as the wicked do, who may be said to be of the night, &c. Hence we are under strong obligation, not 'to sleep as others, but to watch,' Eph. vi. 13, 17.

9—11. Appointed us to wrath] This is manifest by the design of our Lord's coming. He came not to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved. It is also manifest by the gospel, which assures us of salvation to every believer.

12, 13. Who labour among] Hence they had some regular teachers, who presided over them in Christ, and admonished them; and these they were bound to esteem and honour, on account of their office, and to maintain peace among themselves.

14. Exhort you] Pastors and teachers, to admonish the disorderly, &c.—Feeble-minded] Those depressed by their sufferings, or ready to despond at the recollection of their sins.—The weak] Babes in Christ foster and encourage.

15. See that none] Let both pastors and people regard the following precepts, Comp. Rom. xii. 19—21.

16—22. Rejoice] In your Christian privileges and mercies. Pray without ceasing for those supports and blessings you ever need; and for every thing received give thanks; as this is especially the will of God, &c.—Quench not the Spirit] Oppose not his holy influence attending the gospel preached to you. See Acts vii. 51.—Prophecyings] See 1 Cor. xiv. 3, &c. Perhaps they despised this gift as not being so singular as speaking some foreign language, &c.—Prove all things] Which the prophets deliver, by comparing what they teach with the known will of Christ as revealed and taught by us.

23. And may your] I adopt Chandler's rendering of ἁλολογος, 'whole frame;' and consider the parts as specified in what follows, the spirit, properly so called; the soul, or principle of animal life; and the body, with all its parts and members.

24—28. Faithful is] How encouraging must this have been to the persecuted Thessalonians!—Pray for us] For our safety and success; and while you salute one another, in token of Christian love, I charge you to read my letter to all the brethren. How excellent the advice given to these professed believers!

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

INTRODUCTION.

As Timothy and Silvanus join the apostle in this as in the first Epistle, it is evident that they were still with him, and as he abode at Corinth above eighteen months, it is most probable this second Epistle was written from that city. The general design of it was to comfort them under their troubles and persecutions, and to exhort them to a steadfast and Christian behaviour. Besides, the apostle sets himself to rectify some mistaken notions which they held about the coming of Christ; and to direct them as to the exercise of Christian discipline towards some irregular members of their society.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 64. Paul states his good opinion of their faith, love, and patience; and then offers various things for their comfort and joy in their afflictions.

- 1 PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians in God our
- 2 Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ; Grace and peace be unto you, from God our Father and our Lord Jesus Christ.
- 3 We ought to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith increaseth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you all towards each other
- 4 aboundeth; So that we ourselves glory in you among the churches of God, for your patience and faith in all the persecutions
- 5 and afflictions which ye endure; For a manifestation of the just judgment of God, and to the end that ye may be counted
- 6 worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye also suffer: Since it is a just thing with God to recompense affliction to those that
- 7 are afflicting you; But to you who are afflicted, he will give rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be manifested from heaven
- 8 with his mighty angels. In flaming fire, taking vengeance on those that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our
- 9 Lord Jesus Christ. And these shall be punished with everlasting destruction, by the presence of the Lord, and by his glorious
- 10 power; In that day, when he shall come to be glorified by his saints, and to be admired by all those that have believed as our testimony hath been believed by you. Wherefore we pray also for you always, 11 that our God would count you worthy of this calling, and accomplish all the good pleasure of his goodness, and the work of faith with power: That the name of our 12 Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified by you, and ye by him, according to the grace of our God and Lord Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 64. He desires them to continue steadfast; shows that there will be a departure from the faith; describes the man of sin, and renews his exhortations.

Now we beseech you, brethren, with 1 respect to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together unto him, That ye be not soon shaken in your 2 mind, nor be troubled, either by any pretended spirit of revelation, or by word, or by letter, as from us, as if the day of Christ is at hand. Let no man deceive you 3 by any such means: for that day will not come, unless there come the apostasy first, and the man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; Who opposeth and exalteth 4 himself above every one called God, or that is the object of worship; so that he sitteth in the very temple of God, showing himself that he is a god. Remember ye not, that, 5 when I was yet with you, I told you these things? And now ye know what these- 6

CHAP. I. 1, 2. Paul and Silvanus] See note 1st Epist. chap. i. 17 &c.

3, 4. Faith increaseth] Their faith, love, and patience increased by exercise, under their severe persecutions; and for this the apostle was unfeignedly thankful, as nothing could prove more decisively the reality of their religion.

5-8. The just judgment] In thus trying you, and that ye may be counted worthy to be the subjects of Jesus. And your enemies will receive a due recompense, while you who are afflicted shall have rest with us in the heavenly kingdom, when Jesus comes in the fire of his anger to punish all that have not obeyed the gospel.

9-12. And these shall] These wicked persecutors at that great day shall be punished with everlasting destruction, when he comes to be glorified by his saints for what he has done for them.—This calling] Wherewith ye have been called, see verse 5, by the gospel to the hope of these things.

CHAP. II. 1, 2. Gathering] Our being raised from the dead to stand before his tribunal, and be for ever with him in the heavenly state, 1 Thess. iv. 13-18.—By revelation] By any pretended revelation, or by word or verbal message, or by any letter, as from us, &c. Be assured that we maintain no such opinion; and if some interpret any expressions in this sense, they mistake our intention and meaning.

3, 4. Unless there come] As I told you, there will be a great apostacy from the Christian faith, and 'the man of sin, the son of perdition,' will be revealed.—In the temple of God] This man of sin shall exist in the Christian church, ostentatiously displaying a temporal as well as a spiritual power, Rev. iii. 12; receiving the adoration of his people, and the titles and honours which belong exclusively to God. That the popes of Rome do and have done this, is certain. See Bishop Newton.

6. Ye know what] Paul had stated in his discourses

holdeth; in order that he may be revealed 7 in his own time. For lawlessness already secretly worketh: only there is what withholdeth, until it be taken out of the way.
 8 And then shall the Lawless one be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will consume with the breath of his mouth, and will destroy with the brightness of his appearance:
 9 Even him, whose coming is according to the working of Satan, with all false mira-10 cles and signs and wonders, And with all unrighteous deceit among those that are lost; because they received not the truth 11 in love, that they might be saved. And for this cause God will send them such a mighty working of error, that they will 12 believe falsehood: So that they all will be condemned who believe not the truth, but have pleasure in unrighteousness.
 13 But we ought to give thanks always to God for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, because God hath, from the beginning, chosen you to salvation through sanctifica-14 tion of spirit, and the belief of truth; Whereunto he called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.
 15 Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the doctrines which ye have been taught, 16 whether by our word, or epistle. Now our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and our God and Father, who hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting comfort and good hope 17 through grace, Comfort your hearts, and establish you in every good word and work.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 64. He desireth an interest in their prayers; testifieth his confidence in them, and concludes with giving them various practical precepts.

1 FINALLY, brethren, pray for us, that the something more particularly than he thought it prudent to write; especially as to the fall of the Roman empire, which was the thing that hindered the appearance of the man of sin. Faber contends that the law of the Roman empire was what withheld or restrained the appearance of the man of sin: and not the empire itself.

7. Lawlessness secretly] Paul, by the Spirit, knew that even then those principles were in existence, and powerfully operating, ambition, faction, error, mixing heathen superstitions with the gospel, &c. which would finally raise and establish this enemy of Christ; but as yet the Roman institutes hindered, and would do, until taken out of the way. Now this occurred when the Gothic kings gave their power to the man of sin, and he set himself above all law, human or divine.

8. Wicked one] Justly so called, as being most opposed to God and the gospel; but a time will come when the Lord Jesus will signally appear by his servants to overthrow this enemy, and utterly consume and destroy him.

9. Working of Satan] With fraud and delusion, in a secret and insidious manner; by false miracles, &c.

10. Unrighteous deceit] Pretended revelations, visions, and other pious frauds, as they have been improperly called.

11. For this cause] As they did not receive the truth, God will send them, and will permit to prevail among them, not hindering the operation of second causes, * such a word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is among you: And that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men: for all men have not faith. But the Lord is faithful, who will establish you, and keep you from evil. And we have confidence in the Lord concerning you, that ye both do, and will do, the things which we command you. And may the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God, and to the patience of Christ.

Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not according to the doctrine which he received from us. For yourselves know how ye ought to imitate us: for we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you; Nor did we eat any man's bread for nought; but worked with labour and toil night and day, that we might not be burdensome to any of you: Not because we have no right; but to make ourselves an example unto you, that ye might imitate us. For when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any be not willing to work, neither let him eat. For we hear that some among you walk disorderly; doing no work, but prying into the business of others. Now those that are such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they do their own business, and eat their own bread. But, brethren, be not ye weary in well-doing. And if any man obey not our word by this epistle, mark that man, and keep no company with him, that he may be ashamed. Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother. Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace mighty working of error,' &c.—Falsehood] Macknight supposes transubstantiation to be meant; but the term may comprise the whole system of falsehood believed in that church.

12. So that they all] For their real unbelief of what God has revealed, and for their love and practice of all unrighteousness.

13, 14. But we ought] It is matter of praise to God to contrast your state with that of such characters.

15. The doctrines] The truths whether respecting doctrines or facts, delivered by me in my ministry among you, or in my letters to you or other Christian churches.

CHAP. III. 1—5. Among you] That we may have the same success in every place as among you.—May the Lord] The Lord Jesus direct your hearts to the love of God, the noblest object, and who has so loved you; and to such patience as he exercised under his sufferings, which includes constancy.

6. To withdraw] Not to countenance any such person as does not live according to the doctrine which we have preached, chap. ii. 15.

7—9. To imitate] As to diligence and industry; so that we would not be burdensome to any of you, though we had a right to support, 1 Thess. ii. 6.

10. Neither let him eat] When he is able to work, and will not for idleness, do not give him your food, lest you should sanction and encourage his idleness always by all means. The Lord be with you all.

17 The salutation by the hand of me Paul, which is the token in every epistle : so I

11, 12. We hear that] We are credibly informed that some among you are acting in a manner unsuitable to the gospel, living in a state of idleness.

13—15. Be not ye weary] Continue to be industrious, both for your own sakes and for that of others; and make your displeasure known to such men as I have named.

write. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ 18 be with you all. Amen.

The second epistle to the Thessalonians was written from Athens.

16. Now the Lord of peace] The author of all peace, happiness, and prosperity, give you this blessing at all times, and in all circumstances.

17. The token] Paul dictated his epistles, but signed them with his own hand, by which they were known to be his, and of Divine authority.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY.

INTRODUCTION.

WHEN Paul wrote this epistle has been much disputed, some considering it written as early as the year 54, and others not until 65, after Paul's first imprisonment. The difficulties attending the former opinion have induced many able divines to embrace the latter. The design of it was to direct Timothy as to the errors he was to refute; and as to the qualifications of the persons he was to ordain to the office of pastors and deacons; the age of widows to be employed in teaching the younger women, and finally the duties which he was to inculcate on servants or slaves.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 65. Timothy is reminded of the charge given to him; of the right use and end of the law; of Paul's call to be an apostle, and of Hymeneus and Alexander.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the appointment of God our Saviour, and of

2 'Christ Jesus,' who is our hope; To Timothy, my own son in the faith; Grace, mercy, and peace, from God our Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 I besought thee to remain still at Ephesus, when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some not to teach other

4 doctrines, Nor to give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which minister ques-

5 tions, rather than 'godly edification' in the faith: Now the end of this charge is love

6 from a pure heart, and a good conscience, and faith unfeigned; From which some

7 have swerved and turned aside unto vain babbling; Desiring to be teachers of the law; yet not understanding what they say, nor those things which they so confidently affirm. But we know that the law is good, 8 if a man use it as the law requireth; Know- 9 ing this, that no law is made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for murderers of other men, For fornicators, for sodomites, 10 for men-stealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine; According 11 to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which hath been committed to my trust. And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who 12 hath given me strength, that he accounted me faithful, and put me into the ministry; Who was before a reviler, and a persecutor, 13 and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did these things ignorantly through unbelief. And the grace of our Lord was 14 exceedingly abundant with faith and love

CHAP. I. 2. My own son] My convert, 1 Cor. iv. 15; Philem. v. 10. This probably occurred on Paul's first mission into the Lesser Asia, Acts xiv. 6. (v.) Griesb.

3, 4. Went to Macedonia] This fixes the date of the epistle; and as none of Paul's visits mentioned in the Acts can be meant, it must refer to one after his liberation from Rome, at a period after Luke's narrative closes.—Fables and] Jewish doctrines, which are no better than fables.—(v.) Dispensation of God] Griesb.

5—7. The end of this charge] Or the scope and aim of this my charge to thee is to promote love to God and man, directed by a good conscience, and supported by faith unfeigned in the person and doctrine of our Lord; from which some have swerved, &c.—Desiring to be] Setting up themselves as teachers of the law of Moses without understanding its nature, design, and genuine influence: see Acts v. 28; xvi. 24.

8—11. Agreeably to its] That is, to be a rule of his conduct, and its sanctions to deter him from transgression.—But for the lawless] That is, to restrain and punish them. The crimes mentioned were then, and are now, but too common in society.

12—14. Given me strength] Qualified me for the arduous duties to which he called me.—Ignorantly through] Had I done them in violation of my own knowledge and convictions, it is probable I should have been given up to judicial blindness; but as I ignorantly thought that I was doing God service, he had mercy on me.

15 which are in Christ Jesus. This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief. But for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me, the chief of sinners, Jesus Christ might show forth all long-suffering, for an example to those who should hereafter believe on him to everlasting life. Now to the eternal King, the immortal, invisible, the only God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

18 This charge I commit to thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before concerning thee, that by them thou mightest war a good warfare; Holding faith, and a good conscience; which some having put away, as to the faith have made shipwreck: Of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander; whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they may be taught not to blaspheme.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 65. Prayer to be offered for all men, and the reason of it; in what manner women should be attired; they are not suffered to teach in the church.

1 I EXHORT therefore, first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; For kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and gravity. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour;

4 Who willet that all men should be saved, and come to the knowledge of the truth.

15. Of all acceptance] Of universal reception and approbation. Newcome renders, 'worthy to be received by all.'—Of whom I am chief] Chief of those who have sinned through ignorance and unbelief. This limitation seems to be necessary, as he was not by any means the greatest sinner that ever lived.

16, 17. All long-suffering] Or very great long-suffering in bearing with such ignorance and unbelief, and the fruits of them in such a wicked conduct—For an example] Of his grace and mercy, to encourage those who should hereafter be called to repentance, and to faith in him as the author and giver of eternal life. (o) Wise] Griesb.

18. Prophecies] Some prophets in the Christian church had foretold that Timothy would be a useful and faithful minister of Christ, chap. iv. 14; and hence Paul gives him suitable instructions.

19. Which some] Which good conscience, some teachers having put away, and acting only from low, worldly motives, have, as to the faith, or to some of the leading doctrines of it, made shipwreck, and of course lost all that they possessed and hoped for.

20. Unto Satan] To inflict on him some penal evils, 1 Cor. v. 5, and Acts xix. 33, and 2 Tim. iv. 14.

CHAP. II. 1. 2. Supplications] For averting evil, and prayers for obtaining good, intercessions for the conversion of sinners, and thanksgivings for mercies, be offered to God.—For all men] And for all ranks and conditions of men.

3. 4. This is good] Thus to pray for all men, especially for ignorant, persecuting enemies, is good and acceptable; for it is to resemble him 'who willet that all men,' &c.

5. For there is one God] The Creator and Father of all; and 'one Mediator,' who acts in some respects for all, 'the man Christ Jesus.' Doddridge observes, 'that though the union of the divine with the human nature qualified our Lord for his office, it is as man that he discharges it.'

6. A ransom for all] Comp. Matt. xx. 28. Redeeming

For there is one God, and one mediator also, between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; Who gave himself a ransom for all, 6 for a testimony to which, in due time, I 7 have been appointed a preacher, and an apostle, (I speak the truth, and lie not;) a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

I therefore command that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without anger and disputing: In like manner, that women also adorn themselves in decent apparel, with modesty and sober-mindedness; not with plaited hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array only; But (which becometh 10 women professing godliness) with good works. Let a woman learn in silence, with 11 all subjection. But I suffer not a woman 12 to teach, nor to usurp authority over a man, but command her to remain silent. For 13 Adam was first formed, then Eve. And 14 Adam was not deceived first, but the woman being deceived, was first guilty of transgression. Notwithstanding, she shall be 15 saved through childbearing, if they continue in faith and charity and holiness with sober-mindedness.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 65. What should be the qualifications of bishops, deacons, and their wives; and the reason of Paul's writing to Timothy concerning these things.

THIS is a true saying, If a man earnestly 1 desire the office of a bishop, he desireth an excellent work. A bishop then must be 2 life by suffering the loss of life, is by most allowed to be the sense of the term.

7. For a testimony] To give testimony to this truth or doctrine, I have been appointed a preacher, &c.—(o) In Christ] Griesb.

8—10. I therefore command] As an apostle, knowing the will of the Lord, 'That men pray every where,' 'without anger and disputing,' about the admission of Gentiles into the church, or the obligations of the Jewish law.—That women, also] When they appear in the church especially, as well as at other times, 'adorn themselves with,' &c.—Not with plaited hair] Persons should dress according to their situation and circumstances, Prov. xxxi. 21, 22. What is forbidden is a gaudy, immodest dress, unsuitable to a woman's rank in life, and indicating vanity and pride.

11, 12. Let a woman] Any woman in the church, learn in silence, &c.—To teach] In the public assemblies, as ministers of the gospel do; but they may teach in private those of their own sex, and children.

13, 14. Formed first] God intimating by this his natural superiority, 1 Cor. xi. 8, 9.—Not deceived] I consider apostas as implied in both the clauses of this verse. For if Adam was not deceived by the serpent he was by the woman.

15. She shall be saved] From the sin and guilt contracted 'through child-bearing,' or bringing forth the promised seed, who was actually made of woman, Gen. iii. 15; Gal. iv. 4; yet both Eve and all her sex, in order to their being saved, must have, and continue to exercise, faith in the Saviour, and pursue holiness.

CHAP. III. 1. Office of a bishop] Or, of an overseer or pastor of the church, Acts xx. 28. The apostle calls this office 'an excellent work' or employment, because it consisted in the performance of duties in themselves excellent, honourable, and useful. The maxim, one church or congregation, and one bishop, is often mentioned by the fathers, blameless, the husband of one wife, sober, prudent, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach; Not given to wine, not a striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but mild, not contentious, not covetous; One that ruleth well his own household, having his children in subjection with all gravity; (For if a man know not how to rule his own household, how can he take care of the church of God?) Not a new convert, lest being lifted up with pride he fall into the condemnation of the devil. Moreover he must have a good testimony from those who are without; lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil. In like manner the deacons must be grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre; Holding the doctrine of the faith with a pure conscience. And let these also be first proved; then let them use the office of a deacon, being found blameless. In like manner must the women be grave, not slanderers, sober, faithful in all things. Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own household well. For those that have used the office of a deacon well acquire to themselves an honourable rank, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus. I write these things to thee, though I hope to come to thee shortly: But if I delay, I write that thou mayest know how thou which shows that a bishop was only a presbyter, minister, or pastor of one Christian assembly.

2. Husband of one wife] Not guilty of polygamy, a thing then very common.—Apt to teach] Not only qualified by learning, but having the talent of speaking and instructing.

3. Given to wine] As this vice was disgraceful, it would be wholly incompatible with the office, as it would often lead to quarrels and fighting. Nor must he be a worldling, who would consider gain as godliness.

4, 5. Household well] Provided he be married and have a family.

6, 7. New convert] To raise such a one to office might puff him up with pride, in his gifts and promotion.—Of the devil] Who fell by pride, and is under a final sentence of condemnation, 2 Peter ii. 4.—From those without] The unconverted who can bring no charge unless it be in respect to his religion.

8—10. Deacons] See Acts vi. 1, &c.—Double-tongued] Dissembling and deceitful; nor intemperate or covetous.—Let these also] Let them be named and spoken of by the church or faithful; and being found blameless, let them be chosen to the office.

11. The women] Such as were deaconesses, employed in visiting, teaching, &c. those of their own sex: see Rom. xvi. 1—3; Philip. iv. 3, &c.

13. An honourable rank] Many who discharged this office were, in the primitive church, chosen to the office of bishop; but even the office of deacon was an honourable rank among their fellow-Christians.—Great boldness] In accepting such an office, and in a time of such danger nobly maintaining the faith, and relieving the poor and the persecuted.

15, 16. In the house of God] The tabernacle and temple were called God's house; but under the gospel this name is uniformly given to Christian societies. Paul wrote to Timothy that he might know how to act in one of these societies, so as to promote its order, peace, and prosperity.—The pillar and support] These words stand in apposi-

tion, and are attributed to the church; which may be thus called in allusion to the ancient custom of hanging up laws on the pillars of the heathen temples. In this manner the Christian church would exhibit the truth of the gospel, and support it by the ministry, worship, and ordinances, even to the end of the world, and especially the important truth following.—Once secret truth] Compare verse 9.—God manifest] Compare John i. 1—14; Rom. ix. 5.—Justified by the] Declared to be the Christ by his resurrection and attestations of the Holy Spirit, in the gifts and miracles which were bestowed and wrought.—Seen of angels] They saw him with wonder, and at his nativity, temptation, agony, resurrection, and ascension, they ministered to him.—In the world] Among distant nations.—Taken up] Paul does not follow the order of events; but having considered Jesus as vindicated from unjust charges, he notices the success of the gospel, before his ascension.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 65. He foretelleth the great apostasy from the purity of Christian doctrine and worship; he gives various precepts of duty to Timothy.

Now the Spirit saith expressly that, in the latter times, some will apostatise from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits, and to doctrines concerning demons; Through the hypocrisy of liars, of those whose conscience is seared with a hot iron; Who will forbid to marry, and command to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be partaken of with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving: For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer. If thou state these things to the brethren, thou wilt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished up in the words of the faith and of that good doctrine, to which thou hast attained.

But reject profane and senseless fables; and exercise thyself unto godliness. For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godli-

tion, and are attributed to the church; which may be thus called in allusion to the ancient custom of hanging up laws on the pillars of the heathen temples. In this manner the Christian church would exhibit the truth of the gospel, and support it by the ministry, worship, and ordinances, even to the end of the world, and especially the important truth following.—Once secret truth] Compare verse 9.—God manifest] Compare John i. 1—14; Rom. ix. 5.—Justified by the] Declared to be the Christ by his resurrection and attestations of the Holy Spirit, in the gifts and miracles which were bestowed and wrought.—Seen of angels] They saw him with wonder, and at his nativity, temptation, agony, resurrection, and ascension, they ministered to him.—In the world] Among distant nations.—Taken up] Paul does not follow the order of events; but having considered Jesus as vindicated from unjust charges, he notices the success of the gospel, before his ascension.

CHAP. IV. 1. The Spirit saith] Reveals it to me, that though the church is the 'pillar and support of the truth,' yet in latter times some, many, but not all, will fall away, &c. To deceiving spirits] To false prophets, pretending to divine inspiration.—Concerning demons] The worship of angels, and the spirits of departed reputed saints, men and women.

2. Hypocrisy] Such doctrines will be propagated under the hypocritical pretence of humility and greater holiness.

3—5. Who forbid to] As it would be a sin, especially to the ministers; a doctrine opposed to nature and the authority of God.—To abstain] Of particular kinds, and at particular seasons, pretending to fast two days every week, and during Lent.

6. State these things] Concerning the corrupt doctrines which will arise and be maintained both in the Roman and Greek churches, and concerning the lawfulness of all sorts of food, thou wilt be, &c.

7. Profane and] Not only Jewish fables, but those which lying teachers invent about the worship of angels and saints, and the miracles ascribed to them and their relics, &c.

8. Profiteth little] What mortification men endure, ness is profitable for all things, having a promise of the life which now is, and of that which is to come. This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance. For on this account we both labour and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, but especially of those that believe. These things give in charge and teach. Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example to the believers, in word, in discourse, in hope, in spirit, in faith, in purity. Till I come, give attention to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the putting on of the hands of the elders. Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them: that thy improvement may appear to all. Take heed to thyself, and to thy doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt save both thyself, and those that hear thee.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 65. Rules to be observed in reproof; on Christian widows; provision to be made for elders, &c.

1 REBUKE not an aged man severely, but exhort him as a father; and the younger men as brethren; The aged women as mothers; the younger as sisters, with all purity. Support widows that are widows indeed. But if any widow have children or grand-children, let these learn first to show piety in taking care of their own household, and then to requite their parents: for this is acceptable before God. Now she who is a widow indeed, and left alone, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day: But she that rioteth in pleasure is dead while she liveth. These things also give in charge, that they may be blameless. But if any provide not for his own kindred, and especially for those of his own household, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an unbeliever.

Let not a widow be taken into the number of teachers, under sixty years old, having been the wife of one husband, Well reported of for good works; one that hath brought up children, that hath lodged strangers, that hath washed the feet of the saints, that hath relieved the afflicted, that hath diligently followed every good work. But the younger widows reject: for when they grow weary of the restraint of Christ, they desire to marry; Having condemnation, because they have cast off their first faith. And at the same time being idle they learn to go about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not. I command therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide their household, and give no occasion to the adversary to speak reproachfully. For some women have already turned aside after Satan. If any man or woman who believeth have widows, let such relieve them, and let not the church be burdened; that it may relieve those that are widows indeed.

Let the elders who preside well, be counted worthy of double reward; especially those who labour in the word and in teaching. For the scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, The labourer is worthy of his hire. Against an elder receive not an accusation, as the athletics do, to obtain a fading honour, is of little advantage even here. &c.—[A promise] Mark x. 30; Rom. viii. 24; Heb. xiii. 5, 6. Good men are under God's special care, have reliance on God here, and the hope of future life and blessedness.

9—11. Preserver of all] In his providence, providing for and preserving all; but especially us Christians, amidst the many dangers to which we are ever exposed. For this sense, see Parkhurst.

12. Let no one] Give no one cause to despise it, but be thou an example to the, &c.

14. Hands of the elders] Paul asserts that the gift was bestowed by him, 2 Tim. i. 6; but from this we collect that other elders, pastors, or bishops joined in setting Timothy apart to the work of an evangelist.

16. Those that hear thee] By a wise and faithful discharge of the duties of thy office, thou wilt secure thy own happiness, and be the honoured instrument of saving others.

CHAP. V. 1, 2. An aged man] This primitive sense of the word is adopted because it is contrasted with the younger, in respect both to men and women.

3, 4. Support] By the contributions of the church; but if any widow, &c.—[To show piety] The opposition between 'their own household,' and requiting their parents, makes it certain that the apostle refers to supporting or providing for them.—(o) Good and] Griesb.

5—8. A widow indeed] Such as referred to, verse 3, is one left alone, having no children or relatives able and willing to support her; one truly pious, who trusteth in

God, continuing in religious exercises, and teaching others, —[His own] Poor relations, and especially for his own household and family, 'he hath denied the faith,' hath renounced the doctrine of Christ, by his practice, and is worse than untaught heathens.—(o) Good and] Griesb.

9, 10. Into the number] Of those supported and employed by the church, to teach children or younger women.

—[Of one husband] That is, at a time. Women could divorce their husbands; and those who did, usually married often, and in reality had more than one.—[If she have] One who in time past, and when in better circumstances, having already been employed by the church, in piously bringing up and educating children, lodging strangers, &c.

11—13. Restraint of Christ] That restraint, which the services done for and on account of Christ, above stated, requires.—[Condemnation] Because by marrying, and in many instances, heathens, they renounce the faith of Christ, and incur condemnation.

14—16. I command] See chap. ii. 8. Marry rather than expose themselves to temptations and apostasy.—[Adversary] Any heathen or unbeliever.—[Have widows] That is, grandmothers, mothers, daughters, or sisters, who are poor widows, and he or she be able to support them, let them do it, &c.—[That are widows indeed] That have none to take care of or support them.

17—19. Elders who preside] Elders here must be considered the same as bishops, of whom, in most of the churches, there were several; compare Acts xx. 17, 28, and 1 Peter v. 1, &c. [The term 'bishop' only occurs five

- 20 but before two or three witnesses. Those who sin rebuke before all, that others also 21 may fear. I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality.
 22 Put thy hands hastily on no man: and partake not in the sins of others: keep thyself pure. Drink no longer water, but use a little wine, on account of thy stomach 24 and thy frequent infirmities. The sins of some men are manifest, going before to judgment; but those of others follow after.
 25 In like manner the good works of some are manifest beforehand; and those that are otherwise cannot be hidden.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 65. The duties of servants; we must not regard teachers of new doctrines; godliness great gain, and the evil of covetousness; exhortations to Timothy.

- 1 LET as many servants as are under the yoke, count their own masters worthy of all honour; that the name of God and his doctrine be not evil-spoken of. And let not those that have believing masters, despise them, because they are brethren; but let them serve the more willingly, because they who enjoy the benefit of it are believers and beloved. These things teach and exhort. If any one teach otherwise, and consent not to the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine 4 which is according to godliness; He is puffed up with pride, knowing nothing, but doting about questions and strifes of words; from which come envy, contention, calum-

nies, wicked surmisings, Perverse disputings 5 of men of corrupt minds, and destitute of the truth, supposing that gain is godliness; from such withdraw thyself. But godliness 6 with contentment is great gain. For we 7 brought nothing into this world; and it is certain that we can carry nothing out. Having therefore food and raiment, with 8 these let us be content. But they that will 9 be rich, fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful desires, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root 10 of all evil; which while some have coveted, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

But do thou, O man of God, flee these 11 things: and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on 12 everlasting life, to which thou hast been called, and hast confessed a good confession before many witnesses. I charge thee 13 in the sight of God, who giveth life to all, and of Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession, That 14 thou keep this command so as to be without spot, unrebukeable until the appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ: Which in 15 its proper time he will manifest, who is the happy and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; Who only hath 16 immortality, dwelling in that light to which no man can approach; whom no man hath seen, nor can see: to whom be everlasting honour and dominion. Amen.

Charge those that are rich in this world, 17 not to be high-minded, nor to trust in un-times, and is once applied to Christ, 1 Peter ii. 25. It is never joined with elder; but when elder is mentioned, bishop is omitted; and when the bishop is named, nothing is said of elder, which proves that the terms are used of the same officer. Paul, chap. iii. 1, &c. only mentions bishops and deacons; and of course the elders here mean the bishops or pastors. And as there were several, some might be better qualified to preside in the church than others, and such would deserve and receive sufficient support.—Against an elder] Timothy, as an evangelist, was above these elders, bishops, or pastors; but he was to treat them with respect, and not to listen to idle reports against them.

20. Those that sin] Whether elders or others, on the testimony of sufficient witnesses, rebuke before all, &c.

21. Elect angels] Those holy angels who kept their first estate, and who minister to the heirs of salvation.

22. Put thy hands] In appointing him to the office of deacon or pastor, lest by so doing thou should be a partaker in his sins, &c.—Keep thyself pure] 2 Tim. ii. 22.

23. Drink no longer] Paul knew Timothy's great abstinence and mortification; and gives him this hint lest his health should be injured.

24, 25. The sins of some] Are open and known to men; but other men sin so secretly that their sins will not be known to men before the final judgment.—Those that are] Those good works which are carefully concealed cannot be hidden, that is, in the last day.

CHAP. VI. 1, 2. Servants as] Such as were servants or slaves to unbelievers, must show all fidelity and honour to their masters. And let such as have believing masters serve them willingly on this account, and not despise them.

3—5. Sound words] According to the will of Christ now revealed, and to the doctrine of the gospel in general.—He is puffed up] The apostle seems to have his eye on the Jewish teachers, who introduced disputes about the law and customs of their fathers, Titus i. 10.

6. But godliness] There is a sense in which this opinion is true; as godliness now enriches its possessor with many spiritual blessings, and with the hope of future happiness, so it inspires with submission to providence.

7—10. We brought nothing] Whatever we attain and possess here we must assuredly leave; and having food, &c.—But they that will] Who are wholly bent on riches, and avail themselves of all methods of acquiring them, fall into temptations and snares, which drown, &c.—Love of money] The passion for wealth leads to many evils. Riches are called uncertain, because they may be taken from their possessors by violence, or lost by unforeseen events and misfortunes; and at best must, in a little time, be left to others.

11. Man of God] The prophets were so called, and here and 2 Tim. iii. 17, it is applied to Timothy and other teachers, as ministers of the gospel.

12. Fight the good] Maintain the faith or doctrines of the gospel courageously against all opposers.

13—16. Before Pontius Pilate] He confessed himself Messiah king of the Jews, John xviii. 37, as he had done before Caiaphas, Matt. xxvi. 63, 64.—He will manifest] Some refer what follows to the Father, but Doddridge and others to our Lord, Rev. xix. 16.

17—19. Charge those] This is kind towards them, as they are in danger of pride, and of trusting to their riches.

certain riches, but in the living God, who 18 giveth us richly all things to enjoy ; To do good, to be rich in good works, ready to dis-19 tribute, willing to bestow ; Laying up for themselves a good treasure against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.
20 O Timothy, keep that doctrine which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and debates of a falsely called knowledge : Which some professing, 21 have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

The first to Timothy was written from Laodicea, which is the chief city of Phrygia Pacatiana.

20, 21. Keep that doctrine] Never swerve from what thou hast been taught ; and do not regard the vain babblings and oppositions to the gospel, founded on mistaken views of the writings of Moses and the prophets, and which some falsely call knowledge. Such pretenders to knowledge formed a sect called Gnostics

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO T I M O T H Y.

INTRODUCTION.

MACKNIGHT, Paley, and other learned men, consider this as the last epistle that Paul wrote ; and that it was written not long before he suffered death at Rome. This we learn from the epistle itself ; and from the persons and circumstances mentioned, we also learn that this was a second imprisonment at Rome which he was then enduring. The design of the epistle was to encourage Timothy to constancy and perseverance in preaching the gospel, and in instructing others for the ministry.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 66. Paul's love to Timothy, and Timothy's unfeigned faith ; he giveth him various and important exhortations ; notices that some had forsaken him, &c.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, as to the promise of life which 2 is by Christ Jesus. To Timothy, my beloved son : Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord
3 I thank God, whom I serve, after the manner of my forefathers, with a pure conscience, that I have an unfailling remembrance of thee in my prayers night 4 and day : Remembering thy tears, I earnestly desire to see thee, that I may be 5 filled with joy ; As I bear in mind the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice ; and I am persuaded that it dwelleth in thee also.

CHAP. I. 1, 2. As to the promise of life] Made to men, in the promise of a Saviour, and secured in the covenant made with Abraham.

3—5. After the manner] See note, Romans ix. 3.
As they served God in sincerity, following his revealed will, so do I in preaching Christ ; and I am thankful that I have such just reasons, to make mention of thee in my prayers.

6 The gift of God] The spiritual gifts imparted at thy ordination to be an evangelist. See 1 Timothy iv. 14, and note.

7. Spirit of fear] Amidst our persecutors ; 'but of power' in working miracles, and in the exercise of other gifts ; 'and of love' to the souls of men, seeking their salvation ; 'and of prudence' in the discharge of our arduous duties.

Wherefore I remind thee that thou stir 6 up the gift of God, which is in thee by the putting on of my hands. For God hath not 7 given us a spirit of fear ; but of power, and of love, and of prudence. Be not thou 8 therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner ; but suffer with others for the gospel, according to the power of God ; Who hath saved us, and 9 called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was bestowed on us in Christ Jesus before the world began ;
But hath now been made manifest by the 10 appearance of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and clearly discovered life and immortality by the gospel :
Of which I have been appointed a preacher, 11 and an apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles. For which cause I suffer also these 12 things : nevertheless I am not ashamed :

8. Suffer with others for] That is, come, and if necessary, suffer with me for this blessed cause.

9. Before the world began] Compare Eph. i. 4 ; and 1 Peter i. 20. Our translators have given the sense. Were we to render, 'before the ancient times,' it amounts to the same thing ; see Tilman's Synonyms.

10. Abolished death] By his own resurrection, he has abolished it as to himself, and will do so as to others.— Clearly] As both eternal life and a resurrection of the body were revealed, though but obscurely, in the writings of Moses and the prophets, this sense of the verb seems necessary, Luke xx. 37.

11, 12. Of the Gentiles] See Acts ix. 15 ; Rom. i. 5.— Able to keep] I am confident that Jesus, in whom I have believed, is able to keep, and to realise my hopes of future happiness.

- for I know in whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep what I have committed to him against that great day.
- 13 Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard from me, with the faith
- 14 and love which are in Christ Jesus. That good doctrine which was committed to thee, keep by the Holy Spirit which dwelleth in us.
- 15 Thou knowest this, that all those who are in Asia have turned from me; of whom
- 16 are Phygellus and Hermogenes. The Lord show mercy to the household of Onesiphorus; for he often refreshed me, and
- 17 was not ashamed of my chain: But, when he was at Rome, he sought me out very
- 18 diligently, and found me. The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that great day. And in how many things he ministered to me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 66. He exhorts Timothy to constancy and perseverance, rightly dividing the word of truth; cautions him against Hymeneus and Philetus; and points out what he should follow, &c.

- 1 THOU therefore, my son, be strong in the
- 2 grace which is through Christ Jesus. And the things which thou hast heard from me among many witnesses, these commit to faithful men, who shall be able to teach
- 3 others also. Wherefore endure thou hardships as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.
- 4 No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life, but is free from them that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier. And if a man contend also in the games, he is not crowned, unless he contend lawfully. The husbandman must first labour, and then be partaker

13, 14. Form of sound words] Which thou hast heard, when I have preached the doctrines of the gospel. Good doctrine] The doctrine of grace, before called 'the form of sound words.'

15. Those of Asia] Those who were at Rome from Asia, being afraid, left Paul and fled in this season of persecution.

16—18. Onesiphorus] Paul prays for his family, and assigns the reason of it; and next for him who was then probably absent from his family.

CHAP. II. 1. In the grace] Maintain strenuously, by preaching the grace of God made known by Christ in the gospel, against all opposers.

2. The things which] The leading facts respecting our Lord, and the design of his coming into the world.—Commit to faithful] Instruct such that there may be a succession of able, pious, faithful preachers in the church. On this principle Christians and ministers have ever acted.

4. That he please] He that chooses him, does not require him to be occupied with business, foreign to his profession.

5. Contend lawfully] Or 'according to the law'; and can a minister of Christ expect to please him and receive the crown, unless he faithfully discharge the duties of his office?

8—10. Remember Jesus] Remember thy Lord and his sufferings, and this will tend to support thee under all hardships as it does me.

of the fruits. Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things. Remember Jesus Christ, of the seed of David, who was raised from the dead, according to the gospel which I preach: For which I suffer hardship, as an evil-doer, even unto bonds; but the word of God is not bound. Therefore I endure all things for the sake of the elect, that they may also obtain the salvation, which is through Christ Jesus, with everlasting glory. This is a faithful saying: For if we die with him, we shall also live with him: If we suffer, we shall also reign with him: if we deny him, he will also deny us: If we be unfaithful, yet he abideth faithful: he cannot deny himself.

Of these things put men in remembrance, charging them before the Lord, that they contend not about words, to no profit, but to the subverting of the hearers. Study to present thyself approved before God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. But shun profane and vain babblings: for they will increase to more ungodliness. And their word will eat as doth a gangrene: of whom are Hymeneus and Philetus; Who have erred concerning the truth, saying that the resurrection is past already; and overthrow the faith of some. Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth firm, having this inscription, The Lord knoweth those that are his. And, Let every one that nameth the name of 'the Lord' depart from iniquity. But in a great house there are not only vessels of gold and of silver, but also of wood and of earth; and some to honour, and some to dishonour. If a man therefore cleanse himself from these things, he will be a vessel to honour, sanctified, and fit for the master's use, and prepared unto every 11—13. This is a faithful] What follows is meant.—For if we die] As martyrs for his gospel and his name, we shall live also, &c.—Deny him] When brought before kings and councils he will deny us hereafter, Matt. x. 33.—Cannot deny himself] By acting contrary to his own public and solemn declarations.

15. Rightly dividing] It has often been noticed that the original term is sacrificial, alluding to the priest who cut up and divided the sacrifice.

16—18. Vain babblings] About things of no moment, such as many called teachers do.—The resurrection] Hymeneus is noticed, 1 Tim. i. 20. Philetus is not elsewhere mentioned. They most probably held that there was only to be a spiritual resurrection; and that as to believers this was already past; and by this they had overthrown the faith of some, in respect to the resurrection of the body.

19. Foundation of God] The promise and hope of a future life and resurrection, standeth firm, having this inscription, as it were engraved on it, as on a seal, 'The Lord knoweth those that are his,' see Numb. xvi. 6. Again, on this foundation is inscribed, 'Let every one that nameth the name,' &c.—(b) Griehs.

20. In a great house] There are vessels made of the richest materials, and some of the meanest; so in the visible church are men truly excellent, and others worthless on account of their errors and vices.

22 good work. Flee also youthful desires; but follow righteousness, faith, love, peace, together with those who call on the Lord 23 out of a pure heart. But foolish and unprofitable questions avoid, knowing that 24 they beget contentions. And the servant of the Lord must not contend; but must be gentle to all men, apt to teach, patiently
25 bearing evil, With meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if, by any means, God may give them repentance to the acknowledgment of the truth; So that 26 they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him, to do the will of God.

CHAPTER III

A. D. 66. Paul informs him what kind of men will hereafter arise, yet professing Christ; he proposeth to him his own example; and commendeth the Holy Scriptures.

1 But know this that, in the last days,
2 difficult times will come. For men will be lovers of their own selves, lovers of money, boasters, proud, evil-speakers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, Without natural affection, covenant-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, haters of those 4 that are good, Treacherous, rash, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; Having a form of godliness, but denying its power: from such turn away.
6 For of such are those that enter into houses, and lead captive weak women laden with 7 sins, led away by many evil desires, Ever learning, and never able to come to the 8 knowledge of the truth. Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth: men of corrupt minds, 9 undiscerning concerning the faith. But they shall not proceed far: for their folly shall be manifest unto all men, as that of the others also was.
10 But thou hast fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffer-
11 ing, love, patience, Persecutions, sufferings;

22—26. Youthful desires] Not only those of a sensual kind, but ambition, love of power, &c.—Recover themselves] Regain, as it were, their senses and reason, and so escape from the snare, &c.—To do the will of God] Greek, 'unto the will.' See Bowyer's Conj. I consider εὐνοῶν as referring to theos, God, and not to the enemy; and so Hammond, Whitby, and others construe and explain the words.

CHAP. III. 1. In the last days] Under the gospel dispensation, which already experiences some obstructions, but still greater will arise.

6—9. Weak women] Women of little knowledge, and of less piety, who, though ever hearing the gospel, yet never attain the knowledge, &c.—As Jannes and Jambres] These were the names of Pharaoh's chief magicians, handed down by tradition, though not mentioned by Moses. See Chalder Paraphrase Exod. vii. 11.

10—13. Manner of life, persecutions] Acts xiii. 50; xiv. 2—6; xxi. 20.

14, 15. Continue thou] Retain the instructions given thee, remembering from whom thou hast learned them, &c.—Able to make] As they foretell and announce what relates to Christ, in whom faith is to be exercised for salvation.

16, 17. All scripture is] Or every writing contained in what things befel me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra; what persecutions I endured: but out of all the Lord delivered me. Yea, and all that desire to live piously 12 in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution: And evil men and seducers will grow worse

13 and worse, deceiving, and being deceived. But continue thou in the things which thou 14 hast learned, and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; And that from a child thou hast known the 15 holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation by faith in Christ Jesus. All scripture is given by inspiration of God, 16 and is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, That the man of God may be perfectly 17 fitted for every good work.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 66. Paul exhorteth Timothy to a diligent discharge of his duty; informs him of the nearness of his own death; desires him to come to him and bring Mark, and other things that are mentioned.

I CHARGE thee, therefore, before God, and 1 the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the living and the dead, at his appearance and his kingdom; Preach the word; be instant
2 in season, out of season; confute, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and teaching. For a time will come when they will not
3 endure sound teaching; but will heap to themselves teachers, according to their own
4 desires, having itching ears; And will turn away their ears from the truth, and will be 5 turned unto fables. But watch thou in all things, endure hardship, do the work of an evangelist, fulfil thy ministry.

For I am now ready to be poured out,
6 and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished
7 my course, I have kept the faith. Hence-
8 forth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give to me at that great day:

the ἱερα γραμματα, holy scriptures, above mentioned. The preceding verse unquestionably refers us to the 'sacred books' of Moses and the prophets, which Timothy had known from a child; and Paul affirms these to be divinely inspired and profitable for teaching divine truths, for reproving errors, for correcting morals, and instructing in every branch of righteousness.

CHAP. IV. 1, 2. Appearance and his kingdom] When his kingdom shall be perfected, and all his subjects gathered in and made glorious for ever.—Preach the word] The pure gospel, whether in season or out of season as to thyself; or at stated seasons, such as were observed for worship; and 'out of season,' that is, occasionally at other times, as opportunity occurs.

3—5. Sound teaching] The teaching of sound and edifying truth. They will choose teachers, who will flatter them and amuse them with dreams and fables.—But watch thou] As a watchman in Zion, and do the work of thy office as an evangelist, Eph. iv. 11.

6—8. To be poured out] As a drink-offering. See Phil. ii. 17.—The time of my] Paul seems to speak of things from his age, his infirmities, and his present imprisonment, so that he could not expect to continue long.

and not to me only, but unto all those also 9 that love his appearance. Endeavour to 10 come unto me speedily. For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed to Thessalonica; Crescens to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia.
 11 Luke only is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to 12 me for the ministry. Now Tychicus I have 13 sent to Ephesus. The cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee; and the books, but especially 14 the parchments. Alexander the coppersmith hath done me much evil: the Lord will reward him according to his works.
 15 Of whom be thou aware also; for he hath 16 greatly withstood our words. At my first defence no one stood by me, but all forsook me: may it not be laid to their charge.
 17 Notwithstanding the Lord stood by me, and strengthened me: that by me the preaching of his gospel might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion. And the Lord will deliver me 18 from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Salute Priscilla and Aquila, and the 19 household of Onesiphorus. Erastus abode 20 at Corinth; but Trophimus I left sick at Miletus. Endeavour to come before winter. 21
 Eubulus saluteth thee; and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.
 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. 22
 Grace be with you. Amen.

Written from Rome, when Paul was brought before Nero the second time.

9—12. To come unto] He stood in need of tried and sted-fast friends, as several had forsaken him.—Loved this present] Demas was afraid of his life, and fled to Thessalonica, where he hoped to be more secure.—Luke only is with me]
 He never forsook him.—Take Mark] Acts xv. 38, &c.

13. The cloak] Some render, case or portmanteau; and if this be the sense, it might contain something valuable.—
The books] From this we learn that Paul studied and read.
 As to the parchments they might contain copies of his own epistles, or other matters of importance.

14. 15. Alexander] See 1 Tim. i. 20.—Hath done me]
 Perhaps stirring up both the unbelieving Jews and Gentiles against him.

16. At my first defence] He calls it his first defence, because his cause was not decided, and he expected to be tried again.—None stood with me] None of my fellow-labourers; but they all forsook me.—May it not be laid]
 This shows a truly Christian spirit.

17. The Lord stood by] The Lord Jesus, according to his promise, Luke xxi. 15, that by me the nature and great facts of the gospel might be fully proclaimed.—The mouth of the lion] At this time Helius Cæsarineus was Nero's deputy, and put to death whom he would. Paul might well call him a lion.

18. Deliver me from] Not from every danger, nor it may be from death; but from every evil work; and will preserve, &c.

19—22. Priscilla and Aquila] See Rom. xvi. 3.—The household] Either he was at Rome, or might have to go to some other place before he returned to Rome, chap. i. 16, 17.—Erastus] He was the chamberlain of Corinth, Rom.
 xvi. 23, and Acts xix. 22.—Trophimus] He was a native of Ephesus, Acts xxi. 29.—Miletus] Not Miletus, in Asia, not far from Ephesus, but one in Crete, where Paul had been before he went to Rome, and where he left Titus, chap.
 i. 2.—Before winter] Paul did not expect to die before then.
 —Eubulus] These were members of the Christian church at Rome; and it should seem they nobly visited him in prison.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO

T I T U S.

INTRODUCTION.

TITUS was a Gentile, and whether a native of Antioch in Syria, or of some other place, he was early converted to the Christian faith; and having distinguished himself by his piety and zeal, he was chosen by the church at Antioch, to go with Paul to the apostles and elders at Jerusalem, to consult them respecting the circumcision of the converted Gentiles, Gal. ii. 1. 2. From this time he was the fellow-labourer of the apostle, 2 Cor. viii. 23. We find nothing said respecting him until Paul left him in Crete; but this implies that he went there with Paul; and it is most probable that he attended Paul to Rome, on his appeal to Cæsar. The design of the Epistle is similar to the first to Timothy.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 66. For what end Titus was left in Crete; the qualifications of bishops or pastors; evil teachers must be opposed; what kind of men they are.

1 PAUL, a servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, in respect to the faith of God's elect, and the knowledge of the truth which is according to godliness; In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began; And hath in due season manifested his word through that

CHAP. I. 1—4. To the faith] The gospel sent to bring them to the faith, and to the knowledge of the truth, which is eminently calculated to promote godliness. See 2 Tim.

i. 9—11.—To Titus, mine own] My convert to the Christian faith, &c.

CHAPTER II.

preaching which is committed to me, according to the command of God our Saviour; To Titus mine own son as to the common faith: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour.

For this cause I left thee in Crete, that thou mightest set right the things that were wanting, and appoint elders in every city, as I directed thee: If any one be blameless, the husband of one wife, having believing children, not accused of riotous living, or unruliness. For an overseer must be blameless, as the steward of God; not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; But a lover of hospitality, a lover of good men, prudent, just, holy, temperate; Holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able, by sound teaching, both to exhort, and to confute gainsayers. For there are many unruly people and vain talkers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision: Whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole households, teaching things which they ought not, for the sake of sordid gain. One of themselves, a poet of their own, said, The Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, slothful gluttons. This testimony is true. Wherefore rebuke them sharply, that they may be sound in the faith; Not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, who turn away from the truth. To the pure all things are pure: but to those that are defiled and unbelieving nothing is pure; but even their mind and conscience are defiled. They profess to know God; but in their works they deny him, being abominable and disobedient, and as to every good work without discernment.

5. The things that are] What things these were is noticed in what follows, the appointment of elders in every city, here there were a sufficient number of Christian converts. He was to appoint or constitute, but not without the consent or concurrence of the people, and probably of other elders.

6—9. Be blameless] 1 Tim. iii. 2, &c.—For an overseer] The same persons are called elders in the 5th verse, and one of these is described as to his qualifications; and the reason assigned is, 'For a bishop or overseer must be blameless,' &c. If a bishop was superior to an elder, of no other order, how can this be a reason why elders should be blameless? See 1 Tim. iii. 3, &c.

10, 11. Of the circumcision] There were many of the Jews, who embraced some truths of the gospel, but who did the obligations of the law: these must be opposed.

12. One of themselves] Epimenides, in his book containing oracles.—Evil beasts] Cruel and savage, as well as gluttonous.

13, 14. Rebuke them] Tell them plainly of the sins to which they are most exposed; and to be on their guard against Jews, who, for the sake of gain, renounce the faith of the gospel.

15. To the pure] All kinds of food are pure; but to those defiled by intemperance, and unbelieving as it respects the freedom of the gospel, nothing is pure, as even their own minds, &c.

16. They profess to know] The Jews did so. See Rom. 2:1

A. D. 66. Directions; to Titus both as to his doctrine and life; the duty of servants and all Christians.

BUT speak thou the things which become sound doctrine: That the aged men be sober, grave, prudent, sound in faith, in love, in patience: That the aged women, in like manner, be in behaviour as becometh holy persons, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things; That they may instruct the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, To be prudent, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not evil spoken of. In like manner exhort the young men to be prudent. In all things show thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, Sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he who is opposed may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you. Exhort servants to be obedient to their own masters, and to please them well in all things; not contradicting; Not purloining, but showing the utmost fidelity; that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

For the grace of God, which bringeth salvation, hath appeared to all men, Teaching us that we should deny ungodliness and worldly desires, and live soberly, righteously, and piously, in this present world; Looking for that blessed hope, even the glorious appearance of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ, Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. These things speak and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

ii. 17—21.—Without discernment] They neither know nor approve of any good work.

CHAP. II. 1, 2. Sound doctrine] Which is agreeable to what I have taught.—Aged men] Some think that the apostle means elders or bishops, as the same qualifications are mentioned, 1 Tim. iii. 2, 8.

3—5. Aged women] Those employed by the church, as deaconesses, to teach and instruct the younger, and probably children. 1 Tim. iii. 11.—To love their] As the rites of heathen worship tended to corrupt the female character, these precepts were necessary; and especially to prevent any reproach being cast on the gospel.

7, 8. In doctrine] See 2 Tim. iii. 16. Incorruptness, as to the matter; gravity, sincerity as to the manner of teaching; and such 'sound speech,' in exhorting, &c. as cannot be condemned.

10. Not contradicting] When they command any thing; 'not purloining,' or secretly stealing any thing, but showing, &c.

11. Hath appeared] The saving grace of God hath appeared in the gift and work of Christ, and is now preached to all men, wherever the gospel is sent.

13. Of our great God] Hammond and many others had thus rendered the text, long before the ingenious Granville Sharp published his canon respecting the Greek article. That this version is founded on the Greek usage, see proved from the Greek fathers, in Mr. Wordsworth's letters.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 66. Paul directs Titus what to teach and what to avoid; he must reject heretics; he then desires him to come to him at Nicopolis.

- 1 Put them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to
- 2 be ready to every good work, To speak evil of no man, not to be contentious, but gentle,
- 3 showing all meekness to all men. For we ourselves were also formerly unwise, disobedient, deceived, slaves to many evil desires and pleasures, living in malice and envy,
- 4 hateful, and hating one another. But when the kindness and love of God our Saviour towards man appeared; He saved us, not by works of righteousness which we had done, but according to his mercy, by the washing of regeneration, even the renewing
- 6 of the Holy Spirit; Which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; That being counted righteous by his grace, we might be made heirs, as to the
- 8 hope of eternal life. This is a faithful saying, and these things I command that thou

CHAP. III. 1, 2. To be subject] See Rom. xiii. 1, &c. — To speak evil] Not to act as the Jews do, who abuse the Gentiles, who are contentious, &c. but as disciples of Christ, we must be gentle and meek.

3. For we ourselves] In our unconverted state were unwise, disobedient, &c.; and for this reason we should pity those who are in a similar state.

4—7. The kindness and love] By the coming of Jesus, and the preaching of his gospel, he saved us from our heathen ignorance, Jewish pride, &c.; not indeed by works of righteousness, &c. 'but according to his mercy.'—Even the] It is admitted that καὶ has this sense; and this version makes the clause explanatory of the former.

8. This is a faithful] He refers to what he had been saying in the four preceding verses; and these things I command as an apostle, &c.

10, 11. A factious man] One who forms parties, chiefly affirm constantly, that they who have believed in God may be careful to maintain good works. These are the things which are good and profitable to men. But avoid 9 foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain. Reject 10 a factious man after the first and second admonition; Knowing that he that is 11 such is subverted, and sinneth, being self condemned.

When I shall send to thee Artemas, or Ty-chicus, endeavour to come to me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter. Diligently conduct on their way Zenas, 13 once a teacher of the law, and Apollos, that nothing may be wanting to them. And let 14 our people also learn to maintain good works for necessary uses, that they may not be unfruitful. All that are with me salute thee. 15 Salute those who love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

It was written to Titus, from Nicopolis in Macedonia.

with a view to self interest. See Campbell's Diss. 9. Such a one, having been admonished as Christ directed, Matt. xviii. 15—18, and he still continuing refractory, reject,—Is subverted] As to the spirit of the gospel, and sinneth against his knowledge.

12. To Nicopolis] Either that in Thrace, or one in Macedonia. This shows that Paul was not a prisoner; and of course this was written before the second epistle to Timothy.

13. Zenas] I follow Jerome in rendering νομικον a teacher of the law, because it is used for such in the gospels. Apollos is often mentioned.

14. Our people] Some supply disciples. Let them learn to abound in hospitality and charity to the poor.

15. Who love us in] Who love as Christians, as believers in the same Saviour.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO

PHILEMON.

INTRODUCTION.

PHILEMON appears to have been a native or at least an inhabitant of Colosse, as Paul mentions in his epistle to the church there, that Onesimus was one of them. He was one of Paul's converts, as he intimates verse 19; and he appears to have been a man of some note, as he had a numerous family, a church in his house, or the brethren met there for worship. He showed great respect for Paul, when he was the second time imprisoned at Rome, 2 Tim. i. 16, &c.; but this Epistle was written near the same time as that to the Colossians.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. Paul testifies his joy on hearing of the faith and love of Philemon, and desires him to forgive his servant Onesimus, and to receive him as a Christian brother.

- 1 PAUL, a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother, to Philemon the be-
- 2 loved, and our fellow-labourer; And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus our fellow-soldier, and to the church which assembleth in thy house: Grace be to you, and peace, 3 from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

I thank my God, making mention of thee 4

CHAP. I. 1—3. Philemon, our fellow-labourer] From this some consider Philemon a preacher; but he might labour to promote the gospel by his influence and property, without preaching it. Apphia] Some think she was the wife of Philemon; and Archippus was the pastor of the church which met in the house of Philemon. Philip. ii. 25.

5 always in my prayers, Hearing of thy love even to all the saints, and of the faith which
 6 thou hast towards the Lord Jesus; That the communication of thy faith may be effectual by the acknowledgment of every good thing which is among 'us' in Christ
 7 Jesus. For we have great joy and consolation on account of thy love, because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother.
 8 Wherefore, though I might use much freedom in Christ, to enjoin thee what is 9 fit, Yet because of my love I rather beseech thee, as Paul the aged, and now also a prisoner for Jesus Christ. I beseech thee, I
 10 say, for my son Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds: Who formerly was unprofitable to thee, but is now profitable
 12 to thee and to me: Whom I have sent again: do thou therefore receive him, that 13 is, mine own bowels: Whom I was willing to retain with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered to me in my bonds for the 14 gospel: But without thy consent I would do nothing; that thy good deed should not be as it were of necessity, but willingly.

4—7. Hearing of thy love] Of the continued exercise of it towards the saints. See Matt. xii. 22, and 1 Cor. vi. 11. (c.) Griesb.

9. In Christ, to enjoin] As an apostle. Yet because of my love to thee, I use not authority, but beseech thee. as Paul the aged. How delicate, and yet affecting must this have been to Philemon! Some render, Paul, an ambassador.

10—14. Begotten in] By the gospel to a new and holy life; and by the change wrought in him he will be profitable to thee and me. Receive him as a convert, whom I tenderly love.

15, 16. Receive him for ever] To part with him no more until death; and as a Christian brother, to enjoy future happiness with him.—Both in the flesh] On account of your relation to him as his master, and as his fellow-Christian.

17—19. As a companion] As a friend, receive him as thou wouldst me.—If he have wronged] Most probably

For perhaps he therefore departed for a 15 season, that thou shouldst receive him for ever; No longer as a servant, but above 16 a servant, a brother beloved; especially to me, but how much more to thee, both in the flesh, and in the Lord? If thou therefore 17 consider me as a companion, receive him as myself. But if he have wronged thee, or 18 owe thee ought, put that to mine account; I Paul have written it with mine own hand, 19 I will repay it: not to say to thee that thou owest besides to me even thine own self. Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the 20 Lord: refresh my bowels in the Lord. Having confidence in thy compliance, I 21 have written to thee, knowing that thou wilt even do more than I say. At the same 22 time also prepare me a lodging: for I trust that through your prayers I shall be given unto you. Epaphras, my fellow-prisoner in 23 Christ Jesus; Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, 24 Luke, my fellow-labourers, salute thee. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with 25 your spirit. Amen.

Written from Rome to Philemon, by Onesimus a servant.

Onesimus would tell Paul what he had done; and the debt Paul was willing to take upon himself.—Not to say] I enter into this engagement, notwithstanding I might say that thou owest to me much more than what he owes to thee, even thy ownself, as far as relates to thy knowledge and state as a Christian.

20. Let me have] Increase my joy by receiving Onesimus; and I have confidence that thou wilt do so, and even go beyond what I request.

22. A lodging] Here Paul expresses his hope that he should be released, through the many prayers presented for him; and he hoped again to visit Colosse.

23—25. Epaphras] See Coloss. i. 7; iv. 12, &c. He was now suffering unto bonds with Paul. Mark was with Paul when he wrote this epistle; but when he wrote the second to Timothy, he was not.—Aristarchus] Coloss. iv. 10.—Luke] He abode with Paul at Rome until he was released. These excellent men must have greatly contributed to promote the Christian cause.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

INTRODUCTION.

This epistle is not directed to any particular church or people; and on this account some have doubted its authenticity; but from the matter, style, and sentiments, there is the strongest evidence both of its authenticity, and of its being written for the use of the Hebrew Christians. See chap. xiii. 13—19. It is most probable that it was composed during Paul's first imprisonment at Rome, and sent either to the church at Jerusalem, or some other in Judea, where the believing Jews were suffering great persecutions. 1 Thess. ii. 14, 15. The design of the epistle is to confirm them in the steady profession of the faith, by exhibiting its divine Author, and showing in what manner the gospel had been typified by the Mosaic economy, and how that economy was fulfilled and superseded by the gospel.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 63. In these last times Christ coming to us from the Father is preferred above angels, both in person and office.

1 IN various parts and in various manners
 253

God spoke formerly to the fathers by the prophets; But in these last days he hath 2 spoken to us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he

- 3 made the worlds; Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his substance, and upholding all things by his powerful word, when he had by himself made expiation for our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high:
- 4 Being so much greater than the angels, as he hath obtained a more excellent name than they.
- 5 For to which of the angels said God at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?
- 6 And when he bringeth again the first-begotten into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him. And concerning the angels he saith, Who maketh the winds as his angels, and flaming fire as his ministers. But concerning the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows. And, Thou, Lord, in the beginning laidst the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands: They shall perish; but thou shalt remain; and they all shall be worn out as a garment; And as a vesture shalt thou fold them up; and they shall be changed; but thou art the same, and thy years shall not have an end. But to which of the angels said he at any 13 time, Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool? Are they not 14 all ministering spirits, sent forth to serve those who shall be heirs of salvation?

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 63. We ought to be obedient to Christ, who in his love assumed our nature, as it was necessary for him to do in order to save us.

WE ought therefore to give the more 1 earnest attention to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should disregard them. For if the word spoken by 2 angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of punishment; How shall we 3 escape, if we neglect so great a salvation; which at first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed to us by those that heard him; God also bearing testi- 4 mony, by signs and wonders, and various miracles, and gifts of the Holy Spirit, according to his own will? For to the angels 5 hath he not put in subjection the world that was to come, of which we are now speaking. But David hath somewhere 6 testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him? Thou madest him 7

CHAP. I. 1. In various parts] Not giving them a system of revelation at once, but in such parts as to his wisdom seemed proper.—In various manners] By visions of the day and the night, by angelic appearances, by a voice addressed to them, and by inspiration.—To the fathers] To Jacob by Isaac, Gen. xxvii. To the twelve patriarchs by Jacob, Gen. lxix. To the Israelites by Moses, and by the prophets to the following generations.

2. By his Son] By him as incarnate, the Word made flesh.—Appointed heir] That is, head and possessor of all things, Lord and proprietor. Gal. iv. 1.—Made the worlds] Some would render, 'for whom he made the ages.' Such a sense of dia is unsupported, and that aiwns denotes the material worlds, see chap. xi. 3, and verse 10. Matt. xxviii. 20, comp. with John. i. 3. Coloss. i. 15—17.

3. The brightness] Or effulgence of his glory. As the Father is called light, 1 John i. 5; so is the Son the brightness of this light.—The express image] Such as the seal leaves on the wax. Jerome renders ὁμοεικας, substance; and it is so rendered, chap. xi. 1.—Upholding all things] Comp. Coloss. i. 17.—When he had by] There can be no doubt that the apostle referred to the death of Christ, from what immediately follows, his sitting down at the right, &c.; and how he made expiation for our sins, unless by this, it will be difficult to explain. Comp. chap. ix. 12, 26.—The right hand] Ps. cx. 1, and chap. viii. 1.

4. Than the angels] Some would render, 'messengers; and apply the words to the prophets mentioned verse 1,' and yet inconsistently render the term 'angels,' throughout chap. ii. The name which he inherits is that of Son, which implies his peculiar relation to the Father, in consequence of which he is styled the Son of God, and the only begotten of the Father.

5. Thou art my Son] See note on Ps. ii. 7.—I will be to him] 2 Sam. vii. 4—17. Pierce contends that the passage referred to is indeed a prophecy concerning Messiah, and has no respect to Solomon. In this case the version of the 14th verse should be, Him who committeth iniquity I will correct, &c. that is, any of the subjects of Messiah. Comp. Ps. lxxxix. 30—33.

6. Bringeth again] He came into the world by his incarnation; and he came again, or was brought into it, by his resurrection, when the angels were commanded to worship him, as a part of his reward. Philip. ii. 9, 11, and Ps. xcvi. 7. The apostle gives rather the sense than the exact words of the Psalmist.

7. Who maketh the winds] See note, Ps. civ. 4. In this version it is implied that angels are servants, and subject as the elements of nature are.

8, 9. But concerning the Son] He does not speak of him in this style; but, Thy throne, O God, &c. See Ps. xlv. 6, 7, and notes.

10—12. And, Thou, Lord] See Ps. cii. 25—27, and notes. If the Son laid the foundation of the earth, and formed the heavens; and if he be, as here stated, immutable, he must be the living and true God.

13. Sit on my right hand] Comp. Matt. xxii. 43, &c. and notes.

14. Ministering spirits] Are they not subject to the Son, and by him as sitting at the right hand of the majesty on high, sent forth to serve those, &c. Comp. Philip. ii. 10. Eph. i. 21. &c.

CHAP. II. 1. We ought to give] If the Son be so glorious, we ought to regard whatever he has taught either personally, or by his inspired apostles, and should not neglect them.

2—4. Spoken by angels] That the law of Moses was given by the ministration of angels, see Acts vii. 53; Gal. iii. 19.—Began to be spoken] Jesus first preached it, and as he is Lord of all, can punish the neglect of it. Acts x. 36.

5. The world to come] Schleusner considers the words synonymous with ὁ αἰων ὁ μελλων, usually rendered the 'age or world to come.' Dr. Owen observes, the world to come is no other than the promised state of the church under the gospel. Paul treats of no other. It was not put in subjection to angels in its creation, in the government of it, or in the power of rewarding or punishing.

6—8. What is man] That the psalm primarily regards man in general, cannot be doubted; but the application of it to Christ, may be considered as pertinent, and as con-

a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set 8 him over the works of thy hands: Thou hast put all things under his feet. Now in that he put all things under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we do not see all things yet put under him.
 9 But we see Jesus, who, being made a little lower than the angels, for the suffering of death crowned with glory and honour, when by the grace of God he had tasted death
 10 for all. For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons to glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through 11 sufferings. For both Christ that expiateth, and they for whom expiation is made, are all of one nature; for which cause he is not
 12 ashamed to call them brethren, Saying, I will declare thy name to my brethren, in the midst of the congregation I will sing 13 praise to thee. And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold I and the 14 children whom God hath given me. Since then the children are partakers of flesh and blood, Christ himself also likewise partook of the same; that through death he might subdue him who had a deadly power, that 15 is, the devil; And might deliver those who, through fear of death, were all their lifetime subject to bondage. For truly he affordeth no aid to angels? but to the seed 17 of Abraham he affordeth aid. Wherefore it behoved him to be made like his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things relating to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people. For in that he himself hath suffered, having been tempted, he is able to succour those that are tempted.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. Christ more worthy than Moses; and they that believe not in him are worthy of greater punishment than the hardened Israelites.

WHEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of 1 the heavenly calling, consider Jesus the Apostle and High Priest of our profession,^o Who was faithful to him that appointed 2 him, as Moses also was in God's whole household. For this person is counted 3 worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath formed the household hath more honour than the household. (For 4 every household is formed by some one; but he who formed all things is God.) And 5 Moses indeed was faithful in all God's household, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after; But Christ as a son over his own house- 6 hold; whose household we are, if we maintain our confidence and glorious hope firm unto the end.

Wherefore as the Holy Spirit saith, To- 7 day, if ye will hear his voice, Harden not 8 your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness; Where 9 your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years. Wherefore I 10 was grieved with that generation, and said, They do always err in their heart; and they taining a sense which the Holy Spirit might originally intend.

9. By the grace of God] Sending him into the world, that he might die for the sins of men; and for thus dying he is crowned with glory and honour. I have adopted the version of P. Stuart, who has ably vindicated it.

10. It became him] It became the righteous governor of all things, only to exalt sinners to glory through the intervention of such a Mediator, and such a sacrifice as he offered.

11. That expiateth] By the shedding of his blood, chap. i. 3; ix. 13; see Schleusner in αγιαζω, and Prof. Stewart's note.

12, 13. I will declare] Ps. xxii. 22; Isa. viii. 17. These quotations show that the Saviour was to partake of human nature; and as a kinsman, or brother, have the right to redeem, as it follows.

14. Since then the children] He takes up the term children from the preceding verse, and reasons upon it. Since those given to Christ to save, were partakers of flesh and blood, Christ in like manner partook of the same.—Subdue him] Christ, by his death, vanquished him who had by his hold falsehoods prevailed to bring death into the world.—Hath a deadly power] A power to tempt and lead men to sin, and thus of bringing them under sentence of spiritual death. John xii. 31; xvi. 11; and 1 John iii. 8.

15. Through fear of death] Jesus did this by making more clear a future life of happiness, and by becoming the first-fruits of a blessed resurrection.

16. Affordeth no aid] Our marginal version is, taketh not hold. The apostle had before stated, that 'because the children were partakers of flesh and blood, he partook of the same,' which expresses his incarnation; and it is not probable that he would return to the same subject. 'He affordeth no aid to angels, those angels that sinned, to deliver and save them; 'but he affordeth aid to the seed of Abraham,' to all his believing seed, to rescue them from the pit of perdition.

17. Wherefore it behoved] It was fit and proper that he should be made like his brethren in nature, that he might be capable of making reconciliation for the sins of the people, by offering up himself on the cross, see chap. v. 1, and 1 John ii. 2.

CHAP. III. 1. Heavenly calling] Of the calling of the gospel, which is from heaven.—Apostle] As one sent, by whom God hath spoken in these last days. (o) Christ] Griesb.

2. Faithful to him] Exactly performing all things agreeably to his will; and of whom the same may be said as was of Moses, Numb. xii. 7; Comp. Gal. vi. 10; Eph. ii. 19, &c.

3. Formed the household] He who formed, constituted, and appointed any church or society, hath greater honour than that church or society, or than any member of it. But Christ ordered and formed even the Jewish dispensation, with all its laws and ordinances. See John i. 18. He was the angel of the covenant. Mal. iii. 1; comp. with Exod. xxiii. 20, &c.

4. For every household] Every religious or civil society has some head, as the angel Jehovah was to the Israelites, when they came out of Egypt, and received the law at Sinai; but the former, and supreme head of all societies, is God.

5, 6. Faithful as a servant] Acting according to the directions which he received.—For a testimony] The rites, ordinances, &c. were to be for a testimony of what should be done and spoken under the gospel dispensation. See John v. 46; Luke xxiv. 44.—As a son] To whom all power and authority is given, and who having purchased the church with his own blood, in which he hath not only a trust and office as Moses had, but also a property.

7—11. Wherefore] The end I have in view in showing

11 have not known my ways. So I swore in my wrath, That they should not enter into my rest.
 12 Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you in like manner an evil and unbelieving heart, in departing from the living 13 God. But exhort one another daily, while it is called To-day; lest any of you should be hardened through the deceitfulness of 14 sin. For we shall be made partakers of the blessings of Christ, if we hold fast to the end our first confidence; While it is said, 15 To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation; Who 16 were they that, when they had heard, did provoke God? did not all indeed who came out of Egypt under Moses? And with 17 whom was he grieved forty years; was it not with those who sinned, whose carcasses 18 fell in the wilderness? And to whom swore he, that they should not enter into 19 his rest, but to those who believed not? So we see that they could not enter in, because of unbelief.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 63. Christians attain rest by faith; the power of God's word; by Christ our High-priest we must confidently come unto God.

1 LET us fear therefore, lest, a promise being left of entering into God's rest, any 2 of you should come short of it. For to us glad tidings have been preached, as they

the dignity of Jesus, is that ye may abide firmly attached to him and the gospel; and with the same view I would caution you against unbelief and hardness of heart, by the example of your forefathers. See Ps. xcv. 7, &c.—Where] So the Syr. and Vulg. render the adverb, which is certainly more correct than 'when,' as it refers to the whole period of their abode in the wilderness, where they repeatedly tempted and provoked God.

12, 13. Take heed, brethren] Warned by this example, do not harden your hearts as they did, nor reject the gospel by unbelief, and fall and depart from the worship of the living God.—Deceitfulness of sin] Which assumes a variety of arts to allure and destroy, like the original tempter, by whom it came into the world.

14. Made partakers] Of the benefits and blessings of Christ, promised in the gospel.

15. While it is said, To-day] There is good reason to urge you to exhort one another, since God, by the Psalmist, does the same, still saying, 'To-day if ye will hear his voice,' &c.

16. For some] When they had heard God's voice and promise, still went on provoking him.—Did not all] Joshua and Caleb, &c. were exceptions.

17—19. Carcasses fell] With the whole generation of those who came out of Egypt; and concerning whom he swore, &c.—Those who believed not] God's promise, or the report of Joshua and Caleb concerning the good land.—Because of unbelief] This was their sin, and prevented their going in, and enjoying the good land.

CHAP. IV. 1. Should come] The verb δοῦναι is here a mere Atticism; and in a translation should be omitted.

2. Glad tidings have] Respecting a heavenly rest and country, by Jesus and his apostles, as it was to the Israelites by the type of the earthly Canaan, and by the language of God in the Psalms.—The word preached] Was of no use to them, because they did not believe it. For the sense given to the verb, see Schleusner.

3. We who believe] We Christians do enter into rest; and this rest is like the rest of God, on completing the works were to them: but the word preached did not profit them, not being connected with faith in those that heard it. For we who 3 believe do enter into rest, as he said, So I swore in my wrath, They shall not enter my rest: yet indeed his works were finished from the foundation of the world. For 4 Moses somewhere speaketh thus of the seventh day, And God rested on the seventh day from all his works. And in this place

 5 again, They shall not enter into my rest. Since therefore it remaineth that some must 6 enter therein, and those to whom glad tidings were first preached entered not in because of unbelief: God again limiteth a 7 certain day, saying by David, To-day, after so long a time, as it is said, To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts. For if Joshua had given them rest, then 8 God would not afterwards have spoken of another day. There remaineth therefore a 9 sabbath rest to the people of God. For he 10 that is entered into his rest hath rested also from his works, as God did from his own. Let us diligently labour therefore to 11 enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief. For the 12 word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and pierceth even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow; and He is a discernor of the thoughts of creation, which was spiritual and satisfying.—They shall not enter] That is, unbelievers; and this implies that believers do and shall enter into the spiritual rest of God, in the heavenly world.

4, 5. For Moses] Mentions the rest of the sabbath as commencing when God finished the work of creation; and yet in the Psalms God speaks of his resolution in the case of the Israelites in the wilderness, That they should not enter into his rest; which shows that the rest of the sabbath was consistent with another rest, and this could not be the rest in Canaan.

6—9. Since therefore] There was a promise of some entering in, and they to whom the glad tidings were preached, did not because of unbelief. God again limiteth, &c.—To-day if ye will] Even then when they had been so long settled in the land of Canaan, he directs them to seek an entrance into his rest. From this we may infer, that there is a rest, distinct from the sabbath, and from that in the land of Canaan, to which Joshua conducted the people. The apostle calls this a Sabbathism or sabbath-rest, which clearly proves, as some think, from what follows, the change of the day, from the last to the first day of the week; and shows that the Christian sabbath is appointed to commemorate the completion of the work of redemption; and the service of it represents the rest and enjoyment of the church in heaven.

10. For he who] For he, Christ the Lord, who hath entered, &c. He hath rested from his work of redemption, from his trials and sufferings, as God did from his works of creation, and is now seated at the right hand of the Father, enjoying rest in heaven, and the highest satisfaction in the work he has accomplished. For the sense given, see Owen and Wardlaw.

11. Diligently labour] By using all the means with which we are favoured; and let us take heed to the word of the gospel, as the word of God.

12. Is sharper] What he has declared against unbelievers. His commination is quick and powerful; and it will be found so in all periods.—And He is] Or he judgeth the thoughts,

13 and intentions of the heart: Nor is there any creature that is not manifest before him: but all things are naked and disclosed to the eyes of him to whom we must give an account.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 63. Our Lord a High Priest; authority and honour of his priesthood; the negligence of the Hebrews re-proved.

14 HAVING therefore a great high priest, that hath passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not a high priest who cannot compassionately feel for our infirmities: but one who was tempted in all things like ourselves, though without sin. 16 Let us therefore come with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

1 For every high priest taken from among men is appointed for men in things relating to God, that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins: One who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on those that err from the way; since he himself also is compassed with infirmity. And, on this account, he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer sacrifices for sins.

4 Now no man taketh this honour to himself but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. So Christ also glorified not himself by becoming high-priest; but God, who said to him, (Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee,) conferred this honour upon him; As he saith also in another place, Thou art a priest for ever according to the order of Melchizedek. And Christ in the

There is a transition to God, as is clear from the next verse; and unless it be here, it cannot be in what follows. Comp. 1 Pet. i. 23, with John xii. 48.

13. But all things are naked] As the inward parts of the animal sacrificed, when cut up are opened and exposed to every one's view, so that no disguise, no hypocrisy can be of any avail.

14—16. Having therefore] The apostle, chap. iii. 1, having called them to 'consider Jesus, the apostle and high priest of their profession,' went off to show that he was superior to Moses, but now returns to consider his character and authority as high priest.—Great high priest] See chap. i. 3, and chap. ii.—Passed through] The visible heavens to the invisible, where he lives to make intercession for us.

CHAP. V. 1—3. For every high priest] A high priest is one appointed by proper authority, one who can have compassion on the ignorant and erring, from a sense of his own infirmities; and who on this account feels a necessity of offering sacrifices for himself as well as for the people.

4—6. As was Aaron] Whom God chose and called to this office; so Christ was appointed to his office by him who called him 'His Son,' 'Thou art a priest for ever,' &c.—The order of] By a special call, and not by descent.

7—11. And Christ in the] These verses illustrate verses 1, 2, and show that he can have compassion.—And with tears] This circumstance is not mentioned by any of the evangelists; but weeping, as the evidence of sorrow, was one of the infirmities of our nature, to which he was subject. John xi. 34; comp. Luke xxii. 44, with Matt. xxvii. 46.—To save him from death] Not from dying, but from the state of the dead.—And he was heard] In a little time he was delivered days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and with tears, to him that was able to save him from death, and was heard as to what he feared; Although being a Son, he by the things which he suffered learned obedience; And, being perfected he hath become the author of eternal salvation to all that obey him; Called of God a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek: Of whom we have many things to say, and hard to be explained, since ye are dull of apprehension.

For whereas, by this time, ye ought to be teachers, ye have need of one to teach you again, some of the first elements of the oracles of God: and have become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat. For every one that useth milk only is unskilful in the word of righteousness; for he is a babe. But strong food belongeth to perfect men, even to those who, by reason of use, have their senses exercised to the discernment both of good and evil.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 63. He exhorteth not to fall from the faith, but to be steadfast; to wait on God, who will assuredly perform his own promises.

WHEREFORE leaving the discourse on the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, Of the doctrine of baptisms, and of putting on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of the eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit.

from his dreadful sufferings, for the sins of men, both in the garden and on the cross.—Although being a Son] The Son of God in human nature, yet in this nature he learned how difficult it is to obey, and what faith and fortitude are necessary under trials; and from this can have compassion on men.—Being perfected] By his resurrection and ascension to glory, and as high priest and king, he has become the author, &c. See chap. ii. 10.—Of whom] What follows, to chap. vi. 20, is a digression in Paul's manner, one thought suggesting another; and chap. vi. 20, the words, According to the order of Melchizedek, mark the resumption of the subject, and in chap. vii. 1, &c. the subject is pursued, agreeably to the assurance of discussing higher doctrines which is given chap. vi. 1, 3.

12—14. Some of the first] The apostle refers to those spiritual views and explications of the writings of Moses and the prophets, relating to the person and work of our Lord, which, in the course of his ministry, he or other apostles had given them, but which they had not understood, or had forgot, misled by the comments of the Rabbies; so that in this respect they were babes.—But strong food] The truths conveyed by the types and figures of the law may be called 'strong food,' fit for perfect men, advanced in knowledge and piety.

CHAP. VI. 1—3. Not laying again] Not treating again of what ye have often heard as first principles, or elements of the doctrine of Christ.—The doctrine of baptisms] The plural is used for the singular, or he uses it because many submitted to this Christian rite.—Of putting on of hands] As was done by the apostles when they imparted miraculous gifts.

4 For it is impossible to renew those to repentance who have been once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and have been made partakers of the Holy Spirit, And have tasted of the good word of God, and the powers of the age that was to come, And yet have fallen away; since they again crucify to themselves the Son of God, and expose him to public shame. For the land which drinketh in the rain that often cometh upon it, and bringeth forth herbs useful to those by whom it is cultivated, 8 receiveth blessing from God; But that which beareth thorns and briars is rejected, and is near being accursed; whose end is to be burned.

9 But beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that belong to salvation, though we thus speak. For God is not unrighteous, so as to forget your work and love, which ye have shown to his name, in that ye have ministered to the 11 saints, and still minister. And we desire every one of you to show the same diligent care, to the full assurance of hope unto the 12 end: That ye be not slothful, but imitators of those who through faith and patience 13 inherit the promises. For when God made his promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself, 14 Saying, Surely I will abundantly bless thee, 15 and exceedingly multiply thee And so, after he had patiently waited, he obtained 16 the promised blessing. For men indeed swear by one that is greater: and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all gainsaying. In which view God, being 17 willing more abundantly to show to the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath; That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we who have fled for refuge, might have strong consolation, in holding fast the hope set before us: Which hope 19 we have as an anchor of the soul, sure and stedfast, and which entereth within the veil; Whither the forerunner is entered for 20 us, even Jesus, made a high priest for ever, according to the order of Melchizedek.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 63. Christ Jesus is a priest after the order of Melchizedek, and far more excellent than the priests after the order of Aaron.

For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, 1 priest of the most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him; To whom even 2 Abraham gave a tenth part of all the spoils; first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and then King of Salem also, which is, King of peace; Without recorded 3 father, without recorded mother, without priestly pedigree, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but, being like to the Son of God, abideth a priest perpetually. Now consider how great this priest was, to 4 whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth part of the spoils. And indeed those 5

4-6. For it is impossible] By any ordinary means; yet nothing of this kind is in its own nature impossible with God.—To renew those] The construction requires this transposition, as all the participles are governed by this verb.—Once enlightened] By the truths of the gospel.—Tasted the] Have had experience of the heavenly gift, as a person has of food by tasting it; and this gift is the heavenly calling, chap. iii. 1.—Of the Holy Spirit] In his extraordinary gifts, 1 Cor. xii. 4, &c.—Of the good word] Of the gospel as preached, its doctrines and promises, and perceiving, in some measure, the excellence of them.—And the powers] The various miracles wrought in attestation of the gospel. See chap. ii. 5.—Have fallen away] Wholly apostatised from the profession of the gospel.—Since they crucify] By this conduct they approve of the crucifixion of Christ, and testify that, if it were possible, they would also crucify him again.

7, 8. For the land] Such cannot, by ordinary means, be renewed; for as good men resemble fertile ground, which repays the labour of the husbandman, so these resemble land that is barren, and which, notwithstanding the rain which comes often upon it, and the expense of cultivating it, continues barren.

9, 10. Better things of you] Whatever the gifts may be, mentioned verses 4-6, the apostle supposes they might be enjoyed without these better things, the things relating to salvation.—To forget your work] Your work arising from your love to Christ, manifest in ministering to the saints. (c) Grieb.

11, 12. To the full assurance] That you may attain and preserve the full assurance of your hope to the end of your lives; and imitating the example of your forefathers, who, through faith and patient waiting, now inherit, or possess the promised blessings.

13-15. His promise to] Of a son by Sarah, he confirmed it by his oath; but Abraham obtained the fulfilment of it by patiently waiting.

16. And an oath] In things doubtful, as well as to confirm a promise, usually satisfies men, and puts an end to all contradiction or gainsaying.

17-20. Confirmed it by an] In condescension to all to whom the promise is made, he confirmed it by an oath; or made an oath the mediator, surety, or ratifier of his counsel.—Two immutable things] A promise and an oath. Or, as Prof. Stewart, to the oath that Abraham should have a son or seed, in whom all nations should be blessed, Gen. xxii. 18; and to the oath that He should be a priest, Psalm cx. 4. These two oaths it is impossible God should disregard; and the salvation of believers is thus secured.—Which entereth] That is, the objects of our hope are in heaven, the true Holy of Holies, whither the forerunner is, &c.

CHAP. VII. 1-3. For this Melchizedek] See Gen. xiv. 18-21, and notes.—King of righteousness] Or, a righteous king; and king of Salem, which means peace, and this name was given to Jerusalem where he probably reigned in peace, Ps. lxxvi. 2; compare with Josh. x. 1. Hence there was a priest divinely appointed to officiate for his people before Abraham's descendant, Aaron, was called to that office.—Without priestly pedigree] Either by father or mother's side; nor have we any account of the beginning of his days, or of the end of his life and ministry. The time the Levitical priests officiated is called their days, Luke i. 23. They did not begin before the age of thirty, nor minister after that of fifty years, Numb. iv. 2, 3, 16. His priesthood, as to its beginning or end, was not limited by any law of God. It is in this view that he was like the Son of God, that he did not derive his office by descent, but by special appointment; nor was the period of his ministry limited.

4. How great this priest] As ignis is the nearest antecedent, I construe abres as agreeing with it; and it is not the greatness of the man, but of his office, to which Paul refers.

that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes from the people according to the law, that is, from their brethren, though these come out of the loins of Abraham: But he whose pedigree is not derived from them, received tithes from Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises. Now, without all contradiction, the less is blessed by the greater. And here men who die receive tithes; but there he received them of whom it is testified only that he liveth. And if I may so speak, Levi also, who receiveth tithes, payed tithes through Abraham. For he was then in the loins of his father, when Melchizedek met him.

Now if perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for in respect to it the people received the law,) what further need was there that another priest should rise according to the order of Melchizedek, and that he should not be called according to the order of Aaron? For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change of the law also. For he of whom these things are spoken belongeth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar. For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Judah; of which tribe Moses spoke nothing concerning the priesthood.

And still far more evident is it, because another priest hath arisen according to the likeness of Melchizedek; Who is made such, not by the law of a temporary commandment, but by an authority of endless duration. For God testifieth, Thou art a priest for ever according to the order of Melchizedek. For indeed there is a disannulling of the former commandment because of its weakness and unprofitableness.

For the law made nothing perfect; but the bringing in of a better hope doth, by which we draw nigh to God. And inasmuch as not without an oath was Jesus made priest: (For those priests were made without an oath; but he with an oath, by him that said to him, The Lord swore and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever according to the order of Melchizedek:) By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better covenant. And they indeed were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death; But he, because he continueth for ever, hath a priesthood which passeth not to another. Wherefore he is able to save also to the uttermost those who come to God by him, since he ever liveth to make intercession for them. For such a high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens; Who needeth not, as those high priests, daily to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sins, and then for those of the people: for this he did once for all, when he offered up himself. For the law appointeth men high priests (that have infirmity; but the word of the oath, which was after the law, appointeth the Son, who is perfected for ever.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 63. The priesthood of Aaron abolished by that of Christ; and the temporal covenant by the eternal covenant of the gospel.

Now this is the sum of the things spoken: We have such a high priest, as sitteth on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens; A minister of the most Holy Place of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man. For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it is necessary that this high priest should also have somewhat

5—10. The sons of Levi] They had a tenth of the tithes paid by all the people, Numb. xviii. 24—31; but he whose pedigree is not derived from them, received tithes from Abraham, the origin of their family, and as a priest blessed him who had received the promises.—And if I may so] If I may consider the matter in this light, Levi may be said to pay Melchizedek tithes by his progenitor Abraham.

11. Now if perfection] As the apostle does not infer what follows from the preceding statement, but simply reasons upon it, I have so rendered the particles, Εἰ μὴ οὖν, as to show it. See Hoogeveen and Doddridge's note.

12. The priesthood] Being changed, there must be a change of the law which appointed it.

13—16. To another tribe] Than that of Levi; and it is evident from what is said by the Psalmist and prophets, that the Messiah was to spring from Judah, of which tribe Moses has said nothing concerning the priesthood, and yet it is more manifest that the priesthood must be changed, as he was to be a priest, not by the law of a temporary commandment, &c.—I am indebted to Prof. Stewart for this clear version. See his notes.

17—19. For the law] By its priesthood, made no person perfect as to the conscience, chap. ix. 9, but the bringing in of a better priesthood doth, that of Christ, by which sin is expiated, and by which, as the ground of our hope of pardon, we Christians draw near to God.

20—22. Not without an oath] Which shows the great importance and absolute necessity of this priest and of his office; and by this oath, as expressed Psalm cx. 4. he is peculiarly distinguished from Aaron and his descendants. Now God only interposes his oath to show the certainty and immutability of the thing sworn. See Gen. xxii. 16—18. Ps. lxxxix. 4. Inasmuch then as he was made a priest by an oath, 'By so much,' as this implies, was he made a surety, &c.—A better covenant] The gospel dispensation. This has better promises, richer blessings; is the substance of what the Sinai covenant was the shadow. It is the ground of a better hope, as Christ is the surety of it, both on the part of God and man.

23—25. Were many] Because they died, and one succeeded another.—To save to the uttermost] Always, and completely to save from sin and ruin, all that come, &c.

26—28. Became us] Was suitable to our state and necessities as sinners.—Higher than] Than the most exalted angels of heaven.

CHAP. VIII. 1, 2. As sitteth on] See note, chap. i. 3.—A minister of] An abiding minister of the most holy place, or heaven, of which that made by Moses was but an emblem.

3. To offer gifts] Such as oil, corn, meats, and drinks; but more especially sacrifices. The people might bring their gifts and sacrifices, but the priest must offer them to

4 to offer. But if he were on earth, he could not be a priest; since there are priests that 5 offer gifts according to the law: Who perform service in the sanctuary, which is but a copy and shadow of the heavenly one; for Moses was divinely warned when about to make the tabernacle: See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the 6 pattern shown to thee on the mount. But now our high priest hath obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much he is the mediator of a better covenant, which is 7 established by better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then would no place have been sought for a second.
 8 But finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:
 9 Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand, to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not,
 10 saith the Lord. But this is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and will write them on their hearts: and I will be their God, 11 and they shall be my people: And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the 12 least to the greatest. For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities I will remember no more.
 13 In that he saith, A new covenant, he maketh the first old. Now that which decayeth and groweth old is nigh to dissolution.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 63. Of the rites and sacrifices of the law; they were far inferior to the blood and sacrifice of Christ.

1 MOREOVER the first covenant had ordinance accepted.—Should have] Or otherwise he could not be a priest.

4, 5. He were on earth] If indeed he were to continue on earth, he could not, in consistency with the Jewish institutions, have been a priest, since there are priests that offer, &c.

6. Mediator of a better] Their covenant only related to an earthly Canaan, and to temporal things, on condition of obedience; but the promises of this to spiritual blessings.

7—12. Had been faultless] Had been as perfect as you are disposed to think it, then would no place, &c; but it was defective, and was designed to be so, being only introductory to a better covenant; its expiations only purifying the flesh.—But finding fault] See Jer. xxxi. 31, and notes. This meant the gospel, which is properly called a new covenant, in distinction from that at Sinai, though it consists only in fulfilling the promises of the covenant made with Abraham; and it may be justly said, that all the pious believing Israelites were pardoned and saved by virtue of the Abrahamic, and not of the Sinai-covenant. Messiah was in that preached to them; and by what is said of Abraham, they were taught to expect justification by faith, and not by works.

13. The first old] A new one implies that there is one older, and does in effect abrogate and render it null and void, nances of worship, and a material sanctuary. For the first part of the tabernacle was prepared, which is called Holy, in which was the chandelier, and the table, and the presence-bread; And behind the second veil, that part of the tabernacle which is called the Holy of Holies; Having the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, in which place were the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant; And above, were the glorious cherubs shadowing the mercy-seat; of which things we cannot at present speak particularly. Now these things being thus prepared, the priests went at all times into the first part of the tabernacle, performing the service of God: But into the second the high priest alone went once every year, not without blood, which he offered for his own, and then for the sins of the people. The Holy Spirit signifying this, that the way into the most Holy place was not laid open, while that first tabernacle was yet standing; Which was but a figure for the present time, in which were offered both gifts and sacrifices, which could not make him that worshipped perfect, in respect to the conscience; Consisting only in meats and drinks, and different washings, and carnal ordinances, imposed until the time of reformation.

But Christ having come a high priest of the future good things, through a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is, not of this visible creation; Nor by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood, hath entered once for all into the most Holy place, having obtained everlasting redemption. For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of a heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctify to the cleansing of the flesh; How much more shall the 14

CHAP. IX. 1—5. The first tabernacle] The tabernacle and the temple consisted of three parts, the court of the people: the first room, called here the first tabernacle, or holy place, and the most holy.—Material] Or, earthly, as Parkh. explains, the opposite of what is said ver. 11, 24. See also verses 12, 22. Rev. xxi. 2. Compare Exod. chap. xxv—xxvii.

6—10. Performing the service] The ordinary priests ministered in the holy place, or first room; but into the second the high priest only entered, and that but once in the year, on the day of atonement.—Him that worships] The design of the tabernacle and of the services of it was to be a figure or type, or imperfect delineation of the gospel, and of heavenly blessings; and they were imposed until the time of the gospel, when men were to be taught the right way.

11, 12. Through a greater] That is, through the visible heaven, which here answers to the first tabernacle, through which the Jewish high priest went when he entered into the most holy place.—Nor by the blood] By which the Jewish high priest entered; but, 'by his own blood' shed on the cross. This signifies that part of heaven, where the glory and immediate presence of God are displayed, which is called the throne of his majesty on high.

13, 14. Sanctify to the] See Numb. xix. So as to make blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, cleanse your conscience from dead works, 15 that ye may serve the living God? And for this purpose he is the Mediator of the new covenant, that by means of death for the redemption of the transgressions under the first covenant, those who are called might receive the promised blessing of the 16 everlasting inheritance. For where a covenant is, there must also of necessity be the 17 death of that which establisheth it. For a covenant is made firm over the dead victims; whereas it is of no force while that which establisheth it liveth.

18 Wherefore neither was the first covenant 19 confirmed without blood. For when Moses had spoken every precept of the law to all the people, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and also the book, and sprinkled all 20 the people, Saying, This is the blood of the covenant which God hath enjoined unto you. 21 Moreover, in like manner, he sprinkled with the blood the tabernacle also, and all 22 the vessels of the ministry. And, almost all things are, according to the law, cleansed with blood; and without the shedding of blood there is no remission.

23 Since then it was necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be cleansed with these sacrifices, the heavenly things themselves must be prepared with a 24 better sacrifice than these. For Christ hath not entered into the Holy place made with hauds, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us: Nor was it 25 necessary that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entereth into the holy place every year with the blood of others; (For then must he have suffered often 26 since the foundation of the world;) but now hath he been manifested once in the end of the ages, to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself. And as it is appointed unto men 27 once to die, and after this the judgment; So Christ also was offered once to bear the 28 sins of many; and, without becoming again a sin-offering, will he appear a second time for salvation to those who wait for him.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 63. Inefficiency of the law-sacrifices; the body of Christ once offered, for ever taketh away sin; an exhortation to constancy, patience, &c.

FOR the law, having a shadow of future 1 good things, (and not the very reality of the things,) can never make those who come to the altar perfect, by the same sacrifices which are offered year by year continually. 2 For would they not then have ceased to be offered? because the worshippers being once cleansed would have had no more consciousness of sins. But in those sacrifices 3 there is a remembrance made of sins every year. For it is not possible that the blood 4 of bulls and of goats should take away sins.

Wherefore, when Christ cometh into the 5 world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not; but a body hast thou prepared for me: In burnt-offerings and sin-offerings 6 thou hadst no pleasure. Then said I, Lo, 7 I come (in the volume of the book it is men ceremonially clean. 'How much more shall the blood of Christ,' &c.—The eternal Spirit] With whose gifts and graces, he as man was so richly endowed, and by whose aid he was supported in his sufferings.—Cleanse] The blood of Christ cleanses the conscience from the guilt of works which deserve endless death, by obtaining everlasting redemption from it; so that being saved from the fear of punishment, we may serve God cheerfully and joyfully.

15. Of the new covenant] This is the rendering of διακαινω in every place, except in the institution of the Lord's Supper, 2 Cor. iii. 6; Heb. viii. 22, and here. Nothing can be more improper than to render it testament. How could the Sinai laws and institutions be a testament? Who was the testator of it? God or Moses? And did one of them die to confirm it? And can a testament require a mediator? Or can the testator be the mediator of his own testament? Or was it, or is it usual to make a testament by sprinkling the legatees with blood? All these things agree to a covenant, but are foreign to the nature of a testament.—Under the first covenant] All transgressions under and against the law. See Rom. iii. 25.—Those who are called] To repentance and faith in him, might receive the promise, not of a temporal, but of an everlasting inheritance.

16, 17. The death of the] By which it ever has been usual to make and confirm covenants. For a covenant is made firm over the dead victims, as we learn from the sacred history, Gen. xv. 7—21; xxi. 27.—That which establisheth] The sacrifice of a sheep, calf, goat, or steer; for by the slaughter of any of these, covenants were made and confirmed; but no covenant was established until the victim was slain.

18—20. Every precept] See Exod. chap. xx. 22.—
261

Scarlet wool] This was tied on the hyssop, which in Palestine is a strong shrub. Levit. xiv. 4, 6.—And also the book] For this punctuation, see Bowyer's Conj. Grotius, &c. Exod. xxiv. 8. The book was not sprinkled, but the people.

22. Shedding of blood] Where it was in the power of the offender to procure an animal; for this was the only case excepted by the law, when a person was so poor that he could not procure one, Levit. v. 11, 13.

23. The heavenly things] As these in no sense could need cleansing, we must supply a proper verb. Now as the sprinkling of the tabernacle, and the instruments of service was to fit and prepare it for the people, I have supplied that term.—With a better sacrifice] That the plural is here used for the singular, see verses 26, 28; 10, 14.

24—26. Into heaven itself] Chap. vi. 20. Rom. viii. 34.—Should offer himself often] Chap. vii. 27, 28.—In the end] In the last age, called the latter days.

27, 28. A sin-offering] 2 Cor. v. 21. He will not come to die a second time as a sin-offering; but he will come in his glory, to raise and judge the dead, and to conduct those that have waited for him, to the enjoyment of complete salvation.

CHAP. X. 1. A shadow of] See Coloss. ii. 17. An imperfect draught, not an exact delineation. Chap. ix. 11.—The very reality] The substance, as the Syriac renders it.—Perfect] Chap. vii. 11, 19; ix. 9.

2. Would they not then] Had they fully expiated sin, would they have been repeated?

5—10. He saith] See Ps. xl. 6, and note.—He taketh away] His language implies that all those various sacri-written of me) to do thy will, O God.

 8 Above he saith, Sacrifice and offering and burnt-offerings and sin-offerings thou wouldest not, and hadst no pleasure therein: (namely those which are offered according 9 to the law;) Then he said, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.
 10 By which will, expiation is made for us, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.
 11 Now every priest standeth ministering daily, and offering frequently the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins:
 12 But Christ, after he had offered one ever efficacious sacrifice for sins, sat down at the 13 right hand of God; Henceforth waiting till 14 his enemies be made his footstool. For by one offering he hath perfected for ever those 15 for whom expiation is made. Moreover the Holy Spirit testifieth this to us: for after 16 having said before, This is the covenant which I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds I will 17 write them; And their sins and iniquities
 18 will I remember no more. Now where remission of these is, an offering for sin is no more necessary.
 19 Wherefore, brethren, having free access into the most holy place through the blood 20 of Jesus; In a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the 21 veil, (that is to say, his flesh:) And having 22 a high priest over the house of God; Let us draw near with a true heart, in a full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience. Being cleansed 23 as to our bodies with pure water, Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering; for he is faithful that promised;
 24 And let us consider one another, that we 25 may excite to love and good works: Not fices, which the law required, and which were inefficacious, should be set aside by that of his own. John xiv. 34.—By which will] Having been accomplished through the offering of the body of Christ, expiation is made and we are sanctified or cleansed from the guilt of our sins.

11—18. Every priest] Levitical priest; but Christ, having offered in sacrifice for sins, his own life on the cross, then ascended to heaven, and sat down, &c. This shows that his one offering is sufficient, and that those cleansed by it are made perfect as to the conscience.—Testifieth] By the prophet Jerem. xxxi. 33, &c. Chap. viii. 10—12.

19—25. In a new] He calls the blood of Christ a new way, in opposition to that by which the high priest entered into the most holy place in the worldly tabernacle; and a living way, as leading to endless life and happiness.—Let us draw near] In acts of humble worship, encouraged by our great high priest, and the infinite merit of his blood.

26, 27. Sin wilfully] Presumptuously, by neglecting divine institutions and the gospel, which we know to be true, and then openly apostatize, there is not any sacrifice to be offered to expiate this sin; and by neglecting that of Christ, we have nothing to expect but the most awful punishment.

28—31. The law of Moses] Numb. xv. 30, 31. Deuter. xvii. 6.—Trodden under foot] Treating him with the forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting;— and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.

For if we sin wilfully after having received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins; But a certain fearful expectation of judgment, and of that fiery indignation which shall devour the adversaries. Whosoever despised the law of Moses, died without mercy, under two or three witnesses. Of how much greater punishment, think ye, shall he be deemed worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, by which he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath injuriously treated the Spirit of grace? For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall avenge his people. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were enlightened, ye endured a great fight of afflictions; Partly, while ye were made a spectacle by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, while ye became companions of those that were so treated. For ye had compassion on those who were in bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods; knowing that ye have for yourselves a better and enduring substance in the heavens. Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye may receive the promised blessing. For yet a very little while, and he that is to come will come, and will not delay.

Now the righteous by faith shall live: but should any one draw back, my soul will have no pleasure in him. But we are utmost contempt and rage as if an impostor, and accounting the blood shed, and by which the new covenant was confirmed, (Matt. xxvi. 28, and 1 Cor. xi. 25,) an unholy thing, the blood only of a malefactor.—He was sanctified] Dr. Owen refers this to Christ as set apart by his own blood, as high priest; but Pierce as referring to the apostate, who had been, by his professed faith in the blood of Christ, set apart and admitted to Christian ordinances; and in this view I acquiesce, as 'sanctified,' in this epistle, relates to the effect of the sacrifice on persons for whom it was offered, and not on the offerer.

32—34. Those that were in bonds] They had been made a spectacle by their own sufferings; and had given proof of their regard to spiritual things by patiently bearing the loss of their property.

36. Need of patience] Under your many trials; and that, after ye have done and suffered the will of God here, ye may enjoy the happiness promised.

38. But should draw back] See Habak. ii. 4, and Rom. i. 17. The apostle transposes the clauses of this verse for the sake of the remark following. The doctrine of perseverance implies the duty of persevering; nor can any one infer from past impressions that he hath faith to the saving of his soul, unless by the exercise of this faith, in a course of humble and continued obedience. Our translators connot of those who draw back to destruction ;

but of those who have faith to the saving of the soul.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 63. What faith is ; without it we cannot please God ; the fruits of it exemplified in the conduct and works of the fathers.

- 1 Now faith is the confidence of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen.
- 2 For by it the ancients received an honourable testimony. By faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which were apparent.
- 4 By faith Abel offered to God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain ; by which he received a testimony that he was righteous, God bearing testimony to his gifts ; and by
- 5 it he, though dead, still speaketh. By faith Enoch was translated that he might not see death ; and was not found, because God had translated him : for before his translation he had this testimony, that he
- 6 pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please him : for he who cometh to God must believe that he exists, and that he is a rewarder of those who dili-
- 7 gently seek him. By faith Noah, having been divinely warned concerning things not then seen, moved with godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his household ; by which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.
- 8 By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to depart to a place which he was afterwards to receive for an inheritance ; and he departed, not knowing whither he went. By faith he sojourned in the land 9 of promise, when possessed by strangers ; dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the fellow-heirs of the same promise : For 10 he looked for that firmly-founded city, whose framer and builder is God. By faith 11 Sarah herself also received strength to conceive, even when she was past age, because she thought him faithful who had promised. Wherefore sprang there even from one, and 12 him become as dead, as many as the stars of heaven in multitude, and as the sand which is by the sea shore innumerable. These all died in faith, not having received 13 the promised blessings, but having seen them afar off, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and sojourners on the land. For they that pro- 14 fess such things plainly declare that they are seeking a country. And truly, if they 15 had been mindful of that country whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to return. But indeed they desired 16 a better country, that is, a heavenly ; wherefore God is not ashamed of them, nor to be called their God ; for he hath prepared for them a city.

By faith Abraham, when he was tried, 17 offered up Isaac ; and he that had received the promises offered up his only-begotten son ; Of whom it was said, That by Isaac 18 shall thy seed be called : Counting that 19 God was able to raise him up even from sider his as implied, and the Armenian version has it. The following verse implies that there is a faith to salvation, which comprises both its genuine nature, and its final issue, in a complete perfect state of happiness.

CHAP. XI. 1. Now faith is That faith which avails to the saving of the soul.—The confidence Things hoped for are all future good things promised ; and these things as future have no existence, or at least none in relation to us, but as the promises are believed.—The conviction of The term denotes a strict proof, a conclusive argument, a demonstration ; and hence by a metonymy of the effect, a persuasion, a conviction.—Of things not seen All matters of fact not seen, of which revelation informs us ; or of things which are only foretold. Of the former kind are the creation of the worlds, the happiness and fall of Adam, the deluge, &c. ; and of the latter the spread of the gospel, the resurrection, the coming of Christ, a future judgment, &c.

2. The ancients Those afterwards mentioned, whose names are honourably recorded in the scriptures as illustrious instances of this faith.

3. The worlds The term αἰών must have this sense here, as it is explained in the next clause by 'the things which are seen,' the visible material world called into being by the word, will, and command of God.—Which were apparent Of any pre-existing matter, but were formed by the word of God. Gen. i. 3, &c. Ps. xxxiii. 9 ; Rom. iv. 17 ; see also 2 Macc. vii. 28.

4. Abel offered See note, Gen. iv. 45.—That he was righteous A person accepted ; and this appeared from the testimony borne to his gifts or offerings.—By it he, though dead By his faith, though dead, he may be considered as still speaking and recommending a like faith in God, as the rewarder of those who seek, &c.

5. Was translated See note, Gen. v. 24.—That he pleased God By his faith in him, and his holy walk before him ; and hence he translated him.

6. Impossible to please him Because if we do not believe his existence and perfections, we shall never aim to please him ; for to do this we must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder, &c.

7. Not then seen This refers to the description of faith given verse 1. See Gen. vi. 13, &c.—Condemned the world As he was influenced to act on that evidence which the world rejected.—And became heir That is, possessor of the righteousness which is by faith, and of course of all the happy effects of it.

8—10. By faith Abraham obeyed See Gen. xii. 1—1. —When possessed So Prof. Stewart renders, and the word means, what was not his own, but now belonged or was in the possession of others.—The firmly-founded city He expected a future state of happiness, here called a city, which will never be destroyed, chap. xii. 22.

11. Sarah herself Though, at first she doubted, yet, reflecting on the promise and the power of him who made it, she exercised a noble act of faith, and became the mother of Isaac. —(a) And was delivered of a child Griesb.

12—16. As dead Or, 'as dead to these things,' to begetting children, &c. from his great age.—All these died The patriarchs and their descendants ; who though they did not receive the promised earthly Canaan, together with other temporal blessings ; yet by faith they saw these things afar off, while they confessed, &c. Gen. xlvii. 2.

13. (a) And were persuaded of them Griesb.

17—19. Offered up Isaac See Gen. xxii.—Counting that Hence Abraham must have believed the resurrection of the dead a possible thing ; and indeed his own expe-

the dead; whence he also in a manner received him. By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concerning things to come. By faith Jacob, when he was dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph; and worshipped, leaning on the top of his staff. By faith Joseph, when ending his life, mentioned the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

By faith Moses, when he was born, was hidden for three months by his parents, because they saw that he was a goodly child; and they feared not the king's commandment. By faith Moses, when he grew up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt; for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward. By faith he left Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible. By faith he kept the passover, and the sprinkling of blood, that he who destroyed the first-born might not touch them. By faith they passed through the Red seas on dry land: which the Egyptians attempted to do and were drowned. By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they had been compassed about seven days. By faith the harlot Rahab did not perish with those who believed not, when she had received the spies in peace.

rience, was a comment on the words, 'Is any thing too hard for the Lord?'—Whence also] When God ordered him, 'Not to stretch forth his hand against the lad,' &c.

20. Blessed Jacob] Comp. Gen. xxvii. 4—40. In what Isaac did we learn that special revelations were made to him, and it was by faith in them that he blessed his sons.

21, 22. Leaning on the top] From his great age and weakness, Gen. xlvii. 31, and xlviii. 1, &c. By faith Joseph] His father had died in the faith of God's promise being fulfilled; and he manifested the same confidence, Gen. i. 24. 25.

23. Moses was hidden] His parents believed that the time of their deliverance from slavery drew near; and on this account they feared not the king's command. Exod. ii. 2; Acts vii. 20.

24—26. By faith Moses] In the promises made to his fathers, he 'refused to be called,' &c.; by taking the part of his persecuted and oppressed brethren, he did in effect do so.—Than to enjoy] Such pleasures as are enjoyed in courts, and among the noble and opulent, which are of short duration.—The reproach of Christ] Esteeming the reproach he might suffer for his faith in the Messiah, who was to come, greater riches, &c. 'Reproach of Christ' means reproach endured for his sake in some way. See Gal. vi. 17; Phil. iii. 10; Coloss. i. 24.—Having respect] Seeking for that heavenly country and city where he should enjoy endless felicity.

27. Not fearing the] This refers to his departure with the people, and not to that when he fled to Midian, Exod. ii. 14, 15. For then he feared greatly.

28. By faith he kept] He kept it with the people on that night when God inflicted a great and awful judgment on the Egyptians, which compelled them to let Israel go. Exod. xii. 12.

And why should I still speak on? for the time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthah; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets: Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, became valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of other nations. Women received their dead children raised to life again; but others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection: And others had trial of cruel scoffs and scourgings; yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment: They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they went about in sheep-skins and goat-skins, destitute, afflicted, cruelly treated, (Of whom the world was not worthy,) wandering in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth. Now all these having received an honourable testimony through faith, yet received not the promised blessing; God having provided some better thing for us, that they apart from us might not be made perfect.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 63. An exhortation to constant faith, patience and godliness: a just commendation of the New Testament above the Old.

WHEREFORE seeing we are encompassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us

29. By faith they passed] They were at first afraid, but at length they confided in God and passed through the sea securely, Exod. xiv. 10—31.

30, 31. The walls of Jericho] Josh. vi. 20.—Rahab] Josh. vi. 23.

32—34. Subdued kingdoms] As Joshua and David did, the former the seven nations of Canaan, and the latter the Moabites, Syrians, Ammonites, and Edomites.—Wrought righteousness] By performing those deeds God commanded them.—Obtained promises] As Caleb, Joshua, and David.—Stopped the mouths] As Daniel, Samson, and David conquered them.—The violence of fire] As Shadrach and his companions, Dan. iii. 17.—Escaped the edge] Moses did that of Pharaoh, Elijah that of Jezebel, and David that of Saul.—Out of weakness] As Gideon and David, who became valiant in battle, and routed the enemies of Israel.

35—38. Women received] As the widow of Zarephath, 1 Kings xvii. 21, and the Shunamite, 2 Kings iv. 34.—Others were tortured] See 2 Macc. vi. 7, &c. where we have an account of Eleazar and seven brothers who suffered as here mentioned, and they endured these things in hope of a better and more glorious resurrection and state.—Cruel scoffs] As Jeremiah and other prophets.—Stoned] As Zechariah, 2 Chron. xxiv. 21.—Sawn asunder] Jerome mentions it as a tradition, that Isaiah was thus punished by Manasseh.—Were tempted]—To renounce their faith, and worship idols, and for not doing so were slain with the sword.—They went about] Many were exiled by cruel persecution, and were forced to hide themselves in dens and caves, &c.

39, 40. Yet received not the] The promise of the Messiah's coming was not fulfilled in their day; God having provided this better thing for us, &c.—Be made perfect] We now enjoy what they hoped for; and we are looking lay aside every weight, and especially the sin which easily besetteth, and let us run with perseverance the race which is set before us, Looking to Jesus the author and finisher of faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despised the shame, and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God. For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin. And have ye forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as to children? My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked by him: For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth, and scourgeth every son he receiveth. If ye endure chastisement, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, of which all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons. Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh who chastised us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection to the Father of our spirits and live? For they verily for a few days chastised us according to their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now no chastisement seemeth for the present joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterwards it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto those that are exercised thereby. Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and strengthen the feeble knees; And make straight paths for your feet, that what is lame may not be turned out of the way, but rather be healed. Follow peace with all men; and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. Looking diligently lest any man fall short of the grace of God: lest any bitter root springing up trouble you, and by it many be defiled; Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person, as Esau, who for one meal sold his birthright. For ye know how that afterwards, when he desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no way of changing his father's mind, though he sought for it earnestly with tears.

Moreover ye are not come to the mount that could be touched, and that burned with fire, nor to blackness, and darkness, and tempest, And the sound of a trumpet, and the sound of God's words; which sound those that heard intreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more: (For they could not endure that which 20 was commanded, And if so much as a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart. And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and tremble :) But ye are come unto Mount Zion, and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem; and to an innumerable company, to the joyful host of angels; And to the assembly of the first-born, who are enrolled in heaven; and to the judge, the God of all; and to the spirits of righteous men made perfect; And to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant; and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

See that ye refuse not him that speaketh. For if those escaped not who refused him that uttered the oracles of God on earth, much more shall not we escape, if we reject him that speaketh from heaven: Whose for Christ's second coming, when both they and we shall be saved from the last enemy, death, and in this respect made perfect for ever.

CHAP. XII. 1, 2. A cloud of witnesses] That is, a great multitude, Is. lx. 8. The apostle, in a strong figure, considers that the ancient patriarchs, prophets, and worthies are, as it were, spectators and witnesses of our conduct while running the Christian race.—Every weight] Or hindrance, and especially the sin, &c. Some suppose that the sin referred to was unbelief and apostacy, to which the Hebrews were much exposed. But every man has some besetting sin.

3. Consider him] Regard with fixed attention his meekness, patience, and mercy, while he endured such contradiction, calumny, and persecution from sinners.—Be wearied] Or distressed.

4–6. Resisted unto blood] As the boxers did.—And have ye] I point with Peirce and others, because I cannot think the apostle would bring a direct charge against them. See Prov. iii. 11, 12, and notes.

7–11. As with sons] As it is usual for fathers to deal with their sons, for their improvement.—As bastards] Who are but too generally neglected, their fathers having no regard to their education.

12, 13. Lift up the hands] Is. xxxv. 3.—Make straight paths] Mal. iii. 3. Walk uprightly, that the lame, the weak, and the timid may be healed and strengthened and not turned aside.

14–17. Follow peace] See Rom. xii. 18.—And holiness] Not only abstain from outward acts of impurity and vice, but cultivate all the pious dispositions of the Christian character.—Fall short of the] Lest any one apostatize; lest any bitter root spring up, any error in faith or practice, which will spread and pollute many.—Profane person] One who treats with contempt sacred things, and renounces them for any present pleasure, as Esau did. See Gen. xxv. 32–34.—No way of changing] I have preferred this rendering to the more verbal one, to prevent mistake. See Gen. xxvii. 33. No one who truly repents of sin has any reason to be discouraged by what is here said; for to all such the promise secures their forgiveness, acceptance, and salvation.

18–24. Moreover] A reason is given for the caution suggested, v. 15.—That might be] An earthly mount, and which might have been touched had not God prohibited it.—That burned] See Exod. xix. and Deuter. iv. 11.—Intreated] Exod. xx. 19.—A beast] Exod. xix. 13.—Moses said] This is not mentioned in the history, but the apostle might have it revealed to him.—To mount Zion] In what follows, the apostle considers the church on earth and that in heaven as one society, and that those on earth are associated with those in heaven now by their faith and hope, as they will soon be in reality.—Company of angels] For the order and arrangement, see Prof. Stewart.

25–27. Him that speaketh] The Son is meant.—Escaped not] The Israelites were punished for neglecting the law voice then shook the earth: but now he hath promised, saying, Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but heaven also. 27 And this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of the things shaken, as of things that are made, that the things which 28 are not shaken may remain. Wherefore, since we receive a kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us exercise gratitude, (by which we may serve God acceptably) with 29 reverence and godly fear: For our God is even a consuming fire.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 63. Various admonitions respecting charity, duty to ministers, constancy in the faith, obedience to governors, &c.

1 LET brotherly love continue. Be not forgetful of hospitality: for by this some 3 have unknowingly entertained angels. Remember those that are in bonds, as if bound with them; and those that are cruelly treated, as being yourselves also in the 4 body. Let marriage be honourable among all, and let the bed be undefiled; for fornicators and adulterers God will judge. 5 Let your conduct be without covetousness. Be content with such things as ye have: for God himself hath said, I will never 6 leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me. 7 Remember your guides who have spoken to you the word of God; considering the end of their behaviour, imitate their faith: 8 For Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever. 9 Be not carried about with various and strange doctrines, For it is a good thing that the heart be established in the doctrine of grace; not in that of meats, which have not profited them that have attended to them. We have an altar, of which they 10 have no right to eat who serve the tabernacle. For the bodies of those beasts whose 11 blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest as a sin-offering, are burnt without the camp. Wherefore Jesus also, that 12 he might make expiation for the people by his own blood, suffered without the gate. Let us therefore go forth to him without 13 the camp, bearing his reproach. For here 14 have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come. By him therefore let us offer 15 the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name. But to do good and to com- 16 municate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

Obey your guides, and submit your- 17 selves; for they watch for your souls, as they that must give account: they watch that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for this would be unprofitable for you. Pray for us: for we trust we have a 18 good conscience, in all things desirous of behaving ourselves well. But I more espe- 19 cially beseech you to do this, that I may be shortly restored to you.

Now the God of peace, that brought 20 back from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, Make you 21 perfect in every good work, that ye may do his will; working in you that which is well-given by Moses, who uttered the oracles of God to them; and much more we, if we reject him, &c.—Whose voice then? This, as Newcome observes, favours the opinion that our Lord was the angel of the covenant, who presided at the giving of the law.—The things shaken] Of the Jewish dispensation, and of the tabernacle and other things made for it, that the gospel-state may remain stable to the end of time.

28, 29. A kingdom] The spiritual dispensation of the gospel; let us hold fast the favour, or gift, by which, &c. For the sense attributed to the verb, see 1 Tim. i. 19; iii. 9.—For our God is even] To all false professors and apostates.

CHAP. XIII. 2. By this some] See Gen. xviii. and xix: and by hospitality you may derive unexpected pleasure and advantage.

4. Let marriage] As the verb is omitted, it is as proper to supply it in the imperative as the indicative mood; and is so done in the next verse.

5. Let your conduct] Of manner of life, be free from the sordid vice of covetousness; and trust to his promise. Josh. i. 5. God is the same helper now to all his believing children.

6. Boldly say] When afflicted or persecuted. Ps. cxviii. 6.

7, 8. Your guides] Or leaders, that is, your pastors and teachers, who have spoken to you the word of God, but who are now either dead or exiled; whose faith imitate, &c.—For Jesus Christ] Imitate their faith; for Jesus Christ, the object of it, is the same in his nature, grace, and love, as he was to them, and ever will be so.

9. With various] Such as many mistaken Jews teach, and by which they would pervert the gospel of Christ.—In the doctrine] Or of the gospel, a sense which the term often has. John i. 17; Gal. v. 4.

10—16. We have an altar] The cross on which Christ suffered may be thus called.—Of which they] That is, of the sacrifice offered; for, as expecting pardon, by the blood of animals, they reject this sacrifice.—Are burnt] Nay, they had no right to eat of any sin-offering, whose blood is brought into the most holy place by the high priest; for the bodies of the sacrificed beasts were burnt without the camp in the wilderness, and now without the city of Jerusalem.—Jesus also, that] See chap. x. 10. This sacrifice was therefore a true sin-offering; and according to the law they have no right to partake of it. The inference is, they must forsake the law and the tabernacle, and go to Jesus without the camp, being ready to bear any reproach or dishonour for his sake.

17—19. Obey your guides] The authority and power of these guides and leaders is stated as arising from the care with which they performed their office; for they watch for your souls, to promote your piety and to secure the salvation of your souls.—Restored to you] This shows that the author was now confined; and as this remark is so similar to many made in Paul's epistles written at Rome, it tends to prove him the author of this.

20, 21. The great Shepherd] Who loved them and laid down his life for them, including all believers, Acts xx. 28.—Through the blood] Shed in consequence of the everlasting covenant, and designed to establish and confirm it for ever. Chap. ix. 15—24.—To whom be glory] Here eternal glory is ascribed to Christ, as it is 2 Peter iii. Rev. v. 12, 13.

pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

- 22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation : for I have written a 23 letter to you in few words. Know ye that our brother Timothy is set at liberty ; with whom, if he come shortly, I will see you. Salute all your guides, and all the saints. 24 They of Italy salute you. Grace be with 25 you all. Amen.

Written to the Hebrews from Italy by Timothy.

23. Our brother Timothy] It is certain Timothy was with Paul at Rome, during his first imprisonment, Philip. i. 1; Coloss. i. 1, &c. He might be imprisoned and soon set at liberty, as some of Paul's fellow-labourers were.—With whom, if he] This epistle could not be sent by Timothy, as is evident by this language, which implies that Timothy was now absent from him, but if he should return soon, the writer would come with him and see them.

24, 25. All your guides] Here are many pastors mentioned, as labouring among the same flock, if we suppose the epistle sent to the church at Jerusalem, or to that of Cæsarea, as Prof. Stewart makes very probable.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JAMES.

INTRODUCTION.

JAMES the less or younger, son of Alpheus or Cleophas, and cousin to our Lord by his mother, called his brother, is allowed to have been the author of this Epistle. The other James, who was also an apostle, was the son of Zebedee, and brother of the beloved disciple John. This James was put to death by Herod, Acts xii. 2, about ten years after the death of our Lord. But this Epistle was written a considerable time after, when in most parts of the Roman empire Christian churches had been formed, not earlier than the year 60 or 61. James was, like Peter, an apostle of the circumcision, and chiefly abode at Jerusalem, of which church he has been improperly called the bishop. The design of his epistle is to correct the errors that had sprung up respecting faith and justification; and to enforce on all a strict regard to holy obedience.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 61. We should rejoice under the cross ; seek patience from God, and not impute our sins to him ; he exhorts to live according to the gospel, and not to seem only, but to be religious.

- 1 JAMES, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greeting.
- 2 My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall
- 3 into various trials : Knowing this, that the proving of your faith worketh patience.
- 4 And let patience have its perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.
- 5 Now if any of you want wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not ; and it shall be given
- 6 him. But let him ask in faith, nothing doubting. For he that doubteth is like a wave of the sea moved with the wind and
- 7 tossed about. And let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord :

A man of a double mind is unsteady in 8 all his ways.

Now let the brother of low degree glory 9 in his exaltation : But the rich in his humiliation : for as the flower of the herb he shall pass away. For the sun is no sooner 11 risen together with a burning wind, but it withereth the herb, and its flower falleth, and the beauty of its appearance perisheth : so shall the rich man also fade in his 12 ways.

Happy is the man that endureth trial : 12 for when he hath been proved, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to those who love him. Let 13 no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God : for God cannot be tempted by evils, nor doth he tempt any man : But 14 every man is tempted, when he is drawn [CHAP. I. 1. To the twelve tribes] To the Hebrew converts of the several tribes dispersed among the Gentiles. The inscription supports this, 'To those who are in the dispersion.' They abounded in Mesopotamia, Media, and Babylon ; and, according to Josephus, had three famous universities.

2. Various trials] From your unbelieving brethren, who accuse and persecute you ; but learn to rejoice therein, knowing that the proving, &c.

5—8. And upbraideth not] On account of past sins, or by approbriously mentioning past favours.—Ask in faith] In the steady and undoubting confidence that God is both able and willing to grant the favour he asks of him ; for he that doubteth of this is, from the state of his mind, agitated with fears and anxieties ; and will be tossed like a wave of the sea by the wind.

9—11. Glory in his] As a son of God, and an heir of heaven ; but let the rich man glory that by the gospel he is made sensible of his sins, and the perishing nature of his earthly enjoyments ; for as the flower of the herb, &c.

12—18. Endureth trial] This has a reference to verses 2, 3.—Crown of life] 1 Cor. iv. 23 ; 2 Tim. iv. 8.—Tempted] I retain this term, because it is used to signify 'to induce or allure to sin or to evil.' To this God tempteth no man ; nor by evil things can be tempted to do any wrong.—A man is tempted] His own depravity tempts him aside, and allured by his own evil desire. 15 Then, when desire hath conceived, it beareth sin : and sin, when it is finished, bringeth 16 forth death. Do not err, my beloved brethren. Every good gift and every perfect benefit is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no 18 variableness, nor shadow of turning. Of his own will he begot us by the word of truth, that we might be a kind of first- 19 fruits of his creatures. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to 20 hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath : For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God

21 Wherefore lay aside all defilement and abounding wickedness, and receive with meekness the implanted word which is able 22 to save your souls. And be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. For if any be a hearer of the word, 23 and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass : For 24 he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and immediately forgetteth what manner of man 25 he was. But whoso looketh into the perfect law of freedom and continueth in it, this man, being not a forgetful hearer, but a 26 doer of the work, shall be blessed in the doing of it. If any man among you think 27 that he is religious, and bridle not his tongue, but deceive his own heart, this man's religion is vain. Pure and undefiled religion with God, even the Father, is this ; to take care of the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep one's-self unspotted from the world.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 61. We should not show respect to the rich and despise the brethren ; nor boast of faith without works ; the faith of devils and of Abraham described, &c.

1 MY brethren, hold not the faith of our

to sin. His evil desire conceives, and then beareth sin, &c.—Do not err] By supposing that God is the author of moral evil. On the contrary, God is the giver of every good gift, &c.—Father of lights] Of all perfection and happiness, who is so unchangeably good and perfect, that there is in him not even the appearance of a change.—No variableness] Literally, 'no parallax nor tropical shadow.' And some think James uses these astronomical terms to expose the astrological fatalism of the Pharisees.

19, 20. Slow to speak] Considering well what you speak ; and be slow to wrath, to a fiery zeal for your ancient rites, remembering that such wrathful zeal is attended with other bad passions, and does not work such righteousness as God requires.

21. Implanted word] The gospel was implanted among them by the labours of the apostles ; and when received with meek and humble disposition was able to save, &c.

22—24. And be ye doers] To hear, and not to do, is but to deceive ourselves, it is only acting like a man, &c.

25. Perfect law of freedom] The gospel, in opposition to the law of Moses. Rom. viii. 15 ; Gal. iv. 24 ; Heb. vii. 19 ; x. 1.—A doer of the work] Read above, and refer it to every work. In this version we have a similar sentiment to John vii. 17. By his believing and practising the will of God, he shall be greatly blessed.

Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with a respect of persons. For if there come 2 into your assembly a man with a gold ring, in gorgeous apparel, and there come in also a poor man in mean apparel ; And ye 3 regard him who weareth the gorgeous apparel, and say to him, Sit thou here in a good place ; and say to the poor man, Stand thou there, or, Sit here under my footstool : Do ye not then make a difference 4 among yourselves, and become judges whose reasonings are evil ? Hearken, my beloved 5 brethren. Hath not God chosen the poor of the world to be rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to those who love him ? But ye have dishonoured the poor man. Do not the rich oppress you, and draw you before the judgment-seats ? Do they not blaspheme that excellent name by which ye are called ? 6 Now if ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well : But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convicted by the law as transgressors. For 7 whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend as to one precept, he is guilty as to all. For he that said, Do not commit 8 adultery, said also, Do not commit murder. Now if thou commit no adultery, and yet 9 commit murder, thou becomest a transgressor of the law. So speak ye, and so 10 do, as those who shall be judged by the law of freedom. For he shall have judgment 11 without mercy, that hath shown no mercy ; but mercy glorieth over judgment to him that showeth mercy.

What doth it profit, my brethren, if a 14 man say that he hath faith, and have not works ? can this faith save him ? Now if a 15 brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, And one of you say to them, 16

26, 27. Think that he is religious] Pretend to be so, and bridle not his tongue, see verse 19.—Pure and undefiled] Religion exemplified in its power is this, to provide for the helpless and afflicted, and to take heed and avoid the vices of the world.

CHAP. II. 1—7. The Lord of glory] See 1 Cor. ii. 8.—Assembly] Doubtless, the Christian assembly or church.—Do ye not become] Making unjust distinctions, showing such a deference to outward appearances, without regarding their moral conduct ?—Hearken, my] Is it not a truth that ye suffer most persecution from the rich ? Do not they oppress you, &c. ?

8—13. Royal law] Noble, excellent, governing the duties we owe to our neighbour.—For whosoever] Keeping all the other precepts, and only violating one, as effectually precludes the hope of life, as if a man had violated all, for he renounces the authority by which all are established. Whitby supposes James opposes the error of some Jewish doctors, who taught that if a man obeyed one precept he would be saved, though he transgressed all the rest.

14—17. Say that he hath faith] Profess that he is a believer in Christ, and yet does not act as one, can such a faith be of any use as to his salvation ?—So faith] This shows that James means no more by faith than a mere assent to certain religious principles, unaccompanied by Depart in peace, be ye warmed and be ye filled; yet give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it produce? Thus also a faith, if it have not works, is dead, being by itself. Yea, one may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works. Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the demons also believe, and tremble. But wouldst thou know, O vain man, that a faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he lifted up Isaac his son upon the altar? Thou seest that faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith perfected. And the scripture was fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him in order to righteousness: and he was called the Friend of God. You see then, that a man is justified, by a faith producing works, and not by a faith that is alone. In like manner was not Rahab the harlot justified by works, when she received the messengers, and sent them out another way? For as the body without the spirit is dead, so a faith without works is dead also.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 61. We should not rashly reprove others; but rather bridle the tongue, which is an instrument of much good and much harm; we live in peace, &c.

1 My brethren, be not many of you teachers; knowing that we shall receive a 2 greater condemnation. For in many things we all offend. If any man offend not in word, he is a perfect man, and able to 3 bridle the whole body also. Behold, we any fruits of piety,—a mere speculative faith, a bare pretension to it, which is a totally different thing from what Paul meant by it; a faith which worketh by love, and yields the fruits of righteousness.

18—20. Show me thy faith] But this is impossible; for it is by works that genuine faith is known.

21—26. The scripture was fulfilled] In the two preceding verses he asserts that Abraham was justified by works, when he offered up Isaac, and that faith wrought with his works, and by works was perfected; he then says, 'the scripture was fulfilled,' confirmed, which saith Abraham believed God, &c. See Gen. xv. 6. How was this scripture fulfilled by offering up Isaac, which was more than twenty years after? In this: it showed that the faith of Abraham was not a speculative faith, but the genuine faith of the saints working by love, and performing the noblest acts of obedience. James then explains himself to mean that Abraham was justified by a faith producing good works or obedience; and by such works his faith was made or appeared perfect and genuine. In like manner Rahab was justified. So that we may conclude that a man is justified by such a faith as produces good works, and not by a faith of a different kind, a faith without them. For as the body without the animating spirit is dead, so is a faith without works. From this view of the subject there is clearly no disagreement between Paul and James. Paul maintains that we are pardoned and counted righteous by faith in Christ, and by this only, without the merit of any works. James maintains that we are justified or vindicated as believers by our works, and that works alone can prove, either to ourselves or others, that we possess saving faith.

CHAR. III. 1, 2. Be not many] Pretend not to teach put bits in the mouths of horses, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body. Behold ships also, which are so great, and are driven by fierce winds, yet are turned about by a very small helm, whithersoever the pilot chooseth. Thus the tongue also is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how much wood a little fire kindleth; And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. The tongue is so set among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and is itself set on fire by hell. For every kind of wild beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of sea-monsters, is subdued, and hath been subdued, by man: But the tongue of man no one can subdue; it is an evil not to be restrained, full of death-bearing poison. With it we bless God, even the Father; and with it we curse men who were made after the likeness of God. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be. Doth a fountain, from the same opening, send forth sweet and bitter water? Can a fig-tree, my brethren, bear olive berries, or a vine, figs? so can no fountain yield salt-water and fresh.

Who is wise and knowing among you? let him show by a good behaviour his works, with meekness of wisdom. But if ye have bitter envy and strife in your hearts, do not glory and lie against the truth. This wisdom cometh not down from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. For where envy and strife are, there is confusion and every without due qualifications, knowing that in this case we shall receive a greater condemnation.

3, 4. We put bits] By this they are rendered subversive to our will; and so are ships turned and directed by the helm.

5, 6. Thus the tongue] Like the bit or helm, is a small member; yet it boasteth of doing great things, and it does them, by raising the passions of others, like a spark of fire kindling a pile of faggots.—A world of] Or, a mass of iniquity and injustice.—Is so set among] Is that member which placed among our other members, defileth by its language and irritating power the whole body, and excites turbulent passions through the whole course of life, and is itself set on fire, or excited by hell or Satan.

8—10. Every kind of beasts] The tongue of other men can no one restrain. It is applied to the most contrary purposes; for with it we bless our God and Father, as you Jews do; and with it we curse men, &c. Some think James alludes to the practice of the unbelieving Jews, who were accustomed to curse in their synagogues all Christians.

11, 12. Doth a fountain] These questions are a comment on the words, 'My brethren, these things ought not so to be.' No such inconsistency is found in the natural world; and this awful abuse of the tongue shows the ignorance and deep depravity of the unrenewed heart.

13. His works] As a teacher, let him show works becoming his character; and let him teach and act with the meekness of Christ, and of the wisdom of the gospel.

14—16. Do not glory] In these things as being wisdom, and so lie against the truth which God has given to us. Assuredly this kind of wisdom is earthly, not heavenly, &c.

17 evil work. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 61. Exhortation against covetousness, pride, detraction, and foolish confidence as to this life, &c.

1 WHENCE come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, from your evil desires which war in your members? Ye desire, and have not; ye kill, and earnestly covet, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it on your lusts. Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore would be a friend to the world, is adjudged an enemy to God. Do ye think that the scripture speaketh in vain? Doth the Spirit that dwelleth in us stir up to envy? Nay, but He bestoweth more abundant grace. Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded: Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness: Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he will raise you up.

17, 18. The wisdom from] That which comes from God, and is taught in his word and imparted by his Spirit, is pure truth, unmixed with error; peaceable in its nature and influence; makes men gentle towards others, and ready to forgive.

CHAP. IV. 1—3. Among you] Among yourselves, and with the Romans. Before the time when James wrote the Jews had great wars with the neighbouring nations, and among themselves in every city and family, saith Josephus; not only in Judea, but in Egypt, Syria, and other places. The Jews most eagerly desired two things, liberty from the Roman yoke, and dominion over other nations. These were the objects they sought in their prayers.—Evil desires] These, as it were, first war in your members, and then impel you and other men to the horrid practice of fighting and killing each other.

4. Adulterers] Some think that James means spiritual adulterers, those who, professing to be God's people, yet were wedded to the world and to vice. That the Jews were a gross, sensual people is certain, and we ought to understand this literally as well as spiritually.

5. Scripture speaketh] Is there no occasion to condemn your worldly-mindedness and sensuality? Doth not the scripture justly speak against these things?—Doth the Spirit] The Holy Spirit, which dwelleth in us Christians, does not stir up or excite us to indulge envy towards others on account of what they enjoy; but rather leads us to be thankful on this account. Whilcy and others thus point.

6. Nay, but he bestoweth] On those of a humble lowly mind, who, instead of envying, rejoice at the good done to others, as he saith by Solomon, Prov. iii. 34, God resisteth the proud, &c. This is from the Sept.

7—10. Submit] He is your great ruler and commander,

Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law; but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge of it. There is one law-giver and 12 judge, who is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgest another?

Come now, ye that say, To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and traffic and acquire gain: Yet ye know not what will be 14 on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. Whereas 15 ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that. But now ye glory 16 in your boasting speeches: all such glorying is evil. To him therefore that knoweth 17 to do what is right, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 61. Rich wicked men ought to dread God's vengeance; we should be patient, after the example of the prophets; pray in affliction, and be thankful in prosperity.

Come now, ye rich men, weep, howl for the miseries which are coming upon you. Your store is corrupted, and your garments 2 are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver are 3 rusted; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as fire. Ye have heaped up treasure for the last days. Behold, the hire of the 4 labourers who have reaped your fields, which is unjustly kept back by you, crieth; be subject to him as such; and fighting under his banner, resist the devil and all his wiles, and he, &c.—Cleanse your] In your present situation, when judgments are coming on you, seek outward and inward purity. These verses prove that James is addressing his own unbelieving, depraved, and impatient brethren, the Jews; and they show how desirous he was to snatch them, if possible, as brands from the fire.

11, 12. Speak not evil] Chap. iii. 4, &c.—Evil of the law] The law of Moses and of Christ, which prohibits such conduct. Matt. x. 11.—Judgeth the law] As if thou hadst a right to set it aside; and by so doing thou art evidently transgressing it.—One lawgiver] In the Christian church, and he is able to save those that obey him, and to destroy the disobedient.—(a) Griesb.

13—15. To-day or] Many were passionately addicted to gain, and formed their plans without any reference to God and their own mortal condition.

16, 17. Boasting speeches] Of what you will do and acquire. To do what is right] To have a constant regard to God and his providence, and to exercise a suitable reliance; and by not doing this you greatly sin.

CHAP. V. 1. Which are coming] The miseries which you will suffer in every part of the Roman empire, by the war which will soon commence.

2—6. Store is, &c.] Of corn, dried fruits, &c. is corrupted, your garments are moth-eaten. Eat your flesh] The rust of their stores is not only a witness against them, but an executioner upon them, occasioning their destruction. For similar metaphors, see Ps. xxi. 9; Is. x. 16; xxvii. 11.—For the last days] Of your state and church, John ii. 18. Comp. Acts ii. 17; Heb. i. 2.—The hire of the] How cruel was this, and yet no doubt true in respect to many;

- and the cries of the reapers have entered 5 into the ears of the Lord of hosts. Ye have lived in pleasure on earth, ye have been luxurious; ye have pampered your 6 hearts, as for a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned, ye have killed the Just One, who did not resist you.
- 7 Be patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth and is patient in respect to it, until he receive the early and latter rain.
- 8 Be ye also patient; establish your hearts;
 for the coming of the Lord draweth near.
- 9 Murmur not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge 10 standeth before the door. Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of 11 suffering affliction, and of patience. Behold, we count those as happy who patiently endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen what the Lord did in the end: so that the Lord is full of compassion, and of tender mercy.
- 12 But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, nor by the earth, nor by any other oath: but let your ye a be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall under condemnation.

Is any among you afflicted? let him 13 pray. Is any cheerful? let him sing psalms. Is any sick among you? let him 14 call for the elders of the church; and having anointed him with oil, let them pray over him in the name of the Lord: And the 15 prayer of faith shall save the sick person, and the Lord shall raise him up; and although he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your offences 16 one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Elijah 17 was a man of like infirmities with us, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain; and it rained not on the land during three years and six months. And he prayed 18 again, and the heavens gave rain, and the earth brought forth its produce.

Brethren, if any of you do err from the 19 truth, and one turn him back to it; Let 20 him know, that he who turneth a sinner back from the error of his way will save a soul from death, and cover his multitude of sins.

and yet they were living in pleasure.—The Just One] He means the Lord Jesus; and this implies that he speaks to the whole Jewish nation, or at least to the ruling and wicked part of it. See Acts iii. 14; vii. 32; xxii. 14.—Who did not] So Macknight renders. Others, 'He doth not resist you.' He suffers you to go on in your folly and sins, and leaves you to the consequences.

7. Be patient] Having such an example as Christ, who will soon come in providence to destroy your persecutors. He here addresses Christians.

9. Murmur not one] Under your trials, lest ye be condemned, &c. It must signify some evil, some sin of impatience. Comp. Luke xviii. 7, 8.

11. He count those] We commend them for suffering with a becoming submission to God's will, and consider them as sure to be rewarded.—What the Lord did] What blessings he showered upon him, thus proving that he is full of compassion, &c.

12. Swear not] By any kind of oaths. Matt. v. 34—36. In your conversation only simply affirm or deny a thing. This is sufficient in respect to one who regards truth.

14, 15. Call the elders] The stated pastors of the church, who, according to the custom of that time, having anointed him with oil, must pray over him, &c. Mark vi. 13.—

The prayer of faith] Offered up under a suggestion of the Spirit, with a full persuasion in the mind of the praying elder, that God would work a miracle of healing. This gift of healing was common in the first churches.

16. Confess your] In sickness confess your faults, or the injuries you may have done to one another; and show your repentance by praying for one another; especially when any are sick, pray that they may be healed.—The fervent] The prayer produced by the Spirit operating on the heart, availeth much with God, to heal the sick and to do other things. For Elijah, &c.

17, 18. Of like infirmities] Yet when inspired to pray that there might be no rain, was heard. And when he prayed again for rain, God sent it in abundance, so that the earth yielded its increase.

19, 20. Err from the truth] Either in your sentiments or practice departing from the gospel, and one convert him or turn him back to it by his faithful instructions and admonitions; let him know, &c.—Save a soul] Will be the instrument of that man's salvation.—And cover] The instrument of his obtaining forgiveness. Ps. xxxii. 1. 'The sins to be covered are the sins of the soul saved from death;' and not of the person who turned him back to the truth; yet for doing this he will be rewarded. Dan. xii. 3.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF

P E T E R.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Epistle was directed to the Christians scattered through Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia; and, with most expositors, I consider it directed both to those converted from Judaism and Heathenism. It was written when the brethren were suffering great and trying afflictions and persecutions; and abounds with various topics of comfort and direction to them in that state. Without much order or connexion, he writes with great dignity and energy, enforcing moral duties with the strongest motives. It was probably written about Anno Domini 63.

CHAPTER I.

A D. 63. He bleaseth God for spiritual privileges and favours; sheweth that salvation by Christ is no new thing, but prophesied of long since; he exhorteth to a suitable behaviour, &c.

- 1 PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the sojourners scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia;
- 2 Elect, according to the preordination of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, to obedience and the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ; Grace, and peace, be multiplied to you.
- 3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us to a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus
- 4 Christ from the dead; To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and unfading, reserved in heaven for you, Who are kept by the power of God, through faith, to salvation ready to be revealed in the last
- 5 time: Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season (if need be) ye be grieved
- 6 by various trials: That this proof of your faith, which is much more precious than that of gold which perisheth, though proved by fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus
- 7 Christ; Whom, having not seen, ye love; in whom, though not now seeing him, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable
- 8 and full of glory: Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.
- 9 Of which salvation the prophets, who prophesied of the grace that should come to you, have inquired and searched diligently;
- 10 Searching as to what people, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them signified, when he testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the
- 11 glories which were to follow: To whom it was revealed, that they ministered not to

CHAP. I. 1. Sojourners scattered] Literally, 'sojourners of the dispersion.' From this some conclude that Peter wrote only to converted Jews; but Macknight answers, in scripture all pious men are called sojourners, Gen. xlvii. 9; Ps. xxxix. 12, and they may be said to be scattered, on account of their small number. Some things refer to the Gentiles only, chap. ii. 10.

2. Elect according] Some would render, 'Elect in the foreknowledge,' &c. The secondary sense of προϋνομις is adopted, as most suitable.—Through sanctification] God has been pleased to impart his Spirit by whose holy influence you have been called, and so are sanctified as to yield the obedience of faith.

3, 4. Hath begotten us] Regenerated and called us to enjoy 'a lively hope' of future happiness 'by the resurrection of Christ.'—To an inheritance] The construction depends on begotten us to a hope; and to an inheritance.

5. Power of God, through faith] As this inheritance is reserved for you, so you are kept by the power of God, by the continued exercise of faith in his truth and promises to the enjoyment of it.

7. That this proof] The proof of your faith is of much more importance than the proof of gold, which at last perisheth, however pure; but the proof of your faith will be themselves, but to us the things which have now been declared to you, by those who have preached the gospel to you, with the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven; into which things angels desire to look.

Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, 13 be sober, and hope to the end for the grace which will be brought to you at the manifestation of Jesus Christ; As obedient children, 14 not fashioning yourselves according to your former desires in your ignorance; But as he who hath called you is holy, so 15 be ye holy in all manner of behaviour; Because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am 16 holy. And if ye call on the Father, who 17 without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear: Forasmuch as ye 18 know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as with silver and gold, from your vain behaviour delivered down from your fathers; But with the precious 19 blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot: Who was indeed 20 appointed before the foundation of the world, but made manifest in these last times for you, Who by him believe in God, 21 who raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory: so that your faith and hope might be in God. Having therefore purified 22 your souls by obeying the truth through the Spirit to unfeigned brotherly love, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: Having been born again, not 23 from corruptible seed, but from incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and remaineth for ever. For all flesh is as the 24 herb, and all its glory as the flower of the herb. The herb withereth, and its flower falleth off: But the word of the 25 Lord remaineth for ever: and this is the word which by the gospel is preached to you.

found to end in praise to God, and in honour and glory to yourselves.

8. Having not seen] When in the flesh, as must have been the case with most of those whom Peter addresses.—In whom, though] As they loved him as made known to them in the gospel, so now not seeing him, yet believing in him as their Saviour, they rejoiced with joy, &c.

12. Things into which] It has often been observed that there is an allusion to the posture of the cherubs, bending and looking on the mercy-seat: they look with earnestness.

13–16. Gird up] Prepare for every duty as you do for labour, by girding up your loose robes, and be sober and watchful, hoping to the end, or fully and perfectly hoping for the grace and mercy, &c.

17–21. Respect of persons] Under the gospel, showing no favour or partiality towards any people or nation, but judgeth men according to their works.

22–25. See that ye love] Act agreeably to your profession, and to that new birth you have experienced by the living, and therefore incorruptible seed of the word.—All flesh is] What is born of flesh is flesh, and perishing; but the word of God lives for ever; and this powerful living word is preached by the gospel, Isai. xl. 6–8.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 63. The relation of believers to Christ, as their foundation; the misery of unbelievers; obedience due to magistrates; duty of servants enforced; example of Christ, &c.

- 1 WHEREFORE, laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all
- 2 evil-speakings, As new-born babes, earnestly desire the rational pure milk that ye may
- 3 grow thereby "to salvation:" Since ye have
- 4 tasted that the Lord is gracious. To whom coming, as to a living stone, rejected indeed
- 5 by men, but chosen of God, and precious, Ye also, as living stones, being built up,
- 6 are a spiritual temple, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to
- 7 God by Jesus Christ. Wherefore it is contained in the scripture, Behold, I lay in
- 8 Zion a chief corner-stone, elect, precious; and he that confideth in him shall not be
- 9 ashamed. To you therefore who believe he is precious: but to those who believe not,
- 10 that stone, which the builders rejected, is become the chief of the corner, And a
- 11 stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence; against which they stumble who believe not
- 12 the word, to which they were indeed appointed. But ye are a chosen race, a royal
- 13 priesthood, a holy nation, a purchased people; that ye should show forth the
- 14 perfections of him who hath called you out of darkness into his wonderful light:
- 15 Who in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God: who had not
- 16 obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.
- 17 Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and sojourners, abstain from fleshly
- 18 desires, which war against the soul; Hav-

CHAP. II. 1-3. Wherefore, laying] Since ye have been regenerated lay aside all guile in your conversation, and in religious concerns, all hypocrisies, &c.—Pure milk] The pure unadulterated gospel, which only is suitable to rational beings, Rom. xii. 1.—(a) Griesb.

4, 5. Living stone] A stone, in a spiritual or figurative sense, rejected indeed, &c.—A spiritual temple] In which God dwells and is worshipped; yea, 'a holy priesthood,' to offer the spiritual sacrifices of prayer, praise, &c.

6-8. I lay in Zion] See Is. xxviii. 16, and note.—It is precious] In the 4th verse this stone is said to be 'chosen of God and precious,' or honourable and esteemed; and here it is said to be precious, or esteemed by all believers. The noun is used adjectively, as it often is, and our translators have rendered properly.—That stone] The Jewish builders, the priests and magistrates, rejected this stone, as unworthy the honourable place it was destined to occupy; and to those who believe not, this stone is a stone of stumbling, &c., see Ps. cxlviii. 22, and note; because in spite of their efforts it has become the chief of the corner.—To which they were] The verb ἀποστρέφει implies a reference to ἄρτια, and as this makes clear the construction, it gives the sense of the last clause. The unbelieving are appointed to fall and perish for their sin.

9, 10. But ye are] Ye who believe, deserve, and enjoy the honourable titles given to God's spiritual Israel, Deuter. vii. 6; Exod. xix. 6; Is. xxiii. 21.—The perfections] The wisdom, goodness, justice, and truth of God, who hath called, ing your behaviour good among the Gentiles; that, in whatsoever they speak against you as evil-doers, they may, from the good works which they behold, glorify God in the day of visitation. Submit yourselves to 13 every appointment of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; Or to governors, as to those who are sent 14 by him for the punishment of evil-doers, and for the praise of those who do well. For so is the will of God, that by well- 15 doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men; As free, and not using your 16 freedom for a cloak of wickedness, but as the servants of God. Honour all men: 17 love the brotherhood: fear God: honour the king.

Servants, be subject to your masters with 18 all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but also to the froward. For this is well- 19 pleasing, if a man for conscience towards God endure grief, suffering wrongfully. For what glory is it, if, when ye are beaten 20 for your faults, ye shall bear it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer, ye bear it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For to this were ye called; because even 21 Christ suffered for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps; Who did no sin, nor was guile found in his 22 mouth; Who, when he was reviled, reviled 23 not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: Who himself bore 24 our sins in his own body on the cross, that we, having become dead to sins, should live to righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed. For ye were as sheep going 25 astray; but have now returned to the Shepherd and overseer of your souls.

&c.—In time past were] Were in heathen darkness, worshipping idols; but are now enjoying the wonderful light of the gospel. Compare Hos. ii. 23; Rom. ix. 25.

11, 12. War against the soul] Indulge not carnal desires, as they war against the soul, against its present peace and future happiness.

13-17. Appointment of man]—Every civil institution, from a regard to the will of Christ,—To the king] To the Roman emperor; for in the provinces this name, king, was given to him, John xix. 15; Acts xvii. 7.—To governors] Of the provinces of the empire, Matt. xxvii. 2.—By well-doing] By obedience to lawful authority; and act as the servants of God, by honouring all to whom honour is due, &c., Rom. xiii. 7.

18-20. Servants, be subject] Compare Eph. vi. 5; Coloss. iii. 22.—And suffer, ye bear] Sometimes Christian servants and slaves were ill-treated on account of their religion; but the apostle suggests, that, when they bore this patiently, they might expect to be rewarded of God, &c.

21-25. To this ye were] After the example of Christ, who suffered with meekness, fortitude, and the most perfect resignation.—His own self bore] See note, Heb. ix. 28. He bore it as the appointed sin-offering for the people; and by his sufferings expiated our sins, so that we having become, &c. Isa. liii. 5.—As sheep going] Wandering from God, and in danger of perishing; but have, by the gospel, returned to the good Shepherd, &c.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 63. The duty of wives and husbands to each other; exhortation to unity and love; to suffer persecution; Christ by his Spirit preaches to the whole world.

- 1 In like manner, ye wives, be subject to your own husbands; that if any believe not the word, they also may, without the word, be won by the behaviour of their wives;
- 2 While they behold your chaste behaviour
- 3 joined with reverence. Whose ornament let it not be only that outward one of plaiting the hair, and of wearing gold, or of
- 4 putting on apparel; But let it be the hidden man of the heart, in the incorruptible ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which in
- 5 the sight of God is of great price. For thus in former times holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being subject
- 6 to their own husbands: Even as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him her lord: whose daughters ye are, while ye do well, and are not afraid of any terror.
- 7 In like manner, ye husbands, dwell with your wives according to knowledge, giving honour to the wife, as to the weaker vessel, and as being joint-heirs of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered.
- 8 Finally, be all of the same mind, be compassionate, love as brethren, be tender-
- 9 hearted, be courteous: Not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling; but, on the contrary do ye bless; knowing that you are hereunto called, that ye may inherit a
- 10 blessing. For he that would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil; and his lips from speaking guile.
- 11 Let him avoid evil, and do good; let him
- 12 seek peace, and pursue it. For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against them that do

CHAP. III. 1, 2. In like manner] As servants should be to their masters, so let wives be subject to their own husbands;—that if any believe not the word, &c. See 1 Cor. ix. 19—22.

3—6. Whose ornament] The Greek idiom, like the Hebrew, using the negative particles in a comparative degree, requires the version given. For in this manner holy women, &c.—Whose daughters ye] As Abraham is called the father, so Sarah may be called the mother of believing women, who while they do well in showing reverence and subjection to their husbands, as she did, are not afraid of any terror, so as to renounce their Christian profession.

7. Dwell with your] 1 Cor. vii. 3; Eph. v. 25.—Giving honour] In opposition to neglect and contempt, 'as to the weaker vessel,' as less firm in body or mind, that your joint or separate prayers be not hindered by discord and hatred.

8—12. Finally be all] Cultivate a spirit of peace, compassion, and brotherly love; and when injured do not return it.—Would love life] That would enjoy the comforts of it, let him refrain, &c. Compare Ps. xxxiv. 1—6, to which the apostle alludes rather than quotes, adapting it to his purpose.

13. Followers of] Actually doing what is good, and imitating those noble examples set before you in the holy scriptures.

14—16. But if ye even] As some of you have done, and others, Matt. v. 10—12.—Of their terror] With which evil. And who is he that will hurt you, if 13 ye be followers of that which is good? But 14 if ye even suffer for the sake of righteousness, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, nor be troubled; But sanctify 15 the Lord God in your hearts: and be always ready to give an answer, with meekness and reverence, to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you: Having 16 a good conscience; that, in whatsoever they speak against you, as evil doers, they may be ashamed who falsely accuse your good behaviour in Christ. For it is better, if the 17 will of God so be, that ye suffer for doing well than for doing evil. For even Christ hath once 18 suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God; being put to death indeed in the flesh, but made alive by the Spirit: By which also he went and preached 19 to those whose spirits are now in prison; Who formerly believed not, when the long- 20 suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight persons, were saved by water. And what resembleth this, even baptism, 21 now saveth us also, (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience towards God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ; Who is gone 22 into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; angels and authorities and powers having been made subject to him.

CHAPTER IV

A. D. 63. An exhortation to cease from sin by the example of Christ, and the approaching end of life and all things; comfort under persecution.

SINCE therefore Christ hath suffered for 1 us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: (for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;)

your persecutors threaten you; and be ever ready to give an answer to any that may inquire concerning the hope you profess of present pardon, peace, and future happiness.—Accuse your good] See chap. ii. 12.

18. By the Spirit] The Æthiopic has Holy Spirit; and unless He is meant, who can make sense of the passage?

19, 20. By which also] Jesus went by his Spirit in Noah, to those men who lived in his time, and whose spirits are now, as it were, in prison, waiting the judgment of the great day; at that period, when the long-suffering of God waited while the ark was building, in which only eight persons were saved from the general ruin. Doddridge renders, 'Were carried safely through the water; which is doubtless the sense.'

21, 22. What resembleth] The antitype of this, even baptism, now saveth us also. I do not mean the putting away 'the filth of the flesh by the washing of water, but the answer of a good conscience towards God,' the testimony of a good conscience that we really and sincerely believe what we profess. The apostle distinguishes the outward rite of baptism from its spiritual design, as Paul did that of circumcision, Rom. ii. 23, 28; and if the spiritual design of the former, as some contend, makes it improper to administer it to infants, the same reason would apply to the latter.

CHAP. IV. 1. Arm yourselves] Arm yourselves with the same fortitude of mind, and be ready to suffer for him

- 2 That ye may not live the rest of your time in the flesh, according to the evil desires of men, but according to the will of God. For
- 3 the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries: And they think it strange
- 4 that ye run not with them herein to the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you:
- 5 Who shall give account to him who is ready
- 6 to judge the living and the dead. For to this end hath the gospel been preached also to those that are dead, so that although they were condemned as to men in the flesh, yet they live as to God in the spirit.
- 7 Now the end of all things is near: be ye therefore sober-minded, and watch unto
- 8 prayer. And above all things have fervent love among yourselves: for love will cover
- 9 a multitude of sins. Use hospitality one to
- 10 another without murmuring. As every man hath received the gift of the Spirit, so minister the same one to another, as good stew-
- 11 ards of the manifold grace of God. If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God: if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God supplieth: that God may be glorified in all things through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.
- 12 Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery persecution which hath come for a trial to you, as though some strange thing
- 13 had befallen you: But be glad, that inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, when his glory shall be manifested,
- 14 ye may be glad also with exceeding joy. If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified. For let none of you suffer as a 15 murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, or as a busy-meddler in other men's affairs. But if any man suffer as a Christian, let 16 him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this account. For the time is come 17 that judgment must begin at the household of God: and if it begin at us, what will be the end of those who obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be 18 saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear? Wherefore let those who suffer according to the will of God, commit the keeping of their souls to him, in well-doing, as to a faithful Creator.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 63. Elders ought to feed the flocks committed to them; the younger to obey, and all to be sober and constant in the faith, and to resist the enemy.

THE elders that are among you I exhort, 1 who am a fellow elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and a partaker also of the glory that shall be manifested: Feed 2 the flock of God which is among you, taking the care of it, not by constraint, but willingly; not for base gain, but with a ready mind; Not as having dominion over those 3 allotted to you, but being examples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall 4 appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves 5 to the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility:

who hath suffered so much for you; and especially die to sin.

2-6. To the evil desires] Gratifying the carnal appetites and passions, &c.—They think it strange] They are surprised at your sentiments and self-denial; and they speak evil of and persecute you, because you follow not their evil ways.—As to men. As to God] Are in opposition, as are also the verbs καταμαρτυροῦντες and ζῶντες, condemned and live. They were condemned to die as to men, to be no more conversant with them; but when the animal life is destroyed, each lives as to God, is conversant with him in the spirit. This preserves the opposition, and seems to be the sense of this obscure passage. The term dead may refer to those dead by the hand of persecution; and the spirit and meaning will be the same as Matt. x. 28. In this view the text is a proof of the existence of the Spirit in a separate state.

7. The end of all] The end as to us here is death; and we should be sober-minded, and watch unto prayer, that we may be ready.

8. Love will cover] Prov. x. 12, and note, and James v. 20. The sense of charity, which some attribute to this passage, subverts the gospel. If our love to one another springs from love to God, it will induce us to put the best construction on the frailties and offences of others, and even to forgive as we hope to be forgiven.

10. Gift of the Spirit] The term χαρίσματα refers to spiritual gifts. See Rom. xii. 6-8, and 1 Cor. xii. 4, &c.—Manifold grace] Grace exercised and displayed in manifold degrees and ways.

11. As the oracles of God] Let him deliver doctrines agreeable to the scriptures, to the doctrine of Christ and his apostles.—Minister] Discharging the office of deacon or any other, let him do it, &c.

12-14. The fiery persecution] This shows that they were now suffering greatly.—Some strange thing] As if you had not been forewarned of it.—Be glad that] Be glad that ye are counted worthy to suffer for his sake, and assure yourselves that hereafter your gladness shall rise to the sublimest height of joy: yea, I deem you now happy; for the Spirit of glory, &c.

17. That judgment] Persecution, and all the evils which attend it; and if God will thus try us, what will the end be of those who believe not, &c.

18. Scarcely be saved] Or, saved with difficulty out of these miseries and calamities, where will the ungodly, &c. See Prov. xi. 31.

CHAP. V. 1-4. A fellow-elder] So Peter speaks of himself, and by this unassuming language, enforces with more effect their duty.—A witness of] He had attended him during his ministry, and was present in the garden and at the crucifixion; and he knew that he should be a partaker of future glory.—Feed the flock] Teach and instruct it.—Taking the care of it] Or 'doing the office of bishops,' as ἐπισκοπῆς signifies.—As having dominion] Here lordly dominion is forbidden to the elders or pastors of a church; and this one scripture is decisive against any original superiority among the elders, and equally against any civil ecclesiastical establishment, which necessarily confers such dominion over the flock, whether it be that of Episcopacy or Pre-byterianism, or any other form.

5. Ye younger] Respect and submit to those advanced in age, as more able to give you advice. Yea, condescend to for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace 6 to the humble. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he 7 may exalt you in due time : Casting all your anxious care upon him ; because he careth 8 for you. Be sober, be watchful, because your adversary the devil walketh about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour :

 9 Whom resist stedfast in the faith ; knowing that the same sufferings are accomplished in your brethren who are in the world.
 10 Now the God of all grace, who hath called us to his everlasting glory by Christ

Jesus, after ye have suffered awhile, make you perfect, establish, strengthen, settle you.
 To him be glory and dominion for ever and 11 ever. Amen.

By Silvanus, a faithful brother, as I judge, 12
 I have written to you briefly, exhorting, and testifying that this is the true doctrine of God's grace in which ye stand. The church 13 that is at Babylon, elect together with you, saluteth you ; and so doth Mark my son.
 Salute ye one another with a kiss of love. 14
 Peace be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

each other, and be clothed with that peculiar grace of Christ, in humility. See James iv. 6, &c.

6—9. The mighty hand] Who now permits you to be persecuted and tried. In this state cast all your anxious care upon him, being assured that he careth for you.

10, 11. Now the God] The all-gracious God, the author and original source of all the grace of the blessed gospel, and of every gracious gift, who has called us to be heirs, and to enjoy the hope of glory, after ye have suffered awhile, &c.

12—14. True doctrine] The truths which I have now stated, and the other truths which you have heard from inspired teachers, are the true doctrines of grace which you have received, and on which your hope is founded.—At Babylon] There was a place in Egypt thus called ; but many think that Peter called Rome by this name ; and if so, he knew of its apostacy in future days. See Lardner and Macknight, &c. As many Jews were settled at Babylon, Peter might go and visit them.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS epistle is thought to have been written about six years after the former ; and notwithstanding the objections which have been made, both in early and later times, from strong internal evidence, it is clearly the genuine production of the apostle Peter. It appears not to have been so early known to the churches of the East, as it is not found in the first Syriac version. Peter considered when he wrote it that the time of his departure was at hand ; and exhorting them to holy obedience, he forewarns them of certain false teachers that would arise, against whom he speaks with great severity, as he does against profane scoffers.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 69. He exhorteth them to consider their privileges and obligations ; and, adverting to his own death, assures them that Christ is the Son of God, &c.

1 SIMON PETER, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to those that have obtained like precious faith with us, in the righteousness of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ :
 2 Grace and peace be multiplied to you by the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our 3 Lord ; According as his divine power hath given unto us all things relating to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who hath called us by his glory and virtue :

By which are given to us exceedingly great 4 and precious promises : that by these ye might be partakers of a divine nature, having escaped the corruption which is in the 5 world through evil desire. And to this end, using all diligence, add to your faith forti- 6 tude ; and to fortitude knowledge ; And to knowledge temperance ; and to temperance 7 patience ; and to patience godliness ; And to godliness brotherly kindness ; and to 8 brotherly kindness love. For when these things are in you and abound, they manifest 9 that ye are not barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But

CHAP. I. 1—4. Like precious faith in] Faith is called precious as arising from Divine grace, and as a principle of new spiritual obedience, and inseparably connected with all saving blessings.—Of our God and Saviour] The justness of this version is admitted by the best Greek critics, and it has been proved that the words cannot admit of any other. See Dr. Twells, G. Sharp, and Middleton.—By his glory] Some render, ' by his glorious virtue or power.'
 Whitby understands the glorious virtue and energy of the Holy Spirit to be meant.—By which] Some MSS. and versions read deon, ' by whom,' which would refer to him who hath called us. Indeed the text may refer to glory and virtue, denoting the glorious miracles, gifts, and influences of the Holy Spirit.

5—7. Add to your] Christian faith is not a notion, but a holy principle, and must be exemplified by the virtues of the Christian character.

8, 9. When these things] The virtues above-named.—
They manifest] The apostle uses the figure litotes, meaning the opposite ; they prove that you are growing and fruitful in the knowledge, &c.—Hath not these] Is not adding to his faith, &c. but resting in a mere formal pro-

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 69. He foretells of false teachers, and their punishment, from which the godly shall be delivered; their profane and impious conduct, &c.

he that hath not these things is blind, having closed his eyes, and forgotten that he was 10 formerly cleansed from his sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, diligently endeavour to make your calling and election sure: for, if ye do these things, ye shall never 11 fall: For thus an entrance shall be abundantly ministered to you into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.
 12 Wherefore I will not be negligent to remind you always of these things; though ye know them, and be established in the 13 present truth. Yea, I think it right, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you 14 up by reminding you; Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ declared to 15 me. Moreover I will endeavour that ye may be able, after my decease, to have these 16 things always in remembrance. For we followed not cunningly devised fables, when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were 17 eye-witnesses of his majesty. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when such a voice came to him from the excellent glory, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.
 18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy 19 mount. We have also the word of prophecy now more confirmed; to which ye do well to attend, as to a lamp that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the 20 day-star arise in your hearts: Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture
 21 is from a man's own invention. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

fession, 'is blind,' 'having closed his eyes' wilfully against the light of truth, 'and forgot that he was formerly cleansed from his sins,' by the profession he made, and by submitting, as a proof of the sincerity of it, to baptism. Acts xxii. 16.
 10, 11. Election sure] Make it an assured thing to yourselves.

16—18. Fables] Such as the heathen poets have invented respecting their gods.—The power] The power displayed by Christ when he came to redeem us, in his miracles, &c. and especially when he appeared in majesty on the mount, and when the Father bore testimony to him in the most evident and glorious manner. Matt. xvii. 5, &c.

19—21. More confirmed] From what occurred at the transfiguration, 'We have the word of prophecy' contained in the Old Testament, and that delivered by Christ or any of his apostles, 'more confirmed' to us, as that event showed he was the Son of God, the true Messiah, the wonderful, the counsellor, &c.—Lamp that shineth] Prophecy is like a lamp in the night, affording some light as to the events foretold; but the accomplishment is as the dawn of the day, when Christians understand it fully.—Of a man's own invention] The rendering of Macknight is adopted. Benson, 'It is not of private explanation, or 'the explanation of a man's own mind.' For the prophecy came not of old time, by the will of man; but holy men, &c. This is a reason of what precedes.

But there were false prophets also among 1 the Jewish people, as there will be false teachers even among you, who will craftily bring in destructive sects, and denying the sovereign Lord who bought them, bring on themselves swift destruction. And many 2 will follow their 'impurities;' because of whom the way of truth will be evil-spoken of. And through covetousness they will 3 make a gain of you, by their feigned words: but their judgment long since foretold, now lingereth not, and their destruction slumbereth not.

For if God spared not the angels who 4 sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them up to chains of darkness to be reserved for judgment; And spared not 5 the old world, but saved Noah, the eighth person preserved, a preacher of righteousness, when he brought the flood upon the world of the ungodly; And turned the 6 cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them with an utter overthrow, making them an example to those that should afterwards live ungodly; Yet delivered just Lot, who was grieved by the impure behaviour of the wicked; (For that 8 righteous man dwelling among them, by seeing and hearing, had his righteous soul distressed from day to day with their unlawful deeds;) The Lord then knoweth how 9 to deliver the godly out of trial, and to reserve the unjust to the day of judgment to be punished.

But especially those that walk after 10 strange flesh, in unclean lust, and despise dominion. Presumptuous and self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities. Whereas angels, who are greater in power 11

CHAP. II. 1, 2. False prophets] Though the true prophets spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit, yet there were others who uttered only their own dreams; and there will be false teachers also among you.—Sects] Ambitious persons teaching false doctrines, from carnal and mercenary motives, denying the sovereign Lord, &c. God is said to buy or purchase Israel by bringing them into a church state, and giving them the means of grace, Exod. xv. 16. Deuter. xxxii. 6; and in this sense Christ may be said to have purchased these false teachers.—(v) Griesb.

4. The angels who sinned] The sentiment of Peter is conformable to the doctrine of the prophets, our Lord, and other apostles, on this subject.—Chains of darkness] Confined in a state of misery as by chains; and though permitted to tempt man, yet are always under a sovereign control.

5—9. Saved Noah] Together with his sons and their wives, when he brought the flood, &c. Gen. chap. vii. 8.—Making them an example] Of his indignation and justice; of that misery which awaits impenitent sinners. Yet he delivered Lot, who served him in Sodom. Gen. xix. 1, &c.

10. Strange flesh] Committing the sin of Sodom. Rom. i. 26, 27. Jude, verse 7. Some think Peter here describes the filthy sect of the Nicolaitans.

11. Whereas angels] If we refer the word dignities to civil magistrates whose office is to punish such evil-doers, the apostle may be considered as contrasting the conduct of and might, bring not a reviling accusation 12 against them before the Lord. But these, as brute creatures, made by nature to be taken and destroyed, speaking evil of things which they understand not, shall be utterly 13 destroyed in their own corruption: And shall receive the reward of unrighteousness, as they count it pleasure to riot in the day time. They are spots and blemishes, living in luxury, by their own deceits, while they 14 feast with you; Having eyes full of adultery, and which cannot cease from sin; alluring unstable persons; having a heart exercised in covetous practices; accursed children; 15 Who have forsaken the right path, and gone astray, following the way of Balaam, the son of Beor, who loved the wages of 16 unrighteousness, But received a rebuke for his transgression: the dumb ass, speaking with man's voice, forbad the madness of 17 the prophet. These are as wells without water, as clouds driven away by a tempest; to whom the blackness of darkness is re-18 served for ever. For they speak great swelling words of vanity, and allure with fleshly desires and impurities, those that had nearly escaped from such as live in 19 error. While they promise them freedom, they themselves are slaves of corruption;

 for by whatever a man is overcome, by that 20 he is enslaved. For, if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, their last state is 21 worse than their first. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, when they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered to them. But this hath 22 befallen them according to that true proverb,

 The dog hath returned to his own vomit;
 and the sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 69. The certainty of Christ's coming to judgment; the awful change which will be made; an exhortation to godliness.

THIS second epistle, beloved, I now write 1 unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds to remembrance; That ye may 2 be mindful of the words which were formerly spoken by the holy prophets, and the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour: Knowing this first, that great 3 scoffers will come in the last days, walking after their own evil desires, And saying, 4 Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. For of this they willingly are 5 ignorant, that the heavens were made of old by the word of God, and the earth also, which standeth out of the water, and in the water: Which things being so, the world 6 that then was, having been overflowed with water, was destroyed. But the heavens and 7 the earth, which are now, by the same word, are reserved and kept for fire against the day of judgment, and of the destruction of ungodly men. But, beloved, be not igno- 8 rant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not 9 slow concerning his promise, as some men count slowness; but is long-suffering towards us, not willing that any should perish, the holy ministering angels with theirs. In giving in their report of the conduct of these false teachers, they state matters as they are, and bring no railing or reviling accusation against even them before the Lord.

12-16. As brute creatures] As wild beasts, which were intended to be taken and destroyed, so these speaking evil of things, &c. of laws, punishments, and of those who administer them, will be destroyed in their own corruption, as they assuredly shall receive the reward, &c.—They are spots
 To the Christian name, living in luxury, while they feast at your love-feasts. Well may they be called accursed children, who imitate the vice of Balaam, &c. See Numb.
 xxii. &c.

17. These are as] These false and wicked teachers are as wells without water, or as clouds, &c. promising great things, but only deceiving and destroying, and shall themselves be destroyed.

18. Nearly escaped] They allure those heathens, who, occasionally hearing the gospel, were convinced of its truth, and ready to come out from them; but these teachers allure them to follow their own impure ways.

19. Freedom] From the holy law of God, pretending that they are allowed to live in every indulgence; and know not that they are slaves to their vices.

20. Their last state] What they did before was through ignorance; but if they are entangled and live in the same pollutions, they do it knowingly, and can have no excuse for their sin. The next verse assigns this reason.

21, 22. The way of righteousness] Taught in the gospel, 273

than when they have known it, &c.—That true proverb]
 The dog, &c. Prov. xxvi. 11. The force of their evil habits, though checked for a time, yet prevails over the convictions of their consciences, and they again return to all their former follies and vices.

CHAP. III. 1-4. In both which] The relative is plural, and this is a proof that the author had written before.— Formerly spoken] In reference to a day of final judgment, when the ungodly shall be punished and the righteous rewarded. See Ps. l. 1-6; lxxv. 8. Dan. xii. 2. Is. lxvi.
 24.—Great scoffers] Infidels denying the truth of revelation, and the existence of a future state, and ridiculing the notion of a resurrection and a judgment-day.

5. Of this they] They do not desire to know what has happened, but even dispute against and deny the Mosaic account of the creation and deluge.—Out of the water]
 Part being dry land, and a part being covered with the sea.

6. The world] The earth with all its inhabitants was altered, and even after the waters were gathered into their proper receptacles, and the dry land appeared, its atmosphere, its surface and productions, were not so pure and fit for the support of life as they had been.

7. The same word] By the same word or command of God, which originally created them. See verse 5.—For fire]
 For destruction by fire, verses 10-13.

8, 9. One day is] This is said in allusion to Ps. xc. 4;
 but neither the psalmist nor apostle meant that the Lord does not perceive any difference between the unequal durations of a day and a thousand years: the sense is, that he

- but that all should come to repentance.
 10 But the day of the Lord will come as a thief; ° in which the heavens will pass away with a great noise, and the elements with great heat will be dissolved, the earth also and the works that are thereon will be
 11 burnt up. Since then all these things shall be dissolved, what kind of persons ought ye to be in all holy behaviour and godliness, 12 Looking for and earnestly desiring the coming of the day of God, in which the heavens being set on fire will be dissolved, and the elements will melt with great heat?
 13 But besides, according to his promise, we look for new heavens and a new earth, in which dwelleth righteousness.
 14 Wherefore, beloved, since ye look for such things, diligently endeavour to be found by him in peace, without spot, and blameless. And account ye the long- 15 suffering of our Lord to be for salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given to him, hath written unto you; As in all his epistles also, 16 speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, to their own destruction. Since therefore, 17 beloved, ye know these things before, beware lest ye be led away with the error of the wicked, and fall from your own stedfastness. But grow in the grace, and in the know- 18 ledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

will fulfil his own word at the time appointed, though it be a thousand years hence, with as much certainty as if he did it on the day he spoke it, the revolutions of time not in the least affecting his designs and purposes.

10. As a thief] When men are not expecting it, as the deluge came upon the old world.—The earth also] Nothing is said which implies that the matter of it will be utterly annihilated; but its form, structure, and probably its nature, will in a great degree be changed.—(o) Of the night. Griesb.

11—13. All these things] Which men in general so highly value, what kind of persons should Christians be who believe these things. New heavens] But though expecting this judgment-day, and the conflagration of the earth, we expect before that period, a happy state of the church, when the promise, Ic. lxx. 16—18, will be fulfilled.

14—16. And account] Instead of considering his delay in coming to judgment, as a proof that he never will come, consider it as designed to show his long-suffering, and to be for the salvation of all who repent and believe the gospel.—Our beloved brother] It is probable that Paul was now dead, but he honours him as a beloved brother, and fellow-apostle.—In all his epistles] These were then known and acknowledged to be Paul's, and some of them were written and sent to the churches in the countries where those dwelt to whom Peter writes.—Of these things] See 1 Thess. iii. 13; iv. 14—18. 1 Cor. xv. 22, &c.; 2 Cor. v. 1—10, &c.—Hard to be understood] Which require a humble, teachable spirit to be understood, and which the unteachable, those puffed up with pride and conceit of their talents, and the unstable, James i. 8, are accustomed to wrest and torture to serve their own purposes. Compare 2 Thess. ii. 2, and 2 Tim. ii. 18.

17, 18. Ye know these] Since I have faithfully forewarned you of these things, take heed against them, and be not led away with the error of the wicked. How suitable is this advice, and happy will they be who follow it!

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF

JOHN.

INTRODUCTION.

By the unanimous consent of antiquity this epistle is ascribed and acknowledged to be John's, the author of the Gospel. It seems to have been written long after the Gospel. This epistle is directed to no particular church, but seems designed for the use of all Christians, to oppose the various errors which sprang up in the church, and which subverted the doctrine of Christ; such as the Docetæ held, some denying the humanity of Christ; and some, his divinity; or the Nicolaitans, who maintaining that Christ having suffered for us, we are under no law to maintain good works, but by a mere profession of believing we are saved, and may live in every kind of sinful indulgence.

CHAPTER I.

4. D. 90. The glorious person of Christ as the word of life, who has been manifested to us; and by conformity to him we have communion with him and forgiveness of sins.

1 WITH respect to the Word of Life which

CHAP. I. 1. The Word of life] The terms αὐτὸς ὁ λόγος are ambiguous, and may either denote 'from the beginning' of our Lord's ministry, or 'from eternity.' See 2 Thess. ii. 13, and Greek, Mic. v. 3. The latter sense agrees with John i. 1; Rev. i. 3; iii. 14; xxi. 6; and with the next was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked on, and our hands have handled; (For the Life was mani- 2 fested; and we have seen, and bear witness, verse, which is explanatory of this. For the sake of perspicuity the construction is followed, and not the order of the text.

2. For the life] The Word of Life, or Son of God, was manifested by his incarnation to the senses of men, and we

and declare to you that eternal Life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;) That which we have seen and heard we declare to you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and our fellowship is indeed with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

Now this is the declaration which we have heard from him, and make known to you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we speak falsely, and conform not to the truth: But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with each other, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, God is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned, we make him speak falsely, and his word is not in us.

My children, I write these things unto you, that ye may not sin. Yet if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: And he is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 90. To know God is to keep his commandments; to love our brethren, and not to love the world; we must beware of seducers, and continue in faith and holiness.

3 AND we hereby know that we know him if we keep his commandments. He who have seen him, and we declare to you him who is not only 'the Life, but who had an Eternal Life, with the Father as his Son, and which was declared to us by a voice from heaven at his baptism, &c.

3. Our fellowship] The term κοινωνία signifies a joint participation in any thing, 1 Cor. x. 16, and was used to denote a firm, a partnership in trade, &c. Christians were united by their common faith into one society, and were joint partakers of the same blessings and privileges; and the head of this, and the source of all good, is the Father and his Son Jesus Christ.

5-7. That God is light] A being of the most perfect knowledge, of unspotted holiness, and the great source of animation, joy, and pleasure.—And the blood] This fellowship, and the continuance of it, is founded on the blood of Jesus shed to atone for our sins, and by which we believers are cleansed from the guilt of them.

8-10. If we say that] If we maintain, as some do, that no action is now sinful; or that we live so as to fulfil the holy law of God, we are but deceiving ourselves, &c.—If we confess] With sincerity and true penitence, 'he is faithful to perform his promise, and just to his Son, in forgiving our sins, and by the influence of the Spirit cleansing us,' &c.

CHAP. II. 1, 2. That ye may not sin] Knowingly, wilfully, and habitually, see verse 8.—Yet if any man sin] Fall by some temptation, let him not despair of mercy, as we have an advocate with the Father to plead our cause.—The propitiation] The term ἱλασμός is used by the Seventy to express the making of atonement for any trespass or sin. Levit. vi. 6, 7; Numb. v. 8; Ezek. xlv. 27. Under the saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, speaketh falsely, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, of a truth the love of God is perfected in him: hereby we know that we are in him. He who saith that he abideth in him ought himself so to walk, as he walked.

'Beloved,' I write no new commandment to you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning: The old commandment is the word which ye have heard [from the beginning.] Again, a new commandment I write to you, which thing is true in him and in you: because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth. He who saith that he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now. He who loveth his brother, abideth in the light, and there is no occasion of stumbling in him. But he who hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

I write to you, children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake. [I write to you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write to you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I write to you, children, because ye have known the Father.] I write to you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write to you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the Evil One. Love not the world, nor the things which 15 are in the world. If any man love the law this was done by the shedding of blood; for this only made the atonement, and was the ground of pardon. And so Jesus Christ, the righteous One, died on the cross, and his blood was shed for the expiation of our sins.

3-6. If we keep] We have no right, no genuine knowledge of Christ, if we do not keep his commands, &c.—That he abideth] As a branch in the vine, that he is united to him by faith, ought to manifest it by walking in love as he walked.

7-11. Is the word which] Preached to you from the first, namely, 'that ye should keep his word and abide in him.'—New commandment] '[so loving one another as Christ loved you, John xiii. 34. This is included in 'Walking as Christ walked,' verse 6, and expressed in verses 9-11.—Which thing is true] Which new command, or practice of love, is verified and exemplified in him and in you.—(v) Griesb.

12-17. I write to you, children] In the 12th, 13th, and 14th verses there is such a tautology as is not to be found in any other place. Doddridge omits the 13th verse, as do others; but Dr. Wall the 14th. Some MSS. omit one part, and some another. Doddridge is followed, including the 13th in brackets.—Your sins are] Emphatically in your baptism. Acts xxii. 16.—Him that is] This text clearly refers to the eternal existence of our Lord, 'from the beginning' being equivalent to eternity. See note, chap. i. 1, and Middleton.—Young men] By children, young converts are meant; by young men, vigorous Christians, who were strong in faith and active in the support and propagation of the gospel; by fathers, aged Christians, who had long known Jesus and served him.

world, the love of the Father is not in him.
 16 For all that is in the world, the desire of the flesh, and the desire of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but 17 is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the desire of it: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.
 18 My children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist will come, so even now there are many antichrists; by which we know that it is the last time.
 19 They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would have continued with us; but they went out, that they might be made manifest
 20 that none of them were of us. But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and know 21 all things. I write not to you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no falsehood is from the truth.
 22 Who speaketh falsely, but he who denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, 23 who denieth the Father and the Son. Whosoever denieth the Son, hath not the Father: "but he that acknowledgeth the Son hath 24 the Father also." Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall abide in you, ye also shall abide in the Son, and in the Father.
 25 And this is the promise which he hath promised us, even everlasting life. These things I write to you concerning those who 27 would deceive you. But the unction which ye have received from him abideth in you, and ye need not that any one teach you; but as that unction teacheth you concerning all things, and is truth, and no falsehood; and even as it hath taught you, abide in 28 him. And now, my children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have

13. It is the last time] The last dispensation.—Antichrist] Of whom Paul has written; and some bearing Christ's name are his enemies, and may be called antichrists.

19. They went out from] Hence John means wicked apostates from the Christian church.—Were not of us] Never did in heart believe the truth, and feel its holy influence; for if they had, they would have continued with us, &c.—None of them] The adverb οὐκ is regarded not as restricting, but as converting it into a universal negation.

20. An unction] Of the Spirit from Christ the Holy One of God; and taught by this, ye know all things relating to Christian doctrine and discipline.

21—23. No falsehood is from] No false sentiment propagated by these apostates is any part of the gospel, or taught by the Holy Spirit; and indeed he who denieth Jesus to be the Christ, denieth the Father, who gave testimony to him as his Son.

24, 25. Let that abide] That doctrine which ye heard at first, and then ye will abide in the fellowship of the Son and of the Father, chap. i. 3.—This is the promise] See John xvii. 1, 2; Luke xii. 24.

26—28. Deceive you] The false teachers, whom I have named antichrists, the real enemies of our Lord.—Abide in you] Teaching you to discern between pretenders to spiritual gifts, and those who possess them.

29. Every one that doeth] That followeth his holy ex confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming. If ye know that he is righteous, be assured that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 90. God's great love towards us in our adoption; we are bound to keep his commandments, and show brotherly love to each other.

BEHOLD, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the children of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not: Beloved, now are we the children of God, and it is not yet manifest what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall be manifested, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure. Whosoever doeth sin transgresseth the law also; for sin is the transgression of the law. And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin. Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not: whosoever sinneth hath not seen him, nor known him. My children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as Christ is righteous. He that doeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinned from the beginning: for this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil. Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God; nor he who loveth not his brother. For this is the charge which ye heard from the beginning, that we love one another, and the love that we have to the Father, is the love that we have to the world, and the love that we have to the Father, is the love that we have to the world.

CHAP. III. 1—3. What manner of love] As the term ἀγάπη signifies both how great and what kind, the apostle might have both senses in his mind.—Love] Unspeakable and immense, and displayed in the most astonishing manner towards sinners, being adopted and called the children of God. Called signifies 'to be, to become such.'—What we shall be] To what dignity, honour, and glory we shall be raised; but this we know, that, at his coming, we shall be made like him, Phil. iii. 21.

4, 5. Doeth sin] Practiseth it daily, as if his trade; opposeth the great design of our Lord's manifestation in the flesh. John i. 29; Tit. ii. 14.

8. Is of the devil] He imitates him and complies with his suggestions.—From the beginning] He introduced sin into the creation; and, as he was the first offender, he continues to sin and to delight in sinning.—Destroy the works] Sin and the miseries flowing from it.

9, 10. Doth not sin] See verse 4.—His seed] The word of the gospel, 1 Pet. i. 23, cordially believed and treasured up in the heart.—Cannot sin] Habitually, or at any time willingly, as the unregenerate do, and as he did before his spiritual birth. The word 'cannot' must, in many cases, be thus limited, expressing only a strong degree of disinclination. Luke xiii. 33; Heb. ix. 5; 2 Pet. ii. 14.

11—15. The charge] See John xiii. 34; xv. 12.—Not

12 another. Not as Cain, who was of that Evil One, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous. Wonder not, my brethren, if the world hate you. 13 We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death. 14 Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath everlasting life abiding in him. Hereby we know love, in that Christ laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But whoso hath the good things of this world, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how abideth the love of God in him? My children, let us not love in word, nor in tongue; but in deed and in truth. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him. For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence towards God. 22 And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things which are pleasing in his sight. And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he hath given us commandment. And he that keepeth his commandments abideth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 90. He warneth them not to believe all teachers who pretended to have the Spirit, but to try them; by many reasons he urgeth brotherly love.

1 BELoved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they be of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the 2 world. Hereby ye know the Spirit of God:

as Cain] Gen. iv. 1, &c. His own works were evil, and not being accepted as his brother's were, he envied, then hated, and at last slew him. Wonder not if such wicked men hate you.

16—18. We know love] We know what it is, and what it effects and accomplishes; and we are to follow his example, and if necessary to lay down our life, &c.—Love not in word] James ii. 14—16. Let us give real proofs of our love by our works.

19—21. Of the truth] By our brotherly love we know that we have received and obey the truth as it is in Christ; and are assured in our hearts that we shall be approved of God.

22—24. We ask, we receive] We ask agreeably to his will, we do and shall receive, because we keep his, &c.; especially by believing on his Son Jesus Christ.

CHAP. IV. 1. Every spirit] Every person pretending to be inspired; but try the teachers, that you may know whether they are sent from God, or are among the false prophets, many of whom are now infesting the church, chap. ii. 8, and the world.

Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God: And every spirit that doth not confess that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, of which ye have heard that it should come; and it is even now already in the world. Ye are of God, my children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world. They are of the world: therefore they speak of the world, and the world heareth them. We are of God. He that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby we know the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

Beloved, let us love one another: for love is from God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not, hath not known God; for God is love. Herein the love of God was manifested towards us, that God sent his only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Herein is love; not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be a propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another. No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God abideth in us, and the love of him is perfected in us. Hereby we know that we abide in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit. And we have seen and testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world. Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God abideth in him, and he in God. And we have known and believed the love which God hath to us. God is love; and he that abideth in love abideth in God, and God in him. Hereby is our love made perfect, that we may have confidence in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world. There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because

2, 3. Hereby ye know] All may know by this that a teacher hath the spirit of God; for he will confess and maintain that Jesus Christ hath come.

4. Of God] Born and taught by him.—Greater is he] Is God who dwells in you by his Spirit, than the Evil One who dwells in and impels these men of the world.

7. Love is from God] Is derived from his influence, and promoted by his example; for every one that loveth his Christian brother is born of him, &c.

9—11. Herein is love] It is herein manifested in a manner the most wonderful, and the most free, chap. iii. 16, &c.

12, 13. No man hath seen] John i. 18. Though no man hath seen God, yet his only-begotten Son hath revealed him.

14—17. Saviour of the world] Of all that have, do, or shall believe in him.

18, 19. No fear in love] No slavish fear of the judgment, as perfect love to God and to man in the most effectual manner casteth it out. Though we love him in the highest degree, let us remember that it is because he first loved us.

fear hath torment. He that feareth is not 19 made perfect in love. We love him, because 20 he first loved us. If a man say, I love God, and hate his brother, he speaketh falsely:
 for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he 21 hath not seen? And we have this commandment from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 90. He that loveth God loveth his children; he keepeth his commandments; Jesus is able to save us, and to hear our prayers for ourselves and others.

1 WHOSOEVER believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God; and whosoever loveth him that begot, loveth him also that 2 is begotten by him. Hereby we know that we love the children of God, when we love 3 God, and keep his commandments. For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments 4 are not grievous. For whosoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this giveth us victory over the world, even our faith.
 5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of 6 God? This is he who came by water and blood, even Jesus Christ: not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth testimony, because the 7 Spirit is truth. For there are three that 8 bear testimony,* The Spirit, and the Water, and the Blood: and these three agree in one. If we receive the testimony of men, 9 the testimony of God is greater: for this is the testimony of God which he hath testified of his Son. He who believeth on the 10 Son of God hath the testimony in himself:

 he who believeth not God maketh him a liar; because he believeth not the testimony which God hath testified of his Son. And 11 this is the testimony, that God hath given to us everlasting life, and this life is through his Son. He that hath the Son hath this 12 life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not this life. These things I write to 13 you who believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have everlasting life.*

And this is the confidence which we have 14 in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us. And, if we know 15 that he heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions granted which we ask of him. If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, 16
 he shall ask, and God shall give him life; for such I say as sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say that one should ask concerning it. (All unrighteous- 17 ness is sin;) and there is a sin not unto death.
 We know that whosoever is born of God 18
 sinneth not: but he who is born of God keepeth himself, and the Evil One toucheth him not. And we know that we are of God, 19 and the whole world lieth under the Evil
 One. And we know that the Son of God 20

20, 21. I love God] If any one profess love to God, and yet hate his brother man or Christian, he is a deceiver.

CHAP. V. 1-3. Him that begot] They love him because of his love to them, and will love those who have been begotten, by his truth and Spirit, to a resemblance of himself.

4, 5. Whosoever] John uses the neuter gender, says Macknight, to denote all kind of persons, male or female, Jew or Gentile, bond or free; but that it is often used for the masculine is certain.—And this giveth] It is better to render clearly than to retain the idiom of the text.

6-8. This is he who] Came as the Messiah, and Son of God, and claimed to be so. Hence this coming does not refer to his coming in the flesh, and being born into the world, but to the beginning of his ministry, when he was baptized in the Jordan, &c. Thus he came, and was attested to be the Son of God by water; and so he was by the shedding of his blood on the cross, as in that event prophecies were fulfilled, and as at his trial he declared himself to be the Son of God, and during his crucifixion God bore testimony to him in the miracles wrought, and by his resurrection.—(o) In heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit; and these three are one. And there are three that bear testimony on earth.] Griesb.—Three that bear] The Spirit by his astonishing gifts, the ordinance of baptism solemnly appointed by Christ as emblematic of moral purity, and the Lord's Supper as being a commemoration of his shed blood. Now these three agree in the testimony they bear to Jesus as the Son of God.

9. The testimony of men] As we do in judicial affairs, and as the law enjoined, Deuter. xix. 15: the testimony of God is more deserving our regard. Now what I have stated is the remarkable testimony God has given, and is yet giving concerning his Son Jesus Christ.

10-13. Hath the testimony in himself] His own faith in Christ produceth such a change in his temper, hopes, and conduct, that by these he has the same testimony in himself as the Spirit, water, and blood bear; but he who believeth not the testimony which God hath borne to him maketh God a liar, treats him as one, and must answer for it.—This is the testimony] The great truth testified in revelation to us, and which is founded on Christ's being the Son of God and the Saviour, that God hath given, &c.

14, 15. We have in him] Either in God, verse 11, or in the Son of God, the immediate antecedent.—Any thing] The power of working miracles, the gift of wisdom, healing diseases, &c. Yet it is now a truth, and ever will be, that when we ask what is agreeable to his will, and ask in a proper manner, he will hear us.

16, 17. Not unto death] A sin which hath brought on the sinner some disease as a punishment, but which the Spirit revealeth to any one, is not unto death, he may pray for him, and he shall be miraculously restored to health. James v. 14, 15; 1 Cor. v. 5, 11, 30; 1 Tim. i. 20, and notes.—

There is a sin unto death] A sin which hath brought on the sinner some disease as a punishment, but which the Spirit revealeth to any one, is not unto death, he may pray for him, and he shall be miraculously restored to health. James v. 14, 15; 1 Cor. v. 5, 11, 30; 1 Tim. i. 20, and notes.—There is a sin unto death] Speaking evil of the miraculous works of the Spirit, as the Jews did; aggravated apostasy, final impenitence, and unbelief.—All unrighteousness] Any act of disobedience is sin, and deserves death, but there is a sin which does not deserve death to be inflicted in a public, judicial manner: such are all the failures of good men, which they feel and lament, and such are many committed in ignorance and unbelief; for those who are out of the church God will judge hereafter.

18, 19. Sinneth not] Does not sin a sin unto death. 1 Tim. i. 20.—We know] Are born of him, belong to him, and obey him; but the world, the wicked of every class, lieth under the Evil One, under his power and dominion, willingly serving him.

is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, in his Son

Jesus Christ; This is the true God, and the eternal life. My children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

20, 21. Know him that is true] Some would refer this to the Father; but the following clauses limit it to his Son Jesus Christ, as they appear evidently to be in apposition, and the last is explanatory. 'We are in him that is true, in his Son,' &c. This or He is the true God, as one with the Father, and the person before mentioned as the Word of Life, and as the 'Everlasting Life,' which was with the Father, chap. i. 1, 2. This appears the obvious, the natural construction and sense of the text; and is a direct proof of the divinity of our Lord.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF

J O H N.

INTRODUCTION.

From the epistle itself it appears that the female to whom it was written was a person of rank and wealth. She had embraced and nobly professed the faith; and was distinguished for her liberality, and kind attention to the ministers of the word and the disciples of Jesus. She probably lived in some city of Asia at no great distance from Ephesus, as John hoped soon to see her. The design of this letter was to guard her against false teachers and their heresies.

A. D. 91. He exhorteth her and her children to perseverance in love and faith, and to avoid those seducers who brought not the true doctrine of Christ.

- 1 THE elder to the lady Electa and her children, whom I love in the truth; and not I only, but all those likewise who know the truth; Because of the truth which abideth in us, and shall be with us for ever.
- 3 Grace, mercy, and peace be with you, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.
- 4 I rejoiced greatly that I found some of thy children walking in the truth, according as we have received a commandment from the Father. And now I beseech thee, lady, not as writing a new commandment to thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments. This is the commandment, That, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it. For many 7 deceivers are gone forth into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ did come in the flesh. Such an one is a deceiver and an antichrist. Take heed to yourselves; 8 that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward. Whosoever transgresseth, and 9 abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, hath both the Father and the Son. If any one come unto you, and bring not 10 this doctrine, receive him not into your house, nor wish him success; For he who 11 wisheth him success is a partaker of his evil deeds.

Having many things to write to you, I 12 would not write with paper and ink: but I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face, that our joy may be full. The 13 children of thy chosen sister salute thee. Amen.

1—3. The elder] Peter gave himself the same title; and it is remarkable that John never mentions his own name in any of his writings. He must have been now very aged. —To the lady Electa] Some understand Electa as an appellative, signifying the chosen or excellent lady; but from the article and Greek usage it is clearly a proper name. —In the truth] Whom I love as a Christian who knows and believes the truth.

4. I found some of] I met with some of them; and from conversation, I learned with joy that they were sound in the faith, and walking according to it.

5, 6. Not a new commandment] Not one never enjoined before, but one co-eval with the gospel. 1 John ii. 8, and John viii. 34.—This is love] 1 John v. 3.

7. Many deceivers] False teachers, pretending to divine inspiration, 1 John iv. 1, &c.—Did come in] Denying his incarnation, and of course his sufferings and death. Every such teacher is a deceiver and the enemy of Christ.

8. Take heed to] Guard against such men, lest, departing from the faith, you be led away with the error of the wicked, and we lose the fruits of our labour among you.

10, 11. Bring not this] When Christians or teachers went to places where they were not known, they usually had letters of commendation, 2 Cor. iii. 1; and if not, they made some profession of their faith. Now if any one taught not as a Christian or teacher this doctrine, 'that Christ did come in the flesh,' and that obedience to him in all things taught in the gospel is due, receive him not into your house, nor wish him success, &c., as this would in effect be approving of his errors, and becoming partakers with him in the guilt of his evil deeds.

13. Of thy chosen sister] From this it appears that the lady to whom John wrote had a sister, who resided with her family where John was; and who, like her, had embraced the gospel. As nothing is said respecting their husbands, we may infer that they were dead, or else continued heathens.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF J O H N.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS epistle is directed to Gaius, who, according to Lardner, was an eminent Christian who lived in some city of Asia not far from Ephesus. The apostle speaks of shortly coming to him, which he could not have done had he lived at Corinth, or in some other distant place.

A. D. 91. He commends Gaius for his piety and hospitality to strangers and ministers; and complains of Diotrephes for his pride, while he bears testimony to good Demetrius.

- 1 THE elder to the well beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth.
- 2 Beloved, I wish that thou mayest prosper in all things and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth. For I rejoiced greatly,
- 3 when the brethren came and bore testimony of the truth which is in thee, according as thou walkest in the truth. I have no
- 4 greater joy than to hear that my children walk in the truth. Beloved, thou doest faithfully whatsoever thou doest to the
- 5 brethren, and to strangers; Who have borne testimony of thy love before the church: whom if thou conduct on their journey in a manner becoming a servant of
- 6 God, thou wilt do well: Because for the sake of his name they went forth, taking
- 7 nothing of the Gentiles. We therefore ought to receive such, that we might be
- 8 fellow labourers for the truth. I would have written to the church; but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the pre-eminence among them, receiveth us not. Wherefore, 10 if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, tattling against us with malicious words: and not content herewith, he receiveth not the brethren himself, and forbiddeth those that would, and casteth them out of the church. Beloved, imitate not 11 that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God. Demetrius 12 hath a good testimony from all men, and from the truth itself; and we also bear him testimony; and ye know that our testimony is true.

I had many things to write, but I will 13 not with ink and pen write unto thee: But 14 I hope I shall shortly see thee, when we shall speak face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Salute the friends by name.

2—4. And be in health] From this it is inferred that this excellent man did not enjoy good bodily health; but he enjoyed what was better, prosperity of soul.

5—8. Doest faithfully] As a servant of Christ, faithfully obeying his will and receiving strangers who have visited thee, and borne testimony to thy love before the church; and let me remind thee, that, by so doing, we may be fellow-labourers in propagating the blessed gospel.

9, 10. Diotrephes] He is generally supposed to be the bi-hop or pastor, and Benson and others suppose him to be a Jew, who would not own the apostle's authority, nor receive those Gentile converts who went forth to preach the gospel. Hence John mildly reproves him, and declares he would remember his deeds when he came. Casteth them] Not only refusing them the rights of hospitality, but treating them as if they were not Christians. The terms denote excommunicating. John ix. 34, 35.

11. Imitate not] The evil example of Diotrephes; but ever exercise the brotherly love which the gospel requires.

12. A good testimony] From all who know him for his meekness, benevolence, and humility; and from the Truth, from Jesus in the gospel, who bears testimony to all such characters; and we join ours, which ye know to be true and deserving our regard.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF J U D E.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS epistle was written near the same time and on the same subject as the second of Peter; and in many parts the same words and sentiments occur which are found in 2 Pet. ii. From this some suppose that both were derived from some Jewish writing, and that little authority is due to them; while others more justly think that Jude had seen the epistle of Peter, and as his intention was to expose the same errors, probably prevailing in some different part of the Christian church, he borrowed what was adapted to his design.

1. D. 91. He exhorteth to constancy in the faith; exposes false teachers, for whose doctrines and manners dreadful punishment is prepared; the duty of the godly, &c.

1 JUDE, the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to those that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in 2 Jesus Christ, and called: Mercy, and peace, and love, be multiplied unto you.
 3 Beloved while I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it became necessary for me to write unto you and exhort you, that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered to the 4 saints. For some men have crept in unawares, who were long before described for this condemnation; ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying our only sovereign Lord,
 5 Jesus Christ. Now I desire to remind you, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved his people out of the land of Egypt, afterwards destroyed those 6 who believed not. And the angels who kept not their first state, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in eternal chains, under darkness, to the judgment of 7 the great day. Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities near to them, which in like manner with them, gave themselves
 8 over to uncleanness and unnatural passions, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of everlasting fire. In like 9 manner also these dreamers defile the flesh, despise dominion, and speak evil of dignities. Yet Michael, the archangel, when contending with the devil, he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring

If we refer what is here said to the dead body of Moses, the devil wished to make known where it was buried, and thus tempt the Jews to idolatry, and Michael, as watching over them, opposed him successfully. Macknight thinks the Jewish church is called the body of Moses, as the Christian is the body of Christ; and that Jude refers to Zech. iii. 1; xii. 1: and admitting the various reading, Zech. iii. 1, 2, the reference is clear.—But these speak evil] 2 Pet. iv. 12.

evil of those things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute creatures, in these things they corrupt themselves. Alas for them! because in the 11 way of Cain have they gone, and in the error of Balaam for reward they have rushed on, and in the gainsaying of Korah, they have destroyed themselves. These are 12 spots in your love-feasts, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear: they are as clouds without water, carried aside by winds; as trees whose fruit withereth, barren, twice dead, plucked up with the roots; As raging waves of the sea, 13 foaming out their own shame; as wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever. Now Enoch, the 14 seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, To execute judg- 15 ment upon all, and to convict all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have committed, and of all the hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him. These are mur- 16 murers, complainers, walking after their own evil desires: and their mouth speaketh great swelling words; admiring the persons of men for the sake of gain. But, beloved, 17 remember ye the words which have been spoken before by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; How they told you that there 18 would be in the last time scoffers, walking after their own ungodly desires. These 19 are they who separate themselves, sensual, not having the Spirit.

But ye, beloved, building up one another 20 in your most holy faith, praying by the Holy Spirit, Keep yourselves in the love 21

14, 15. Prophesied of these] This fact is not mentioned elsewhere; but from what Moses relates. Enoch was a man eminent for his piety, walking with God on earth, and translated to heaven. Like Noah, he was a preacher of righteousness; and Benson observes that the name he gave his son, proves him a prophet, Methuselah, which according to Bochart signifies, 'When he is dead a flood cometh.'—The Lord cometh] If he thus prophesied to the sinners of the old world, it is true respecting those who now live; for he will come to judgment, when he will convict all that are, &c.

REVELATION

OF SAINT JOHN THE DIVINE.

INTRODUCTION.

ACCORDING to Dr. Mill, this work, in a few years after it was written, was numbered among the apostolic writings, and received as the genuine production of the Evangelist John, by the churches of Asia, Syria, and Samaria; and the more distant ones of Africa, Egypt, Rome, and other churches of Europe. And both Sir Isaac Newton and Lowman were of opinion, that hardly any one book hath received more early, more authentic, or more satisfactory attestations. It was not questioned for above a hundred years afterwards; but in consequence of some absurd opinions respecting the Millennium which some Fathers held, and which they attempted to support by this book, a certain Caius denied its authority, and Dionysius of Alexandria raised objections preserved by Eusebius; but to all it may be answered, that they bring no proof against its authenticity, nor any testimony against John being the author of it; and on a subject of this nature, testimony alone ought to decide.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 96. John writeth to the seven churches of Asia, signified by the golden lamp-stands; the coming of Christ; his glorious power and majesty.

- 1 THE Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified it by his angel to
- 2 his servant John: Who hath testified of the word of God, and of the testimony given to Jesus Christ, even whatsoever
- 3 things he hath seen. Happy is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things that are written therein: for the time is near.
- 4 JOHN to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace, and peace be unto you, from him who is, and who was, and who is to come; and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne; And from Jesus 5 Christ, who is the faithful witness, and the first-born from the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. To him that loved us, and hath washed us from our sins by his own blood, And hath made us kings 6 and priests to his God and Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

Behold, he cometh with clouds; and 7 every eye shall see him, and they also who pierced him: and all the tribes of the earth shall lament because of him. Even so, Amen. I am the Alpha and the Omega," 8 saith the Lord "God," who is, and

CHAP. I. 1—3. Shortly come to pass] Some of the events predicted in this book will soon occur.—Who hath testified] Concerning the doctrine, miracles, and sufferings of Christ, in the gospel which he hath written, and in which is recorded the testimony given to him at his baptism, by the Father, &c.—And they that hear] Few persons then could afford to buy a copy of the scriptures: and the knowledge of most was derived from hearing them read in the assemblies of Christians; but it was not hearing but keeping the things enjoined to which the promise is made.

4—6. For him who is] From the eternal, unchanging God.—The seven spirits] To imagine that John prayed to created spirits or angels would be to make him an idolater. We must then understand the seven spirits to mean the Holy Spirit, thus called on account of the fullness and variety of his grace and operation, the word seven, in Hebrew, denoting fullness and perfection.—Prince of the kings] Being exalted far above them, and by his providence overruling them to accomplish his pleasure.

7, 8. Behold he cometh] John speaks of his coming as if at hand, because of the certainty of it; and he probably refers to Dan. vii. 13; Zech. xii. 10.—They who pierced him] The Jews; and even all others, when they see him in his glory, will lament that he was treated with such indignity and cruelty when on earth.—I am the Alpha] Here he who is described as coming in the clouds, speaks of himself as possessing divine attributes, see v. 18.—(o) The beginning and the end] Griesb.—(a) Griesb.

who was, and who is to come, the Almighty.

- 9 I John, your brother, and companion in affliction, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the island which is called Patmos, for the word of God, and 10 for my testimony to Jesus Christ. I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a loud voice, as of a trumpet, 11 Saying, "What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches ; " to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamos, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to 12 Philadelphia, and to Laodicea. And I turned to see whence the voice came that 13 spoke with me. And being turned, I saw seven golden lamp-stands ; And in the midst of the seven lamp-stands one like to the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girt about his breast 14 with a golden girdle. His head and his hair were white, as white wool, or as snow ;
15 and his eyes were as a flame of fire ; And his feet like fine brass, as if they had been purified in a furnace : and his voice as the 16 sound of many waters. And he had in his right hand seven stars : and out of his mouth went a sharp two-edged sword : and his countenance was as the sun shining in 17 his strength. And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as if dead. And he put his right hand upon me, saying to me, Fear not ; I 18 am the first and the last ; He that liveth, though I was once dead ; and, behold, I continue living for evermore, and have the 19 key of death and hades. Write therefore the things which thou hast seen, and the things which now are, and the things which shall be hereafter. The meaning of the 20 seven stars which thou seest in my right hand, and the seven golden lamp-stands, is this ; The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches : and the seven lamp-stands which thou seest are the seven churches.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 96. What is commanded to be written to the angels or ministers of the churches of Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, and Thyatira, &c.

To the angel of the church of Ephesus 1 write ; These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand ; that walketh in the midst of the seven golden lamp-stands ; I know thy works, and thy labour, 2 and thy patience, and that thou canst not bear those that are evil : and thou hast tried those who say that they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars : And hast patience, and hast borne much 3 for my name's sake, and hast not fainted. Nevertheless I have somewhat against 4 thee, because thou hast lost thy first love. Remember, therefore, whence thou hast 5 fallen, and repent, and do thy first works ; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy lamp-stand out of its place, unless thou repent. But this praise thou 6 hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate. He that hath 7 an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches, To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

And to the angel of the church in Smyrna 8 write ; These things saith the first and the last, who was dead, and is alive ; I know 9 thy works, and affliction, and poverty, (yet

9. Companion in the] A fellow-sufferer with you in the kingdom of Christ, banished to the island called Patmos, for preaching the word of God, and giving testimony to Christ. This event occurred about the year 95, in the reign of Domitian ; and this shows that this book could not be published sooner than 96 or 97.

10, 11. On the Lord's day] On the first day of the week, the day on which he rose from the dead, and the day on which Christians usually meet for divine worship ; on this day, in the island of Patmos, the Spirit came upon me as on the prophets, and presented to my mind the following visions (o) I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last] Griesb. (o) Which are in Asia] Griesb.

13. I saw seven golden] This is the just version of the text, but they must have been single, and very different in their form from the chandelier of the tabernacle. Exod. xxv. 31, &c. They were properly lamp-stands, and each was the emblem of a single church. They were placed either in a circle, or in a straight line, a space being left in the middle, where in the vision stood one like to the Son of Man, a most glorious person, clothed in robes of majesty.

14—16. His head] This is very like what Daniel saw, chap. vii. 9.—White] Surrounded with uncommon brightness and lustre, as the word signifies.

17—20. As if dead] The glory of this scene overpowered me, and I became as one dead, insensible ; but he revived me, and said, Fear not. See Dan. x. 10.—I am the first] Though appearing as a man, I am indeed possessed of divine perfections and glories.—He that liveth] He that now liveth again, though I was, as to my human nature, as thou knowest, once dead and laid in the tomb ; and behold, as your high priest and Saviour, I continue living for ever.—The meaning] This vision of the stars and lamp-stands represents the seven pastors, and seven churches of Asia.

CHAP. II. 1. To the angel] From what is said to the angel of the church at Ephesus, and the other churches, it is evident, that the people forming these churches are included, or rather particularly addressed ; and as we learn that there were in this church many elders or pastors, Acts xx. 17, 28, it is by some concluded that the term angel is symbolical both of the pastors and the people. Campbell supposes that the angel means the presiding elder, or the chairman, when they met for any special purpose, together with the church, according to the custom of all societies.—Holdeth the seven] Who supports and maintains his ministers, and who is present to bless and encourage all believers.

2, 3. I know thy works] This is addressed to the whole church, and from this it is evident that the presiding minister or elder included the rest of the officers.—That they are apostles] Who pretend to a special commission from me, and thou hast found them impostors, and hast rejected them.

4, 5. Thy first love] Thou art declining in affection and zeal. It is proper, therefore, to call upon thee, to regain thy former love, and do the same works of charity.

6. Nicolaitans] The followers of one Nicolas, who held and taught that the most impure practices were indifferent, or even innocent.

8—11. Church in Smyrna] Smyrna was a large city to the north of Ephesus, and still abides and retains its name.

- thou art rich,) and the blasphemy of those who say they are Jews, and are not, but are 10 the synagogue of Satan. Fear none of those things which thou art about to suffer. Behold, the devil will cast some of you into prison, that ye may be proved; and ye will have affliction for ten days. Be thou faithful to death, and I will give thee a crown 11 of life. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. He that overcometh shall not be hurt by the second death.
 12 And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write: These things saith he which 13 hath the sharp two-edged sword; I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where the throne of Satan is: and yet thou holdest fast my name, and didst not deny my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful witness, who was slain
 14 among you, where Satan dwelleth. Nevertheless I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there such as hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols, 15 and to commit fornication. So hast thou also such as hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate. Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my 17 mouth. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. To him that overcometh I will give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and on the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth but he that receiveth it.
 18 And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes as a flame of fire, and whose feet are like fine brass; I know 19 thy works, and thy love, and service, and faith, and patience, and thy last works, which are better than the first. Neverthe- 20 less I have somewhat against thee, because thou sufferest that woman Jezebel, who calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants to commit fornication, and to eat things sacrificed unto idols. And I have given her time, and she will 21 not repent of her fornication. Behold, I 22 will cast her on a bed of sickness, and those that commit adultery with her into great affliction, unless they repent of their deeds. And I will kill her children by death; and 23 all the churches shall know that I am he who searcheth the reins and the hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works. But to you I say, 24 even to the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, and who have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak: I will put upon you none other burden. But that which ye have already, hold fast 25 till I come. And he that overcometh, and 26 keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: And he 27 shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers, even as I have received from my Father. And I will give him the morning 28 star. He that hath an ear, let him hear 29 what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 96. The church of Sardis is reproved and exhorted to repent; the church of Philadelphia is approved, and that of Laodicea rebuked for its lukewarmness.

AND to the angel of the church in Sardis I write: These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars; I know thy works, that thou hast a name —Are Jews] Pretend to be the peculiar people of God.—The devil] By his servants and instruments, persecutors, will cast some of you, &c.—Ten days] That is, a short and limited period. Some, however, understand ten prophetic days, a day signifying a year.—Crown of life] Paul calls the reward of the Christian an incorruptible crown, a crown of righteousness, and James, a crown of life; by which is meant the future state of glory and happiness.—Second death] The future punishment of the wicked.

12, 13. Pergamos lay north of Smyrna. Two-edged sword] Chap. i. 16. Throne of Satan] Is established by the superstition, wickedness, and persecution of the people. Antipas] Nothing more is said of this person; so that we know not whether he was a minister, or a private Christian. He nobly suffered death for his faith, and his Lord mentions him with respect and honour.

14, 15. The doctrine of Balaam] See Numb. xxv. 1, 2; xxxii. 16. As he taught Balak how to seduce the Israelites, so some among you seduce my disciples, and teach the impure doctrines of the Nicolaitans. See verse 6.

16, 17. Sword of my mouth] I will quickly come and punish them.—Hidden manna] The allusion is to the pot of manna, which Moses commanded to be laid up before the Lord. Exod. xvi. 33, &c.—A white stone] White stones were used in acquitting accused persons, and black in condemning them; and white stones were also given to the victors in the Grecian games, as warrants to receive their prizes. To one of these customs the passage seems to refer, and Lowman applies it to the latter.—New name] A new rank and state, which no one can know but he who receives and enjoys it.

18, 19. Thyatira lay to the south-east of Pergamos.—The Son of God] He appeared as the Son of man, but was, in a particular sense, the Son of God. Comp. chap. i. 13—16.

20—23. Woman Jezebel] One like her addicted to vice, seducing my disciples to uncleanness, and to join in the feasts of idols.—Commit adultery] Who follow her impure and pernicious doctrines.—Kill her children] Her disciples and adherents.

24. Even to the rest] To those who abide faithful I will put on you no new burden. Some suppose that he refers to Acts xv. 28; see verse 20.

26, 27. Over the nations] Daubuz refers this to the millennium, chap. v. 10; xx. 4, 9; but Doddridge to the final judgment, when they shall sit down with him on his throne, and judge and condemn all his enemies. Ps. ii. 8, 9.

28. Morning star] Such splendour and glory as the morning star fitly represents.

CHAP. III. 1. Sardis lay to the south of Thyatira, and was once the renowned capital of Lydia, where Cræsus, one of the most wealthy of ancient kings, reigned.—Seven spirits] Chap. i. 4, 16.—A name that] A name among men, as if alive to the interests of the gospel; but thou art indeed in a dying condition.

- 2 that thou livest, and yet art dead. Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, which are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God.
- 3 Remember therefore how thou hast received and heard, and keep those things, and repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come upon thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.
- 4 Yet thou hast a few persons even in Sardis who have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white: for they are worthy. He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment: and I will by no means blot out his name from the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and
- 6 before his angels. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.
- 7 And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: These things saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no one shutteth, and shutteth, and no one openeth:
- 8 I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, which no one can shut: for thou hast but little strength, and yet hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name. Behold, I will make those of the synagogue of Satan (who say they are Jews, and are not, but lie; behold, I will make them) to come and do obeisance before thy feet, and to know that
- 10 I have loved thee. Because thou hast kept my word enjoining patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of trial, which shall come upon all the world, to try those
- 11 who dwell upon the earth. Behold, I come quickly: hold fast what thou hast, that no one take thy crown from thee.
- 12 Him that overcometh I will make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go out no more: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, of the new Jerusalem, which shall come down out of heaven from my God; and my own new name. He 13 that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

And to the angel of the church at 14 Laodicea write: These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God: I know 15 thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would that thou wert cold or hot. So then 16 because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich 17 and grown wealthy, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and pitiable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me 18 gold purified in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness may not appear; and to anoint thine eyes with eye-salve, that thou mayest see. As many as I love, I 19 rebuke and chasten: be zealous, therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door, 20 and knock: if any one hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he shall sup with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit 21 with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and sit with my Father on his throne. He that hath an ear, let him hear 22 what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 96. John seeth the throne of God in heaven; the four living creatures full of eyes, and the elders worshipping before him.

AFTER these things I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven: and

4. A few persons] Greek, names. These have not defiled themselves by those gross pollutions with which so many are defiled.

5. From the book of life] The allusion is to the custom of enrolling the names of citizens, or subjects, in a book or register. Our Lord speaks of having such a book. I will never disown him, but confess him, &c. Let it be recollected that this is a promise made to the Christian victor, and is only fulfilled after he has entered into the future state.

7, 8. Philadelphia lay to the south-east of Sardis.—Key of David] See Is. ix. 6; xxii. 22, and notes.—An open door] Opportunity and means of extending my doctrine and kingdom, 1 Cor. xvi. 9.

9. Synagogue of Satan] Chap. ii. 9.—Do obeisance] The Jews were the most bitter foes of the Christian name; and it is not improbable that this was fulfilled when they were vanquished by Adrian, and dispersed in all directions; and probably some of them were converted to the faith.

10, 11. The hour of trial] Lowman thinks this refers to the persecution under Trajan, which was more general, and continued longer than those which had preceded it.

12. A pillar in the] As a pillar in the heavenly temple. The allusion is to those pillars erected in memory of some victory.

14. Laodicea lay also south of Philadelphia, and in the road to Ephesus. The seven churches were situated in a kind of circle.—The beginning of the] Comp. chap. xxi. 6; xxii. 13. Some render, 'Chief of the creation,' &c. Daubuez, 'Prince or ruler,' while others consider the abstract used for the concrete, and that the sense is, 'the efficient-cause of the creation of God,' Gal. i. 16, 17. As the word is ambiguous, the common version is retained.

15, 16. I would that thou] Lowman observes, that this is only saying, that lukewarmness is very detestable to Christ; and indeed the metaphor strongly conveys this notion.

17, 18. I am rich and] They thought themselves so wise and so good as to need nothing.—I counsel] To obtain from me, without money and price, blessings more valuable than purified gold; the white raiment of my righteousness, praying for the unction of the Spirit, that he may enlighten and bring thee to know thyself.

19, 20. I rebuke and] I take methods to convince them of their errors as I am doing with thee; be then more zealous, shaking off sloth, and repent.—Behold I stand] I am now giving them warning, and if they comply with it, they shall enjoy the comfort of holy intercourse and fellowship with me, and I will raise them to the highest honour.

CHAP. IV. 1, 2. A door] An opening or entrance ap-the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; and saying, Come up hither, and I will show thee

 2 things which must be hereafter. And immediately I was in the Spirit: and behold, a throne was placed in heaven, and one sat
 3 on the throne. And he who sat was in appearance like a jasper and a sardine stone: and a rainbow was round about the throne,
 4 in appearance like to an emerald. And round about the throne were twenty-four thrones: and upon the thrones I saw
 5 twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white raiment, and they had on their heads crowns of gold. And out of the throne proceeded 6 lightnings and thunderings and voices: and seven lamps of fire were burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.
 7 And there was before the throne as it were a laver of glass like to crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four living creatures full
 8 of eyes before and behind. And the first living creature was like a lion, and the second living creature like a calf, and the third living creature had a face as a man, 9 and the fourth living creature was like a flying eagle. And the four living creatures had each of them six wings; and they were full of eyes round about and within: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was, and is, and is to come. And when those living creatures give glory, and honour, and thanks, to him who sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever, The twenty-10 four elders fall down before him who sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying, Thou art worthy, O

 11 Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power: for thou hast created all things and by thy will they are, and were created.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 96. The book sealed with seven seals, and which the Lamb only could open; hence the elders praise him, and confess that he redeemed them.

AND I saw in the right hand of him who 1 sat on the throne a book, written within and without, sealed with seven seals. And 2 I saw a strong angel, who proclaimed with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the 3 book, and to loose the seals thereof? And no one in heaven, nor on earth, nor under 4 the earth, was able to open the book, and to look therein. And I wept much, because 5 no one was found worthy to open the book, and to look therein. Then one of the 6 elders saith to me, Weep not: behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof. And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst between the throne and the four living creatures, and in the midst between the elders, stood a Lamb, as if it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

peared, and I seemed to hear a voice loud as a trumpet, calling to me, and saying, &c.—I was in the Spirit] Wrapt up in the most wonderful visions by the spirit of prophecy. Throne was] Though nothing is said of the form of the throne, or of him that sat on it, yet it is manifest that the throne of God is intended. Doddridge justly observes that all the visionary scenes recorded in this book passed in the imagination of John; and we are not to suppose that there are in heaven four living creatures, such as are after described, or twenty four elders, &c. but that these are figurative representations of other things.

3. 4. Lake a jasper] The jasper is of a white and sky colour, and the sardius red. The former might be intended to represent the purity and excellence of the divine nature; and the latter, his awful justice and fiery indignation against all sin. The rainbow investing the throne may be designed to indicate God's covenant and faithfulness. Gen. ix. 13.—Twenty-four elders] The representatives of the Jewish and Christian church, founded by the twelve patriarchs and twelve apostles; and they were clothed in white, the dress of the Jewish priests, and had crowns to denote their purity, honour, and dignity.

5. Thunderings] Something resembling the awful appearance at Sinai.—Seven lamps of fire] A- emblems of the seven spirits, or of the perfection and fulness of the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit communicated to good men, and who in consequence are sanctified and fitted for the heavenly state. See chap. i. 4.

6. Laver of glass] A capacious vessel of glass, like to that which was in the tabernacle, the water in which was clear as crystal. Exod. xxxviii. 8.—And in the midst of] If the throne was square, then one appeared in the midst of each side opposite to another.

7, 8. The first was like] That those living creatures were in some respects different from the cherubs in Ezekiel, chap. i. and x. is now generally admitted; but of what they were symbols is yet disputed. Some apply the symbols to denote the spirits of the just in heaven, as chap. v. 9, they seem to be united with the elders, the representatives of the church on earth, in celebrating the Lamb who had redeemed them; others consider them as denoting the highest order of angels, the attendants on God's throne, but this is opposed by chap. v. 8—10, where they are said to be redeemed. Hence some think that they are the emblems or symbols of all true, faithful, and zealous ministers of the gospel, who ought to possess the qualities they represent, courage, patience in labour, benevolence and compassion, penetration and spirituality. Their having wings may denote their alacrity in the work of the Lord, however difficult it may be; and being full of eyes, fitly represents their knowledge, penetration, caution, and watchfulness. 1sa. vi. ; Ezek. i. 10. These had six wings as the seraphs, and use their language.

9—11. When these] When these cherubs begin their adorations, they are joined by the elders, who by taking off their crowns, and casting them before the throne, acknowledge from whom they received them.

CHAP. V. 1. A book] A roll of parchment, and it was written on both sides, within and without, contrary to the usual custom; but it was sealed up with seven seals, to intimate the secrecy and importance of what was written.

2—4. No one] No angel or saint in heaven, or man alive on earth, or dead and buried, was worthy to be raised, that he might open the book, &c.

5. One of the elders] The symbols of the church on earth, said, "Weep not; behold the Lion of the tribe," &c. There is an allusion to Gen. xlix. 9. The root of David—the root or scion that was to spring from David, 1s. xi. 1, 10.

6. In the midst between] John immediately saw in the vision the Lamb take his station nearest the throne, and he appeared as if he had been slain, and had seven horns and seven eyes, emblems of his perfect power and knowledge.

- 7 And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him who sat upon the throne.
- 8 And when he had taken the book, the four living creatures, and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden censers full of odours, which are the prayers of saints.
- 9 And they sang a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every tribe, and language, and people,
- 10 and nation; And hast made us kings and priests to our God, and we shall reign on
- 11 the earth. And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and round about the living creatures and the elders: (and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and
- 12 thousands of thousands:) Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory,
- 13 and blessing. And every creature that is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and those that are on the sea, and all things that are in them, I heard, saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and dominion, be to him that sitteth upon the throne, and to the Lamb, for ever and ever.
- 14 And the four living creatures said, Amen. And the twenty-four elders fell down and worshipped him who liveth for ever and ever.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 96. The opening of the seals and what followed thereon, containing a prophecy of events until the end of the heathen Roman empire.

- 1 AND I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seals; and I heard, as it were the 7-10. Every one of them] The elders are the immediate antecedent, and the terms, 'having every one of them harps and golden censers,' seem to refer to them only, as well as the new song. The 'censers full of odours' were emblems of the prayers of good men, and of their acceptableness to God.—Kings and priests] The church is a kingdom of priests, consecrated to God's service and glory, and ever offering up acceptable spiritual sacrifices.—We shall reign] The Christian cause shall prevail through all ages, in spite of all opposition, and at last become triumphant.

11. Many angels] Their numbers were myriads of myriads, a number incalculable.

12. Receive power] All authority in heaven and on earth; all the riches of divine excellencies, of wisdom, strength, &c.

13. And every creature] This song to the Lamb was taken up as it were by universal nature, and every creature joined in it.

CHAP. VI. 1, 2. One of the four] That μυσ signifies first here, and in some other places, see chap. iv. 7; Matt. xxviii. 1.—A white horse] The white horse, used in Roman triumphs, the bow and the crown which he that sat on him had, are the proper emblems of victory, triumph, and royalty. This emblem is generally applied to our Lord spreading the gospel by his apostles during the first century.

3, 4. That was red] A suitable emblem of great and dreadful slaughter. This actually occurred in the calamitous and destructive wars between the Jews and the Ro-

sound of thunder, one of the four living creatures saying, Come and see. And 2 I looked, and behold a white horse: and he that sat thereon had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

And when he had opened the second 3 seal, I heard the second living creature say, Come and see. And another horse that was 4 red went forth: and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that men should kill one another: and there was given to him a great sword.

And when he had opened the third seal, 5 I heard the third living creature say, Come and see. And I looked, and behold a black 6 horse; and he that sat thereon had a pair of balances in his hand. And I heard a voice in the midst of the four living creatures say, A small measure of wheat for a denarius, and three small measures of barley for a denarius; but hurt thou not the oil, and the wine.

And when he had opened the fourth seal, 7 I heard the fourth living creature say, Come and see. And I looked, and behold 8 a pale horse: and the name of him that sat thereon was Death, and Hades followeth him. And power was given to him over the fourth part of the earth, to kill by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence, and by wild beasts of the earth.

And when he had opened the fifth seal, 9 I saw under the altar the souls of those that had been slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they had borne. And 10 they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O sovereign Lord, holy and true, ere thou wilt judge and avenge our blood on mans, the common enemies of the Christian faith. This seal comprised the period from 100 to the year 138.

5, 6. A black horse] Black was an emblem of affliction and famine. Sam. v. 10; and Ezek. iv. 16, 17.—A small measure] Such a quantity as would suffice a man for a day, about a quart; and as a denarius was the usual wages of a day, a man could only earn what would support himself, which indicates a dearth. Lowman limits the period of this seal to the reign of the Antiochian family, from A. D. 138 to 193.

7, 8. A pale horse] This pale yellow colour is a mark of disease and affliction.—Hades] The invisible world follows death.—Over the fourth] Over a great part of the inhabitants of the earth to kill by the sword, by pestilence, &c. It is certain that the Hebrew רמב is used in the sense given. Ezek. xiv. 21; xxxiii. 27. The images represent a period of great misery, desolation, and slaughter; and Lowman extends it from A. D. 193 to 270.

9-11. The souls of those] In the vision they appeared as if in the Holy place, near the foot of the golden altar of incense, intimating that their constancy and perseverance were acceptable to God.—How long, O Lord] These martyrs knew that God would avenge the shedding of innocent blood; and they inquire how long it would be before this time arrived. An answer is given in the next verse. Comp. chap. xx. 4. This seems to represent the last and most severe persecution which the Christians suffered under Maximian and Dioclesian, which lasted for ten years, and during which vast numbers perished.

- 11 those that dwell upon the earth? And a white robe was given to every one of them; and it was said to them, that they should rest yet for a short season, until the number of their fellow-servants and of their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be filled up.
- 12 And I looked when he had opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; And the stars of heaven fell to the earth, even as a fig-tree casteth its untimely figs, when it is shaken by a mighty wind.
- 13 And the heaven departed as a parchment when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the commanders, and the rich men, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains; And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him who sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: For the great day of his wrath is come; and who is able to stand?

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 96. The angel seals the servants of God; the number of those of Israel sealed; of other nations the number could not be expressed; saved by the blood of Christ.

- 1 AND after these things I saw four angels standing on the four parts of the earth, restraining the four winds of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God. And he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea, Saying, Hurt not the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God on their foreheads. And I heard the number of those who were sealed: and there were sealed a hundred and forty-four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel. Of the tribe of Judah were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Asher were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Naphtali were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasseh were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Zebulon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

After these things I looked, and behold, a great multitude, which no one could number, of all nations, and tribes, and people, and languages, standing before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palm-branches in their hands; And they cry with a loud voice, saying, 10 Salvation be ascribed to our God who sitteth on the throne, and to the Lamb. And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders, and about the four living creatures, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God, Saying, Amen; Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, 12 and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

And one of the elders spoke, saying to me, Who are these that are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said to him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they who came out of great affliction, and have washed their 12—17. A great earthquake] The world seemed as if in the pangs of dissolution; the sun became covered, the moon like blood, and the stars fell, and the whole heavens seemed as if rolled up, while mountains and islands were forcibly removed. Daubuz and others have justly observed, that the civil and political world is represented by the natural, the sun meaning the imperial power, the moon and stars inferior officers, see Is. xlii. 10; xxxiv. 4, Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8; Joel ii. 10, &c. Kings of the earth] This seal is generally applied to the wars and changes effected by Constantine, called the Great, who first favouring, and then openly espousing the cause of Christ, destroyed the persecuting heathen power, put down all the Pagan priests, displaced the Pagan military and civil officers, and appointed Christians to fill their places.

CHAP. VII. 1. The four winds] These angels appeared to stand opposite to each other in the four quarters whence the winds blow; and the winds, which are the causes of storms, are the emblems of commotions and wars. These were to be restrained, to show that the church would enjoy peace and prosperity for a season.

2. From the east] Some tell us that omens from the east were esteemed favourable. This is thought to be an emblem of our Lord, the angel of the covenant. During the reign of Constantine, great numbers embraced the faith, and though many did it to court favour, yet doubtless there were numbers of sincere converts.

3. Sealed the servants] These are sealed to denote their belonging to God, and the assured protection which he would afford to them, from those calamities of which the four winds were symbols. See Ezek. ix. 4. Some consider that this sealing or separating the true Christian church from the secular church established by Constantine, refers especially to the Waldenses and Albigenses, who separated from the secularized churches, and maintained religion in purity during the lapse of the dark ages. See Faber, Calend. of Proph. vol. ii. p. 330.

4—8. The number] This definite number signifies the Christian church had now become the true Israel of God. Ephraim and Dan are not mentioned, perhaps on account of their total defection to idolatry.

9—12. After these things] After having seen this prosperous state of the church on earth, and the servants of God sealed, I saw in vision the church in heaven joining in a solemn act of praise to him that sat on the throne and to the Lamb.

13—17. Who are these] This question was not asked for want of knowledge, but to excite attention.

robes, and made them white, in the blood 15 of the Lamb. Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; and he that sitteth on 16 the throne will dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, nor thirst any more:
nor shall the sun strike on them, or any 17 heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them to living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 96. The seventh seal opened, and seven angels, with each a trumpet, appear; four of them sound, and great plagues follow, &c.

1 AND when the Lamb had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven 2 about the space of half an hour. And I saw the seven angels who stood before God; and to them were given seven trum-3 pets. And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given to him much incense, that he might offer it, with the prayers of all the saints, upon the golden altar which was 4 before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, from the hand of the angel, together with the prayers of the saints, as-5 cended up before God. And the angel took the censer, and filled it with the fire of the altar, and cast it upon the earth:
and there were sounds, and thunderings,
and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 And the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound 7 them. The first angel sounded his trumpet, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast upon the earth; * and the third part of the earth was burnt up;” and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and every green herb was burnt up.

And the second angel sounded his 8 trumpet, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third part of the sea became blood: And the third part of the creatures 9 which were in the sea, and had life, died;
and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

And the third angel sounded his trumpet, 10 and a great star, burning like a lamp, fell from heaven: and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the springs of waters; And the name of the star is called 11 Wormwood: and the third part of the waters became bitter as wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

And the fourth angel sounded his trum- 12 pet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so that the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night in like manner.

And I looked, and heard an angel flying 13 through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Wo, wo, wo, to the inhabitants of the earth because of the other blasts of the trumpet of the three angels, which are about to sound!

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 96. A star falleth, to whom is given the key of the bottomless pit, which he opens, and locusts like scorpions come forth; four angels loosed, &c.

AND the fifth angel sounded his trumpet, 1 and I saw a star fall from heaven to the earth; and to him was given the key of CHAP. VIII. 1—5. Silence in heaven] There are no events proper to the opening of the seventh seal, but it is introductory to the events denoted by the seven trumpets. Most think there is an allusion to the silence allowed for secret prayer among the people while incense was offered in the temple, Luke i. 10. Faber applies the silence to the period commencing with the conquest of Italy by Constantine, in the year 324, when Pagan persecution ceased, and continued until Julian renewed it most artfully in the year 361.—Seven trumpets] The seals foretold the state of the Roman empire, and the church within it, while it continued heathen; and the trumpets foretell the state of it, and of the church after it became professedly Christian.—Another angel] The appearance of a Lamb was the symbol of Christ sacrificed for us; and this angel represented him as a priest standing before the altar of incense, presenting the prayers of his people, and making intercession for them.—The fire of the altar] Having consumed the incense, the angel took the burning coals from the altar, and cast them on the earth, as an emblem that great calamities were about to befall the empire, and this was shown by what followed, sounds, &c.

6, 7. Hail and fire] A desolating thunder-storm very forcibly represents the direful effects of war. See Is. xxviii. 2; xxix. 6; Ezek. xiii. 13. On the death of Constantine, in 337, his three sons reigned in different parts of the empire; and though they adhered to Christianity, as established by their father, as the religion of the empire, yet they dishonoured it by their crimes; and many gross corruptions prevailed in the church. See Faber and Newton.—Third part of] The empire of the West, of the East, and of Africa, or the South. This extends to the year 395.—(a) Griesb.

8, 9. A great mountain] A mountain signifies a kingdom, in the style of prophecy, or the strength of it, its metropolis. See Jerem. ii. 25. The sea denotes, or is a symbol of people, Rev. xvii. 15; and a burning mountain cast into it, strongly represents the dreadful effects of an invading conquering army, burning the habitations, and seizing or destroying all before them. Some apply this to Alaric and Genseric, who laid waste the Western empire. This extends to 430. See Faber.

10, 11. A great star] This image is nearly similar to the former; and its effects are similar. In 476 Odoacer put an end to the Roman power in Italy, and the Gothic kingdom was founded. How many perished by these wars, and died of these bitter waters! The victors quarrelled among themselves; and while the western empire existed no more, its territory was a scene of war and slaughter. This trumpet extended to the year 493.

12. The sun] Lowman applies this to the final removal of all government from Rome, when it was made subject to the Exarchate of Ravenna, when she that had been mistress of the nations was degraded, her sun, moon, and stars being covered with darkness: this occurred about 566. Faber applies this to the Eastern empire, which was nearly subverted by Chosroes, the Persian king, but afterwards by Arcadius was restored to power and splendour. An angel excites attention, by calling the next two trumpets.

CHAP. IX. 1, 2. A star fall] That these verses an

2 the pit of the abyss. And he opened the pit of the abyss; and a smoke arose out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the pit. And out of the smoke locusts came upon the earth; and to them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power. And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the herb of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree; but only those men that had not the seal of God on their foreheads. And to the locusts it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months: and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion, when he stingeth a man. And in those days men shall seek death, and shall by no means find it; and they shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them. And the shapes of the locusts were like to horses prepared for war; and on their heads were as if golden crowns, and their faces were as the faces of men. And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions. And they had breastplates, as breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was as the sound of chariots with many horses rushing to battle. And they had tails like scorpions, and stings were in their tails: and their power was to hurt men five months. And they had a king over them, the angel of the abyss; whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue he hath the name Apollyon. [THE DESTROYER.]

nounce the rise and progress of the Mahometan imposture is generally admitted. The key given him to open the pit of the abyss was a fit emblem of the power God was pleased to permit him to acquire, for the spreading of his delusions, as if hell itself had been opened.

3. Locusts] To intimate their number and ravages, and as being a proper emblem of the Arabs, among whom locusts abound.—As scorpions] Whose sting produces inflammation and great torment.

4-6. Hurt the herb] These locusts were to act contrary to the natural ones; and one of the laws of Mahomet was, 'that his followers should spare fruit-trees and the produce of the ground, when they invaded a country.' These locusts were only to hurt and torment those corrupt and wicked men, whom God had given up to their power.

7-12. Like to horses] The head of the natural locust is like that of the horse; and the Arabs had a formidable cavalry, and wore turbans. They had hair] This also describes that people, as they suffered their hair to grow, and had teeth like lions, were strong to devour.—And stings were] See verse 5.—Five months] As locusts appear from April to August, so the expeditions of the Arabs usually lasted about that period.—A king] Mahomet, and the Caliphs, his successors, both in power and in imposture, to whom the expression 'the destroyer,' both as to this and another state, may justly be applied. This wo commenced with the rise of the Mahometan imposture, about 612, when he publicly appeared as a prophet of God, and extended to 762, or five prophetic months, in which period they subdued all Arabia, Egypt, and other parts of Africa, Judea, Syria, Chaldea, and Persia. From the commencement of this wo, Faber begins the 1260 years of the great apostacy, the reign of the wild beast and the false prophet.

13, 14. From the golden altar] The altar of incense, in

One wo is past; behold, two woes more 12 come hereafter,

And the sixth angel sounded his trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar, which is before God, Saying to the sixth angel who had the 14 trumpet, Loose the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates. And 15 the four angels were loosed, who were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, to slay the third part of men. And the number of the army of the horse- 16 men was two myriads of myriads: for I heard the number of them. And afterward 17 I saw the horses in the vision, and those that sat on them, having breastplates of fire, and of jacinth, and of brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions: and out of their mouths issued fire, and smoke, and brimstone. By these 18 three "scourges," the third part of men was killed, by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths. For the "power of the 19 horses" was in their mouth, and in their tails, for their tails were like serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt. And the rest of the men who were not 20 killed by these plagues, repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship demons, and idols of gold, and of silver, and of brass, and of stone, and of wood: which can neither see, nor hear, nor walk: Nor repented they of their murders, 21 nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

the holy place; and this seemed strongly to express that no intercession should prevail to prevent the execution of the following wo.—The four angels] Mede, who applies what follows to the rise of the Turkish empire, supposes that the four angels were emblems of the four governments of the Turks in Asia; but Lowman, after Daubuz, considers that the number expresses universality. Is. xi. 12; Jer. xlix. 36. This wo began with the reign of Othman, 1301, and ended 1697, when the Turks were conquered at Zenta; and from that period their empire has been declining.

15, 16. For an hour, a day] The time they are permitted to afflict men is accurately determined; and they were ready at any period to accomplish this event; and the numbers of this people were incredible, even myriads of myriads. Those who apply this part of the prophecy to the Turks, take the 'hour, day, month, and year,' to include a period of three hundred and ninety-one years, in which they were chiefly successful, and extended their empire, and possessed large provinces both in Asia and Europe.

17-19. In the vision] Both the horses and their riders appeared very terrible, having breastplates red as fire, mingled with the blue of the jacinth, and the yellow of sulphur.—The power of the horses] Lowman observes, that the emblem of the breastplates and horses, whence issued fire, &c. agrees well with the terror they inspired, and the destruction they occasioned.

20, 21. Worship demons] The spirits of men departed and especially those called saints, to whom they weakly and wickedly offered up their prayers and praises.—Sorceries] Or poisonings, which have been very common in Italy; but some think charms, exorcisms, and lying miracles, to be meant. And yet they continued to practise the grossest impurities, allowing stewards and brothels publicly, and robbing men by unjust exactions, &c.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 96. An angel appeareth with a little book open in his hand; he sweareth by the living God, that the time of final deliverance should not be until the close of the events denoted under the seventh trumpet.

1 AND I saw another strong angel coming down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was over his head, and his face was as the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot upon the earth, 2 And he cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, 3 seven thunders uttered their voices. And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: And I heard a voice from heaven saying to me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders 4 uttered, and write them not. And the angel whom I saw standing upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his right hand 5 to heaven, And swore by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things which are therein, and the earth, and the things which are therein, and the sea and the things that are therein, that the 6 time would not be yet; But in the days of the blast of the seventh angel, when he shall sound the trumpet, and the revealed truth of God shall be finished, as he hath declared the glad tidings to his servants the 7 prophets. And the voice which I heard from heaven spoke to me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel who standeth 8 upon the sea, and upon the earth. And I

CHAP. X. 1—3. Clothed with] How awfully majestic was his appearance! and it is highly probable that he was the angel of the covenant.—A little book] Much smaller than that before seen, chap. v. 1. It was open to show that the apostle was to deliver down other prophecies besides the foregoing. Newton contends that this little book contained only the vision, chap. xi. 1—13. Faber considers it as comprising the xi. to xiv. chapters, which he divides into five sections. The first contained in the xi. chap., the second in the xii. the third xiii. 1—10, the fourth xiii. 11—18, and the fifth xiv.

4. About to write] What they said; but he said, &c. The things uttered or represented were proper for John to know, but not to be communicated.

5—7. His right hand] This was the ancient solemn gesture in swearing. Gen. xiv. 22.—The time would not be yet] The common version is absurd, 'that time shall be no more,' as all that follows implies its continuance. The meaning is, 'That the time when the purpose of God shall be completed, and the church made triumphant, will not be as yet;' but notwithstanding all its trials, it is advancing to this state, and in the conclusion of the seventh trumpet will actually attain it. Dan. vii. 23—27; 2 Thess. ii. 8.

8—11. Go and take] Comp. Ezek. iii. 3.—Sweet as honey] The knowledge of future events was at first pleasant, but the dreadful nature of them caused bitter grief and pain.—Again prophecy] Eating this book is symbolical, and denotes that thou must again deliver, for the use of the church, other prophecies.

CHAP. XI. 1, 2. And a reed was] To measure the temple and altar, and compute those who worshipped therein, is a fit description of the true worship of God, and the went to the angel, and said to him, Give me the little book. And he said to me, 'Take it, and eat it up; it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey. And I took the little book 10 out of the angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: but as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter. Then he said to me, Thou must 11 again prophesy before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 96. The two witnesses prophesy; have power to shut heaven; the beast will fight against and kill them, but after three days they will rise again, &c.

AND a reed was given me like a rod: 1 the angel saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and compute those who worship therein. But the court 2 which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not; for it is given to the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty-two months. And I will 3 give to my two witnesses, that they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth. These are two 4 olive trees, and two lamp-stands placed before the 'Lord' of the earth. And if any 5 one purpose to hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any purpose to hurt them, he must in this manner be killed. These 6 have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with every plague, as often as they will. And while they shall 7

true worshippers.—But the court] The court was nearly four times as large as the sanctuary, and judging from this, it is intimated, that idolatrous Christians, called Gentiles, would immensely outnumber the true spiritual church.—Forty-two months] That is 1260 days, the same period the woman flies to, and is hid in the wilderness, and as the persecuting power of the beast is to continue. Hence we have three distinct representations of the same period in this and the two next chapters; and from circumstances to be observed, chap. xiii. it is manifest we are to date the beginning of this period of 1260 days from the time the Pope of Rome assumed the title of universal Bishop, about 606, or was made a temporal prince, about 750.

3. Two witnesses] These were to be clothed as mourners, to indicate their grief at what they witnessed, Deut. xix. 15. The meaning is, that in the whole course of this period there should be a sufficient number of faithful witnesses for God, who should preach and profess the gospel in purity, and oppose the idolatry and corruptions of the mother of harlots.

4—6. Two olive trees] This is an allusion to Zech. iv. and the meaning, that God's faithful servants shall shine like lamps on their stands, fed from the olive tree; and the judgments which these shall denounce against their persecutors shall be executed as in the case of Elijah, 2 Kings i. It is well known that prophets are said to do what they declare will be done, Jer. i. 9, 10; and in this sense only can we understand what is here said of these witnesses.

5. (v) Griesb.

7. And while they] See Daubuz for this version.—Will kill them] This must refer to some period and event when the witnesses seemed to be all cut off, and when the power of the enemy seemed to have attained its highest designs.

complete their testimony, a wild-beast that ascendeth out of the abyss will make war against them, and will overcome them, and 8 kill them. And their carcasses will lie in the broad city, the great one, which is called spiritually Sodom, and Egypt, and where 9 "their" Lord was crucified. And they of the people and tribes and languages and nations shall see their carcasses three days and a half, and will not suffer their carcasses
 10 to be put into a tomb. And those who dwell upon the earth will rejoice over them, and be glad, and send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented those 11 who dwelt on the earth. And after three days and a half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon those 12 who saw them. And "I" heard a great voice from heaven, saying to them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them.
 13 And in that hour was there a great earthquake and the tenth part of the city fell, and by the earthquake seven thousand men were killed: and the rest were affrighted,
 14 and gave glory to the God of heaven. The second wo hath passed; and, behold, the third wo cometh quickly.
 15 And the seventh angel sounded his trumpet; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdom of the world is become our Lord's and his Christ's, who 16 shall reign for ever and ever. And the twenty-four elders, who sat before God on their thrones, fell upon their faces, and 17 worshipped God, saying, We thank thee, O Lord God Almighty, who art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath 18 is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give a reward to thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to those who fear thy name, small and great; and shouldst destroy those who destroy the earth.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 96. A woman, clothed with the sun, travaileth; a great red dragon standeth ready to devour her child, but she fleeth into the wilderness; war in heaven between Michael and the dragon; the dragon persecuteth the woman.

AND the temple of God was opened in 19 heaven, and the ark of his covenant was seen in his temple: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail

Now a great wonder appeared in heaven; 1 a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars: And she was 2 with child, and cried out being in travail, and pained to bring forth. And another 3 wonder appeared in heaven; for, behold, a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads. And his tail drew the third part of 4 the stars of heaven, and cast them down to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that, when she had brought forth, he might devour her child. And she brought forth 5 a male child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up to God, and to his throne. And 6

8—10. Their carcasses] Their enemies shall treat them with great cruelty, not even granting them the rites of sepulture. Such people may be compared to Sodom and Egypt for pride, lewdness, and cruelty, or to those who killed their Lord; and who indeed again killed him in a spiritual sense in his members.—(v) Griesb. and verse 12.

11, 12. Three days and a half] This period is probably mentioned in allusion to the time a dead body will keep before it becomes putrid; and some think it refers to the time our Lord was under the power of death.—The Spirit of life] Their civil death shall only be for a limited time.—And they ascended up] In the style of prophecy, to be raised to heaven, is to attain power and eminence, or to enjoy great privileges. Matt. xi. 23; Luke x. 18; Is. xiv. 12, 13, &c. Hence the meaning is, they should, contrary to all probable expectation, rise to power and be enabled to oppose error more effectually than before. Faber refers this account of the death of the witnesses, and of their resurrection and elevation, to the banishment of the Valenses and Waldenses from their country by the duke of Savoy, and to their return, when they took possession of it by force, and were afterwards legally protected. See Faber.

13. A great earthquake] The emblem of some great commotion and change; and this soon appeared, in that the "tenth part of the city fell." The number ten is used for many in several instances. Gen. xxi. 7; 1 Sam. i. 8; Eccles. vii. 19. The city being taken for the empire, of which it was the metropolis and seat of government, the words may denote some heavy calamities which should fall upon it, in which "seven thousand men of name," or of note, should be killed. Faber applies it to the revolution in England in 1638, which is considered as one of the ten horns of the Roman empire; and by which event it was severed from it as to religion. Others have applied it to the French Revolution, and to the probable consequences of it. Most of the old nobles have perished, the hierarchy is subverted, and the throne and mitre separated.

14. The second wo] This was to be followed by the third which embraces the period of 1260 years, the time the witnesses are to prophesy.

15—19. The kingdom of this world] Or sovereignty. He was now about to show his power in his judgments.—The time of the dead] The time to punish the wicked, and to recompense the good, by destroying those, &c. This does not refer to the last judgment.

CHAP. XII. 1, 2. A woman] The emblem of the true church of Christ, clothed with the Sun of righteousness, having the moon under her feet, to denote that she paid no regard to the new moon as the Jews did; and upon her head a crown of twelve stars, to show that she is under the light and guidance of the twelve apostles.—Pained to bring forth] Though pain attends child-bearing, yet the chief thing here intended is doubtless fruitfulness, denoting the converts which the church should bring forth to God, amidst her sufferings and persecutions.

3—6. A great red dragon] The well known symbol of Satan and all his instruments and agents; or, as a late writer contends, it is the symbol of paganism, always opposed to Christianity. See New Illustration of Prophecy, by the Rev. W. Vint. Ps. lxxix. 13; Is. li. 9; Ezek. xxix. 3. The description of this dragon limits it to the city and empire of Rome. Chap. xvii. 3, 9, 10. See Notes chap. 13.

the woman fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared of God, that she should be fed there a thousand two hundred and sixty days.

- 7 And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels warred against the dragon: 8 and the dragon warred and his angels, But they prevailed not; nor was their place 9 found any more in heaven. For the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, who deceiveth the whole world; he was cast out upon the earth, and his angels were cast out with 10 him. And I heard a loud voice, saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and might, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, who accused them 11 before our God day and night. But they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives, but exposed them 12 to death. Rejoice therefore, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Alas for the earth and for the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a 13 short time. And when the dragon saw that he was cast out upon the earth he pursued the woman who brought forth the male child. 14 And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, to her place, where she is to be fed for a time, and times, and half a 15 time, from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast out of his mouth after the woman, water as it were a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the river. But the earth helped the woman, 16 and the earth opened its mouth, and drank up the river which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth 17 with the woman, and departed to make war with the rest of her seed, who kept the commandments of God, and held fast the testimony of Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 96. A seven-headed and ten-horned beast riseth out of the sea, to whom the dragon gives his power; another beast cometh out of the earth, and causeth an image of the former to be made, and forceth men to worship it and to receive his mark.

THEN I stood upon the sand of the sea, 1 and saw a wild-beast rise up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy. And the 2 wild-beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were as those of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his own power, and his throne, and great authority. And I saw 3 one of his heads wounded as it were to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the wild-beast: And they worshipped the dragon 4 because he gave power to the wild-beast: and they worshipped the wild-beast, saying, Who is like unto the wild-beast? who is able to make war with him? And there was given to the wild-beast 5 a mouth speaking great things and blasphemous

7—9. Michael and his] This state of the church was also represented by a war in heaven, or the air. Michael, who maintained the interest of God's people Israel, Dan. x. 21, and his angels, fought with the dragon and his angels, and the latter were vanquished, and cast down from heaven. The visible actors in this contest were Constantine and his successors, the preachers of the gospel, confessors and martyrs on the one hand; and the unbelieving rulers, heathen priests, and sophists on the other.

10, 11. Now is come salvation] On this victory of Christianity, there was a song of praise offered to God. Paganism was humbled, and it was no longer in the power of heathens to accuse Christians as Satan did Job before God, and to charge men with being the perpetrators of all crimes, and the authors of all calamities.

12—14. Alas for the] Though the dragon was dethroned, he was not destroyed, but had power to do much mischief; and he exerted it to restore Paganism in various ways. He could not succeed, and was in a short time destined as a dragon, in the Western empire, to expire.—He pursued the] By calumnies, by sowing discords, &c.; but to denote her protection she had two wings of a great eagle given to her, that she might fly to the wilderness, and there abide for three years and a half, as Elijah did from Ahab. This period did not begin before she fled into the wilderness. See verse 6. Faber considers this period to commence in the year 606, when Phocas, the emperor of the east, constituted the pope universal bishop; and Bishop Newton, in 756, when he became a temporal prince.

12. (v) Griesb.

15—17. Water as it were] By water is meant peoples, and this was literally fulfilled by the inundation of the barbarous heathen nations which soon overspread the Western empire, and which seemed to threaten the extinction of the Christian cause: 'but the earth helped the woman,' the Romans swallowed up the barbarians, and they conformed to the manners, and embraced the religion of the Romans, whom they had conquered.

CHAP. XIII. 1. A wild-beast rise] Here the beast, chap. xi. 7, is described at large. He comes up from the sea, from the commotions of the world. Comp. Dan. vii. 2, 3. This beast had seven heads, signifying the seven mountains on which Rome stood, and the seven forms of government which had successively prevailed; and the ten horns, the ten kingdoms into which the Western empire was to be divided. Chap. xvii. 9—11. And on each horn was a crown, which shows that there had been a revolution of power, as the dragon, chap. xii. 3, had only seven crowns on his seven heads, which denoted that imperial power then prevailed; but now this power was transferred to ten kings.

2. And the wild-beast] No name is given to it, but it is described as having the nature and qualities of Daniel's three beasts united, Dan. vii. 4—7.—And the dragon] The symbol of heathenism gave to this new empire his own power and throne, intimating that this succeeded the former, and consisted of the same people and territories, and would carry on the same designs.

3, 4. One of the heads] Or forms of government, appeared mortally wounded. This was the imperial form, the sixth head, as five had passed away when John wrote, chap. xvii. 10. This event occurred when the pope and people of Rome proclaimed Charles the Great Augustus and Emperor of the Romans. Here the imperial head, which was wounded, was healed again, and has subsisted ever since.—(v) Griesb. so verse 5.

5, 6. A mouth speaking] Comp. Dan. vii. 8.—Power to continue] Or to do as he pleased in a great degree, in some parts of this period, for forty-two months, or 1260 years, as mies; and power was given unto him to 6 continue forty-two months. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, 7 and those who dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them; and power 8 was given him over every tribe, and language, and nation. And all that dwelt on the earth worshipped him, whose name was not written in the book of life of the Lamb that was slain, from the foundation 9 of the world. If any man have an ear, let 10 him hear. If any lead into captivity, he shall go into captivity; if any kill with the sword, he must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

 11 And I beheld another wild-beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, but he spoke as a dragon.
 12 And he exerciseth all the power of the first wild-beast in his presence, and causeth the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first wild-beast, whose deadly wound 13 was healed. And he doeth great miracles, so that he maketh fire to come down from heaven on the earth in the presence of men.
 14 And he deceiveth those that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which often mentioned.—In blasphemy] Blasphemy means either to speak reproachfully of God, or to attribute to the creature what belongs to the Creator, Is. lxx. 7. God is in the latter sense blasphemed, when an individual or many assume titles or honours which belong to him, as has been done by the emperor and kings and princes of the Western empire, with the sanction of and often blasphemously conferred by the popes. And they have claimed divine titles which the secular powers have recognised; as 'Universal Bishop, head of the church, God upon earth.' They have blasphemed his temple or people, by calling them 'schismatics and heretics,' and excommunicating them. And in like manner those who dwell in heaven, angels and saints, by idolatrous worship and impious adoration. The civil and ecclesiastical powers have been united in the work of persecution and blasphemy, verse 11—18.

7—10. War with the saints] And who can calculate the millions of saints who have perished by this persecuting and horrible monster? Mede states, that a million of Waldenses in France alone were put to death; and how many in other countries is not known. In about thirty years the Jesuits destroyed about nine hundred thousand orthodox Christians. In the Netherlands the duke of Alva boasted that he had executed thirty-six thousand; and in the same period, the Inquisition destroyed one hundred and fifty thousand Christians.—Power was given] All the nations of the Western empire were united in this war, instigated by the pope and priesthood.

11, 12. Another wild-beast] This appeared to rise out of the earth like a plant, gradually and imperceptibly; and he appeared like a lamb, but spoke and acted like a dragon.—All the power of the first beast] Most expositors apply this to the Roman hierarchy, the pope, and his clergy, regular and secular. The power was given by the different rulers uniting with him and endowing the church with large estates, baronies, duchies, and principalities, over which bishops exercised civil power. Thus the church became sometimes too powerful to be resisted even by civil rulers. The symbol of a lamb denotes a spiritual power; and what makes this certain is that he who is called a lamb here, is called the false prophet chap. xix. 20.

13—15. Great miracles] This second beast pretends to do great miracles, as if he could bring fire from heaven like he had power to do in the presence of the wild-beast; saying to those who dwell on the earth, that they should make an image for the wild-beast, which had the wound by a sword, and yet lived. And he had power 15 to give life to the image of the wild-beast, that the image of the wild-beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the wild-beast, should be killed. And he causeth all, 16 both small and great, rich and poor, free and slaves, to receive a mark on their right hand, or on their foreheads: And that no 17 man might buy or sell, but he that had the mark, the name of the wild-beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. 18 Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 96. Vision of the Lamb with his servants; the gospel preached by an angel; the fall of Babylon, the harvest, vintage, and wine-press of God's wrath, &c.

AND I looked, and, behold, a Lamb stood 1 on Mount Zion, and with him a hundred and forty-four thousand persons, having his Father's name written on their foreheads. And I heard a sound from heaven, as the 2

Elijah, as in the case of St. Anthony's fire, and in their excommunications, which are called the thunders of the church; 2 Thess. ii. 9, 10.—That they should make] An image to or for the beast, and not of the beast. This, as Faber observes, is the proper sense of the text; and it means to make an image for the beast to worship and adore, see Exod. xx. 4, 5. Hence it is clear that the pope with his clergy should introduce and support idolatry, in direct opposition to the word of God. And who does not know how exactly this has been fulfilled?—And he had power to give life] So that they who would not worship relics, the saints, and the virgin-mother, should be killed. To give life, means his power to enforce idolatrous worship.

16—18. A mark on] Every person was obliged to profess his submission to this authority, whatever his rank or condition in life might be; and so was, as it were, marked as belonging to the beast, in the manner as slaves were marked with the names of their masters, or as the heathen votaries with those of their gods. Might buy or sell] In this manner Ptolemy Philopater persecuted the Jews of Alexandria; and in many instances the decrees of popes and councils run in the same strain: see Bishop Newton. So William the Conqueror, when he had become fixed on the throne of England, would not permit any to buy or sell, who were disobedient to the Roman see.—Number of the beast] Irenæus mentions Latinos as containing numeral letters amounting to 666. The Hebrew רמקל, Roman, is also composed of the same number. The mark was the name of the wild-beast; and this refers to the first for whom an image was made, see chap. vii. 3, 4; xiv. 1. And the name is stated to be 'blasphemy,' verse 1. This signifies apostasy, 2 Thess. ii. 3; 1 Tim. iv. 1—3; Ezek. xx. 27—32. The name of the beast comprehends the number 666. The Greek word Apostates, when the letters are considered numerically, contain this precise number. This is the name of the beast, Apostate; and it is also the name of a man; doubtless of him called 'The man of sin and the false prophet.' He is the head of the great apostasy. This is Faber's ingenious explanation.

CHAP. XIV. 1. A Lamb] The known name of Jesus the Saviour, and the persons sealed appeared with him, chap. vii. 4—9; xi. 1. These had not the mark of the beast, but of God on their foreheads.

sound of many waters, and as the sound of a great thunder: and the sound which I heard was as that of harpers playing 3 on their harps: And they sang as if it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures, and the elders; and no one could learn that song but the hundred and forty-four thousand,
 4 who were redeemed from the earth. These are they who were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they who follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, as the first fruits to God and to the Lamb.
 5 And in their mouth was found no falsehood: for they are without fault.
 6 And I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and tribe, and 7 language, and people, Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him who made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the springs of waters.
 8 And another angel followed, saying, Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the fury of her fornication. And a third 9 angel followed them, saying, with a loud voice, If any one worship the wild-beast and his image, and receive the mark on his 10 forehead, or on his hand; He shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the 11 Lamb: And the smoke of their torment shall go up for ever and ever: and they shall have no rest day nor night, who worship the wild-beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.
 12 Here is the patience of the saints, who keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus. And I heard a voice from heaven 13 saying unto me, Write, Happy are the dead who die in the Lord henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, they rest from their labours, and their works follow them.

And I looked, and behold a white cloud, 14 and upon the cloud one sitting like to the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle. And another angel came out of the temple, 15 crying with a loud voice to him who sat on the cloud, Put forth thy sickle, and reap: for the season of reaping is come; for the harvest of the earth is ripe. And he that 16 sat on the cloud applied his sickle to the earth; and the earth was reaped. And 17 another angel came out of the temple which was in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle. And another angel came out 18 from the altar, who had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Put forth thy sharp sickle, and cut the clusters of the vine of the earth; for its grapes are fully ripe. And the angel applied his sickle to the 19 earth, and cut the vine of the earth, and cast its clusters into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. And the wine-press was 20 trodden out of the city, and blood came out of the wine-press, up to the bridles of the horses, for the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAPTER XV. XVI.

A. D. 96. Seven angels with the seven last plagues; the song of those who have conquered the beast; seven bowls full of the wrath of God, which are poured out.

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great 1 and wonderful; seven angels having the seven last plagues; for by them the wrath of God was filled up. And I saw as it 2 were a laver of glass mingled with fire: and those that had gotten the victory over the wild-beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, standing by the laver of glass, having

2—5. As that of harpers] It was a delightful chorus, filled up with the sounds of the sweetest instruments. And, as in a former vision, they sung a new song, in which the living creatures and the elders joined the company of Christ's people.—(o) Before the throne of God, Griesb.

6—8. The everlasting gospel] This vision showed, that during the reign of the beast the gospel should be preached, and that every faithful minister should do all in his power to preach it to every individual.

9—11. Worship the beast] This is an awful warning, and designed to excite to constancy in the faith.

12, 13. Here is the patience] Here will be need of it to all the true followers of Christ. But if they should be called to die for the faith, let them hear with pleasure, that Happy are the dead, &c. This is a noble testimony to a separate state, &c.

14—20. The Son of man] The Lord himself comes to reap the harvest of the earth, and inflict the last strokes of vengeance. 'The harvest is ripe' means the time of punishment is come. See Joel iii. 13. In like manner the vintage being ripe shows that men were ripe for the ruin impending.

The angels may denote the ministers of the gospel; and the first announces that judgment is at hand; and the second, some executioner of the wrath of Christ against the enemies of his cause and of his people; while the third, from the altar, who had power over fire, giving orders to reap the vintage, implies that these judgments would be a sacrifice to justice. These descriptions of the punishment of Rome and all her supporters must be fulfilled under some of the vials or bowls; perhaps either at the close of the sixth or beginning of the seventh vial or bowl, Is. lxiii. 1—6. Mede very sagaciously remarks that 1600 furlongs is the measure of the Roman state or St. Peter's patrimony; and it is not improbable but this will be the scene of this dreadful judgment, after which Babylon will fall to rise no more.

CHAP. XV. 1. Seven angels] General descriptions of the judgments to fall on the beast have before been given: but we are soon to have them more particularly exhibited. They are called the seven last plagues, by which the wrath of God is filled up or ended.

2—4. Laver of glass] In which there appeared liquid fire, to denote the judgments about to be inflicted.

3 the harps of God. And they sang the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and wonderful are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints.

4 Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy just judgments are made manifest.

5 And after that I looked, and, behold, the temple of the testimony-tabernacle in heaven was opened: And the seven angels, having the seven plagues, came out of the temple, clothed in pure white linen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever. And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from his power; and no one was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were finished.

1 AND I heard a loud voice out of the temple saying to the seven angels, Go, and pour out the bowls of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 And the first went, and poured out his bowl upon the earth; and a bad and noisome ulcer fell upon the men who had the mark of the wild-beast, and upon those that worshipped his image.

5—8. In heaven was opened] See chap. xi. 19.—Came out of the temple] To show that their commission was from God. The bowls were then given to them, and the temple was filled with the cloud of God's glory. Comp. Exod. xl. 34, 35; 1 Kings viii. 10, 11.

CHAP. XVI. 1, 2. Go, and pour] Here was their commission, and they hastened to fulfil it. It is generally agreed that the bowls comprise the last wo-trumpet, at the conclusion of which period the blessed reign of Christ, of truth and righteousness, is to commence. Lowman observes that as these bowls are to be poured out on those who had the mark of the beast, and worshipped his image, they must be considered as belonging to the time in which he reigns under the last form of Roman government; and as the time is specified to be 1260 days, a day being put for a year, they must denote successive calamities inflicted on the adherents of superstition and idolatry.—Upon the earth] See chap. viii. 7. The earth signifies the territory over which the power of the beast extended; and as this ulcer fell on those who had the mark of the beast, it must denote some grievous calamities, under which they particularly suffered. Lowman applies it to the bloody wars under the family of Charles the Great, by which that family became extinct, and the crown of France passed to other families.—This period endured from 830 to 985 A. D. In this period the power of the popes was carried to a great height, and the corruptions of the church increased; while by their arts and intrigues, wars were excited and continued, so as to make life itself painful.

3. Upon the sea] This may mean the maritime parts of Europe, subject to the power of Rome; and the expression following shows that this plague consisted in very great slaughter, the sea becoming as congealed blood. That this referred to the holy war or crusade to recover Jerusalem from the Mahometans, both Pyle and Lowman agree. This includes a period from 1000 to 1190. Near two millions lost their lives in this war; and many illustrious families were ruined by it.

And the second angel poured out his bowl upon the sea: and it became blood, like that of a dead man: and every living creature died in the sea.

And the third angel poured out his bowl upon the rivers and springs of waters; and they became blood. And I heard the angel of the waters say, Righteous art thou, who art, and wast, the Holy One, because thou hast thus executed judgment. For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and thou hast given them blood to drink; of which they are worthy. And I heard another out of the altar say, Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.

And the fourth angel poured out his bowl upon the sun: and power was given unto him to scorch men with fire. And men were scorched with great heat, and blasphemed the name of God, who hath power over these plagues: and they repented not so as to give him glory.

And the fifth angel poured out his bowl upon the throne of the wild-beast; and his kingdom was full of darkness; and they gnawed their tongues for pain; And blasphemed the God of heaven, because of their pains and their ulcers, and yet repented not of their deeds.

And the sixth angel poured out his bowl upon the great river Euphrates; and its water was dried up, that the way of the 4—7. Rivers and springs] There is most probably a reference to Exod. vii. 19; see also chap. viii. 10. As rivers and springs may signify the original seat of government in opposition to the more distant provinces; and as water is necessary to life, so this judgment should fall heavily on Italy. Lowman applies it to the civil wars of Italy, between the papal and imperial parties. This lasted from 1200 to 1379. During this judgment the Eastern empire was destroyed by the Turks.

8, 9. Upon the sun] A scorching heat denotes persecution on the one hand, vexatious wars and unfruitful seasons and diseases on the other, Matt. xiii. 6—12; 1s. xxiv. 6. This scourge seems to mean the schism in the papacy, and the feuds and bloody wars which were the consequence of it. This period includes about 150 years, from near 1380 to 1530.

10, 11. Throne of the beast] This fifth plague attacks the throne, that is, the power and authority of the beast; and the effect of it was to fill his kingdom with darkness, and to excite the bitterest griefs; yea, to lead the supporters of it to blasphemous God, instead of repenting of their sins. These circumstances clearly point out the reformation begun by Luther, and carried on and spread by others. One thing may be observed as a fact, that the power of the corrupt church has always been exerted to support the tyranny of princes, and tyrannical princes have supported it; but the influence of protestantism has been, and is alike favourable to civil as to religious freedom.

12—16. Euphrates] As Rome, the seat of the beast, is called Babylon, which was taken by Cyrus, by diverting the course of the Euphrates, and thus drying up the channel of the river; so the drying up of the Euphrates only signifies the gradual removal of whatever supports and defends the mystical Babylon. If, with Lowman, we consider this plague to be accomplished within the period from 1700 to 1900, we are now living under it; and has not popery received most severe wounds already, by the increase of knowledge, the spread of civil liberty, and the more tolerant spirit which even in catholic countries is

13 kings of the east might be prepared. And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the wild-beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of demons, working miracles, which go forth to the kings of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of the great day of the Almighty God. (Behold, I come as a thief. Happy is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame.) And they gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue, Armageddon. [THE MOUNTAIN OF MEGIDDO.]

17 And the seventh angel poured out his bowl into the air; and a loud voice came from the temple of heaven, even from the throne, saying, It is done. And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as had not been since men were upon the earth, so great and mighty an earthquake. And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and the great Babylon came in remembrance before God, so that he gave her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath. And every island fled away; and the mountains were not found. And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceedingly great.

1 THEN one of the seven angels who had some degree prevails?—Three unclean spirits] One seemed to come out of the dragon, the symbol of Satan, another from that of the beast, and a third from that of the false prophet; and they may be justly called the spirits of demons, or demoniacal spirits, who go forth to the kings of the whole Roman world, to persuade them that the throne cannot exist without the mitre, and that it is their interest to support them. May not this be fulfilling by the efforts which are made to re-establish both civil and religious tyranny? Are not many kings in league with popery? How long they may succeed it is impossible to conjecture; but the end is certain.—Behold, I come] This is an admonition to Christians to be on their guard against the seductive arts of these men; and what follows is a reason to enforce it. Comp. Judges v. 19; 2 Kings ix. 27; xxiii. 29; Zech. xii. 11. &c.

[17—21. Into the air] The seat of Satan's empire. On this a loud voice from heaven declared, 'It is done.' The last plague on the beast and his worshippers hath now begun. And immediately even Babylon itself is made an example of divine vengeance. Comp. chap. xiii. This awful representation of the destruction of the beast and his worshippers shows that it will be as exemplary as it will be final. As it is yet future, the event only can explain it more particularly. Lowman supposes it to end in the year 2016, Newton A. D. 2000, and Faber 1864. The event only will decide which of these opinions are best founded.

CHAP. XVII. 1, 2 One of the seven] We have another the seven bowls, came and talked with me, saying to me, Come hither; I will show thee the judgment of the great harlot who sitteth upon many waters; With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication; and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication. So he carried me away in the spirit into the wilderness: and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet coloured wild-beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls, and had in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication: And upon her forehead a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH. And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great astonishment. And the angel said to me, Why didst thou wonder? I will tell thee the meaning of the woman, and of the wild-beast which carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and the ten horns. The wild-beast which thou sawest was, and is not; and is about to ascend from the abyss, and to go into perdition: and those who dwell on the earth (whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) will wonder when they behold the wild-beast that was, and is not, and yet will appear again. There is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth. And they are seven kings: five 10 view given of Babylon, as a harlot, committing spiritual fornication, or being guilty of corrupting the truth, and establishing gross idolatry.

3—6. In the spirit] The scene of the prophetic vision was changed into a desert; and I saw a woman riding on a beast; and its form was the same as I had before seen, chap. xiii. 1—7, only it was now covered with scarlet. And the woman was adorned, &c. This is the dress of the pope and cardinals; and it is well known that this corrupt church has always affected pomp and grandeur.—A name written] Some affirm that the pope actually had the word mystery on the front of his tiara, and if so, it is here explained; it was a mystery of iniquity, as this harlot was drunk with the blood of saints. 'She calls herself indeed, "Our Holy Mother Church," but is in reality the "Mother of harlots, and abominations of the earth." Rome-pagan and Rome-papal have both shed the blood of saints; but the latter has probably slain more thousands than the former did individuals. Hence the apostle wondered to see a professedly Christian city drunk with the blood of saints.'

8. Was, and is not] It did exist under the heathen emperors, and then ceased for a period under Christian emperors; but this beast would rise again, and become as idolatrous and as great an enemy to true Christians as heathen Rome had been, but at last it will be destroyed.

9, 10. Seven heads] The city of Rome, every scholar knows, is seated on seven hills; but seven denotes also the seven forms of government. Five had fallen; these were, 'kings, consuls, dictators, decemvirs, and military tribunes.'

are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he doth come, he 11 must continue but for a short time. And the wild-beast which was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven, and 12 will go to perdition. And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have not yet received a kingdom; but will receive power as kings at the same time 13 with the wild-beast. These have one mind, and give their power and strength unto the 14 wild-beast. These will make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and those that are with him are 15 called, and chosen, and faithful. Then he saith to me, The waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and languages.
 16 And the ten horns which thou sawest, and the wild-beast, will hate the harlot, and will make her desolate and naked, and 17 eat her flesh, and burn her with fire. For God hath put in their hearts to do his will, and to agree, and give their kingly power to the wild-beast, until the words of 18 God shall be fulfilled. And the woman which thou sawest is that great city, which hath dominion over the kings of the earth.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A. D. 96. Babylon fallen; the people of God commanded to depart out of her; kings, merchants, and mariners lament over her; the saints rejoice, &c.

1 And after these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, who had great power; and the earth was enlightened
 2 with his glory; And he cried with a strong voice, saying, Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, and is become the habitation of demons, and the haunt of every unclean spirit, and the haunt of every unclean
 3 and hateful bird. For of the enraging wine of her fornication have all nations drunk; and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have become rich through the abundance of her luxury. And 4 I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have 5 reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities. Render to her as she 6 also hath rendered; and repay to her double according to her works; in the cup which she hath mixed, mix to her double. By 7 how much she hath glorified herself, and lived luxuriously, so much torment and mourning give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit as a queen, and am no widow, and shall not see mourning. Therefore in 8 one day shall her plagues come, pestilence, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her. And the 9 kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived luxuriously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, Stand-10 ing afar off for the fear of her torment, and saying, Alas, alas! the great city! Babylon the mighty city! for in one 11 hour thy judgment is come. And the merchants of the earth shall weep and 12 mourn over her; for no one buyeth their merchandize any more: The merchandize

 13 of gold and silver; and of precious stones and pearls; and of fine linen and purple; and of silk and scarlet; and all sweet smelling wood and all vessels of ivory; and all 14 vessels of most precious wood; and of brass, iron, and marble; And cinnamon, and 15 amomum, and perfumes, and ointment, and incense; and wine, and oil, and fine
 16 flour; and wheat; and cattle and sheep, and horses and chariots; and of the bodies 17 and souls of men. And the fruits that thy 18 soul desired are departed from thee, and all

One is the imperial; and the other is yet to come, referring to the change when Rome was made a dukedom, subject to Ravenna, which was to continue but a short time.

11. The beast which was] If we consider the dukedom of Rome a new form, then the beast's kingdom will be the eighth; but if that be considered as not a new form, his will be the seventh. Mede observes, 'The seven hills and the seven successive forms of government tie down the prophecy to Rome.'

12—14. Are ten kings] Or kingdoms, which as yet do not exist, but which will arise on the fall of the Western empire. These are variously reckoned, but it is remarkable that about so many did then and afterwards exist.

15—18. The waters] Mean various people, speaking various languages.—And the wild-beast] This reading implies that the civil powers of the pope and many of the kingdoms which once submitted to him, shall hate him, and contribute to his ruin.—(v) Griesb.

CHAP. XVIII. 1—3. The earth was] The magnificent appearance of this angel bespeaks his high rank, and the whole shows the manifestation of God's glory, Ezek. xliii. 2.—Fallen] Is. xxi. 9; and as this city was fallen, so she would become, like old Babylon, a habitation of demons,

&c. see Is. xliii. 29, 31.—The merchants] The Romish clergy, as Daubuz observes, by trading in spiritual matters, by selling their trinkets, indulgences and prayers for the dead, and other things of a like nature, have gotten a great part of the wealth of the world into their hands. In the present period the riches of the church are passing away.

4—8. Come out of her] Here the servants of Christ are called to depart from her as the Israelites from old Babylon, Is. xlviii. 20; lest they should fall into her sins, and then suffer her plagues.

9, 10. And the kings] Those who have continued in her communion, and aided her in her spiritual fornication.

11—20. The merchants] See verse 3. These lamentations of the merchants are similar to those made over the fall of old Tyre, in the 26th and 27th chapters of Ezekiel. We are not, I think, to look for a particular fulfilment of every thing here said. All the articles mentioned are such as merchants deal in; and the design is to show that Rome shall perish, and that merchants shall trade with her no more. Daubuz observes, 'that Rome receives all the wares mentioned, but pays for them only in bills drawn upon heaven and hell, which will never be accepted.' Her destruction is what occasions joy in heaven.—(a) Griesb.

things which were delicate and sumptuous are departed from thee, and thou shalt by 15 no means obtain them any more. The merchants of these things, who were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for the fear
 16 of her torment, weeping and wailing, And saying, Alas, alas that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet; and adorned with gold, and precious
 17 stones, and pearls! For in one hour so great riches are laid waste. And every pilot, and every passenger, and the mariners, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off,
 18 And cried out, when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city was like unto this great city! And they cast dust on their heads, and cried out, weeping and wailing, and saying, Alas, alas that great city, whereby all that had ships on the sea were made rich by reason of her costliness!
 20 for in one hour she is laid waste. Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye saints, and apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her.
 21 And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall 22 never more be found. And the sound of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and of trumpeters, shall never more be heard 23 in thee; and no artificer of any kind shall ever more be found in thee; and the sound of a millstone shall never more be heard in thee; And the light of a lamp shall never more shine in thee: and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall never more be heard in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived.
 24 And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of saints! and of all that were slain upon the earth.

CHAPTER XIX.

A. D. 96. God is praised for judging the great harlot; the marriage of the Lamb; the angel forbids John to worship him; fowls called to the great slaughter.

1 AND after these things I heard as it were a great voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, Hallelujah: now is the 21—24. Thus with violence] This was done to impress on John's mind, and on that of his readers, that the doom of Babylon is sealed and sure, Jerem. li. 64; and her perpetual desolation is strongly painted in the language of the ancient prophets. Comp. Is. xxiv. 8; Jerem. vii. 34; xvi. 9; xxv. 10; Ezek. xxvi. 13.

CHAP. XIX. 1—4. Multitude in heaven] We have here the heavenly choir singing a song of praise to God for his righteous judgments on this mother of harlots; and to represent her utter destruction, her smoke is said to go up for ever, Is. xxxiv. 10. Angels and glorified saints alike join in their hallelujahs.

5, 6. Praise our God] A command is given to the saints on earth, of whatever condition, to join in this triumphant song; and they seemed to do so, as the sound of their salvation, and glory, and honour, and power of our God: For true and righteous are 2 his judgments: for he hath judged the great harlot, who corrupted the earth with her fornication; and hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand. (And again they said, Hallelujah.) And her smoke goeth up for ever and ever. And 4 the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshipped God who sat on the throne, saying, Amen; Hallelujah. And a voice came out of the 5 throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great. And I heard as it were the 6 voice of a great multitude, and as it were the sound of many waters, and as the sound of mighty thunderings, saying, Hallelujah: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give glory 7 to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And it was given her, that she should be 8 clothed in fine linen, clean and white: for fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And he saith to me, Write, Happy are they 9 who are called to the marriage-supper of the Lamb. And he saith to me, These are the true sayings of God. Then I fell at 10 his feet to worship him. And he said to me, See thou do it not: I am a fellow servant with thee, and with thy brethren, who bear testimony to Jesus: (worship God:) for the spirit of prophecy is the testimony of Jesus.

And I saw heaven opened, and behold a 11 white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he judgeth and maketh war. His 12 eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, which none knoweth, but he himself. And he was clothed with a mantle 13 dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God. And the armies which 14 were in heaven followed him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and pure. And out of his mouth went a sharp 15 sword, that with it he might smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod united voices was like that of the roaring ocean, or of mighty thunder, while they said Hallelujah; for the Lord God, &c.

7—10. His wife] The true spiritual church is now to receive eminent marks of his affection, in a state of happiness and dignity suitable to her relation to him. This spouse of Christ is not arrayed like a harlot, 'in purple and scarlet,' but like a chaste bride, in fine linen, clean and white, as the fittest emblem of her purity in doctrine and sanctity in conduct. Eph. v. 26, 27.

11—16. A white horse] See chap. vi. 2. Here a new scene was exhibited to John. He saw the gates of heaven opened, and Jesus appearing as a conqueror, he to whom all power and judgment is committed, and who executes it faithfully.

of iron : and he will tread the wine-press of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God.

16 And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls which fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together to the great supper of God; That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of commanders, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of those who sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bound, both small

19 and great. And I saw the wild-beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together, to make war against him who sat on the horse, and against his

20 army. And the wild-beast was taken, and the false prophet that was with him, that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived those that had received the mark of the wild-beast, and those that worshipped his image. These two were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brim-

21 stone. And the rest were slain with the sword of him who sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth : and all the fowls were filled with their flesh.

17—21. In the sun] And hence, conspicuous to all, and with a loud voice calling the fowls of heaven, see Ezek. xxxix. 17, 18, to the great slaughter of Christ's enemies, the beast, false prophet, and their adherents. If the wild-beast be the symbol of the civil power tyrannizing over men, and the false prophet be the man of sin, this shows that both they and their adherents will in the end miserably perish.

CHAP. XX. 1—3. Coming down] Having received a commission to seize and bind the old dragon, the symbol of paganism, which is the very worship of the devil or Satan, the adversary of God and man. 'This is the same symbol as given chap. xii. 9. There he was cast out of his political heaven, and then allied himself to a new power called a wild-beast, chap. xiii. 1. As paganism symbolized, he is here represented as bound and confined in the abyss, or to the nations without the bounds of the Christian world, during a thousand years : yet as a wild beast he continued to persecute the true worshippers of God in connexion with the two horned beast, chap. xiii. 11.

4—6. Saw thrones] He saw a number of thrones, and persons sitting on them, and to them judgment was given, the power of ruling and governing. The common opinion is that these verses teach us that during a thousand years, after the destruction of the wild beast and false prophet, the church, delivered from all enemies, shall attain to the highest state of earthly and spiritual prosperity—that the rulers and the ruled shall all be holy—that wars shall cease, and the earthly paradise be again restored. Some contend that Jesus will descend from heaven and reign in Judea over the restored and now believing Israelites. Others again suppose that the martyrs and confessors will be raised and reign with him the thousand years on earth; but some, that when raised they will be translated to heaven a thousand years before the general resurrection, and that this is the first resurrection. Some thus contend for a literal, while others are equally strenuous for a figurative resurrection. This opinion rests wholly on what is not proved, that the vision does relate to events subsequent to the destruction of the wild beast and false prophet, chap. xix. 20. Of the identity of the dragon bound, with the dragon cast out of heaven, chap. xii. 9, there can be no ground to doubt. Having portrayed the

CHAPTER XX.

A. D. 96. Satan bound for a thousand years; the first resurrection; Satan let loose again; Gog and Magog; the devil cast into the lake of fire; the last resurrection, &c.

AND I saw an angel coming down from 1 heaven, that had the key of the abyss, and a great chain in his hand. And he laid 2 hold on the dragon, that old serpent, who is the devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years; And cast him into the 3 abyss, and shut him up, and set a seal on him, that he might deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be finished : and after that he must be loosed a little season.

And I saw thrones, and some were seated 4 on them, and judgment was given to them : and I saw the souls of those that had been beheaded for their testimony to Jesus, and for the word of God, and whoever worshipped not the wild-beast, or his image, nor took his mark on their foreheads, or on their hands, and lived and reigned with Christ the thousand years. (But the rest 5 of the dead lived not until the thousand years were finished.) This is the first resurrection. Happy and holy is he 6 that hath part in the first resurrection : on such the second death hath no power :

doom of the beast, in this vision he remounts to the time when the dragon sent forth the beast as his substitute, and embraces the space between that and the time when the dragon too shall perish as the beast and false prophet had perished. Attend to the vision : 'And I saw thrones and some seated on them.' Those who now occupied the thrones were the kings who reigned in the ten kingdoms into which the Western empire was divided. While these banished paganism, they gave power to the beast and false prophet to persecute and destroy the true followers of the Lamb. Hence it is said, 'And I saw the souls of those that had been beheaded,' &c. Comp. with chap. vi. 9—11. John saw now fulfilled what was there stated. 'And I saw those who worshipped not the wild beast or his image,' &c. John sees, not the souls, but the living persons of such as worshipped not the wild beast, &c. These were the faithful witnesses for Christ during the reign of the beast and false prophet, and took not his mark, &c. 'And,' or 'But lived and reigned with Christ,' &c. He reigned in his true church through this whole period, and his members lived and reigned with him. 'This is the first resurrection,' chap. ii. 11. This is not a literal but figurative resurrection; and it may refer to the increasing numbers of protestants, during the latter years of the wild beast's reign. The vision (if the aorists be rendered in the same time, as they ought to be) clearly implies that the beast and false prophet were in existence; but these faithful servants of their Lord worshipped him not, nor took, &c. Hence their reign with him must refer to time past, and not to future; and if this be the first resurrection, it must be a figurative or spiritual, and not a literal one. See Faber. 'Happy and holy is he that hath part,' &c. On all such the second death hath no power. 'They will not be cast into the lake of fire; but shall be priests of God,' &c.

5—10. But the rest of the dead] This is parenthetic, and is connected with verses 7, 8, and 9. Who is intended by the rest of the dead, seems to refer to those slain by the sword of him who sat on the horse, chap. xix. 21. As the church revives and prospers, so these enemies, always spiritually dead, are gradually deprived of power, and become civilly and ecclesiastically dead.—[Happy and holy] These but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him the 7 thousand years. And when the thousand years are finished, Satan shall be loosed

 8 out of his prison, And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom will be as the sand of the sea.
 9 And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and surrounded the camp of the saints, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.
 10 And the devil who deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the wild beast and the false prophet were, and they shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.
 11 And I saw a great white throne, and him who sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and no place was 12 found for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, standing before "the throne;" and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in the books, according 13 to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and Death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every one 14 according to their works. And Death and Hades were cast into the lake of fire. This 15 is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

CHAPTER XXI.

A. D. 96. A new heaven and a new earth; the new Jerusalem described; the glory of God is the light thereof; it is full of riches, wanting nothing.

1 AND I saw a new heaven and a new will then be joined; and they will have no fear of the second death, or future misery; but will here be consecrated to God as priests, and a succession of such characters will reign with Christ for this thousand years. See Lowman and Whitby. The second death is a Hebrew phrase for future misery.—Satan shall be loosed] How long after the thousand years are finished is not stated. In the close of the third verse, it is only for 'a little season,' but a hundred or five hundred years may be so called, when contrasted with a period of three or four thousand years. And the circumstances specified, his deceiving the nations, gathering them together, &c. implies a considerable period.—Gog and Magog] See Ezek. xxxviii, 39. If these mean the northern nations, then it is manifest that they will remain in a great measure idolaters.—Camp of the saints] Some confine this to the Jews converted and dwelling in Judea. But it rather seems to comprehend the body of the faithful, whose destruction these enemies contemplate. They are however disappointed: for fire from God devours them. The event can only explain what is meant by 'fire from God.'—And the devil] The dragon, the old serpent, is then cast into the lake of fire, where his associates, the wild beast and the false prophet, already were.

11—15. From whose face] Of the great Judge of all. The earth and the heavens passing away, may mean such a change as Peter describes, 2 Peter iii. 10—15.—The dead, earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice out of heaven, saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And he shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and death shall be no more: and mourning, and lamentation, and pain shall be no more: for the former things are passed away. And he who sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said to me, Write: for these words are true and faithful. And he said to me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. To him that is athirst I will freely give drink from the fountain of the water of life. He that overcometh shall inherit these things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.

And one of the seven angels, who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and talked with me, saying, Come hither; I will show thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb. And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, Having the glory of God: and its light was like to a most pre-small] Here the dead of all conditions are raised and stand before the throne of their judge; and the books recording their characters and actions were opened, as well as the book of life, and they were judged and rewarded according to what was written therein, and according to their works.

CHAP. XXI. 1. A new heaven] As we have had a view of the last judgment, I agree with those divines and commentators, who consider the new heaven and earth, the new Jerusalem, as emblematical of the glory and happiness which good men shall for ever enjoy.—No more sea] In this new earth one thing was remarkable, there was no sea, the well known symbol of agitation, commotions, and troubles.

2—8. The new Jerusalem] The emblem of the glorified church; and it appeared as a bride adorned for her husband, ornamented in the neatest manner. Comp. chap. xix. 7, 8.—The tabernacle] In allusion to the tabernacle of Moses. He will now dwell among his people in a more peculiar and distinguished manner, and no tear, no sorrow or pain shall they ever more experience.—Sat on the throne] The Lord Jesus said, Behold, I make, &c. I create these new heavens and earth, and form this glorious state for my redeemed; write what thou hast heard; for these visions contain the true sayings of God. He further said: 'It is done,' it is accomplished; all things are brought to a glorious and happy consummation. And I will give drink, cious stone, even like a jasper stone, when 12 clear as crystal; And it had a great and high wall, and twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve 13 tribes of the sons of Israel: On the east, three gates; on the north, three gates;

 on the south, three gates; and on the 14 west, three gates. And the wall of the city had twelve foundations; and on them the names of the twelve apostles of 15 the Lamb. And he that talked with me had for a measure a golden reed to measure 16 the city, and its gates, and its wall. Now the city lay foursquare, and its length was as large as its breadth. And he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and 17 the height of it were equal. And he measured its wall a hundred and forty-four cubits, according to the measure of a man, 18 which is the angel's measure. And the building of its wall was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, and like clear glass, 19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone.
 The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the 20 fourth, an emerald; The fifth, a sardonyx:
 the sixth, a sardius; the seventh, a chrysolyte; the eighth, a beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the 21 eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst. And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every gate was of one pearl; and the street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass. And I saw in it no 22 temple: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are its temple. And the city had 23 no need of the sun, or of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God enlightened it, and the Lamb was its light. And the 24 nations shall walk in its light: and the kings of the earth bring into it their glory and honour. And its gates shall not be 25 shut by day: for there shall be no night there. And men shall bring into it the 26 glory and honour of the nations. And no- 27 thing shall enter into it which defileth, or which worketh abomination, or uttereth a lie: but those only who are written in the Lamb's book of life.

CHAPTER XXII.

A. D. 96. The river and the tree of life; God himself is the light of this city; the angel refuses the homage of John; nothing must be added or taken from the prophecies of this book.

THEN the angel showed me a river of 1 water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.
 In the midst, between the breadth of the 2 city and the river, which ran on each side, was the tree of life, which bore twelve kinds of fruit, and yielded its fruit every month:
 and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be 3 no curse any more: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his

&c. I will satisfy the desires and hopes of my people; happiness shall flow in upon them as a water from a living perpetual spring. This is the reward of all conquerors; but the fearful, &c.

10. High mountain] Ezek. xl. 2. John in the vision seemed to stand on a high mount, that he might survey this model of the heavenly city or state, formed for the everlasting abode of the redeemed.

11—13. The glory of God] The shechina or divine presence was signally displayed.—A high wall] To express its perfect security, no enemy being able to scale it; and it has twelve gates, and an angel as sentinel at each; and the gates were named after the children of Israel, figuratively showing that none but spiritual Israelites should be admitted to enter and dwell therein.

14. Twelve foundations] Or foundation-stones, on which were inscribed the names of the twelve apostles, who laid the foundation of the Christian church by their ministry and labours; and who will for ever enjoy distinguished pre-eminence.

15—18. To measure the city] This was done to show its just proportions, as well as its amazing magnitude. It was square; and its four sides measured twelve thousand furlongs, or fifteen hundred miles, each side being three hundred and seventy-five miles long, to denote the ample capacity of the church. Here there is room for many of all nations.—The height of it equal] One thing appeared singular, the walls and buildings of this city were all equal in height, to show that in heaven all the civil distinctions of rank are done away, and the rich and poor of this world are there equal. See Grotius. As the wall was high, so the city was most glorious, as if made of gold, and shining as pure glass, which transmits the rays of light in the most perfect manner.

19—21. The foundations] These were large masses, or appeared so in the vision, inlaid with the following precious stones, which formerly adorned the high priest's breast-plate. Exod. xxviii. 17—20, and notes.—Twelve pearls] So they appeared from their colour; while the street or forum, public place of meeting, was paved with pure gold, &c.

22, 23. No temple] And there is no need of one, as the whole may be considered as a temple, God and the Lamb dwelling in this city, in a far more glorious manner than they did in any former temple; they may be said to be instead of a temple. Such is the glory they display, that there is no need of sun or moon to give light unto it.

24—26. Walk in its light] This city shall be as glorious as if all kings and nations brought their wealth into it; or 'the nations walking in its light, and kings bringing glory' may signify the worship and honour and glory which persons of all nations, and of all ranks, will in that state render to God and the Lamb.—Not shut by day] They will never be shut, as there is no night there. This is a forcible emblem of the greatest security and peace.

27. Which defileth] Though the gates of this city are always open, yet none are suffered to enter but those who are holy and sanctified; for impure and vicious persons, all idolatrous hypocrites and liars, shall be excluded.

CHAP. XXII. 1. A river of water] As the first paradise was watered with a river, so this city had one, clear as crystal, as an emblem of pure and overflowing happiness; and to show the source of this happiness this river flowed from the throne of God and the Lamb. Ezek. xl. 1—9.

2. In the midst] Mede supposes that an area, or plain appeared, around which this river ran, and in the midst of this was the tree of life, alluding to the tree so called in the first paradise: and this tree was always loaded with fruit of the richest kinds, to indicate the provision made for the happiness of the heavenly inhabitants; and even the leaves of this tree were, &c. to indicate that there will be no sickness there, chap. xxi. 4.

3—5. No curse there] See Gen. iii. 17. The displeasure of God shall be unknown there. Some think that the sense

- 4 servants shall serve him: And they shall see his face; and his name shall be on their 5 foreheads. And no night shall be there; and they shall need no candle, or light of the sun; for the Lord God shall enlighten them: and they shall reign for ever and ever.
- 6 Then the angel said to me, These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the "spirits" of the prophets hath sent his angel to show to his servants the things which must shortly come to pass.
- 7 For, behold, saith Jesus, I come quickly: happy is he who keepeth the words of the prophecy of this book.
- 8 And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel who showed me these things.
- 9 Then saith he to me, See thou do it not: for I am a fellow-servant with thee, and with thy brethren the prophets, and with those who keep the words of this book:
- 10 worship God. And he saith to me, Seal not the words of the prophecy of this book:
- 11 for the time is near. He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he that is polluted, let him be polluted still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.
- 12 Behold, saith Jesus, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give unto every man according as his work shall be. I am 13 Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Happy are they 14 that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Without 15 are dogs, and sorcerers, and fornicators, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie. I Jesus have sent 16 my messenger to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright morning star. And the Spirit and the 17 bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

I testify to every man that heareth the 18 words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: And if any man shall take 19 away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, which are written of in this book. He 20 who testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly; Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus. The grace of our Lord Jesus 21 Christ be with you all. Amen.

is, there shall be no persons worthy of the curse there.—See his face] Have the fullest discoveries of his perfections, and the most intimate and delightful communion and fellowship, not seeing as through a darkened glass, but face to face; and in this state they shall reign for ever and ever. 1 John iii. 2.

6, 7. To show to his servants] What now follows is a kind of epilogue to this wonderful series of prophecies, which regard things which were then shortly to begin to come to pass.—Behold, saith Jesus] Here our blessed Lord is generally considered as the speaker, and he assures his people that he would soon come to accomplish these sure and faithful words, and happy would they be in every period who should keep and observe them.

8—11. A fellow-servant] See chap. xix. 10.—Seal not] What is revealed is not to be kept secret, but to be made known for the edification of the church. And if, notwithstanding these awful warnings, men continue to be unrighteous and polluted, let them remain so, and let them receive the due rewards of their deeds; and on the other hand, let the righteous and the holy maintain a righteous and holy conduct, and they shall enjoy a most sure reward in the new Jerusalem.

12—15. My reward is] I am ready to deal with all on the just grounds of their conduct.

16, 17. I am the root] With Doddridge I consider that

John is here called the angel or messenger of Jesus to the churches; and he was to testify those things which he had seen or heard.—The Spirit] Of inspiration and prophecy; and the bride to which I am espoused, my church, unite in the kind invitation to men, saying, 'Come;' &c.

18—21. Shall add unto] I consider this awful threatening as extending to the whole of divine revelation, as well as to this book; because the same reason applies to the whole scriptures, as they are the true and faithful sayings of God. By adding to, I suppose is meant pretending to have received similar divine revelations, and attempting to persuade men to receive them as divine, as Mahomet and many others, either through hypocrisy, or delusion and enthusiasm, have done; and by taking from, denying that these are revelations from God, and acting wholly contrary to them. We are not to imagine that what is here said applies to any attempt either to expunge a corrupt reading, or to restore a true one; for by so doing we are neither adding to, nor taking from the words of this prophecy, nor any part of divine truth, but are defending and honouring it.—I come quickly] To this declaration John replies with the most hearty concurrence, Amen.—Even so, come, Lord Jesus] And may the rich and the free grace of this adorable Lord and Saviour be with all my readers for ever! Amen and amen
